RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

To those anglers who sought the elusive trout (any species) in the waters of the Tweed District of the Department of Lands and Forests—and came back empty-handed—don't give up the ship, mates.

The trout are there. The department can prove it.

Out of 300 questionnaires attached to stocking lists, 119 anglers filled them in and returned them to the Tweed office of the department.

The questionnaires revealed the 119 anglers made 1145 fishing trips to 246 different lakes and streams in the district in the period March 1st to October 5th and caught 4288 trout, all species. That was last year.

Since the total number of anglers who fish in district waters is not known, it is assumed the 119 persons who answered the questionnaire represent only a small number of the total anglers.

Out of this group who reported in 1959, 83 were bait fishermen, 32 were both bait and fly fishermen, and four were fly fishermen only.

Speckled trout proved the top haul with some 3056 being caught between May and September 15. May was the best month with the total bag of 1334. June produced 765, July, 367, August 296 and September 314.

From March to October anglers hauled in 913 lake trout with May being tops with a yield of 249.

Kamloops trout provided the slimmest yield with 126 being caught. From May 1 to September 15, while rivers trout provided 196 dinners, none being caught in August and September.

It is apparent that the month of May is the most popular month for anglers to visit the trout lakes. In 1960, the 119 anglers reporting, made 427 fishing trips in that month, and caught on an average of 3.89 trout per trip. It is also interesting to note that the following month of June only 345 trips were made by the group and during each trip an average of 4.66 trout were caught.

During July and August the two months of the open trout season when many anglers consider angling at its poorest, there was a sharp drop-off in angling pressure, yet the catch per angler per trip remained at 3.08 and 3.56 trout per angling trip each.

This pickup up to some extent, that the lower recovery rate at week by anglers in mid-summer is due to a reduced effort on the part of the angler, rather than upon the reluctance of the trout to bite during this period. Or other words, if you don't go after them, you won't catch them.

As was pointed out, May of last year was the biggest "haul" month of the season with 1662 of all species being hooked. Then came June with 1003; August, 488; July, 467; September, 384; March, 132, and April, 62.

Department officials believe that from the analysis of their questionnaire, anglers do not distribute themselves quite well over the district in their angling efforts. The group of 119 in a period of 219 days' fishing during the open trout season, visited and fished in 246 different lakes and streams and it is quite possible that the total anglers for the district—were they to have known—visited one time or another during the open season, fished in all the waters under stocking management for trout in the district.

The number of lakes and streams stocked with trout (all species) in the Tweed district in 1958 was 350. Units stocked with speckles, 226; brown trout, 12; lake trout, 17, and Kamloops four.

Although the number of anglers reporting may be small in proportion to the total, officials say that the trend in angling pressures and success can be derived from the information gathered. Also useful information is gained regarding the time when anglers exert the greatest fishing pressures on the trout fishery of the district.

"Cheap Penalties!"

OHA Referees Blasted

TORONTO (CP)—Team officials in the Ontario Hockey Association are complaining about what they call "shoulder whistle blowing" by referees.

Referees generally were given a thorough going over during an OHA meeting Monday and it resulted in referee-in-chief Pat Paterson being called on the carpet for the next OHA council meeting.

Toronto Marlboro owner Staff Smythe and Oshawa general manager Jack Humphreys complained that referees are spoiling the game by handing out cheap penalties.

Ruby Pilous, owner of St. Catharines Teepees said the league should try to get younger men who can skate but . . . "I don't know where you're going to get them."

Peterborough coach Scotty Bowman and Boston scout Harold Cotton representing Niagara Falls said a rash of cheap penalties had been handed out this year.

"From what I've seen they're antagonizing rather than officiating," said Pilous.

No Win, No Excuses Says Argos Coach

Rote Down With Flu

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Lou Agase of Toronto Argonauts, taking careful note of quarterback Tobin Rote's sore tummy, has jumped on the gastric bandwagon in prediction in sizing up Argo chances against Ottawa Rough Riders in the final series for the Big Four Football Union crown.

"If we don't win, I can't think of any possible excuses we can have," he said.

The comment came Monday after Rote, whose brilliant play propelled Argonauts to first place in the regular-season race with 10 victories in 14 games, was confined to his hotel room with the flu.

Agase wouldn't dare prognosticate like that unless he figured Rote would be in top shape for the two-game, total-point series, which starts in Ottawa Saturday and ends here Sunday, Nov. 20. The winner will represent the East in the Grey Cup classic at Vancouver Saturday, Nov. 26.

ALL ARE FIT

"Outside of Rote, and I expect he'll be back in a day or two, we're 100 per cent fit," amiable Lou said. "We've had a week's rest, lots of time to prepare for Ottawa. We started working on Thursday and by the time we practised Saturday night we knew which team we were to play."

The Rough Riders beat Montreal Alouettes 30-14 in a sudden-death semi-final.

Agase is not taking the Riders lightly. They gave Argonauts plenty of trouble during the season, winning three of five engagements against Argos. To make things a bit more difficult for Agase to come up with defensive strategy the Riders won 2-12 with a strong running attack, 26-12 on passing and 28-1 with a combination of both.

Argonauts went through a two-hour workout Monday — degree weather Monday night after watching films of the semi-final game.

BANKS ON CARDS

Agase is banking heavily for this series on his "reading" of a dozen cards.

Each shows the size of an envelope, the cards contain everything the coach feels is pertinent in the Argo - Rider games this season. In them is an analysis of Ottawa plays, formations and strategy—both offensive and defensive.

The Alouettes passed sho formation as an operation they used Saturday against Ottawa's defensive line. The deal required double teaming on Riders' tackle Angelo Mosca, plus a block by Montreal's Bill Hudson on defensive end Jim Reynolds. Riders couldn't cope by running at Don Clark and George Dixon until late in the game.

However, the information may not prove valuable to Argos. Lou Bruce, regarded as the best defensive end in the league, will be back with the Riders Saturday. He played periodically in the semi-final and consistently got through to harass Montreal quarterback Sam Etcheverry.

Gophers Tops In Football

NEW YORK (AP)—Minnesota Gophers are the new golden boys of U.S. college football with a No. 1 ranking in the weekly Associated Press poll after their 27-10 conquest of Iowa.

Minnesota rolled to its seventh straight victory and earned 40 first-place ballots from the 46-man panel of sports reporters. Four went to Missouri and one each for Ohio State, Mississippi and Washington. One vote was missing.

G. Tremblay Leads E.P.L. Point Parade

OTTAWA (CP)—Forward Gilles Tremblay of the league-leading Hull-Ottawa Canadiens has taken sole possession of first place in the individual scoring race of the Eastern Professional Hockey League with a total of 20 points.

League statistics released Monday showed his four assists last week gave him a total of nine goals and 11 assists. The statistics include Sunday games.

Scott Pennington, who shared first place with his teammate Jean Guy Gendron last week, has dropped to second spot with 19 points. He has eight goals and 11 assists.

Buddy Boone of Kingston Frontenacs jumped from 12th spot to third, tied with Cleland Morrison of Sudbury with 18 points. Boone was the best scorer of the week with five goals and two assists.

Boone is the only marksman in the league with 12 goals while J. C. Tremblay of the Canadiens has the most assists with 12.

Eddie Johnston of the Canadiens allowed only one goal in his team's three games last week and saw his average drop to 3.00 from second. He gives up two shutouts, tying Kenny Walters' record but breaking Walters' old record of 126 minutes and 32 seconds. Johnston now has blanked the opposition in the last 41 minutes and 23 seconds.

Ike Saull Jr. Marle team is still the most penalized with 242 minutes with Sudbury right behind. Guy Black of Montreal is the most penalized player with 97 minutes.

Jockey Rides Four Winners, Is Suspended

TORONTO (CP)—Charlie Boland, 20, an apprentice jockey from Old Chelsea, Que., rode four winners at New Woodbine race track Monday.

Boland rode the odds-on favorite in the first race and Brownette in the second. Then, he rode Mooey to victory in the afternoon's feature race. Boland captured the final race on King Ranch.

Ironically, Boland now is suspended. He will be eligible for reinstatement, the result of careless riding on Merrill's Mogul in Friday's third race.

Hugo Dittfach, 24, German-born jockey and a leading rider at New Woodbine track, was injured Monday when thrown during the first race.

Dr. J. R. McRae, track physician, ordered Dittfach taken to hospital. He is believed to have suffered a broken collarbone and possible other injuries.

The accident occurred when Pop Polar Bear lost his rider leaving the starting gate. Jockey Keith Stafford also was hurt the horse bolted down the track, running the tests of Dittfach's mount, Blondar.

Blondar fell just as they passed the five-sixteenth pole and rolled on the jockey.

Dittfach rode was 200th winner of the 1960 season Saturday when he took the fourth race on Bold Scholar. He is the contract jockey for Lanson Farms, owned by M. J. Boylen of Toronto.

Leafs Get Shack In Players Deal

TORONTO (CP)—Eddie Shack, one of junior hockey's brightest prospects who tumbled into mediocrity as soon as he hit the National League with New York Rangers, has been picked up by Toronto Maple Leafs in a two-for-one trade.

Rangers cast off Shack Monday in exchange for Ian - man Johnny Wilson, 21, and promising Pat Hannigan, 24. All three are left-wingers.

The switch was not surprising. Shack, a big, rugged and temperamental 23-year-old native of Sudbury, Ont., has been Rangers' trade bait for a long time despite his great potential and outstanding record in the juniors.

Shack and the Ranger management never seemed to get along. The New Yorkers tried to peddle the six-foot, 190-pounder along with star defenceman Bill Gadsby to Detroit Red Wings last season in exchange for rearguard Red Kelly and right-winger Billy McNeill. The trade fell through when Kelly refused to report to New York. He later went to Leafs.

DIDN'T DO WELL

Shack scored only seven goals and 14 assists in 67 games last season and started off this campaign with a contract dispute. He finally signed but both Rangers he would like to be traded to Leafs. Rangers agreed to let him go as soon as a suitable deal could be arranged. He had one goal and two assists in 14 New York games this season.

Punch Imlach, Leafs' manager - coach, isn't enthusiastic about Shack's professional record.

"I'm just gonna move him around and see how he fits in," Imlach said. "He has never impressed me with Rangers but his record as a junior impressed me. He's a big, strong skater and he's tough. He's still going to have to make his place on this team."

Ranger coach Alf Pike said: "Shack might go real well in Toronto. Maybe New York was just too big for him. Shack was out of shape. Wilson can help us on the left wing, and so can Hannigan. I won't take anything away from Wilson, but Hannigan has the ability to help our club in the future."

WILSON HOLDS RECORD

Wilson, a native of Kincardine, Ont., is in his 5th straight NHL campaign and holds a league record of having played in 320 consecutive games.

Hannigan has been with the Rochester Americans, a Leafs farm team in the American League. He is from Timmins, Ont., and showed well in season training with Toronto this year.

Wilson and Hannigan are expected to be in the Ranger lineup against Detroit Wednesday night. The New Yorkers are in last place in the league race. Shack reports to Leafs, tied for third spot with the Wings, today. Shack had a brilliant record with Guelph Biltmores of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series in the 1954-57 season. He finished second in the individual scoring race with teammate Bill Sweeney, now with the AHL Springfield Indians. Shack was with Providence Reds of the AHL for the 1957-58 campaign, then moved up to Rangers.

Golden Gael College Score Champ

TORONTO (CP) — Halfback Robin Ritchie of Queen's University Golden Gaels is the 1960 college football scoring champion.

The all-round backfielder, finishing with 62 points, 36 more than the runner-up Jim Furlong of Willie Lambert of McGill University Redmen. Halfback Harry Haukkala of McGill was third with 28 points, eight behind Lambert and 34 back of Ritchie.

Ritchie's convert and field goal kicking was the big difference between him and Lambert. Both scored six touchdowns but the Queen's player was perfect on converts, four field goals and two singles.

Haukkala kicked 13 converts and five singles.

Ritchie scored a touchdown and field goal Saturday, Lambert a touchdown and Haukkala converts as McGill defeated Queen's 15-3 to force a playoff for the senior intercollegiate title next Saturday in Kingston between the two clubs.

Quarterback Cal Connor of Queen's finished in third position with 24 points. Halfback John McMurtry of the University of Toronto Blues and quarterback Ken Ryedale of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, the leading scorers of their teams, finished in fourth place with four others with 18 points each.

Canada Wins Second Jumping Event

NEW YORK (AP) — Canada won its second international jumping event in the U.S. national horse show Monday, and Tommy Gayford of Toronto Whimsy into the lead for individual honors.

The happy was for the Royal winter Fair trophy and Gayford, 31, made Maplelegh to victory. Capt. William Steinkraus of Garland was second aboard Cloyne, followed by Frank Morris of the U.S. and Lieut. John Daly of Ireland.

Of the 11 international tests so far in Madison Square Garden, the U.S. has won six, Canada and Ireland two each and Venezuela one. Mexico has been shut out.

In the individual race, Gayford, who won two years ago, has 36 points. Daly is far behind with 28, Wiley of the U.S. is third with 27.

U.S. FAR AHEAD

The U.S. remained far ahead in the team standings with 102 points to 62 for second - place Canada.

The Royal Winter Fair competition was over 12 obstacles. The Riders were required to be as clear as many fences as possible within one minute.

Only Gayford was able to make the course in that time. He started around a second time and was over the first barrier before time ran out.

"Lucky," said Gayford. "pure luck."

Gayford, a 31-year-old floor trader on the Toronto Stock Exchange, said "I guess these days we have better horses and they have more experience."

Cpl. Conmee, sent by Mrs. Deane Rankin of Crouse Polaire Farms, Mich., captured the consolation hunter show. The five-year-old chestnut gelding now has 39 points, making the remaining event meaningless. Defending champion Pike's Peak, owned by Eleo Sears, finished in second place with eight points.

Juniors Dress Player Less

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Hockey Association Junior A council agreed Monday to change player roster rules to permit dressing of 17 players plus a regular and a spare goaltender.

The old rule allowed dressing of 16 players, including goalies.

The council also decided to suspend the annual Junior A all-star game this season.

Lords Win Senior ORFU Whip Raiders

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—London Lords, after four years of frustration, won the senior Ontario Rugby Football Union championship here Monday night by defeating Ford Hurons-Detroit Raiders, 25-20, London won the series 58-54.

The Lords, who lost the opening game of the two-game, total-point series by a 24-23 score, showed their most devastating ground attack of the season, upsetting the Raider defence which has been schooled to halt the potent passing threat of the Lord's Jerry Thompkins.

Bobby Dewalo, who was London's biggest ground gainer, scored two touchdowns early in the game to throw the Raiders off-stride at the start.

Lamar Lee Adams's kicking specialist, booted two field goals, four converts and a single to go with other touchdowns by Ernie White and Bill Hasson.

Curtis Cotton scored two touchdowns for the Raiders and Lee Williams a single.

T. Helm scored both goals as the Royals blanked the Flyers in one of the six squirt hockey games played last night.

Maple Leafs and Canadiens tied 3-3. Mutrhill scored twice and Acquarreddo once for Canadiens while Pelletier potted a pair and Birtley one for Leafs.

Rangers downed the Bruins 7-1. Aiers Jones and Jim Blanchford scored a pair of goals apiece while other Ranger markers went to Brian James, Bob Ilewitt and Chris Burke. Jim Wood had the Bruin goal.

..ad Wings copped a 5-1 decision over Black Hawks with T. Waite getting two Wing goals. A. Wilson, H. Smith and H. Jones had one each while P. Mickenna scored for the Hawks.

.. Pelletier fired all three of the Mets' goals but it was only enough to earn a 3-3 tie with the Frontenacs. J. Holmes, D. Demers and M. Creswell triggered the Frontenac markers.

Maroons defeated the Browns on two-goal efforts by S. Sharpe and F. Smith. D. Bessinger added the other. J. Scott netted two for the losers with J. Means getting the other.

In the midget grouping, Maple Leafs got high-scoring efforts from Jim McGuire and J. Onderdonk to down Rangers 6-3. Onderdonk scored 4 goals and helped on one while McGuire had two goals and two assists. F. Farrell also had two assists. Ken Johnson bagged three Ranger goals with one each for Stan Woodcock and H. Babcock. Jerry St. Denis, Stan Woodcock, Jim Woodcock, Art Loons and H. Babcock drew assists.

Black Hawks whipped the Bruins 8-4 with Gene Yorke potting three goals and one assist. Wayne Woods had two goals and as many assists while Ron Faulkner, Bill Allen, Jim Hall and Jim Matis also scored. Allen had two helpers, Mairs, Rose, Faulkner and Art Taylor one each. Wayne Bratton, M. Mountney and Larry Brant scored for the Bruins and Jim Boyle had an assist.

Curt Boomhower's terrific five-goal performance gave Canadiens a 6-3 win over the Red Wings. D. Hannah had a goal and two assists and R. Denard an assist. Bill Bell and Hunter scored for the Wings with Archer and Reddick drawing assists.

Irish Whip Old-Timers 5-2

TORONTO (CP)—Despite an attempt to spoil the foundering Old Boys team by "selling" them two players between periods, St. Michael's College Junior A Majors defeated their all - star club 5-2 Monday night.

Celebrating the opening of St. Michael's Arena, the Irish were the current Majors took on the double-blues of yesteryear, some of the hockey-famous school's greatest graduates.

The grand team included Red Kelly, Ted Lindsay, Dick Duff, Frank Mahovlich, Dave Keon, Jim Horton, Gus Mortson, Bill Dineen, Fleming MacKell, Ted Sloan, Dick Matthias, Bob Debourth, Rev. Les Costello and goaltenders Ed Chadwick and Gerry MacNamara. Refs were Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Jim Thomson.

From the first period Majors outclassed the Old Boys, some out of condition, others now starring in the National Hockey League. Because the greats were shorthanded, Majors coach Fred David Bauer made a between-period deal and sold the guests' Rev. Ted Flaman to Majors' players, Dave Keon and Bob McHugh.

Majors' goals were scored by Duncan McDonald, Darrell Quirk, Larry Keenan, Bruce Draper and Arnold Brown. Goals for the lickless Old Boys were scored by Lindsay, and Dineen, now of Cleveland Browns.

Western Hockey

VICTORIA (CP) — Western Hockey League sharpshooters closed in last week on Seattle centre Gayle Fielder, seeking his fifth consecutive scoring championship.

Held to two points in the two games Seattle played, Fielder was left with 17 points, one more than veteran Ray Hillan.

Fielder's 17 points included the league high of 13 assists in the nine games his club has played. Fillon has four goals and 12 assists. The third spot was Bruce Gau, Seattle, Bob Sollinger, Edmonton and Nick Mickoski and Gordie Redahl of Winnipeg with 15 points each.

Leading goalie is Calgary veteran Lucien Dechene. He allowed 18 goals in seven games for a 2.57 average. Vancouver's Ray Mikulan actually has a 1.00 average but has played only two games — allowing one goal in each.

MONTREAL (CP) — Although the order was changed, the Montreal triumvirate of Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, Dickie Moore and Jean Beliveau still headed the polls today in the National Hockey League's private little campaign for goals and assists.

Geoffrion had 23 points, Moore 22 and Beliveau 21. Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings, the Wings' ticket, had 20 points and was threatening to break the Canadiens' monopoly.

Geoffrion picked up one goal and three assists while the Habitantes last week to snatch the lead from Moore. Dickie scored two goals and one assist. Beliveau closed in with six points on three goals and three assists. He broke a third-place deadlock with Ullman, who nevertheless had a gratifying ⅓3 count for five points.

Moore is setting the goal-getting pace with a total of 15 but 12 assists.

"Rifle" Hurt Before Holds Riders Blameless

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes coach Perry Moss says Riders had nothing to do with quarterback Sam Etcheverry's sore shoulder.

Moss said Monday that Etcheverry's shoulder — not quite definitely had been hurt earlier and that Etcheverry didn't throw the ball in practice Friday. It was only the Big Four sudden-death play off to be Riders, 30-15.

Moss said Etcheverry, who didn't pass in the first half, would have been throwing in any event had the pre - game plan called for it.

"People are saying we had to hurt Sam to win, and that isn't so," said Moss.

The plan was not to give up the ball if possible in Montreal territory, especially through interference. Passes were provided for counter plays to passing. The passing was to be used by halfbacks except for passing on third down.

The Als were to stay with the general plan as long as they were within seven points of the Riders.

SAID TO OPEN UP

"We did this until the score was 15-7 against us, and then I said 'open up,'" said Moss. Then with passing and ground plays the Als cut the margin to 16-14.

"After that we were in trouble with two mistakes and the Ottawa team got two interceptions."

Ottawa coach Frank Clair's tactics were clear-cut. A strong wind ruled out import Ron Lancaster's so-called "soft" passes. So Russ Jackson took over duties on the ground and retained his record of never losing as a starting quarterback against the Alouettes.

Clair's crew emerged from the game bruised but fit.

Offer Archie 40,000 Quid For Bout

LONDON (Reuters) — Archie Moore has been offered £40,000 (about $112,000) to defend his world light-heavyweight title against Chic Calderwood, the British Empire champion, here in May.

Matchmaker Micky Duff said Monday night he cabled the offer to Moore on behalf of promoters Harry Levene and Peter Keenan.

Moore is recognized as the world champion everywhere except in the area of authority of the U.S. National Boxing Association. The NBA holds that the title is vacant.

Moore was beaten on points by Giulio Rinaldi of Italy in a contitle bout in Rome Oct. 29. Rinaldi knocked out Rolf Peters'on of Germany in the sixth in Paisley, Scotland, last week.

The Tracks

BOSTON (CP) — Snowberry took first place and The Rose was second Monday in the sixth of 11 Suffolk Downs.

The Canadian-owned Applause Lass from far, back in this stretch to finish third.

Snowberry paid $5.30, $5.60 and $2.80, while The Rose paid $12.60 and $4.40. Applause was $7.20 to show.

A six - year - old gelding, Applause Lass is owned by Sweeney of Bridgewater, N.S., and Mrs. R. Young Foxboro, N.S.

ALBANY, CALI. (AP) — There were 38 Daily Double tickets and double tickets worth $1,404 at Golden Gate Race Track Monday. And 22 of them complied immediately with a new federal regulation to report winnings of more than $600.

Track officials expressed belief that the other six winners of this highest daily double of the year in California would supply their names and addresses when they cash in the tickets.

Hockey Hints

By Lloyd Percival

BOBBY GETS IT OUT

Possession is nine points of the law. This old saying certainly applies to modern hockey. This is why coaches are always exhorting their players to "dig for the puck," especially when it is inside the opposing teams' defensive zone. The player who can consistently come up with the puck is worth his weight in gold and this describes Bobby Hull of the Chicago Black Hawks.

Watching the husky Chicago star is always fun as Bobby and the young hockey player since Hull has great all-round ability but for now I'll confine my remarks to his skill at coming up with the puck during scrambles and pressure play in the blue line zone. The key to Hull's success is the way he uses his body to get possession, a trick that many young players are failing to emulate.

When the Chicago star is scuffling for the puck his main objective is to get his body between his opponent and the puck. He rarely as so many young players do, flashes at the puck with his stick. Keeping in good balance, he uses his body. Hull with a quick swing of his hips moves his opponent back and away from the puck, which not only gains him possession but leaves him closer to move quickly away with the puck protected by his body. This trick is worth all the time spent learning it. For more lessons from this great player, send a stamped self-addressed envelope and 10c to Willing Gl, West. Toronto, for my bulletin, "Hobby Hull, Fullback On Skates."

Bay of Quinte Basketball

The high-flying Crawford Motels team from Belleville took over possession of first place in the Bay of Quinte basketball loop all by itself last night with a 62-54 victory over Belleville Lightfoots.

In the other half of the twin-bill, Belleville Teachers handed Picton a 77-38 whipping to curtail our game, and that isn't so," said Moss.

The plan was not to give up the ball if possible in Montreal territory, especially through interference. Passes were provided for counter plays to passing. The passing was to be used by halfbacks except for passing on third down.

The Als were to stay with the general plan as long as they were within seven points of the Riders.

CBC Unable To Switch Grid Date

WINNIPEG (CP) — The CBC said Monday night it is unable to adjust its television commitments and rejected a request to switch the date of the second game of the Western Interprovincial Football Union final playoff.

A proposal made by Edmonton Eskimos and supported by Winnipeg Blue Bombers, the two teams in the final, asked that a game be played Saturday, November 12 to Wednesday, Nov. 16.

CBC approval was needed because it is carrying the games on television and contract commitments already have been made.

The CBC spokesman said "If there had been some way of juggling the network schedule we would have been pleased to do it."

The first game of the best-of-three final to decide the WIFU champions will be played in Edmonton Saturday, Nov. 12. The second game will be played in Winnipeg.

Bombers asked for the change on the grounds that it would give the team more time to rest after the first game.

WON CHESS TITLE

LEIPZIG, East Germany (AP) With one round left, the Soviet Union's formidable team has clinched the Olympic chess tournament with 31 points. The Soviet Union is followed with 30½ and Yugoslavia third with 26 in the 15-nation field. The American team lost to Czechoslovakia 2½ to 1½ in the 10th round Monday. The Russians now have won the Olympic title five straight times. Their current team is headed by World champion Mikhail Tal and former World champion Mikhail Botvinnik.

Senior Hockey At Low Mark On Coast

TRAIL (CP)—Once a stronghold of hockey, interior British Columbia's two senior amateur leagues stood on shaky ground today.

Nelson Maple Leafs said Sunday that they will withdraw from the Western International League for a variety of reasons.

Merritt Grand Ladies, newcomers in the five-team Okanagan Senior A League, said Monday night they will revert to Senior B status.

Both teams are at the bottom in league standings. Crowds in both centres, have been consistently low.

Merritt said expenses in the Senior A league are too high. The WIHL-OSHL clubs are the only senior amateur teams west of Ontario.

Cross-Canada Survey

Wild Duck Nesting Season Aided by Favorable Weather Gives Hunters Good Shooting

By FRED CHAFE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Shotguns are booming over Canada's lakes and marshes and conservation officials, always on a hen mallard watching over her brood, cautiously predict thirsty ducks are looking up for the fall fowl population.

The fabulous flights of the mid-1950s haven't returned, but a coast-to-coast survey by The Canadian Press shows that in most areas there are healthy signs that the 1960 season produced big families of quackers.

Even canvasback and redheads, the speedy divers whose numbers have dwindled so dangerously in recent years that hunters have been asked not to shoot them, are holding their own and perhaps making a little comeback.

As usual, weather conditions in the big prairie nesting and southward migration of ducks and geese over the long season—from August early to late December—in northern Prairie areas and doesn't close until the end of February in New Brunswick—had a big influence on what is known until the mass flights have come and gone.

MIGRATION DELAYED

Ducks Unlimited, the international conservation agency which over years watches the "duck factory" of the Prairies, reports fine fall weather kept the birds feeding on the land in many areas and delayed migration. Only sporadic flights up to early November.

But early checks of hunters' bills from all across the Prairies gave a promising sign: A ratio of juvenile to adult birds much above average, indicating good hatching success. Some bags were contained as high as 80-85 per. cent of ducks hatched this year.

"There is strong evidence that waterfowl production this year was better than the average for Prairie provinces and that southward migration waves will contain a much higher percentage of juveniles," Ducks Unlimited reports.

"The good production applies to geese as well as ducks, particularly in Alberta and Saskatchewan."

Ducks Unlimited cites heavy fall rains in 1958 and a good run off from melting snow in the spring as the big factors in making for a good year.

All three Prairie provinces reported a particularly good year for their areas, as high as 167 per cent in Saskatchewan. An April 28 blizzard wiped out many nests in southern Alberta and western Saskatchewan but the storm is considered on the danger list but were surprisingly abundant in some areas, notably in the vast Lake Winnipegosis marshes.

Bag limits—seven ducks a day on the Prairies, six elsewhere—are restricted this year to cut "mistake" canvasback or redhead.

Here's how the picture shapes up elsewhere:

Newfoundland: Federal wildlife officer Leslie Tuck predicts a normal season in this island where water levels remain fairly constant. Chief targets are black ducks, often old squaws along the coastline and Canada geese which have been making a comeback since the 1930s when disease struck the eel grass beds, their chief feeding grounds.

Prince Edward Island: Black ducks and blue-wing teal make nest on the island, provide about 75 per cent of the early-season kill. Volume appears about the same as the last two years, says Charles Bartlett of the federal conservation laboratories, and there is a good juvenile ratio.

Ringnecks appear down slightly but make up a small percentage of the fall kill.

Nova Scotia: Conservation Director Lawrence Mason reports ringnecks down here also but redheads and teal and ducks are average. Nova Scotia gets a good flight of bluebills but they don't arrive in any number for breeding grounds until December. Canada goose siltation is "very encouraging," says Mason.

New Brunswick: The provincial fish and wildlife branch says "all appear to be normal on the most common species — blacks, mallards, geese and whistlers. New Brunswick, in common with most of the Maritimes, gets few canvasbacks, redheads, mallards or pintails.

Quebec: Snow geese flights on the lower St. Lawrence have been spectacular and definitely above last year, reports federal biologist Louis Lemieux. Good duck population—blacks, teal and wood ducks are the most common along with pintails, mallards, whistlers and bluebills—is stable with the ratio of juveniles slightly better than average.

Ontario: The lands and forestry department reports a notable increase in Canada geese in the province. Duck action has been very relaxed. Duck output has ranged from excellent to poor depending on local water conditions, but spring counts on the St. Clair, one of the continent's top canvasback and redhead areas, showed both species decreased sharply.

British Columbia: Early reports show spotty migration but a good hatching. Species are present in their usual proportion with mallards 46 per cent, pintails 26 per cent, green-wing teal 19 per cent, widgeon 13 per cent.

Six Nations To Compete In Big Race

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Two British and an Irish horse arrived by air Monday to join eight others for a crack at the $100,000 International $100,000 Washington D. C. International Friday. The arrivals completed the field from six nations.

Last to arrive for the mile and one half global classic on grass were England's Apostle Pro Specific, and Fairney Fox from Ireland.

They joined the United States' Bald Eagle, winner of the 1959 International, and Sword Dancer, Puissant Chef and Hautian of France who ran one-two in the recent Prix l'Arc de Triomphe in Paris; Santa Severa and Ribot Marin of Italy. Zabeg from the Soviet Republic and Zadorny representing the Ukrainian Republic.

Gilchrist, Parker

Named Outstanding Players

TORONTO (CP) — Fullback Cookie Gilchrist of Toronto Argonauts and Jackie Parker of Edmonton Eskimos have been chosen as the outstanding players in the East and West, it was announced Monday.

Football writers and broadcasters in the Big Four league and Western Interprovincial Football Union rules made their choice in a poll conducted by a distillery.

Eastern voters, balloting only for Big Four players, chose Gilchrist, the league's scoring champion in 1959 and 1960 who doubled on defence either as a linebacker or tackle, WIFU selectors picked Parker, equally as dangerous as a runner, passer or pass receiver.

A ballot, open to selectors East and West, will be held later this month to name either Gilchrist or Parker as the outstanding player in the country.

Parker, an import from Mississippi State College, won the award in 1957 and 1958. Gilchrist, an import from Terentum, Pa., never played college or pro football in the United States.

Voters will also decide two other awards — the outstanding Canadian player in pro football, and the outstanding lineman.

Halfback Bernie Faloney of Ottawa Rough Riders and guard Tony Pajaczkowski of Calgary Stampeders were the Canadians chosen best in their leagues and tackle Bob Ptacek of Edmonton and guard Herb Gray of Winnipeg Blue Bombers are the linemen chosen in preliminary balloting. Vaughan was the lineman award in 1956 and 1957.

Bill Sweeney Leads A.H.L. Scoring Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Three veteran centres are setting a hot pace in the American Hockey League's individual scoring departments.

Statistics released today for games through last Sunday show Bill Sweeney of Springfield Indians the No. 1 man in total points with 22 on eight goals and 15 assists, Phil Maloney of Buffalo Bisons the top goal scorer with 11, and his teammate, Larry Wilson, the leader in assists with 16.

Wilson, who has been the leading point scorer for several weeks, dropped to second spot, a point back of Sweeney. Three points back tied for third are Bill McCreary of the league-leading Indians and Norm Corcoran of Quebec Aces.

Springfield's Marcel Paille allowed only four goals in three games last week to boost his league-leading goaltending average to 1.71 on 24 goals in 14 minutes. Including his shut-out, work was his fifth shutout of the season. No other goalie has more than one.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RICHTER

Wednesday, November 9

General tendencies: This is one of those interesting days when most everyone is in a much more generous - minded and broad - scoped frame of mind than generally. Be sure to think over what you actually want most. Then you can take the initial steps to let those in powerful position who are willing to help others know your ambitions with much support following for you.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Provided you have been living in accord with your planetary chart, you should arise this morning feeling most energetic, when you can be out and active whatever brings fine success. Soon you can also have a goodly deal of fun, too.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Though you must be out in the busy business world, think out how to make your home life more harmonious and happy. Then put ideas to work in P.M. and watch the fine results. Friends to who will be compatible and helpful to all.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Best results are possible in any duties or production work, examinations, courses of study, etc. Also, come to a better understanding with partners. Spend some time out with good friends and have a delightful time. Be more early.

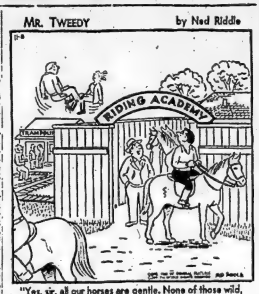
Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Truly important money matters can be handled most wisely and expertly today. Get good suggestions from high-type experts, too. P. M. fine for doing the coming week's activities nicely planned. Be practical, clever.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) — An early start today will bring excellent results in whatever endeavors of importance you wish to expend your energies upon. Add to its comfort. Be sure you P. M. put care aside and go out for a charming and relaxing evening with good friends or acquaintances.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Forget the small and petty things now, and concentrate upon truly important matters so that you can expand and be more happy, successful. Evening is then good for taking it easy or enjoying some simple and inexpensive amusement.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — A generous friend can be approached today for the suggestions and favors you need. Follow good ideas given. P. M. fine for enjoying the company of old friends and kind relatives.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — Be sure you contact the right higher - up who can release the favor or project you need at this time. Be straight-forward, concessive with your big ideas and fine capabilities. Contact you quickly — be appreciative.



Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — You have a much better conception of conditions and situations in your life as they truly are now. Therefore, begin to work in the more practical and be sure of yourself, think positively. P. M. make new contacts.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — You have permitted yourself to get bogged down with details and not concentrating on big issues. Consider important things first and leave for greater success. P. M. impress loved one— get his, or her, co-operation.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Time to come to a far better understanding with all associates who are important to your well-being right now. Increase good will with all. P. M. fine for going out and having a jolly old time after a sumptuous dinner.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Labor wisely and diligently today and also make improvements to enhance appearance of your surroundings, as well as show appreciation for any assistance given you by co-workers. Be kind.

If your child is born today ... he, or she, will be one of those interesting youngsters who wants the centre of the stage and is a natural - born actor, so it is important you understand your child and not ruin this natural talent by too much discipline which could lead to frustration. However, teach early that the greatest success comes from the ability to work hard and give duties to perform early in life. The chart can be the most successful instead of a very disappointing one.

ELECTION CLIMAX

The both candidates the day's turbulence ended on a subdued note. In final low-keyed evening speeches Adlai Stevenson urged Americans to vote and to pick the man they "can trust to serve America." His vice-presidential running mate, Senator Estes Kefauver, joined him on the program.

Eisenhower again appealed to voters to support Nixon. This was his last campaign stop as the president. I shall ever wish for Nixon's good success in this office," he said.

Nixon's crucial role today was to help the new presidential ticket. Ballots also were counted for 34 senators in the 100-seat chamber, a complete new 437 members for the House of Representatives as well as 27 state governorships and other officials, right down to county sheriffs, coroners and dog-catchers in some states.

Nixon's last campaign stop.

Though Eisenhower has had control over the White House for the last eight years, Democrats have controlled both houses of Congress for that period. Many observers predict that no matter which party wins the White House out, Democrats will still maintain their majority hold over Congress.

Telephone officials said the response to the Democratic-Republican answer telecast "swamped" the telephone lines with hundreds of 200 Republican volunteers in the Detroit TV studio. Questions ranged from how Nixon would handle unemployment to who would be in the Cabinet if the Nixon accompany him on his campaign instead of staying home with the children.

One query that also filtered through to Nixon was a question touched on why Nixon found time to play golf during the campaign when he couldn't seem to find time for a fifth TV debate with Kennedy. Nixon replied that he only broke off negotiations for a fifth debate.

Most of Nixon's answers have been aimed everywhere by the Democratic ticket. Kennedy at first tried to ignore the telethon but later labeled the Nixon answers a waste of time to rebut Nixon's statements. Kennedy, appearing with his two sisters as panelists, said that as a Roman Catholic he would not let the Pope "or anyone else in my church" influence him as president.

The U.S. has never had a Catholic president, Kennedy said, but had a tough time fighting anti-Catholic sentiment particularly in the South. He said a majority of the country's 180,000,000 people believe in God.

Unlike Canada where federal election time lasts only 67 days, campaigning 48 hours before voting begins, campaigning in the U.S. starts right in the wire.

The U.S. election is a form of "direct democracy" with the candidate's popular vote in each state, not the candidate with the aggregate popularity count to win. Whoever gets that state's electoral votes. The total number of votes is 537. A candidate needs a minimum of 269 votes. In key state is New York with 43.

Seamen Walk off Montreal Harbor, Great Lakes Ships

MONTREAL (CP) — At the height of the fall grain-shipping season, a large number of lake ships in Montreal harbor and the Great Lakes were tied up today after a sudden walkout by members of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada.

The Lake Carriers Association immediately notified union leader Hal Banks that he and the SIU will be held "in all ways responsible for damages to ships and cargoes as a result of this abandonment."

The SIU would not comment for the time being but confirmed the walkout.

The SIU and the association settled a contract dispute last month that ended a 62-day tie-up and a lockout.

SIU LEADER TO GROW

It was not known how many ships and seamen are affected but the new walkout is expected to increase the port of Montreal's deficits over the 1959 season.

Crews of grain - laden ships now are at anchor downstream from Montreal, waiting to unload their cargoes but elevators are jammed to their 17,000,000-bushel capacity.

Irs McEwen, secretary of the Lake Carriers' Association, claimed the walkout was a result of a dispute between the SIU and the National Association of Marine Engineers (CLC).

The SIU was ordered by the Canadian Labor Congress to stop raiding another union's members last year, and subsequently was suspended from the CLC.

Banks, head of the association of Marine Engineers is the certified bargaining agent for the marine engineers.

SHORT OF FLEET HIT

The grain-laden ships in Montreal, comprising most of the Great Lakes grain fleet, were forced to anchor last week.

There was no indication the lake ships would be able to unload and return to the Lakehead at Fort William for winter storage.

This would ease the situation at Lakehead elevators, so that stocks from Prairie farms could be moved in during the winter months.

TURN DOWN BID

boat. The adult owner of a boat and motor could be held responsible for its use.

In a juvenile misbehaves on Canadian lakes, he said, it is the duty of the parent to "take him over the jurisdiction."

O. F. Grant of Kingston, expressed concern at the idea of sea lamprey, which had reached Kingston Harbor committee, he said, would be out of control, and limit might be enforced. He criticized his bill birthday Monday, and the activity participated.

Chairman of the meeting was Peter Dobbie, who said the new regulations for the department, who held that while the meeting was called for information, not binding on the government, they would be taken into account by the department in drawing up future regulations.

ASKS BETTER ENFORCING

The meeting also:

1. Called for better enforcement of existing regulations on boats using the inland Waters of Ontario.

2. Saw a new life jacket developed by the department and the National Research Council. It is shaped like a horse collar.

100 Ontario Mayors, Reeves Told Nuclear War Possibility They Can't Afford to Ignore

By JACK VAN DUREN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP) — The grim possibility of a nuclear "accident" being unmanned home in a converted air base near here that was built for yesterday's war of guns and bomber-bombers.

The Allies used up conventional explosives equivalent to 3,000,000 tons of TNT in the entire bombing of Europe in the Second World War, and incurred for H. J. Barnstrier, speaking Monday in a converted hangar once used by the RCAF.

He added that one five-megaton nuclear bomb, or tomorrow's missile war, has the destructive force of 5,000,000 tons of TNT.

Some 100 Ontario mayors and reeves were attending a two-day course at the airfield—its hangars and barracks now converted to Canada's Civil Defence College.

CANNOT IGNORE

Federal officials stressed in the first day of the courses that nuclear war is a possibility that its cannot afford to ignore. To help explain why, they showed workers scurried through the mock-up rubble of a bomb-shattered city, where they had been spatialized "casualties" off roof-tops and into the new buildings.

Instructors told how a nuclear bomb could wreak havoc within a city up to 20 miles from the point of impact, and how radioactive fallout could stretch in a 100-mile-wide path for many miles downwind and 40 miles across.

The heat blast from a bomb greater 250 feet deep and 1,000 feet wide could cause third-degree burns 15 miles away and set fires 30 miles off.

LITTLE WARNING SEEN

Warning of a nuclear attack would be 20 to 30 minutes and "the warning that civil defence is not a job to be handled by perstreneous positions — "We have got to have the help of our best brains to emergency planning."

CRITICIZE STAND

The federal government was in turn criticized for concentrating its basement fallout shelters.

Many people lack basements, Edward Cumming, mayor of Wilbrandt of Alex, whose constituency includes the City of Ontario, a likely Canadian target in nuclear war.

Most people, he said, couldn't afford to keep the two-weeks supply of food recommended by the federal government for such a shelter. And the federal government bought or subsidized only public shelters?

The country said community shelters are out of the question — they are "unamusing" and the cost would be astronomical. The federal government adopted the basement shelter because it was the cheapest and most practical.

Plans were being developed for basement shelters, and shelters for apartment dwellers were being looked into.

New Seven-Room Addition To P.E. Collegiate Opened

PICTON — A new seven-room addition to Prince Edward Collegiate Institute was officially opened in a ceremony on Saturday. It was homecoming weekend and the ceremony, held in the afternoon, inspection of the school by the guests, a graduates' dinner and dance and following by graduation exercises.

The last addition brings the total number of rooms available to 29 with accommodation for 1,030 students. There are now 900 registered, there having been a drop of fifty due to Prince Edward County Comp Picton.

Included in the new addition is a large auditorium and a former cafeteria will become a library classroom.

When built in 1953 the school had 25 class rooms to accommodate 800 pupils. Seven rooms were added in 1958. The school is served by a staff of 35 teachers headed by Principal J. Sweet.

Early in the afternoon, the students staged a parade of floats and costumes, with displays and rooters to advertise the football game which was won by the school's seniors, 14-13 over the Old Boys.

People of Irish Republic Fired up to Improve Their Lot - - Results Are Startling

Dave Oancia of London staff of The Canadian Press visited Ireland—the Republic and the North—to study conditions. In this story he reports on the trend toward industry in the Republic.

By DAVE OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DUBLIN (CP) — The land of the shamrock and the harp has entered the 1960s as a nation with the forward look.

The Republic of Ireland, baptized four decades ago in the fires of disorder, rebellion and civil war, has turned its gaze from the struggles of the past to the problems of the present and the future.

The people are fired with a new spirit. They now are displaying a determination to grapple successfully with pressing economic and social difficulties in a bid to improve the lot of all Irishmen.

The result is startling. Farmers who once were reluctant to use the milking machine and the tractor are beginning to look at ways of making their plots of land more profitable and productive.

FACTORIES INCREASE

The drive to attract foreign investments is starting to pay off. Factories, springing up in various parts of the pastoral countryside, are helping to boost the nation's exports and to create more jobs.

Conscientious, individualistic public servants are showing an ability to run government enterprises with a success that compares more than favorably with any in the world. These publicly-owned corporations, in a nation that staunchly defends private enterprise, include the economy's major supports —power generation, transport, the use of peat as a commercial fuel, steel fabrication and sugar production.

Internationally, too, the nation has achieved a notable record. Through Frank Aiken, its external affairs minister, and his small band of competent diplomats, Ireland has gained a reputation and influence that is far beyond her size and weight in the equations of power politics.

These are the manifestations of a new Ireland, a nation on the march to better times.

The old rallying cries haven't been forgotten but they have been relegated to positions lower down the scale.

There's hardly an Irishman in the south who doesn't feel that Northern Ireland, part of Great Britain, should join the republic to make the Emerald Isle a one-state gem. But the priorities have been reshuffled.

The man largely responsible for this reshuffling is Sean Lemass, the relaxed revolutionary, who became Taoiseach (prime minister) in June, 1959.

"Our economic development program is entitled, on every ground to first priority at this time," he says.

"That is as true of the aim of achieving unification of our country as of any other. There is no national aim which does not depend on the success of our economic program."

Words like these and the politics to back them brought about a wind of change that gained strength when idealistic Eamon De Valera moved to the "retirement" of the presidential mansion in Dublin's picturesque Phoenix Park.

NEW APPROACH

Lemass is a realist who is not prepared to waste the energies of his people on lost causes. He seems prepared to pay little more than lip service to such activities as the compulsory teaching of Gaelic and other measures to develop a more distinctively Irish personality.

"De" — Ireland's Mahatma Gandhi—dominated Irish political life for half a century and was the nation's chief architect. He was the idealist who, dreamed of a united Ireland, a republic of self - sufficient peoples having pride in the Irish nationality and their Celtic heritage.

There are many who would say that these preoccupations sometimes led him to give a little less attention than he should have to social and economic problems.

DEV STILL KEEN

De Valera, incidentally, demonstrated in the course of a confidential chat with a Canadian Press reporter that at 79 he is as active as ever intellectually and keenly interested in affairs of the day. His eyesight is failing but he still has the health and stamina of a far younger man.

That Dev's successor as prime minister should have been chosen as is a significant indication of Ireland's politics in the future. Lemass, at 60, seems likely to guide his nation's destinies for some time to come. Most observers believe his Fianna Fail party is almost certain to win the next election, expected late next year.

During an informal interview that lasted more than an hour, the prime minister demonstrated an affable realism.

As industry and commerce minister for almost a quarter of a century, Lemass had ample opportunity to push ahead with the self-sufficient policy so dear to the heart of his Fianna Fail party.

During the 1930s, he put into effect a vigorous tariff policy to develop Irish industry—to meet home requirements. British firms overcame these trade barriers by building plants in Ireland, thus creating work for a population that suffered from chronic unemployment and low wages.

With this program well under way, he turned his attention to the development of a sound foundation for the future expansion of industry. He tackled the modernization of transportation systems, the problems of providing adequate electricity and fuel supplies and other prerequisites of industrialization.

NO INHIBITIONS

The prime minister is a confirmed opponent of private enterprise, but he has displayed no inhibitions about setting up state enterprises if private investors were unwilling to tackle a specific job.

Now the Irish are building on the foundations laid quietly in more turbulent times. During the interview, Lemass made no attempt to minimize the difficulties posed by the high rate of emigration, low social services and wage levels and the virulent but ineffectual agitation to end partition.

But, possibly for the first time in their brief history as an independent state, the southern Irish are thinking less about the partition squabble and concentrating more on making themselves better off.

"We pride ourselves on being a progressive, enterprising people concerned mainly with the future, busily engaged in building up our economy, developing industrial and agricultural production and exports, and providing jobs to keep our young men and women at home," says Lemass.

The most favorable augury for the success of his program probably is Irish his views and desires were reflected in the many interviews this reporter conducted during a two-week study tour of the Irish Isle.

NEW SPIRIT — The Republic of Ireland has embarked on a new program of economic development aimed at establishing more free-enterprise factories and increasing exports. These Dublin residents, looking forward to better times, spend a relaxing moment in a typical pub in the republic's capital. (CP Photo).

DIVIDED ISLAND — Steps are being taken by the Republic of Ireland to create closer ties with Northern Ireland.

Ireland was partitioned in 1921. The 26 counties in the south first accepted dominion status as the Irish Free State but in 1949 became a republic. The six counties of Northern Ireland are an integral part of the United Kingdom though with strong local control. Northern Ireland elects representatives to the House of Commons at Westminster.

Garden Notes

Fall Care Brings Spring Results

Take advantage of every fine day to do a little extra work in the garden. It will pay well in the spring. Now that the leaves are off, you can see the crossed and crooked branches, the weak and broken wood in shrub and tree. Cut these away and treat the cut surface with a wax or paint designed for that purpose. Do not cut back early flowering shrubs or you will lose many of their bloom. If they really need pruning, they will benefit from a thinning.

Dig a root or two of rhubarb. Leave plenty of earth around it and allow it to freeze on the top of the ground. Later bring it in to basement, place in a wooden box or old tub, and water it occasionally. You can have a small but delicious supply of delicate pink rhubarb for winter desserts.

If have heard of treating asparagus the same way. If you have a good bed you might like to try this.

CARE FOR PANSIES

Pansies should be in a cold frame now with some straw or excelsior around them. Leave the top off until the temperature drops to 20 degrees then cover, but leave a crack of 2 or 3 in. A piece of lath laid flat will provide enough air. Shade the glass top with burlap or a straw mat.

Do not allow the leaves to stay on the lawn. They mat down with the rain and snow and kill the grass roots.

Toxaphene dusted liberally around the base of roses will prevent mouse damage. Do this before hilling up, or applying mulch.

Dormant sprays can be applied on any day that the temperature will remain above 40 degrees for a few hours. This will help to clean up insect infestations especially on roses, lilacs and euonymus.

Gather up and burn all fallen leaves, especially if black spot is present. Cut off and burn tops of iris and look for coon. Completely brown leaves. These may harbor iris borer. Many gardeners leave dead tops of the perennials to catch leaves and fix as a partial cover for the soil. Remember. Be sure that the leaves do not mat down and rot or smother other plants. Surplus waste can go to the compost pile but any plant suspected of having disease should be cut back and the tops burned.

Old time gardeners sprinkled soot around delphiniums and other plants to kill soil fungi. An all purpose dust will kill spores of mildew, botrytis and other fungi that live over winter on the top of the soil. If mildew attacked your roses, phlox, zinnias or any other plants, burn the dead tops and leaves and dust the soil around these plants generously with the fungicide.

You can continue to plant trees and shrubs as long as the soil can be dug.

Tie up evergreen so heavy snows will not spread and split the branches. Protect the side of the yews that is exposed to the sun with burlap and keep watering the evergreens until the ground freezes. Drying winds rob the evergreens of moisture and freezing temperatures prevent the roots from absorbing a new supply.

Label all bulbs, corms and tubers you are storing for the winter. Dry them out then pack in loose peat in cardboard boxes.

Narcissus will still bloom in the spring even if planted this late, but the stems will be shorter than early planted stock. Tulips may be planted as long as the ground can be dug even if you have to break up two inches of frozen top soil.

Universities Ask Diefenbaker For More Grants

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Universities Foundation today asked the government to increase its grants for higher education sharply.

In a brief presented to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, the foundation asked the government to raise its per capita grant to $7.50 by the 1963-65 academic year, from the $1.50 established for the 1956-59 school year.

It also asked for additional grants of $500 for each full-time graduate student going on to take a master of arts, doctor of philosophy, or equivalent degree. Each full-time student in medicine or dentistry should also win his university a similar extra grant.

The foundation said more money is needed to assure continued construction of university facilities, and asked for grants amounting to $15,000,000 annually to be administered by the National Research Council for the science faculties, and the Canada Council for the humanities.

ASK BUILDING LOANS

To meet the rising needs of student residences, the foundation asked the government to provide building loans available through Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, for terms of 30 years and at interest rates no higher than the government must pay for its borrowings.

The foundation estimated that by 1967, the number of students in Canadian universities will rise to 186,500—79 per cent more than in 1959. The universities will need 14,000 faculty members, 6,000 more than at present.

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mrs. Frank Sandercock was hostess to the ladies of White's W.A. on Thursday afternoon. There was a good attendance.

The president, Mrs. William Yeterni, presided.

The devotional was taken by Mrs. Eric Jones. Mrs. George Colton gave two readings, "Let Me Introduce You to My Friend" and "I Saw God Wash the World." Mrs. Jones closed with prayer.

A letter was read from Mrs. Vera Sine, thanking the ladies for a cup and saucer received when she left the community. It was reported that $32 was cleared at the rummage sale.

Mrs. Frank Sandercock conversed the program. Mrs. Casey Ketcheson gave a reading, "The Ladies" and Mrs. George Bilham read "What Grandmother Wore." Mrs. Jermyn Palmer was the winner of a word contest.

The hostess served a delicious lunch and a social time was enjoyed.

Ten UN Soldiers Believed Slain By Tribesmen

Irish Troops Ambushed In Katanga Province

ELISABETHVILLE (CP)—Ten Irish members of the United Nations force in the Congo are believed to have been massacred in an ambush by rebel Baluba tribesmen in a remote area of breakaway Katanga province, UN headquarters here announced today.

The bodies of four members of an 11-man Irish patrol have been recovered and one soldier was reported found today critically injured.

The fate of the remaining six members of the patrol was not known—but the Balubas have been known to take prisoner hostages. They have in the past dragged dead bodies of their victims off with them.

Late reports reaching this Katanga capital said one Irish soldier had survived the ambush. He had been listed as dead in the first casualty list, when only four bodies had been recovered.

The UN declined to issue the name of the survivor, who was reported critically injured. His condition and survival seemed slim.

SEARCH BEGINS

Meanwhile, heavy reinforced Irish and Ethiopian troops went out into the dense bush surrounding Jadotville in search of the bush, in an attempt to find the seven missing soldiers.

The 11 Irish soldiers were out on a patrol to remove roadblocks when they were caught in the ambush. A UN patrol later found the bodies of the dead men near the apparent scene of the ambush early today. Also near the bodies were uniforms of the six missing soldiers.

Jadotville is the centre of an area constantly threatened by armed bands of Baluba tribesmen. But this is the first clash there in which UN soldiers have been killed.

A UN spokesman said Ntemba lies in an area taken over recently by the United Nations defensive zone," where UN troops have the right to use arms if necessary.

Charge Man For Shipments To Poland

MONTREAL (CP) — Businessman Paul Alarie, 38, of Montreal Tuesday was committed for voluntary statement, charged in two plots to ship a strategic material to Communist Poland.

Alarie, head of Barclay Industrial Specialties Limited, faces four counts of conspiracy and violations of the Excise Act.

Borax, used in refining jet fuels, is the material involved.

An agent of the United States treasury department testified in court Tuesday that two 500-to shipments worth $45,000 apiece —were intercepted and confiscated.

Emmanuel Minakoff, chief of the department's enforcement service, said the shipments were made from Argentina with bills of lading.

He said his department had found correspondence linking Alarie with Scott and Atkinson, 62, of Elbridge, N.Y., who has already pleaded guilty in the U.S. to participating in the scheme.

Voluntary statement is a stage of Quebec procedure at which the deponent may submit evidence to avoid trial.

Woman Arrested And Charged With Attack

NIPIGON (CP)—A 46-year-old woman was arrested Tuesday and charged with the acid-throwing attack on a Nipigon dentist and town councillor last Friday.

Mrs. Inga Santala was charged with throwing acid on the head of Dr. R. J. Somerleigh as he drove away from a dental meeting. She was remanded for preliminary hearing in eight days or sooner and is being held in custody at Port Arthur, 80 miles southwest of here.

Dr. Somerleigh, 45, whose wife is expecting their sixth child within a few days, is able to see out of his left eye. He is expected to be taken to Toronto today or Thursday for plastic surgery.

Mrs. Santala's husband is a member of the same council as Dr. Somerleigh whose two-year term expires this month. The election, due in Nipigon early for five years, was expected to seek re-election.

Mr. and Mrs. Santala have a son 17 years old. A daughter, Alice, died three years ago at the age of 13 from a virus infection. Dr. Somerleigh was the physician.

Mrs. Santala, a long-time resident of Nipigon, worked in a department store order office.

Dr. Somerleigh's assistant is believed to have hidden in the back of the car and poured the acid over his hatless head.

Hospital officials said the swelling in his eyes will have to subside before it can be determined how much sight he will have.

Electoral Vote Standing 1.15. P.M

WASHINGTON (AP) — At 1.15 p.m. EST, Kennedy had won 22 states with a total of 303 electoral votes—269 was sufficient for election. Nixon was leading in two states with 35 electoral votes; Hawaii had won 23 states with a total of 141 electoral votes. Kennedy was leading in two states with 8 electoral votes.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: A disturbance moving westward across Ontario is causing rain over southern and central sections and is followed by colder weather with light snow in northern regions. The colder weather will spread across the rest of Ontario by Thursday morning, changing the rain and snow to snowflurries, although locally heavy snowsqualls are likely in the east of Lake Huron and Georgian Bay.

Solid Democratic Majorities Will Control House, Senate in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Solid Democratic majorities will control the Senate and the House of Representatives when the 87th Congress convenes Jan. 3.

The Democrats quickly nailed down control in the House on Tuesday's election. And by 3 o'clock this morning they had recaptured more than half of the 437 House seats.

Nonetheless, with returns still incomplete, it appeared the Republicans had denied the top-heavy margins the Democrats held in the outgoing 86th Congress. In the Senate the old lineup was 64 to 34 and in the House 283 to 154.

With only two Senate races yet to be decided, the Democrats had picked up seats in Delaware and Iowa. But Republican Mundt (Rep. S.D.) was locked in a seesaw battle for re-election. In Montana Democrat, Representative Lee Metcalf, was leading.

The Senate lineup stood: 63 Democrats, 37 Republicans.

With 44 House races still in doubt, Republicans had made a net gain of 14 to push their total to 144 against the Democrats' 291.

In 27 governor races, Democrats had elected 23, for a net gain of three. Republicans had elected nine and five races remained in doubt.

Over-all, however, the outlook was for a decisive Democratic make-up and key figures to the GOP President Eisenhower had elected with in the last two years were losers.

Southern Democrats, most of whom supported Senator John Kennedy over Vice-President Richard Nixon, although opposed to parts of the party platform, will control both houses of the committee chairmanships and by joining forces team up with Republicans against legislation they dislike.

House Democratic Leader Sprague D. Johnson of Texas won re-election to the Senate, but was prepared to resign to assume the vice-presidency.

The big three in the House, Speaker Sam Rayburn (Dem. Tex.); the majority leader, John McCormack (Dem. Mass.), and Democratic policy chairman, Charles Halleck of Indiana, all won re-election.

MUNOZ ELECTED IN PUERTO RICO BY LANDSLIDE

Results Sharp Rebuff To Catholic Bishops

SAN JUAN (AP) — Puerto Rico's predominantly Roman Catholic voters rejected the instructions of their bishops and re-elected Governor Luis Munoz Marin by a landslide in final unofficial returns today.

Munoz Marin, himself a Catholic, captured 456,217 votes to 383,797 for his three opponents. He won his fourth term as head of this United States Commonwealth island.

The results of the record poll were a sharp rebuff to the island's three Roman Catholic bishops, who in pastoral letters had warned that a vote for Munoz Marin's Popular Democrats would be a sin because the party approves of birth control and divorce. Puerto Rico is 85 per cent Catholic and does not vigorously oppose divorce marriages.

By re-electing Munoz Marin, the voters also approved Puerto Rico's confidence in a strong commonwealth under the American flag.

Luis Ferre, the Republican candidate, who campaigned for statehood, was defeated a comfortable distanced almost 2-1. Ferre received 383,797 votes.

Salvador Perea, the Christian Action Party candidate backed by the Catholic Hierarchy, and Julio Garcia Diaz of the Independence party ran far behind.

CATHOLICS COME THIRD

Perea received 31,072 votes, while Diaz, who campaigned for independence from the U.S., got 24,-

By failing to get 19 per cent of the vote, both the Christian Action and Independence parties lost their registration as political organizations and the right to proportional representation in the island's legislature. However, the Christian Action candidates may have been elected to the legislature as members at large.

The Catholic party was making its first race.

The Popular Democrats will have two-thirds majorities in both houses of the legislature. The party has an official link with the mainland Democratic party. The Republicans are affiliated with the Republican party in the U.S.

Puerto Rico, as a commonwealth, does not vote in the U.S. presidential election.

Better than 83 per cent of the 897,331 registered voters turned out to cast their votes in Tuesday's legislature. The island is 90 per cent Catholic.

TOUR A SUCCESS

TORONTO (CP) — A 13-day tour of Japan and Hong Kong by Metropolitan Businessmen Tuesday termed a "great success" by James Wakelin, general manager of the Toronto Board of Trade. Mr. Wakelin, in charge of the tour's administrative arrangements, said many businessmen have made valuable contacts and formed an entirely new concept of Japan, he said.

Wheat Glut, Cattle Trouble Seen by Government Experts

OTTAWA (CP) — A mounting Canadian wheat surplus and the threat of a severe setback to the cattle industry were forecast today by government agricultural experts.

The predictions are included in "working papers" prepared by federal economists for today's opening of the federal-provincial agricultural conference.

Contained in the same documents are visions of lower hog prices late next year, further declines in oats and barley exports in the current 1960-61 year, the prospect of Canadian rye being kept out of European markets by U.S. subsidized production, and continuing surpluses of dairy products.

The same reports hold out little hope for more than a limited increase in the world demand for agricultural products. During the next year to 18 months demand may be "decisively influenced" by policies in the import countries.

PRICES WON'T RISE

No improvement in export prices is expected, since the supply of many foodstuffs and of most agricultural raw materials continues to be more than ample.

On the domestic scene, the documents envisage 1961 income from farm field crops on approximately the same level as this year, with little change in grain exports. Prices for cattle and calves will drop but for 1961 as a whole this may be offset by higher income from the sale of other livestock and animal products.

The net result will be that total prices received by farmers will be a "little higher" than in 1960. But this may be offset by increases in operating and depreciation charges.

The documents present this picture of the future for various farm commodities:

World wheat production has outstripped demand so heavily that by next June 30 the four traditional wheat-exporting countries—the United States, Canada, Argentina and Australia — will have a "colossal" wheat carryover of 2,200,000,000 bushels. Two thirds of it would be in the U.S.

If the four countries didn't grow a single bushel of wheat this

We Shall Remember Them

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Friday, as 11 a.m. marches westward across the time zones of Canada, two minutes of silence will fall across a country remembering the dead of two wars.

There will be little change from one to another—it has been little change anywhere since the guns fell silent in France on 11a.m. 11th day of the 11th month of 1918 over Flanders Fields.

Sirens, stock exchanges and courts will remain open for the hex. About 9,000 Montreal-area veterans will pack Dominion Square Auditorium for Remembrance services at nearby Mary Queen of the World Basilica and Protestant observances at St. George's Anglican Church. Wreaths will be placed, salutes fired.

Each Canadian Legion branch throughout Ontario is planning its own ceremony. In Toronto the main service will be at the cenotaph in front of the city hall.

Focal point of the Canadian observance will be in Ottawa, where the 21st annual service will be held at the national war memorial in Confederation Square. Here wreaths will be placed by Governor - General Vanier, Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Leader of the Opposition Pearson, Chief Justice Kerwin, national president of the Canadian Legion.

Mrs. A. J. Cantin of Montreal, 75, widow of a veteran, is Canada's 104,000 war - bereaved mothers.

Flags will be at half-mast for all federal, provincial and civic employees, and most business offices and stores will remain open. Ottawa school children will have a holiday.

J.B. Carroll, Manitoba's labor minister, has decreed that no one

Hunter Fined For Wounding Two Companions

GORE BAY (CP) — A deer hunter who accidentally shot and wounded two companions was fined $200 and costs Tuesday after he pleaded guilty to causing a hunting licence for two years.

Cecil Terry of Levack, near Sudbury, was convicted of criminal negligence in the shooting of Jim Austin of Levack and Allan Austin of Sudbury.

The shootings occurred Nov. 25, 1959, when Terry and the Austin brothers were in an 8-man hunting party near this Manitoulin Island community.

Terry said he saw what he took to be a deer and fired five shots from 120 yards. He ran up and found the brothers on the ground with gunshot wounds. Alec Austin was in bed for 10 days and was in hospital for 10 months before recovering.

Hardest Fight In Years Ends In Close Triumph For Youngest President

Nixon Clung to Last-Minute Hope Before Northern State Swung Tide

BY JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP)—John Kennedy today crushed Richard Nixon to become the 35th president of the United States. The 43-year-old Democrat will take office next January as the youngest elected president in history. He will be the first Roman Catholic in that high office.

After an all-time vote battle in which Republican Nixon clung to hope of some last-minute miracle, Kennedy clinched the presidency at 12.33 p.m. EST with the fall of Minnesota into the Democratic column.

The gain over Kennedy's 11 electoral votes, bringing his total to at least 272,—three more than the required minimum of 269.

At Los Angeles, Nixon quickly conceded defeat. He sent Kennedy a telegram of congratulations saying he was sure the Democratic leader would have the support of all Americans "as you lead the nation in the cause of peace and freedom."

This was Nixon's first public capitulation, though he stated Tuesday night that Kennedy appeared to be president if the voting trend evident at that time continued in that direction.

SAYS NEGROES A FACTOR

Earlier today Republican National Committeeman Len Hall of Thurston Morton said it seemed "obvious" that Negroes were the major reason for the Republican defeat was that Kennedy got a bigger share of the Negro vote than the Republicans had anticipated.

Federal secret service agents moved into the Kennedy Hyannis Port, Mass., home to begin round-the-clock protection of the 43-year-old war hero president-elect. Kennedy will take office in inauguration ceremonies Jan. 20.

Thus political destinies had darkened at least temporarily the ambitions of Republican Nixon, a former vice - president, two national political heights after gaining fame in his anti-Communist crusade in Congress. Nixon became vice-president with Eisenhower's election in 1952.

Thus ended also the political fortunes of Nixon's colorful political mate, Henry Cabot Lodge, who had obtained national stature as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations for the last eight years.

BEAT LODGE IN '52

Kennedy is one of the new generation politicians who went into Congress 14 years ago, the same year as Nixon. He defeated Lodge for the Massachusetts Senate seat in that year.

Kennedy staged a long and furious battle for the nomination, but smash eight years of Republican rule over the White House. With the aid of Truman-Rayburn machine Texas Senator Lyndon B. Johnson who at first fought Kennedy for the Democratic presidential nomination, Kennedy agreed to run with the Boston Irishman.

Nixon's telegram to Kennedy:

Senate Standing

AP returns on the 34 seats at stake in the United States senate at 12:45 p.m. EST:

Democrats elected 21; holdovers 41; total 62

Republicans elected 13; holdovers 22; total 35

(necessary for majority 51)

"I want to repeat through this wire my congratulations and best wishes I extended to you on television last night. I know you will have the United support of all Americans as you lead the nation in the cause of peace and freedom in the next four years."

Meanwhile, Eisenhower met here with his cabinet to work out the details for turning over the administration to the Democrats who, along with the presidency, also secured their hold over both Houses of Congress — the Senate and House of Representatives.

Thus Kennedy is assured of friendly rule in Congress — a contrast to Eisenhower's task of having to work with Democrats who held majority control over Congress since 1954.

VOTE SQUEAKS SLIGHT

While Kennedy had a clear victory in the electoral vote, the popular tally showed he maintained only a narrow edge of only 500,000 of a total count anticipated to run to a record of some 70,000,000.

Kennedy sent congratulations to Kennedy, adding he would aid him in a more comprehensive message later "suggestions and measures that may commend themselves to you as you prepare to take over next January the responsibilities of the presidency."

Kennedy had criticized the Eisenhower administration for a decline in prestige in recent years abroad and the threat of a recession at home.

Kennedy Won N.Y. by 400,000 Piled up Big Majority in Gotham

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Democrat John Kennedy swept to an election day victory in New York state by 400,000 votes and the ticket ousted Republicans from control of the state's congressional delegation.

But the state legislature from the Republican's last same general election in both Houses but retained control of the Democrats, a result showing in traditionally Republican upstate areas.

With returns practically complete today, Kennedy had 3,839,-231 votes to 3,438,383 for Vice-President Richard Nixon, the Republican candidate.

Republicans, who gave President Eisenhower a 600,000 majority margin in the counties outside of New York City in 1956, could muster only a 400,000 edge in 1960,000 in the same territory this year.

Kennedy piled up a majority of nearly 800,000 votes in New York City, a Democratic stronghold, for the over-all victory that gave him the state's 45 electoral votes.

Kennedy thus became the first Democratic presidential candidate since Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1944 to carry New York, to carry the state.

The Kennedy victory spelled failure for an election campaign by Republican Governor Nelson Rockefeller to deliver the state to Nixon.

Democrats took control of the congressional delegation 21 to 20. The Republicans have had a 24-to-16 edge, a change reported by the New York City-Long Island districts.

In the presidential voting, Kennedy drew heavy support from upstate cities with large Roman Catholic populations.

The Democratic nominee also ran well in areas with organized problems.

Kennedy took Erie County (Buffalo) by 218,668 to 211,201, Niagara County (Niagara Falls) 39,112 to 38,317, Onondaga County (Utica) 63,371 to 59,199, and Monroe (Rochester), 10,813 to 9,781.

He captured such cities as Batavia, which had never supported a Democratic presidential candidate, Rochester, Auburn and Ezmira, all of which supported Eisenhower in 1956 and 1952.

The religious issue worked in Kennedy's favor and Jewish and Negro voters rallied behind Kennedy.

LABOR COUNCIL GIVES SUPPORT TO NEW PARTY

Condemns Policy On Unemployment

TORONTO (CP) — Unanimous support for the New Party and condemnation of the federal government's policies on unemployment marked Tuesday's sessions of the Ontario Federation of Labor convention.

The delegates threw their support behind a resolution calling for, demonstrations, lobbies and petitions to underline the unemployment problem to the government.

Another resolution called for 'militant labor councils and union locals to back the CCF, in supporting the financial drive for the New Party founding fund.

The resolution asked for endorsation of the policy approved by the Canadian Labor Congress of co-operating with the CCF party and "other liberally minded people" in forming a new political party in Canada. It also asked the OFL executive to assist in organizing a political arm of the New Party in Ontario.

The OFL executive resolution on unemployment was a substitute for 10 others submitted to the resolutions committee.

Hardest Fight In Years Ends In Close Triumph

Eisenhower, who had supported Nixon openly in the final week of the 10-week campaign, said in a message to Nixon:

"Your hard-fought, courageous campaign to carry forward the principles of honest government will have my lasting respect."

Nixon had charged that Kennedy's rash and immature actions would threaten the peace and security of the United States and all the world. Kennedy reiected this, saying the U.S. had to get moving again, to build up her military, economic and social strength and to extend world freedom, including the use of a "peace corps" of skilled Americans youths to work in underdeveloped countries as an alternative to compulsory military service.

WAS TREMENDOUS BATTLE

It was one of the closest fights in decades. The popular-ity count margin in Kennedy's favor was one of the smallest. Only Democrat Harry S. Truman was carried to victory by the-city vote and was pressed hard by the midwestern farm vote which strongly supported Nixon, 47.

At Hyannis Port, Mass., Kennedy's press secretary said Kennedy was "aware" he had been elected president but that he wouldn't make any statement until he had heard from Nixon.

Nixon, at a Los Angeles hotel, was expected to issue a formal statement shortly after noon before flying back to Washington with his wife. She sobbed Tuesday night when Nixon offered his congratulations to Kennedy on the fine race he had waged. Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower, she told reporters later: "I guess I'll have to get another job teaching school."

While the trend pointed to a Kennedy victory Tuesday night, the lean Boston senator went to bed shortly after 3 a.m. with inconclusive proof that he had won. It was Nixon's own state of California which finally seemed to have fallen into his column, indicating that Kennedy would get more than the minimum 269 electoral votes needed for victory.

MAY TAKE CALIFORNIA

At noon EST The Associated Press ordered that the bulk of the votes still to be counted in California lie in Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Diego and Santa Clara counties. With the exception of Los Angeles, all favor Nixon so far. The Los Angeles votes include 90,000 absentee ballots. The AP said it did not possible at this stage to say positively that Kennedy has won the state's 32 electoral votes "although this appears to be a bet ter than ever possibility."

It was a record-setting election, with the total vote count expected to reach some 70,000,000, far higher than the previous record of 62,027,000 in 1956 when Eisenhower was returned for a second term.

The 1960 race was reminiscent of the 1916 fight when President Woodrow Wilson and Republican Charles Evans Hughes went to bed not sure which of them had won the election. For 48 hours the votes came in, gradually reducing Hughes' lead and finally giving Wilson a second term.

In 1948 Democrat Harry S. Truman barely escaped through to beat Republican Thomas Dewey. In addition to the presidential contest, U.S. voters also elected members for their two houses of congress—the Senate and the House of Representatives. Democrats retained their majorities of both houses.

With some races undecided, they lost a couple of seats to the Republicans in the 100-seat Senate, where only 34 seats were at stake. In the House they elected 20 members to the 437-member 1-44 with final results still due in 144 contests.

Nixon took an early lead in the returns Tuesday night but the trend to Democratic candidates soon as substantial results rolled in. Yet they represented a close ride.

President Eisenhower defeated Democrat Adlai Stevenson — on the basis of electoral votes—by 35 to 99 in 1952 and 457 to 73 in 1956.

CATHOLICISM AN ISSUE

Perhaps the greatest question mark of the election was Kennedy's Roman Catholic religion. He is the first Catholic to run for presidency, Alfred E. Smith, also a Democrat, having been defeated in 1928 in a campaign that aroused much religious controversy.

Kennedy's campaign on the theme "I want to get America moving again", said the U.S. and not privately abroad and was at a standstill at home under the Eisenhower administration.

His greatest appeal apparently was in the larger industrial states.

Of the biggest seven, he won New York, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Texas and lost in California and Illinois. Only Ohio of the group favored Nixon.

Kennedy's age — he looks younger than his 43 years—was another factor in the election. While Theodore Roosevelt became president at 42, his succession to the White House resulted from the assassination of his predecessor, William McKinley. There has been no younger presidents.

PRESIDENT SCORNFUL

Nixon, contending that the U.S. advanced under the Republicans have been stirred at home and abroad, accused Kennedy of reckless immaturity. He was scornful of President Eisenhower who referred scornfully to "that young man."

But at his early-morning telecast today, Nixon spoke respectfully of his opponent. Nixon, with his wife Pat smiling through her tears at his side, said that the present trend continued Kennedy would be the victor in the election.

"Once the decision is made we unite behind the man we have elected," Nixon said. "I want Senator Kennedy to know, and I want all of you to know, that I will cooperate in every way possible with him to bring peace with honor from one end of the country to the other.

Roaring crowds greeted Kennedy and Nixon at rallies in the other large centres, their ardor reaching solution at times. The only personal tragedy of the campaign was the unremitting illness of Mrs. Stevenson.

RESULTS INCONSISTENT

There was nothing noticeably inconsistent about the election results. Kennedy carried his home state of Massachusetts overwhelmingly but Republican Senator Leverett Saltonstall was re-elected by a huge margin. Democrat Governor Abraham Ribicoff was re-elected in Connecticut, while Republican Governor John Volpe, was elected Governor.

In several states where Nixon held his own over Kennedy, Democrats either had been elected or were leading—such as Illinois.

Eisenhower called the cabinet together Tuesday to discuss the business of how to accomplish the transition of government to the president elect on Jan. 20.

Critics accused Nixon during the campaign of hanging on Eisenhower's coattails as the president remained aloof and neutral in the controversy as election deadline approached.

Nixon had to travel at a terrific pace to match the Massachusetts senator's vigorous multi-millionaire family — who gained a private plane to meet his engagements.

Nixon travelled 64,000 miles, visiting 11 states, and his attacks on Kennedy mounted in intensity as the campaign drew to a close.

Kennedy, who campaigned on the theme "I want to get America moving again," said the U.S. and not privately abroad and was at a standstill at home under the Eisenhower administration.

Remembrance Day Is Topic Of Address to Kiwanis

Lt.-Col Angus B. Duffy, commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, in his Remembrance Day is a time when Canadians should pause and remember those who died.

"We as adults have let down our young people in that we have not shown them, or taught them, patriotism," Lt.-Col. Duffy bore-s of the Kiwanis Club Tuesday.

"We don't support the militia — we are constantly wiping out high school cadet corps . . . and we are not doing much about conservation.

He said there wasn't much point in trying to honor the dead in a country that is dying for his country man has attained the highest honor".

But, "we should remember them and not allow another war to start."

It was important that today's young people develop strong character. "The building of a strong character comes from a true life and love of country" work hand in hand. We as adults have to be leaders and give more than lip service to them".

Remembrance Day should be a time when Canadians rededicate themselves to three things: peace, prosperity and freedom.

"Among our greatest heritages are our bays, lakes and rivers" he said. "Only our ancestors are disillusioned. We have disillusioned them by polluting those waters. It won't be long if we go to spend money now to restore the fish and heritages for which our own countrymen died to preserve."

Canadians have been disillusioned in another way, too. "We don't even teach them what our flag is. In my mind, the Red Ensign is our flag."

He suggested that adults could set an example of patriotism by standing up rather than sitting in public parks. The young people would catch on and suddenly realize they have been given a lesson on what love of country means. "It means that we would clean up messes even if we don't make them ourselves, and we who truly loves his country would keep it clean and beautiful."

It wouldn't be a bad idea if, say, once a year parents took their children to the cenotaph side and planted a tree or two. "This is another illustration of what love of country means. That is something from which future generations will benefit."

Lt.-Col. Duffy said young people cannot be misled. If they have genuine patriotism, their lives will be richer and the country and its government will be secure. "This is the best possible honor we can pay to those more than 100,000 people who gave their lives in the last-war. Again I say, show and teach patriotism."

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Following the trend on Wall Street, the local stock market was undecided today as traders awaited the last results of the United States presidential election.

Golds were the only stocks making bold changes, and most senior producers showed gains following renewed speculation that John Kennedy would increase the price of gold.

Dome jumped 1¾ at 26¾, McIntyre Porcupine 1¼ at 38¾, Campbell Red Lake, Giant Yellowknife and Hollinger improved ⅛ each.

Canadian gold kilo bars remained near Tuesday's close, quoted at $36.00 to $36.25 an ounce.

In the rest of the market, the index read: Industrials off .44 at 434.00, western oils off .63 at 81.40 and base metals up .33 at 155.50.

The 11 a.m. volume was 556,700 shares compared with Tuesday's 542,000.

Bank of Commerce led industrial losers, off ¼ at 53¾. Bathurst B gained 1¼ at 33½.

International Nickel influenced 17¾.

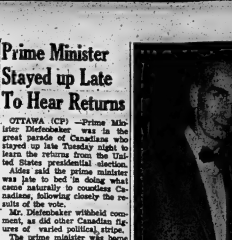
Prime Minister Stayed up Late To Hear Returns

OTTAWA (CP) —Prime Minister Diefenbaker was in the great parade of Canadians who stayed up late Tuesday night to learn the returns from the United States presidential election.

Aides said the prime minister was late to bed in doing what came naturally to countless Canadians, following closely the results of the vote.



Mr. Diefenbaker withheld comment, as did other Canadian figures of varied political stripe.

The prime minister was home in the capital for the election. Liberal Leader Pearson was in New York while CCF leader Hazen Argue was at his home in Weyburn, Sask., filling a speaking engagement.

Generally, politicians and officials interviewed in Ottawa prior to the election, saw little difference between the two platforms offered across the border.

Neither of the U.S. presidential candidates is very close ties with Canada nor has had close associations with any leading Canadian political figures.

While Mr. Diefenbaker's views have never been made public, it was said at one point that he was inclined to favor the Nixon-Lodge Republican ticket because of its more recent experience in international affairs.

Mayor James MacDonald of Trenton presented Miss Bird Corbett, Children's Aid Society representative for the past 13 years, with an engraved cigar tray, and A. Gordon Davis gave her several gifts from the municipal office staff at a farewell meeting yesterday. Miss Corbett is leaving this area to take up adoption work in the Parry Sound district.

Union Officials Appear Before Strike Inquiry

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — Officials of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CCL) began to appear today before the Brandon strike inquiry commission which has heard appeals from business groups for stricter regulation of labor.

Mr. Justice G. E. Tritschler of the Manitoba Court of Appeal is conducting a one-man inquiry, set up by the provincial government into a six-month wage strike against Brandon Packers Limited by more than 600 members of UPWA Local 253. The walkout started Feb. 20 and ended Aug. 29.

Mr. Justice Tritschler requested that UPWA representatives, specifically Fred Dowling of Toronto, the union's Canadian director, and Norman Riches of Calgary, union supervisor, appear before the commission today.

The commission Tuesday heard briefs urging that trade unions be made legal entities, responsible for their actions and liable to suit for damages they may cause.

The briefs were presented by the Winnipeg and Brandon Boards of Commerce, the Manitoba branch of the Canadian Manufacturers Association and the Winnipeg Builders Exchange.

INQUIRE INTO METHODS

They were presented under a section of the terms of reference ordering the commission to "inquire into and make recommendations arising out of the inquiry as to the methods by which peaceful industrial relations may be enhanced in Manitoba."

The Brandon chamber brief urged provision for democratic voting by union members on all output issues before strike votes are taken and similar voting on work-stoppage proposals.

Claiming that extensive boycotting of Brandon 1,200 supplies by union members throughout the province during the strike could have cost Brandon its largest single industry, the brief called for prohibition of sympathy strikes, secondary strikes and boycotts.

WILL ATTEND OPENING

OTTAWA (CP)—Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, governor-general, will attend the opening of Parliament Nov. 17. While in Ottawa, he will be the guest of Government House of Governor-General Vanier, his successor.

Miss Corbett, CAS Worker, Leaves Area

TRENTON. — A number of Trenton's administrative staff from the local office gathered in room yesterday morning to say good-bye to Miss Bird Corbett, who has been the local representative of the Children's Aid Society for the past 13 years.

Miss Corbett would often leave the office and visit a home and was attached to the protection section of the society.

Miss Corbett soon will leave the area to take up similar work with the society in the Parry Sound district. She will make her headquarters at Sundridge, 40 miles south of North Bay.

C. W. Larry, town clerk, said that the town has always enjoyed the most pleasant relations with Miss Corbett and that the staff would be sorry to see her leave.

Mayor James MacDonald presented Miss Corbett with a corsage tray on behalf of council and the corporation.

A. Gordon Davis, welfare administrator of the town, presented Miss Corbett with a number of gifts on behalf of the municipal office staff. He said that Miss Corbett had saved the town hundreds of dollars by keeping families together, thus preventing the children from becoming charges of the town.

Eighty Babies Born in Oct.

TRENTON — Eighty babies were born last month at Trenton Memorial Hospital, Superintendent S. E. Hall reported to Chamber report showed. Only two stillbirths were recorded.

The hospital admitted 307 adults and children and discharged 345.

Average daily population was 117.4 persons.

The operating room was kept busy performing 58 major operations and 128 minor ones.

Trenton Area Resident Tells Court of Revision He Wants Assessment Raised

TRENTON — The Court of Revision opened last night for the first time this year to consider appeals against assessments. Chairman of the court is Councillor D. R. Fraser. Other members are Councillor H. G. Aziz, Harold Blakely, Frank Miron and Harold Turner. Also in attendance were Clerk-Treasurer O. W. Larry, Assessor Allan Hubbard and Assistant Assessor Carl Charlton.

This year, the appellants were very few in before presenting their appeals.

The convention in court proceedings was introduced by a Mr. McSturer, who lives outside the town but owns and rents a house in town.

Mr. McMurter's written appeal informed the court that he wished to have his assessment raised. "I was thunderstruck when I read it," said Mr. Smith, who is usually beset by appellants wishing to have their assessments lowered.

Investigation by members of the court of Mr. McMurter's residence on the above request made itself clear. He said that his two children were not getting ahead at the country school near his present home. He had transferred them to a town school and must pay $17.50 a month, per child. A third child will enter school next year. If his assessment is raised from $1,100 to $2,080 his children could attend town schools.

Members of the court at first were inclined to go along with Mr. McMurter's reasoning. The clerk pointed out that they would be setting a dangerous precedent by deviating from what the assessor thought the property was worth and from the act, covering assessments. The assessment was confirmed.

Some of the appellants complained that while their assessments had not gone up last year in the general reassessment, they were up this year. The assessor explained that in some cases this was due to an oversight last year on the part of the assessment department.

OTHERS UP.

In other cases, assessments have been increased because of additions to the home, including new heating systems or the installation of plumbing fixtures.

A Mr. Brillinger, who owns a house on Heber Street, said that he thought his assessment should be lowered because an apartment had been erected across from his property and the occupants left garbage cans out where residents could see and look at them.

"That's why I moved out of town myself," he said.

Robert Cottrell, Heber St., appealed on the same grounds the beams inside his house were poor. As the assessor had not been able to find anyone home when he called, he could give no verification of this. The chairman said the onus was on the owner to get in touch with the assessor when he found his card in the door and make an appointment for him to view the property.

Several assessments were changed because of mechanical errors on the part of the assessment department.

W. E. Cornish, Bryan St., objected to the land size shown on his assessment notice. The land was given as 66 feet deep instead. The assessor had "equalized" the measurements. The court agreed that the measurements should be changed and made an assessment to retain the same.

Ross Hubbard, Johnson Rd., appealed on the grounds that his area had poor roads and poor street lighting. He said that he had no basement and poor garage and that his house was heated by stoves.

"If you have your assessment on coal that the value of the property, my assessment is too high," he said. "I switched the town truck oilling our streets only twice last summer. It spread oily only on edges. Then some guy wheeled a wheelbarrow down the middle of the street and spread oil in the middle. Furthermore, the snowplow ignores us."

The assessor told the court that this was the only real appeal from built-up housing areas. He said there were a "couple of hundred assessments in these areas which had exactly the same assessment. Residents of the area had refused to petition council for local improvements on the streets.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Stone, North Murray Street, asked the court why their assessment had risen. Mr. Stone said that in 1958 his assessment had been $725, in 1959 it jumped to $1,600. This year it is $1,760. He said his home did not have a sewage system in front of it, there is no sidewalk and he has to carry mail delivery.

"What has the town done in 28 years to warrant this raise in assessment?" asked Mr. Stone.

The assessor said that all homes in Trenton had been reassessed in 1959 to make sure that everyone was carrying his own share of the load. Assessment was figured roughly at one third the value of the property. Residential, commercial and residential properties had been improperly assessed before 1959.

"Somebody else was subsidizing your share of the assessment." Chairman Fraser told Mr. Stone.

"I hate to think what it'll be like if we ever get any improvements," observed Mrs. Stone.

The couple questioned the extra $100 assessment increase for 1960. The chairman said this was because hot air forced heating had been installed. He said he had been unable to get in the house when he called.

"How did you know we had forced air heating if you couldn't get in?" asked Mrs. Stone.

The assessor explained that reception of his department could tell this because of pipes and meters at the back of the house.

Cannot Find Suitable Site

TRENTON — Welfare Officer Gordon Davis, appointed a few months ago to find a site for senior citizens' apartments, Council is considering the use of Victoria Park for this purpose at the suggestion of Councillor C. V. Graham. Last year, the park was suggested as a site for the proposed combined police-department building.

Another course open to council is the expropriation of land on the Queen and Wrnage Streets which the owner refuses to sell for this purpose.

Collections Up

TRENTON Tax collector R. G. Alan Weare reports that while arrears collections are up from last year, there has been a decrease in current tax collections. By Oct. 31, 1959, $47,901.60 had been collected in tax arrears. By the same time this year, $53,-29.01 had been collected.

Mr. Weare said that publicity given to the action to be taken by the town's property assessments has resulted in a noticeable increase in payments of arrears just before Oct. 31.

Current tax collections are down .18 per cent from last year.

Values Up

TRENTON — Councillor N. J. McNair, chairman of public works, reports that the total of the limited-values of building permits issued from January 1 to October 31, were up $152,376 from the 1959 value for the same period. The total for the year is $1,793,518.

Applications totalling $212,200 for November have been received, although the October total is down from last year.

Sentence Man Charged With Madoc Arson

A 28-year-old Madoc man was sentenced to the Ontario Reformatory this week at Maple following pleas of guilty to three charges of arson. A fourth charge against the man was withdrawn by request.

Sentenced to one year definite and one year less a day indeterminate was Arthur Lloyd Hall, laborer with the Ontario Hydro.

Police said that all fires had been started at approximately the same time on different Friday nights and fortunately were discovered almost immediately. Little damage resulted.

Three of the fires were at the rear of business blocks in the downtown area of the village.

LABOR COUNCIL

It called on the government to develop low-rental housing, implement public works projects to stimulate foreign trade, increase investment in public enterprise, develop national resources and build more schools, hospitals and highways as measures to end unemployment.

The resolution also called for extension of unemployment benefits to cover the full period of hibernation.

"The proposed increased and extended winter works program while a good thing in itself, will not get to the root of the problem because of its short-range possibilities," the resolution said.

William Sefton of Toronto, representing the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), accused the federal government of striking against the Canadian worker.

Stanley Knowles, M.P., was guest speaker of the convention's second-day sessions, accused the Progressive Conservative and Liberal parties of following "dead-in same policies and not providing opposition—"the mark of good government."

"The New Party will get it back to the two-party system," he said.

Today's final sessions will be spent in voting on resolutions.

Composers Seek Their Rights

"If the performing right is regarded as a species of property, which it is, we see no reason based on what may be called copyright principles why operators of juke-boxes should be permitted to encroach on that property when other music users are obliged to pay for the privilege."

That statement was made in 1957, by a Royal Commission on Canadian copyright law which had been touring at its task since 1954. So far, nothing has been done to implement the recommendations of the commission, which was headed by Mr. Justice A. L. Fahey, best remembered by the older members of the community as Canada's excellent wartime finance minister.

Now Canadian composers are seeking to bring pressure to bear on the Federal Government to remedy what they consider a long standing injustice.

Most Canadians, we suspect, will sympathize with their cause. If a newspaper wishes to reprint a copyright article, it can do so only after paying a fee. Radio stations which play copyright songs pay royalties. But the juke-box owner just purchases a record, puts it in his machine and collects for the nickels, not one of which goes to the man whose musical genius created the song in the first place. (It is no adequate answer to this inequitable state of affairs to question whether the creators of some modern songs deserve to reap any reward for their efforts).

Canada and the U.S. are about the only two countries in the world which fail to protect composers from having their works exploited by juke-box owners. Canadian composers are proposing that each juke-box be required to pay an annual fee. It seems little enough—and if any Canadians could find their platters and silently steal away by reason of such a levy, there are many among us who would not shed a single tear.

Birds of Passage

The Toronto Telegram is running a report on a panel discussion on immigration.

One of the members of the panel evidently believes that "a large number . . . come over just to work and gather the practical experience which will be useful for them," not intending to settle in Canada permanently.

Said Dr. George F. Davidson, deputy minister of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration: "When our immigration officers are most keen people are what we call 'Wanderbirds'—birds-of-passage whose onward flight is in some other direction, and when we can satisfy ourselves that this is the case, they are not usually given immigrant visas."

The policy outlined by Dr. Davidson is probably the only reasonable one now in force, and could be followed in a day when there are more workers than jobs.

Yet, in ages past, was it not just this flocking of birds of passage to the centres of industry and of learning which enhanced the prestige of these centres and made them, for their day, the symbol of the civilization of the age?

Steel Production Figures

From the Japan Trade Centre in Toronto comes a handsome booklet entitled "Iron and Steel Industry of Japan 1960."

Most thought-provoking information in the booklet, though, does not concern Japan at all. It is contained in a graph printed on a plastic fly-leaf. This shows that U.S. production of crude steel in 1959 was 84,747,000 metric tons, while the U.S.S.R. produced 59,870,000 metric tons. The spread between U.S. and Russian production is much less than most of us have realised.

Japan's production in 1959 was 16,629,000 metric tons, making it the fourth largest steel-producing country in the world. But Communist China produced 13,100,000 metric tons, to place it in sixth position. Once again, probably few of us realized that China's steel-producing capacity was so high. This is three or four million more tons of steel than Japan produced during any of the Second Great War years and is more than half Britain's 1959 output.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE ULTIMATE FUTURE

We appear at the present time to be living in an age of world-wide turmoil. Revolutions are taking place all over the globe. Tyranny is rife in many lands. Freedom is struggling with the despotism What does it all mean.

There are some who believe that this state of affairs presages the end of the world and the second coming of Christ. Others take a more secular view and maintain that we are witnessing a monstrous and significant struggle between freedom and slavery which will result in the establishing of more and cleaner justice among all peoples of the world. There are still others who see in the present upon conditions of the race, just another of those periods which come at terrible intervals in history and which will pass when the evil of men has spent itself.

Nothing can be known about human destiny, save that the world and all creatures are in the hands of a loving God. There may be much to discourage us in the present world, and much to dishearten us in the near future. We may be sure of one thing — God is not dead, and that we know nothing. But what we do know — and this is of primary and permanent importance — is that God is preparing His children not for this world but for glory. The God who made us is a God of love. The same love has set for us are those of deliverance from sin, death and hell. We hear the things which God hath prepared for them that love us.

Miracles of the Universe
Another Star Is Born

By HON. ROBERT W. MACAULAY
Ontario Minister of Energy Resources

This is one of a series of articles by Mr. Macaulay dealing with sources of energy and their application, in the past, the present and the future.

ARTICLE II

The birth of a star is a common affair. They are born into the universe where there are already perhaps as many as 100,000,000,000 stars. Each star is a sun like our own universe and will consume vast quantities of fuel over periods of millions of years to many billions of years depending entirely upon how efficiently they live out their lives in the meantime.

If, like Homo Sapiens, they burn the candle at both ends, they will lead a colorful, exciting, explosive and short life, but if they take it easy and get lots of exercise, don't eat themselves around the sky blazing with color and drama, they have a good chance of living to old old age (which they thereby justly deserve).

Stars! Stars! They are like grains of sand on the seashores of the world. There are so many stars in the universe that if we were to lose a million here or there, they would never be missed. In fact, the universe is so large, and so many stars there are, large it is, or how many undiscovered stars there are in the dark star ground.

Groups of stars are called galaxies. Our own galaxy is an immense bowl, full of stars, up to 100,000,000,000 (100 billion) in it. (We call our galaxy the Milky Way galaxy). There are over one billion galaxies which can be seen through man's most powerful telescopes.

ALL TYPES, SIZES

Stars are large, bright, small, dim, powerful, weak. Most of them are balls of hot gas. Stars are not inhabited. Note that is shining is the sun, which is the nearest star to its surface, some are over 100,000,000 degrees at their centre. (Too hot for one's friends and not hot enough for one's opponents).

The size of the star does not determine its luminosity, but there is a clear relationship between the mass of a star and its luminosity. Size and mass are not the same thing — an inflated balloon may be a large size, but a small lead weight has a great mass.

Most stars are born in much the same way. They are born in the gaseous clouds out of large clouds of cold hydrogen gas which, at some time during the universe and now form great swirling clouds in the galaxy. This gas is star stuff. The clouds very likely contain some helium gas also. A cloud of hydrogen gas many times larger than the Solar System is cold and of dust particles) contracts into a ball. This huge cold cloud does this in two ways.

STAR FORMATION

1. The atoms in the vicinity of the gas cloud give off radiation which constitutes a very gentle push. This, plus the pushing from the various sides of the cloud, starts it rolling into a ball.

All matter has a gravitational force, so a large cloud of hydrogen gas being matter has a gravitational force that makes it contract. There is a force pulling the cloud into the centre and thus into a ball. (No one knows why gravitation exists. It is the most mysterious governing force in the universe, however).

As the cloud of gas contracts, it gets smaller and smaller and smaller area, and the raises the temperature of the cloud. This is an experiment that can be proven on every day in a laboratory. The hotter it gets, the more warm than is at the outside. A potent force-temperature is now widely used at the centre of the star reaches the temperature of 15,000,000 degrees.

NUCLEAR REACTION.

Nuclear reaction seeds off a chain reaction which is a series of directed outwards and counteracts the inward pull of gravitation.

As the star is born, the atoms which comprise the star at this stage, must become excited. Such atoms can only become excited if they absorb energy from other atoms. This energy comes from the heat as the star contracts by gravitation.

In short, the star does not start its nuclear furnace from the beginning, it has to be pushed like a cold motorcar on a winter morning. The push comes from the gravitational contraction of the gas which causes heat — this warms up the motor, so that the star can begin its nuclear reaction.

Stars differ in size, mass, temperature and luminosity, in the star the size of our Sun would give off at all times 500,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 horse power (500 sextillions).

To show how much heat the contraction of a cloud can generate, the Sun, in order to contract 140 feet (its radius is 2,300,000,000 feet) it would provide enough energy to keep the Sun going at 500,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 horse power for a year.

It is not too difficult to estimate the mass or luminosity of some stars. Then, knowing these, one can tell how much energy is released by that star and how long it will endure at that rate by applying one of Einstein's equations which was part of his Theory of Relativity.

The Sun, at the moment, is converting 4,250,000 tons of its mass a second in creating the energy it uses to light and heat its own neighborhood in the sky. That seems little to the Sun however and 4,250,000 tons lost a second will equal 171,000,000,000 tons in the next 1,000 to fifteen million years.

SOME EXCEPTIONS

There is a general physics and chemistry throughout the universe and most stars all contain the same types of atoms. There are some exceptions, however. For example, the oldest stars do not appear to possess the heaviness of atoms to the degree of the younger stars. (We will discuss this in a later article). Our Sun possesses sixty of the approximately ninety types of atoms found in the earth. These are likely there, only do not appear on the surface of the Sun). The main constituent of a star is hydrogen, and later, as the star ages, other elements appear in such as iron and carbon, (hydrogen and helium predominate).

Speaking very generally, the birth of a star follows a pattern. First, a cold cloud of hydrogen gas, it contracts until the centre of the cloud reaches 5,000 degrees C or so, then other elements are formed but the atoms again till it reaches 4,000,000 degrees C or so, then other elements are formed but the atoms again till it reaches 4,000,000 degrees C or so, then other elements are formed but the atoms again till it reaches 10,000,000 degrees C to 15,000,000 degrees C when nuclear reactions begin. Now, the star will radiate for millions and billions of years depending on how fast it is burning its fuel.

(It is said that some stars explode at 3,000,000 degrees, some explode sooner, some later. Still others explode at 4,000,000 degrees and some may never explode).

EXPLODE OR BURN OUT

Ultimately a star will either explode in a great ball of fire or die of tired blood in which case it will simply cool like a coffee in the dark cold sea of the universe. White dwarfs are stars that are dying or have died. Black dwarfs are stars that are dead.

Some stars burn so brightly that their life expectancy is but 1% of that of our Sun which is expected to last 10,000,000,000 years. Some stars burn with a dull red glow and can exist for themselves (another concept of Einstein's — relativity of time and energy) in which case they might exist for billions and billions of years (if the universe is still in business by then).

All stars are not single stars. Some are born as twins or triplets. Some are born initially the cloud from which they were born was too big and broke up into two or three smaller clouds. Thus, two or three stars evolve right from the beginning. It is thought that single stars are in the minority.

The length of time the star takes to emerge from a cold cloud to become a hot star will vary, but millions of years are involved.

This, then, is something of the birth of a star. Next, we will go into the life of a star and look around in a small preview of larger topics to come, no matter whether it is peaceful as well as military uses of the atom."

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

November 9th., 1940

On Sunday 10th. of November, at 2.30 p.m. the Bridge Street United Church will celebrate the one hundred and twenty - fifth anniversary of the pioneer church of Belleville.

It was in 1795 that the Rev. Darius Dunham, a Methodist circuit preacher held the first religious service of which there is any record here. Events moved fairly rapidly for a settlement in those days for it was only ten years later when the circuit of Smith's Creek from Belleville to Port Hope was formed. In 1815 occurred the event which is taken as the starting point of the Bridge Street congregation, known from that time till 1925 as Methodist and since that time as United.

The Church which had been built originally on the Pinnacle Street, and in 1847 was enlarged for the second time and in 1942 for the third time. It was in 1864 that Bridge Street received its bell. The congregation's church home for in that year a fine organ was also laid by the Hon. Billa Flint.

In 1888 the church was destroyed by fire and was rebuilt and reopened in 1887. In 1925 the Methodist, Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational Churches met in Conference of John Street Church by the November 1927, and was followed by the disbanding of its congregation; a good many of its members joined Bridge Street congregation.

30 YEARS AGO

Civic unemployment relief is granted to Belleville and at least 40 families will benefit as the result of the family exercise work. Preference is being shown to married men, also to single men who are supporting widowed mothers. The gangs will be paid the trade rate for work apiece and then 40 more men will be taken on for a

Exactly What Is the Job Of the Press?

By Sydney J. Harris

Two famous women died last month, and were born apart. The first, Emily Post, was famous for being the public font her 1 to and successful career as an etiquette authority. The second, Melanie Klein, was famous as a young educators and psychologists for her studies of child-hood problems.

Mrs. Post received fat columns of obituary comment; Dr. Klein received a few lines at most. Yet, within 25 years, Mrs. Post's name will be as much a faded souvenir of the past as Beau Brummell's, while, Dr. Klein's reputation will increase in significance with all over the world.

The newspapers tell us that they do not "make" news; they merely report it. Everybody knows that Emily Post was famous, "and hardly anyone heard of Melanie Klein. So naturally we are forced to give Mrs. Post's death more prominence when she dies."

I find this a shallow and unconvincing argument. Although it have been a dutiful newspaperman all my grown life. A newspaper is a powerful instrument of mass education, as well as a mere purveyor of news events. It is not part of the legitimate functions of a newspaper to bring the profound and revolutionary work of Mrs. Klein to the attention of its readers?

The radical critics of journalism accuse the newspapers of "dilettanism" their news stories in favor of the policies they advocate. This charge is largely malicious nonsense. The real sins of newspapers are those of omission, rather than those of commission.

In what they print, the newspapers (as the whole) make a determined effort to be fair, accurate and to present all sides of issues. But in what they do not print, because of the "news value" — they fail to meet their obligations as organs of enlightenment, education and instruments of entertainment.

Mrs. Post's contribution, how little, in their mere meditative moments. Each year, in a small number, the nation's managing editors vote themselves a kick in the pants for the dullest columnists, Jefferson thought that general education — of which the press is an important part — should raise all men to the level of the true aristocrat; but too often the mass media of communication, including radio, is a reclined effort to reduce all men to the level of the lowest. Mrs. Post wouldn't like that.

DON'T SUBSTITUTE COLA DRINKS FOR MILK IN CHILD'S DIET

The harmful part, for a child, is the caffine. It is a stimulant, just as the caffein in coffee or tea is a stimulant. Babies don't need stimulants. Excess stimulation can lead to lack of sleep and nervousness.

After all, even adults sometimes find that a cup of tea or coffee can keep them awake at night. The amount depends on the individual, of course, but large amounts of caffein can make adults jumpy and jittery.

Do Bet to a baby? What a disgraceful thing to do!

"Dear Dr. Molner: Can one gain weight from liquids alone? P.A.M."

Certainly because liquids sometimes contain more calories than solid foods. See how much salt, or sugar you can dissolve in a full glass of water, without running the glass over the top. You'll see what I mean. Or see how many more calories are contained in a pound of milk than in a pound of celery.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am a girl, 13. My parents do not allow me to shave my legs for they believe it will make my legs hair grow. I would appreciate your answer. —Miss X."

Your parents are mistaken. Shaving has mighty little effect on hair growth one way or other will see if he will compare the hair on his forearms which he doesn't shave, and his cheek. which he does shave. You can arrive at a compromise: What about one of the small electric shavers, or one of those creams? of course, there are depilatory creams for removing hair.

Do you have a problem with child people? If so, write to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Tribune, 435 North Dearborn, P.O. TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

UNDERTOW

Undertow is the lower current of water in the ocean that travels in the opposite direction to the surface water that leaps in waves upon the shore.

Undertows have lost their lives, while vacationing, by being caught by this strong current, carried out beyond their strength to swim back to the shore and drown.

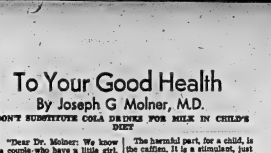
I once asked an experienced swimmer how to avoid the undertow. He told me to swim ashore as quickly as possible, get above it and float on the surface of the water.

I have thought a great deal about that advice.

There is an undertow to the business of life people are caught in it and carried out at last under — made powerless to return — simply to share the fate of the unwary.

Inactivity is a powerful undertow. A man who gets in the habit of not working all the while by the time he is old, finds he can find that the undertow has made of him a helpless anywhere.

The great musician must give most of his days to — practice. The great writer must be conscientiously, thinking, or ore kind of or their abilities will be allowed to catch us unawares.



So to avoid the undertow, let us keep busy and keep on top!

Let us not be too confident of our ability to handle things we know little or nothing about. Remember that many young swimmers have not been able to cope with a powerful undertow.

Do the thing you know — and keep knowing it better all the time. But stay away from the undertows — especially when you know that they exist.

This town in Prescott county of Ontario was so named from the first settler, Simeon Van Kleek, a U.E. Loyalist from Dutchess county in New York state. At the close of the revolutionary war he followed the British army to Nova Scotia and then moved to Quebec. Seeing the high ridge on the south side of the Ottawa river he crossed over and selected a plot of land which afterwards became the townsite.

Some Organizational Changes In Ont. Elementary Schools

By L. A. KELLS,
Superintendent of Public Schools

The following paragraphs attempt in a few words to draw attention to popular and accepted changes that have taken place in the past decade and are being established in a substantial way in many Ontario localities.

The announcement of curriculum changes for Ontario schools by the Minister of Education, the Hon. Dana Porter, contained the statement—

"The revised curriculum will provide for four divisions:—

Primary Division, roughly equivalent to the present Grades I to III.

Junior Division, roughly equivalent to the present Grades IV and VI.

Intermediate Division, equivalent to Grades VII to X.

Senior Division, equivalent to Grades XI to XIII".

At the primary level the implication was that from 1950 grade divisions would become less important and that children would be moved through the program of work at rates consistent with individual abilities. Various structures of organizational grouping have resulted, the most satisfactory of which appears to be the Unit Program now in use in many Ontario communities.

Our brand of organization for Units is similar to, but not necessarily the same as, many others. For instance, only a few include the Grade IV age group. Also, in theory at least, if not completely in practice, the Grade I and II area is in six units and is kept somewhat separated from the six units represented in the Grade III and IV area. Unit programming is not teaching methods or instructional techniques, but an attempt to secure flexibility in organization and planning for children in the first three or four years of elementary school life.

SENIOR SCHOOLS

Local school authorities in Ontario have grappled with the idea of an "Intermediate School" for several decades. Countless panel discussions and conferences have exhausted the subject. Almost without exception, certainly overwhelmingly, the consensus has been for intermediate school organization; but the practical aspects have been almost insurmountable.

Some communities where Boards of Education have local authority to include Kindergarten to Grades XIII, have overcome the insurmountable, in part, at least, and intermediate schools representing Grades VII to IX, and sometimes Grades VII to X, are in operation. In others, specialty subjects are in Public School Boards, a very considerable number of Senior Public Schools are in operation.

Since the regulations of the Ontario Department of Education do not, and are not allowed to, provide for Intermediate Schools, the formation of an "Intermediate" Division in the Curriculum can scarcely suggest or imply the setting up of such schools. However, local enthusiasm has been at work to achieve as much as possible this very desirable adjustment.

CO-ORDINATION OF PROGRAMS

The movement to provide the machinery to enable teachers to get together in consultative manner to "bridge the gap" between the elementary and secondary school programs was a joint effort of the federations of teachers and employers and the Department of Education. Official recognition was given in the announcements of the Hon. Dana Porter as Minister of Education just ten years ago. Problems of growth, accommodation, teacher shortage and the like, have tended to obscure and decrease the attention given to this attempt at blending the facets of education. Meetings and discussions continue, particularly as curriculum changes take place to meet the changing needs of the schools. In fact such a meeting will be required within the next few weeks to launch the new intermediate Science program due to go into effect September, 1961.

Some Upsets Seen in Second Day of Spiel

A number of upsets were seen in the second day of the rolled bonspiel at the Quinte Curling Club and showed that some of the curlers are regaining their last year's form in a hurry. Again the ice was in excellent condition and every game was close none going by an extra end, one being that of E. Gowsell, chairman of curling activities being decided by Ralph Graham after both arrived at the eighth end ties.

Rinks skipped by Ron Beno, Don Stanton, Murray Johnson and Harold Wilkinson are still in the first event by virtue of wins in the first draw while Ralph Graham and Mac White advanced to the third round in the same event. Ernie Wilkinson and Dr. McConnell are also plugging along in the preferred class. There will be more doings again today. The curlers appreciated the donuts and coffee served at the end of each game and thoroughly enjoyed the social time as the games were played over and over.

Mr. Gowsell and his energetic committee are interested in the junior curler because any curling club must have replacements. Most clubs run a junior section generally composed of High School students, and the committee has inserted notice in the paper asking all the juniors for curlers to register so that a section can be formed. These curlers will be given excellent supervision and teaching in the art of curling by senior members of the club. Curling is a fine winter pastime and there is no doubt a sufficient number will become interested and be devotees of the game.

The committee requests that members be on time for their games so that the draws can be run off on time. The rinks are only allowed two hours for a game and if one is not finished the bell might prevent some rink from joining the.win column. Be on time and help the committee.

The draws and results.

CHRIST CHURCH

It's fun to be a Cub, especially with a Pack leader like Akela-Marg Kemp, who knows and loves little boys.

Mrs. Jack Hodgson listened as that the Cubs celebrated Hallowe'en with a party and of course, week Akela Kemp and her assistants at the helm it was a very special party. The parish hall was gaily decorated with lighted conical and grotesque pumpkins and many pictures crawling up the curtains.

The Cubs invited their fathers, mothers, sisters, brothers and friends to share in the fun. Costumes were varied and original. Akela appeared as Sir Walter Raleigh with ruffs, beard and cape. There were several Indian maids, a basketball players (midget league), Mr. and Mrs. Clean, a harlequin, barber, girl, a genuine hobo, flapper, an Arab, girls dressed as witches, as boys as girls, an old-fashioned lady in a becoming sun bonnet and a soldier, lost from some battle.

Scouts Dennis and Laurie Rowbotham and Bruce Johnston were really put on the spot judging the costumes, but finally awarded the honors to Chris Tommis (Tucker) Chuckwagon a girl; Robert Fuller, pirate; Jim Dafoe, tramp; guests Mrs. R. Hamblin, flapper; Jack Hodgson, clown and Mrs. R. Reeden, an unemployed bum.

CUBS' GOOD TURN

Everybody joined in the games, which included: ringtoss, bean bag throw, pin the tail on the cat, bowling, fish pond, apple ducking, etc. Cookies and candies, donated by the Boy Scouts' Auxilliary, were sold, and all the proceeds from the games and sales were sent to the UNICEF.

Less fortunate children are made happier in the knowledge that our Cubs think of them when enjoying themselves.

Akela Kemp, Sixer Mrs. Harry Gibson and Bagheera Ali Wagner are proud of their Cubs and so are we all, particularly "Mowgli."

SEA AUXILIARY

The monthly meeting of the Boy Scouts' Auxiliary was opened by president, Mrs. H. Rainbird with the Mothers' Promise and the Lord's Prayer. There were seventeen members present. Mrs. J. Johnston is now recovering after her recent stay in hospital. Mrs. Alfred Wagner resigned as secretary due to other obligations and will be replaced by Mrs. John Hall.

An investiture cloth will be presented to the Pack and Troop and it was suggested that the Auxiliary supply a Scout Flag to the Troop.

COFFEE PARTY

This will be held in the Parish Hall on Friday November 25th. Soup and sandwiches will be served from 10.00 a.m. to 1.00 p.m. to those desiring lunch. A bake table will offer a variety of home baked goods, jams, jellies and a delicatessen section. Mrs. W. Yates will convene this event.

Having no social convener, Mrs. A. Wagner has consented to fill the position.

Akela Kemp asked for help, making stuffed animals to be sent in the Christmas box from the Cubs to the Anglican Church hospital at Constance Lake Reserve. This was as usual responded to wholeheartedly.

A.S.M. Terry Johnston gave an interesting talk on winter camping while the ladies enjoyed a lunch served by Group Captain, Mrs. Gordan Pringle and her group.

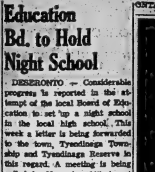
Education Bd. to Hold Night School



DESERONTO — Considerable progress is reported in the attempt of the local Board of Education to set up a night school in the local high school. This week a letter is being forwarded to the town Tyendinaga Township and Tyendinaga Reserve in this regard. A meeting is being called for November 14th to set up a governing committee and to help decide the courses that will be covered. Sign writing is an additional course that can be handled during the school.

The school is being held under the Department of Agriculture and will be held one night weekly for a period of fourteen weeks. There is a minimum enrollment before a subject can be included so those interested should enroll as soon as possible. The cost of the instruction will be borne by the Department and the only cost to pupils will be a nominal fee to cover supplies used in the school.

The range of subjects was considered in the conference and the School Board last week and all interested are urged to enroll as soon as possible. A preliminary work can be dealt with. The efforts of the Board are to be commended as this will give an opportunity to those of the town and vicinity who are unable to travel to Belleville to night school.

TTC Rapped By Gardiner

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Transit Commission Tuesday was described by Metropolitan Chairman Frederick Gardiner as "the defiant organization trying to be supremely ridiculous" after the action in holding up for a week a $3,000 payment to the Transit Research Corporation of New York.

The commission, acting on a report into its travel and entertainment expenditure by senior county court Judge Robert Forsyth, has started to restrict the actions to those for which it has specific authority.

The TTC is one of five transit organizations called upon to contribute towards the continuation of the research corporation.

Criticizing the TTC's decision, Mr. Gardiner said Judge Forsyth's report dealt with excessive expenditures concerning entertainment and travel. It had nothing to do with expenditures calculated to be of benefit to the transit system.

The commissioners said today if they followed Judge Forsyth to his "illogical conclusion" the result could be a transit strike.

The TTC's discussion took place in the absence of commissioner William Russell, who was in Chicago to study the transit system there.

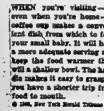
Gamma Mu Welcomes 3 Rushees

At a recent meeting of Gamma Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority was held at the home of Mrs. William Cochrane, Dufferin Crescent. President, Mrs. Bruce Bishop, presided, and in her opening remarks welcomed three rushees, Mrs. Ken Mills, John Denion, Mrs. T. M. Baird and Mrs. Wilcocks. It was announced that the next meeting would be a coffee and dessert party in honor of the new rushees to be held at the home of Mrs. G. McGibbon, Bleecker Avenue. Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, Mrs. Ross Cochrane announced that an auction sale would be held at the coffee party and all members were requested to bring several articles to contribute to the sale. Mrs. Sibbald also reported that members be thinking of individual methods of contributing later money in the spring.

Mrs. W. Turner regretted that the cancer dressings, prepared at the previous meeting, were graduated. Mrs. Pat Bellville Branch of the Canadian Cancer Society. Vice-president, Mrs. E. James, reported that plans had been successfully completed for a tour of the Downs Coulter and Company plant in Trenton, to take place on the evening of Tuesday, November 15.

BETA SIGMA PHI IDEALS

Mrs. V. White, director of Gamma Mu Chapter, added her welcome to the prospective rushees and gave a brief resume of the history and ideals of Beta Sigma Phi. She stated that it is a worldwide organization which may be joined by invitation only and also stressed the enduring friendships that result from participation.



Mrs. R. Riley was in charge of the program for the evening entitled "Your Crowning Glory."

Mrs. Riley outlined methods of preparing coiffures as it was done by both male and female in the 18th Century France. These methods were then contrasted with modern hairdressing techniques, and the entire lecture highlighted by illustrations by both periods. Methods of home care for the hair were also discussed, with beauty tips for the fair members of the woman.

Mrs. W. Turner thanked the speaker for an amusing and thoroughly enjoyable talk.

Cancer dressings were prepared by all members prior to the social hour when refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. W. Cochrane. Mrs. V. White, director, poured at the tea table that carried out a charming Hallowe'en motif completed by a smiling Jack-o-Lantern.

Holy Rosary Sponsors Fine Autumn Tea, Successful Bazaar

In keeping with the festive autumn color scheme, the Knights of Columbus Hall, Front Street, was colorfully decorated in bronze, yellow and green, for the Holy Rosary tea and bazaar held yesterday afternoon.

Receiving at the door was the president, Mrs. Gilbert Mills, assisted by the convener of this most delightful occasion, Mrs. J. Hogan. Co-convener for the event was Mrs. A. Zves.

Just inside the door of the hall the various booths were arranged; each one bearing the afore-mentioned color scheme and decorated with silver tinted evergreen boughs interspersed with metallic and gaily colored milkweed pods; which were painted by the grade 8 pupils of Holy Rosary School.

The first display table was in charge of Mrs. P. Schriefer and Mrs. P. Brennan, and contained a large assortment of religious articles, including Bibles, prayer books, Christmas cards, and in keeping with the fast approaching Christmas season; a nativity display.

DAINTILY DRESSED DOLLS

Daintily dressed dolls in all sizes, from bridal dolls in beautiful white satin gowns, to miniature sized ones in cradles, were displayed at the next booth. Centering this attraction were those dressed in the latest frenched suits of red, yellow and green. There was everybody's delight a little child's heart, in the line of doll's clothing, such as silk and flannette pyjamas, knitted and crocheted bonnet and boot sets, mitten and scarf sets, coats and bonnets in all sizes and colors. In charge of this particular booth were Mrs. E. Reid and Mrs. D. Eves. Assisting were:

Next to this was the ever-popular homebaking table with, with a bountiful supply of goodies. There were pies of all kinds, such as apple, berry, pumpkin, chocolate, lemon and orange cakes fruit and plain cupcakes, bran muffins, butterscotch date squares, fat shapes and sizes of dainty, cookies, chocolate, white and sage fudge, food cake and nut loaves as well as freshly baked bread and rolls. These kept busy at this display were: Mesdames W. Smith, S. Haley and A. Hawkrider.

LOVELY ASSORTMENT

The apron booth was filled with a lovely assortment of colorful aprons. Some were of dainty prints in floral design and many others of gingham and organdy material, and formed quite a background for this display, were little girls' aprons, in all sizes, shapes and colors. This booth was in charge of Mesdames F. Daley, E. Sedard, and Bedard.

There were numerous varieties of jams, jellies, relishes and pickles, displayed at the next booth, some of which were mustard, beet, bread and butter pickles, cranberry, corn, cucumber and pear relishes; also jams and jellies of all kinds. This table was convened by Mesdames F. Halloran and W. Boyd.

CHARMING NOVELTIES

The novelty table with a splendid assortment of items most charmingly displayed. Some of the numerous articles were: tiny baby shoes and bonnets, crochet novelties, lace doilies, oven mitts, kitchen novelties and aprons, linen luncheon cloths and serviettes, as well as ash trays and little novelty dishes. Mrs. G. Doran and J. Hay were in charge of this display.

The candy booth was most elaborate in its display of divinity fudges, pecan creams, peanut brittle, chocolate fudges, all in cellophane wrapped boxes or little tin foil trays. Also there also an assortment of multi-colored marshmallows and small containers of sugar coated peanuts, rice krispie squares, and individual little tart dishes of chocolates. Those convening at this display were: Mesdames J. Darlington, J. Eilard and Bispette.

ATTRACTIVE TEA ROOM

The tea room was most attractively decorated. At the entrance where the hostess, Mrs. F. Enright invited the guests, was an arbor beautifully decorated with evergreen boughs, entwined with sprays of rustic colored bitterweet. The table was pretty with its white damask tablecloth centred with gleaming silver bowl, filled with yellow and salmon colored 'mums, flanked by tall tapering yellow candles in silver candelabra.

Those serving the guests at the daintily arranged individual tea tables, with their snow-white luncheon cloths were: Mesdames V. Allen, D. Bennett, J. Colligan, C. Doyle, P. Goegan, D. Kendrick, D. Lapinette, B. McQuaid, L. Meagher, T. Morrison and Norwell.

Mrs. L. Huffman was convener of the kitchen, assisted by Mesdames Thompson, O'Grady, V. O'Neill, C. Horn and K. Edwards.

DRAW MADE

The ticket conveners were: Mrs. F. Mulvihill and Mrs. E. McGuigan and winners of the draw for $25, $15 and $10 were: 1st Donna McGrath, Tamworth; 2nd Mrs. A. Douglas, Carnarvon; 3rd Brian Buckley, Carnilton.

Mrs. M. Bradden was in charge of tickets at the door and during the afternoon Mrs. L. Donovan sold tickets on two beautifully iced fruit cakes, the winners were — 1st Mrs. Tom Fleury, Roslin; 2nd F. Fitzgibbon.

In the evening a most successful euchre party was held, the prize winners were as follows: ladies 1st, Mary Ruttan; 2nd Mrs. Russell; consolation, Merle Lee; lone hand, Marg Ruttan. Gents: 1st Ernie Reid; 2nd Ted Muldoon, consolation, Fred Lee, lone hand, Dick Kennedy.

The door prizes went to Mrs. Ruth Kelleher, Mrs. Kay Casula and in the second, Jack Kelleher. The table centre was won by Mrs. J. Legault.

BURY MACK SENNETT

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mack Sennett, native of Danville Que., was honored in death Tuesday by the dwindling ranks of pioneers who helped him create a new art of comedy. His pallbearers included the remaining member of the Keystone Kops, now white with age. Among the mourners were a few of the Mack Sennett bathing beauties, now leering matrons. Sennett, 79, died Saturday.

SHANNONVILLE WMS

The monthly meeting of the WMS of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Damon Hinchey on the evening of November 3rd, with an attendance of 12. Mrs. Charles Wood, president, welcomed all, especially the visitors. Mrs. Wood gave a reading and offered prayer.

Mrs. Asa Cook, group leader, took charge and gave the call to worship.

Mrs. Cook led in the worship service, using the Missionary Monthly, assisted by Mrs. Sam Wood. Mrs. H. Chandler and Mrs. Damon Hinchey, who all read passages of Scripture from the New Testament, theme for the month being "Missions".

Mrs. Cook gave a reading — "Thinking it over", in relation to human rights, and telling how some people live in other parts of the world.

Mrs. Everett Stratton read a poem, "A November Landscape" by J. Pratt. Mrs. Charles Kidd also read a poem, Mrs. Will Ross' reading was entitled 'Quaker Hour', many all wonder if they were giving their best in Christ's service. A. Cook read "There is Room in My Father's House".

Mrs. Cook thanked her group for their help, and Mrs. Wood thanked the group for the program and lunch and took charge of the business.

The secretary, Mrs. W. D. Robertson called the roll, and read the correspondence and minutes of the last meeting.

A bake sale was held after the meeting in charge of Mrs. Sam Elliott and Mrs. Elmer Vrooman. Members are asked to buy wool for the supply work. Mrs. Will Ross kindly donated a prettily pieced quilt top.

A nominating committee was appointed to get the officers and group leaders for 1961, are Mrs. Damon Hinchey, Mrs. Will Ross and Mrs. Sam Elliott.

The president offered prayer for Miss Jessie Oliver and her work as she was appointed to be the missionary to Trinidad this year.

Mrs. Damon Hinchey presided at the piano for all hymns used.

The hostess assisted by Mrs. Vrooman served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Ross.

SEARCH AREA

DOON (CP)—Police searched this area near Kitchener Tuesday night without success after a report that an attempt had been made to abandon a small girl here. Mel Wright told Waterloo Township police he had stopped near his home and left a three- or four-year-old girl. He said the girl was crying. When he ran after the car the driver came back, picked up the girl and drove toward Blair.

University of English Language Topic at Canadian Club Dinner

Last evening 166 members of the Women's Canadian Club met in the Pinnacle Room of Hotel Quinte for the annual dinner meeting, with Professor A. Bell Lower, of Queen's University, as guest speaker, who kindly supplied in place of Miss Anne Francis, who due to illness, was unable to attend.

Professor Lower, who was introduced by the president of the club, Mrs. R. D. Arnott, has lately returned from a round-the-world tour which added greatly to his knowledge of history, the department of which he was recent head. He based his informative talk on "English Speaking People Beyond Our Doors", and told of how, in every country he had visited, the English language was more or less known. He, himself had had no difficulty in making himself understood.

He was impressed with the great scope of the English language as it was far more than a medium of thought. The Swedes and the Cyclenese both used the English at the United Nations. In India, he listened to a debate in the House of Commons which was in English, and where more secretary was known than in the debates in the homeland. Jawaharial, Nehru, the prime minister was also an excellent English.

OTHER LANGUAGES

In speaking of other languages, he mentioned the Chinese language as being almost a world language, but in the universally English is used to a great extent, and in Africa, in official matters only English was spoken. In Canada English was the universal language till 1867 when French was permitted. The English speaking people were gradually learning the French language. The African language is a Bantu language which grew out of the Dutch language. The French have a world language behind them; they are great in literature profession, painting, culinary works than the English Canadian.

In the last two or three centuries there has been an extraordinary growth of the English language due to colonization.

IMPRESSIONS

The speaker also interspersed some of his impressions of his various countries he met. Mrs. Lower visited. In Africa he found Nairobi a most beautiful city, with a delightful climate, fine roads and excellent food. Salisbury in Rhodesia, was also very clean, with wide streets, lovely flower beds, and all trees bare. There was no Canadian city equal to it. A number of 'kiski' cities were around where the morals are bad. Unmarried mothers are honored.

New Zealanders have become a distinctive people, such as the Nova Scotian people. Their roots are down deep in New Zealand soil. The Australians are the same, a distinct people, who have forgotten their origins. The New Zealanders are exceedingly polite, and take good care of New England.

HEAD TABLE GUESTS

Preceding the talk, a delicious dinner was served. Those at the head table included: Mrs. D. I. MacKinnon, Mrs. K. S. Fairbairn, Mrs. E. F. Fullwell, Mrs. W. Dallas, Mrs. S. L. Joss, Mrs. A. S. McConnell, Mrs. J. H. Forrester, Prof. A. R. N. Lower, Mrs. E. D. Arnott, Mrs. A. R. N. Lower, Mrs. J. G. Demeza, Mrs. A. R. MacFadden, Mrs. W. E. McCormick, Mrs. F. Wilson, Mrs. W. L. Langlois, Mrs. D. W. Maddock, Mrs. E. Hickey, Mrs. W. J. Finkle, Mrs. W. Kinsear, Mrs. T. K. Franklin, Mrs. G. G. Wright, Mrs. Argue and Mrs. Arthur May.

Lovely flowers of gold, russet and yellow 'mums, mingled with white and cream snapdragons and bronzed huckleberry sprays, flanked by tall white candles in crystal holders, formed a delightful picture for the head table personnel.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. W. L. Langlois. Special thanks were also extended to Mr. F. Beeby of the Northern Electric for the P.A. system.

Contact Club Sponsors Auction Sale

Monday evening the Contact Club of Christ Church met and held a successful auction sale. A good turnout of members and guests enjoyed selling and receiving many useful items at unbelievable prices. Treasurer, Myra Cresswell, was kept busy as home made jackets, relishes and jellies, as well as children's clothing and household articles, were offered for sale.

The humorous auctioneer, was Mary Rompen capably assisted by Goldie Miller.

Refreshments, were served by hostess Marian Conner, Goldie Miller and Shirley Harris, brought another interesting evening to a close.

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Smoiyzk are shown following their recent marriage in Foxboro United Church, Foxboro, Ontario. The bride is the former Miss Isabel McCullough of Toronto, daughter of, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. McCullough of Foxboro. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Smoiyzk, of Edmonton, Alta. Remembrance Day Observed At W.I. Meet RAWDON — Mrs. John Kane was hostess on November 3rd for the River Valley Women's Institute and 17 members and two visitors in attendance.

The living room was decorated with rows of flags and poppies. A large cross of poppies was placed in front of the fire place in commemoration of Remembrance Day, November 11th.

The president Mrs. Roy Tucker, opened the meeting and the program was convened by Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh who read a poem in keeping with the theme of the meeting. Mrs. Roy Bush outlined the motto, "The true way to mourn the dead is to take care of the living and to belong to them". She stressed that one should give her heart to the world around and thus be alive to the needs of today. Mrs. Alex Bush read "O Valiant Hearts" and Mrs. Philip Conley accompanied this, with appropriate piano music. The convenor read a poem entitled "Remembrance", and two minutes silence was observed. Following this, Mrs. George Sheldon sang "Lest We Forget". The convenor gave the program with an informative paper on "current events".

The correspondence included a thank you letter, a message from the district secretary, Mrs. Harry Coulter, asking the branch to provide $4 as the Trent Valley area had decided to send Mrs. Roscoe Robson, area chairman, to Vancouver in June 1961 to the F.W.I.C. national convention.

FINANCIAL REPORT

Mrs. George Hossman gave a full financial report, which included paying for three cars for transportation to the area convention, and one to the "District Workshop" and the delegates' meals at the convention. A donation $10 was made for the F.W.I.O. project, magazine for Jamaica. The euchre parties will conference Friday evening and it was decided to charge 10 cents extra this year.

The Christmas meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George Hossman, the convenors being Mrs. Allen McDonell and Mrs. Don Donohoe. Each lady is asked to bring 50 cents for a special fund. The Canada packers coupons are to be handed in at this meeting.

A.C.W.W. helps promote friendly relations between the nations and they use the voluntary gifts from the "Pennies for Friendship" fund as a special way of carrying on their extension work in other countries. At this meeting, River Valley branch decided to have a "friendship jar". The pennies gathered at this meeting numbered over 60.

There were several reports as follows: Mrs. Roy Bush spoke briefly re the evening meeting of the Trent Valley Area Convention, and Mrs. Jack Bush, reported for the second day and said it was truly a "Friendly Convention. "Mrs. Percy MacMullen the alternate delegate to the first day, was unavoidably absent at the October meeting. She and Mrs. Ralph Usman were on the reception committee for the first session on Oct. 11th at Club Camera. Mrs. Orval Brooks spoke briefly re "The District Workshop" on October 31st at Wallbridge on the "Eat to Live" topic. Three the "Eat to Live", topic. Three members attended the two sessions. She also reported the various meetings of the River Valley "Sew and Sews", 4-H Club.

Mrs. George Hossman, gave a synopsis of the recent meeting of the Historical Society, held at Belleville. The others who attended were: Mrs. E. C. Hayes, Mrs. Miles Mary Phoenix, Mrs. Grace Hossman, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Chard.

Mrs. Roy Bush, convener for "The associated countrywomen of the world", gave a few highlights from the new book "The countrywoman". The new special issue was displayed and this international magazine covers a wide and varied field of experiences. The A.C.W.W. president Mrs. Van Benkhoff spent some time in England arranging the A.C.W.W. project for five years on the theme "Food for the Hungry".

The president voiced thanks for all the informative reports and the meeting closed, followed by refreshments, and a social half hour was enjoyed.

SPRINGBROOK W.A.

The November meeting of the Springbrook W. A. was held in the Church Hall on Wednesday with a good attendance.

Mrs. Ralph Thompson was in charge of the devotional. The theme was, "Our Commission."

Mrs. Merle Moore read the scripture taken from Matthew and Mrs. Thompson the "Lesson Thoughts."

Correspondence was read by the secretary, Mrs. M. J. Mason. The ladies received invitations to afternoon teas at St. [illegible] November 10th, at Mount Pleasant on November 16th and at Hoards on November 17th.

The W.M.S. rally was held at Wallbridge on November 8th. Mrs. Brodsworth reported on the financial success of catering at Hick's livestock sale. It was decided that it be left in the hands of the parsonage committee to decided about the purchasing of a washing machine for the parsonage. The W.A. will have Christmas cards for sale again this year.

Program included the topic given by Mrs. Jim Soxy, "Thy Kingdom Come" and readings by Mrs. Hiram Mundey and Mrs. Merle Moore, also a solo by Mrs. Gordon Bailey.

Mrs. Webb closed the meeting with prayer.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. W. McInroy and Mrs. C. Robbins and their assistants, and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Popular Different Chicken Dishes

By Mary Moore

One of you wrote to me saying "This time of year we kill off our yearling hens. The good portions are stewed and fried and made into pot pie. I made soup and chicken pie of the remainder. This year I would like to make Chicken Loaf for school lunches".

I answered this reader by mail and received a reply saying she had made the loaf and served it hot but there was none left for lunches — so she had to make another.

Eleanor and I both said at once "Perhaps we should put it in the column if it is that popular". So if you have yearling hens to kill off or can find a bargain in boiling fowl here's a different dish.

CHICKEN LOAF:

Meat and skin from one 4-lb. (when dressed) stewing chicken (see below) 1-3 cups cooked rice, 2 cups fresh bread-crumbs, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1-4 cup chopped pimiento, 3 cups chicken broth or broth and water mixed, 4 eggs, beaten, 1-4 cup skim milk powder.

Simmer dressed chicken in water to just cover, with a slice of onion, 1 teaspoon salt and 1 bay leaf, until meat falls from bones, (Note: If desired chicken may be pressure-cooked for 1 hour). Drain, cool on platter. Measure broth and make up to 3 cups by adding water if necessary. When chicken is cool enough to handle, strip meat from bones and peel off skin. Put skin through meat grinder. Chop meat in 1/4" pieces. Combine all ingredients. Taste to see if it needs more salt and some pepper and add according to your taste. Turn into 1 large casserole or 2 medium casseroles or loaf pans and bake at 325 deg. F. for 1 1-3 to 1 3-4 hours.

Cool and here is another which calls for a frier.

CHICKEN WITH PILAF:

1 frier chicken, 1-2 lemon, 1 teaspoon MSG, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1-4 cup finely chopped onion, 1 small green pepper, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 bay leaf, 1 can consomme, divided, 1-2 cup water.

Rub chicken inside and out with cut surface of lemon. Sprinkle with MSG and let stand 10 minutes. Hook wing tip back of chicken to hold neck skin. Tie legs together. Rub with butter. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes per pound. Remove chicken from pan, keep warm. To make gravy, add onion and green pepper to drippings in pan. Cook over medium heat until tender but not brown. Stir in flour and salt. Measure 1-3 cup of the consomme; reserve remainder for Pilaf (see below). Gradually add consomme and water to the flour mixture, stirring constantly. Cook until thickened. Serve gravy with chicken and

PILAF:

Six tablespoons butter, 1 cup raw rice, 1-4 cup finely chopped onion, 1 teaspoon MSG, consomme, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-3 cup currants, 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Melt butter in saucepan or skillet with tight fitting cover. Add rice and onion; cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until rice is golden brown. Measure remaining consomme and add water to make 2 cups. Add consomme-water mixture, salt and pepper and currants to browned rice; bring quickly to a full boil. Cover, reduce heat and cook 15 to 18 minutes or until all liquid is absorbed. Turn into 4 greased 3-4-cup moulds or 6 greased 1-3-cup moulds. Unmould and serve on platter with chicken.

River Valley W.I. Holds Pie Social

RAWDON — On Friday evening, November 4th, a very successful social evening and pie social was held at the River Valley school house under the auspices of the R.V. Women's Institute. The conveners were Mrs. Ralph Usman, Mrs. J. R. Donohoe and the agriculture and Canadian industries group.

Mr. Jack Bush was master of ceremonies and Mrs. Philip Conley was pianist.

There were over 100 men, women and children in attendance and this included visitors from Stirling and Seymour.

The group enjoyed assembly singing and the school sang "Five Little Pumpkins."

Mrs. Ernest Carr read a selection, "Yesterday and Today"; Miss Marilyn Conley contributed "The Petit Waltz"; Miss Marlene Blackburn gave "A Happy Man"; Mrs. Ralph Usman and daughter, Cheryl, rendered a piano duet and Mrs. Roy Tucker read a humorous article re an eight-hour day. The guests, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Thompson of Seymour township, showed a film entitled "Farming Yesterday and Today."

This film was arranged and produced by the Rev. Gordon Whitehorne, B.A., B.D. of Seymour United Church circuit. This was most interesting and took on the audience from binders to combines, horses and tractors, and depicted all the latest ideas in farming.

The school children sang a "Ghost Song"; Mrs. Jack Bush conducted several games and contests. The prize winners for tobogoning were Miss Bernice McCurdy and Mr. Kenneth Sager. Nylon stockings and oven mitts, Douglas Kane.

The proceeds of the evening were $24.60 profit. Sandwiches, pie and coffee were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

Women's Institutes

STIRLING W.I.

Mrs. G. Munsky, Front Street West, Stirling, was hostess to the officers and members, with visitors, of the Stirling Women's Institute, for their November meeting on Wednesday afternoon.

President, Mrs. B. Reid, welcomed all, also expressing thanks to Mrs. Munsky for her kindness in opening her home for this occasion.

The secretary, Mrs. Loella Bronson, covered the correspondence and bills.

Trent Valley Area Women's Institute members feel justly proud to learn that the president, Mrs. R. Robson, of Hallowayy, was appointed to represent the W.I.'s at the convention in Vancouver next year. This was decided at the area convention at Club Canara, Belleville, in October.

WILL VISIT COUNTY HOME

The W.I. members of Stirling are looking forward with delight to their visit to the County Home this month. A pleasing program will be presented and a little treat will be tucked in, to make the visit complete, with pleasure to one and all.

Stirling W.I. members have been quilting already for a sale, that will be shipped the last part of November, to Scott Mission, Toronto. Several boxes of good used clothing have already been baked for this cause.

A fancy quilt top was donated by a generous Belleville lady to this institute; a quilting for this will take place a fortnight hence. Mrs. Munsky kindly offered her home for this quilting. This quilt will be in readiness to sell. An interested buyer, perhaps, will be wasting this for a Christmas gift.

CONVENTION REPORT

The delegate for the area convention, Mrs. M. Williams, gave a most interesting report of the convention's activities.

Mrs. Frank Smith gave two humorous readings, "Here Are Humans" and "A Modern Bathroom"; Mrs. Morley Averhart gave a number of musical compositions here and there of this W.I. booklet.

Lodge No. 239, I.O.O.F. after the opening of their new hall, Oct. 19, 1887.

Mrs. E. Losey outlined the ceremonies of "Remembrance Day" at Ottawa, in a city or a village. Remembrance Day, and the silence of honor is a benediction to each and everyone commemorating thanks to the noble boys for their great sacrifice that those at home may have comfort and peace at their fireSides.

Mrs. W. C. West had on display a "Home and Country" dated December 1936, outlining the contents here and there of this W.I. booklet.

A dainty lunch was served and the usual time of visiting was enjoyed.

Mrs. M. Williams expressed thanks to the hostess, Mrs. Munsby, also to the program and lunch committee, Mrs. W. C. West, Mrs. E. Losey and Mrs. M. Averhart.

C.G.I.T. NEWS

WELLINGTON — The Wellington C.G.I.T., enjoyed the fellowship of the members of the Picton C.G.I.T. on Tuesday, Oct. 25th at their Hallowe'en party. The girls decorated the school gym for the occasion, while tables were set up, and decorated in the centennial parlor. The girls met at the Sunday School rooms and went to the school, as a group; they had a parade of costumes, followed by games and a sing-song. All went back to the centennial parlor for refreshments.

On November 1st, the C.G.I.T. met in the Sunday School room for the first of the November meetings, this being the 8th meeting of the season. The girls enjoyed games and a sing-song, followed by business, with worship ending this meeting.

An order has been sent to Senlies 'n' Chuckles for C.G.I.T. chocolates. The town council has kindly granted permission to canvass the town to sell these, on Friday, November 18th and Saturday November 19th. One of the high lights of the meeting was the visit of Miss Esther Greus, a missionary from India, who told the girls some interesting facts about her work in that country. Another was the Thanksgiving meeting on October.11th when the girls prepared gifts packages for the canvassers to distribute to children of new families arriving in Canada.

Plans are presently being made to attend the annual C.G.I.T. rally which will be held in Marmora on Saturday November 12th.

MODERN MANNERS

THE FORGETFUL HOST

It was the beginning of a nice lazy evening. Mr. and Mrs. Inexperienced had just finished a pick-up supper and settled themselves in the living room. She attired in a comfortable, loose dress and he had on his old smoking jacket and beloved, scuffed-up bedroom slippers. The doorbell rang and Mr. Inexperienced went to answer the summons.

Standing on the front steps were the Jim Down, both dressed in their best bib and tucker. Mrs. Dow, obviously a little startled at the appearance of their host, said "It was so sweet of you to ask us over for dinner tonight. I was so pleased when Jim told me about it!"

Imagine Mr. Inexperienced's horror when he suddenly remembered that, a few days previously, when he had bumped into Jim Dow on the street, he had tendered an invitation to the Down for dinner on Saturday night. In the course of events he had forgotten to mention his spur - of - the - moment invitation to Mrs. Inexperienced. Perhaps it would be a kindness to draw a curtain over the rest of the evening! Needless to say, a miserable time was had by all.

While there was definitely blame on both sides, the deplorable situation could have been avoided if Mrs. Dow had used better judgment. She had been a little doubtful, since she had never met either of the Inexperienceds, but her husband was so sure it was all right that she decided to go through with it. To begin with, Mrs. Inexperienced should have called Mrs. Dow within twenty - four hours to verify the invitation, with words to the effect that "she was looking forward so much to having them for dinner on Saturday evening."

Not receiving such a call, Mrs. Dow would have been wise to let her supposed hostess, expressing regret that, while her husband thought they were free on that night, she had made other plans, and therefore would be unable to come. By taking this approach, all chances of a mix-up can be avoided.

Any verbal, second - hand invitation should be handled with care, and tact! To be safe, the woman, whether she be a man's wife or friend, should always be invited personally by the hostess. If such an invitation is not forthcoming, it is safest to decline.

Avoid giving verbal invitations through a second party, whenever it is possible to do so. Up to husbands: you would do well not to tender an invitation yourself. Always consult with your wife and allow her to choose the date and offer the invitations to those whom you wish to ask. You may save yourself a face-to-face apologies if you do not call her on the telephone.

ANYONE FOR BRIDGE?

Playing bridge, or any card game for that matter, is a delightful way to spend an evening. Unfortunately, a little friendly game often turns out to be a verbal battleground. If one enjoys such a game, then partners should be chosen with good fight in mind. Otherwise, choose your guests with care and hope that the game will be congenial for one and all.

Always avoid the player that approaches bridge with the attitude that its a matter of life or death. Such a person should ask himself if he has any right to criticize his partner for some act of play which, according to his dictates, is incorrect - especially when the partner feels that he has been perfectly justified in the play that he has made. After all, is it not rather presumptuous for one to dictate how a game should be played, even in a recognized authority? Even then, the rules of common courtesy should be followed.

One question to which I have never been able to find a satisfactory answer is why, when a husband and wife play bridge together, nine times out of ten the sparks flay and an argument ensues. Is it the discomfort of everyone else? If the couple know this invariably happens, they shouldn't play at the same table. Another bridge pet is the poor loser. And his name is legion. The wonder is how they manage to find partners. Why they do at all is beyond me! Goodness knows, they don't enjoy the game and certainly they are a wet blanket to other players.

It is a good idea, when you invite guests, to remember to mention the stakes if any for which the game will be played. This gives each guest a chance to decline gracefully if the stakes are too high. If the hostess neglects to mention this important subject, it is perfectly permissible for the recipient of the invitation to ask what they are.

Above all, avoid those unpleasant "post-mortems." The "Why didn't you lead that?" or "If you only hadn't lead that three of diamonds," makes everyone present mighty uncomfortable and shows a complete lack of thought for all those at the gathering.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question: My husband and I had to leave a party and the other evening because our baby-sitter could only stay until ten o'clock. When we left, the host and hostess were completely surrounded by guests. Rather than disturb them and start a long explanation as to why we had to leave early, we left without a goodnight and thank you. Should I apologize for this rudeness if so, how.

Answer: I think it would be advisable to do so. She will certainly understand. Either write a short note expressing your enjoyment of the party and the reason for your early departure, or call her on the telephone.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Roland S. — My father keeps pushing me and I'm tired of it.

Mr. C. S. — The boy is a real genius, only he won't work.

Roland S. — Can you get my father off my neck? Ever since I can remember he's been teaching me tricks with numbers, quick ways to handle fractions and cube roots and all the other stunts. So what? It was fun showing off when I was four or five. But now I'm 16 and I want to give my mind a rest.

Except for math, I'm a jerk. I want to catch up to my friends in other things — like ballroom dancing, girls, sports, movies, and all the other things my father calls a waste of time.

Just because I have a good memory and I learn numbers fast, he thinks I'm another Einstein. But I've met fellows who are much brighter than I am. I'm really a pretty ordinary guy. But try and tell that to my father.

Every time I relax to have a good time with my friends, he makes me feel I'm cheating him and the whole world out of some great discovery. How can I convince I'm just not that good?

Mr. C. S. — Rolly has a brain that's a gift from Heaven and he could revolutionize the whole field of mathematics if he really used it. But no. He denies that he's anything special and he just wants to kid around from now on. Would you believe it, he told me he might be a disc jockey!

That boy can do anything with numbers, so all in his head. As a child, he gave demonstrations before college professors of his calculations. Even now, just ask him to multiply anything and he'll give you the answer almost before the last figure is out of your mouth.

I've always been good at the same thing myself. But I never had the chance to go ahead like Rolly has. I stuck in the grocery business just adding up the butter, rolls and beans my customers bought. But my son has already won a few scholarship prizes and honors and, if he applied himself, could roll up some full-tuition scholarships for the best colleges. They'd all want a winner.

Instead, though, he just wants to take it easy. If anyone's college material it's Rolly. But he's not interested in college at all!

The Councell: Here is the familiar example of the father who, having himself missed out on the sort of distinction he craved, is grabbing for it in his son's name. We meet him in many of the annals of misery.

Once in a while goading is justifiable. When a teacher is certain that a pupil is working far below his capacity, some prodding may quickly and easily show the pupil himself that this is so. But too much pressure from without, too much pushing toward over - ambitious goals, usually has the same effect as a fan of air on a rubber balloon. It collapses it or at least grounds it.

Mr. S. must proceed on the old theory that "genius will out". After a breather in which to find himself, after even a stab at disc-jockeying (which takes brains too!) Roland can take stock and see what's crying out within him for expression. Perhaps it is higher mathematics. Perhaps he's a genius. Roland needs time, and other interests, to find out. And other people, objective and impartial experts, will confirm his "suspicions" or talent level. Not Dad.

Meanwhile, Mr. S. would be well to "lay off". There's a pulsating young man attached to that brain of Roland's not a robot. Roland is not retreating, he's catching up. His father has let him out to loosy waters, and he wants to swim with his peers. He's not ready to pay the price of genius, which includes asceticism and sacrifice — matters not whether Roland sets the world on fire or just lights a modest candle, like his father. What matters is that he lives Roland's life, not Dad's to the full.

Presbyterial WMS Exec. Holds Meeting

On November 7, at 1.30 p.m., the executive committee of the Kingston Presbyterial, Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church in Canada met in St. Andrew's Church, Trenton with the president, Mrs. Weir, Belleville, in the chair, and 21 members present, from Kingston, Picton, Belleville and Trenton. The devotional exercises, led by Mrs. Parsons and Mrs. Mantle, both of Belleville, centred about the story of the Good Shepherd; Mrs. Parsons gave the interesting interpretation that He sought and found the sheep, so that the sheep might tell the story to the young lambs.

The Presbyterial treasurer, Mrs. W. H. Leslie Smith, Kingston, gave her report, stating that the members are well on their way to contributing this year 25 per cent more than last year. The corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. Benson, Ivanhoe and the recording secretary, Mrs. McLean, Belleville, gave reports.

Arrangements were mentioned for the W.M.S. anniversary celebrations to be held in Montreal in 1964. One of the two delegates sent by the Presbyterial to the Training Centre in Alberta College, Belleville, in July, gave an enthusiastic report. The president, Mrs. Weir, gave an interesting report of the Synodical executive meeting held in Calvin Church, Toronto, in October. The Presbyterial nominating committee recommended Miss Mary MacFarlane, Kingston as third vice-president, and Mrs. J. W. MacDonald, Kingston as press secretary for 1961.

TO MEET IN BELLEVILLE

Although Kingston would be the logical place for the Presbyterial annual meeting on January 11, it was decided to hold it in Belleville, as in May in Kingston the 75th anniversary of the Women's Missionary Society will be celebrated. Arrangements for the annual meeting were made, so that much may be accomplished and little time lost. It is expected that Miss Margaret Ramsay, missionary in British Guiana, will be the speaker.

After the meeting, tea was brought and the visitors left in good time to have daylight for part of their way home. They locked back on a well-organized meeting, where much was accomplished, without haste and without delay.

SETS OPENING DATE

VICTORIA (CP) — The first session of British Columbia's 26th legislature will open Jan. 26, Premier Bennett announced Tuesday.

Centre Hastings W.A. Hostess For 5th Rally

The ladies of Mount Pleasant, Rawdon were hostesses for the recent fifth rally of Centre Hastings, Hastings and Prince Edward Division, of Belleville Presbytery Woman's Association.

The meeting opened with quiet music with Mrs. Garth Joslin at the organ. The group, led by Mrs. Bob Patterson, president, sang the theme hymn and prayer.

The devotions were taken by Cordova W.A. the theme being "Shine As A Light."

Mrs. Carleton Potts extended a warm welcome to all present.

Mrs. F. Davidson, president of Belleville Presbytery W.A., brought greetings, saying "the purpose of the new organization is to unite all the women of the church." The importance of carefully filling out the reports and lists of officers for the ensuring year was stressed. Greetings were also brought from Conference W.A. by Mrs. G. E. Dobbs, president. Mrs. Dobbs had attended General Council in Edmonton. She said women must accept responsibility.

An invitation to hold next year's rally in Queensboro was accepted.

A group of ladies from Madoc sang "How Great Thou Art", which was much enjoyed.

The reports were given and roll call answered by 18 societies. Mrs. C. Sine spoke of the literature that was for sale.

The offering was received and dedicated by the ladies of Bethesda W.A.

Mrs. Charlie Davidson was called upon to introduce the guest speaker, Mrs. Packman, of Stirling. Mrs. Packman spoke on "A Woman's Place In the Church." Her thoughts were based on the writings of St. Paul. Women have been called upon to serve all down through the ages.

The courtesy report was given by Marmora.

The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. W. C. Fletcher.

The ladies of Mount Pleasant served lunch.

220 FRONT STREET BELLEVILLE

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

What changes such a little time has wrought! All the cars seem to be parked the wrong way on the market square as well as on the east side of Front Street; and the latest dread demon in many abroad has been brought to the fore. On the strategic corners cars line up as at a starting line; when the light changes, it is a race to see which one gets away first with an engine roar and a squeal of tires.

One driver said it was a bit nerve wracking to be going at a normal pace with cars zooming past on both sides — this was going north on Pinnacle and as no cars were parked by the metre at that spot, a car had gone between this driver and the right hand curb with very little space to spare.

The increased speed is to be expected as anyone who has driven in large centres with one-way traffic will know. However, it will likely simmer down a bit, and on the whole will be much better. We were told that most people went out on Sunday to "drive around the course." We are sure everybody was very careful on Monday, but the hazard comes on the second or third day when the mind is on something else and the old reflexes take over. We fully expect to be caught someday going up Front Street.

We hope also to sneak off to some obtrusive spot and practice backing into a left hand parking spot; in this little exercise, we find we are not ambidextrous, or whatever the term might be. No one will deny the sense of freedom which the one-way traffic gives; once we get used to it we will wonder how we ever stood it the other way.

The type of weather we have had during recent weeks, bright and clear, will mean better potatoes all winter in Ontario. Both weather and crop are considered to be most satisfactory for many years. As a result, quality is excellent, with considerably less scab than usual and almost complete absence of late blight disease.

Plenty of sunshine during the growing season this year and high temperatures during the last few weeks of the season not only resulted in favorable conditions for maturing and harvesting but also result in less after-cooking blackening of potatoes. The 1960 potato crop will bring Ontario farmers in excess of thirty million dollars; demands have been good and prices generally are regarded as above average.

From the colorful display of fall vegetables on the local market, it would appear that this has been a good season for most produce. To have color the first thing in the spring, do not wait any longer if you still have tulip bulbs to put in. Most gardeners probably have their tulip beds prepared, but with our fine fall weather, we have been given a little extra time this year.

Tulips require a well-drained site and should be planted in full sun; never plant them in sub-soil. Prepare the soil by adding a compost of well-rotted manure, peat or leaf mold supplemented with phosphorus. Put this over the entire bed to a depth of two inches and fork it into the soil thoroughly. In heavy soils, the addition of sand will improve drainage and aeration and give a better root development.

Select only the best bulbs and if you are re-using bulbs from last year, throw away all the diseased bulbs. Correct labelling enables gardeners to re-order outstanding varieties and increase the numbers of your favorites.

Women's Activities

SHANNONVILLE HOLY TRINITY W.A.

The regular meeting of the Women's Guild of Holy Trinity Church, Shannonville, was held at the home of Mrs. A. McKenzie on October 27, with ten members present.

Mrs. S. Fitzgerald opened the meeting. Mrs. B. Spencer said a prayer for Mrs. W. Wilson who is in hospital.

Mrs. H. Houston and Mrs. W. Edwards put in their birthday offerings. Mrs. A. McKeiffe thanked the Guild for a card sent to her father, Mr. B. McFarlane. Mrs. J. Williams also thanked them for a card sent to Donnie when he was in hospital.

Mrs. B. Cook read appreciation cards from Mr. and Mrs. R. McFarlane and Mrs. Stan McDonald. Several summer soldiers were turned in.

The secretary read the month's report.

A turkey dinner is planned for November 23 at Mrs. A. McKenzie's home.

Next meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. W. Houston with Mrs. A. McKenzie for the devotional and Mrs. B. Cook and Mrs. W. Houston for the program.

Mrs. S. Fitzgerald closed the meeting.

Mrs. H. Fitzgerald thanked the hostess for the delicious lunch, and Mrs. J. Williams thanked her for hospitality.

Vice-President Nixon Wife Are Heartbroken Over First Defeat in 14 Years of Politics

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vice-President Richard Nixon, smiling through bitter disappointment, went to bed today apparently feeling he had lost his battle for the presidency to Senator John Kennedy.

With his wife Pat sobbing heartbreakingly at his side, Republican Nixon kept before about 1,000 campaign workers shortly after midnight PST and said:

"If the present trend continues, Senator Kennedy will be the next President of the United States.

"At millions watched the dramatic spectacle on television and radio, Nixon added:

"I want Senator Kennedy to know—and I want all of you to know—that I intend, personally, if this trend does continue, and he does become our next president, he will have my wholehearted support. . . ."

My congratulations to Senator Kennedy will be the first I've wished a President of the United States.

As millions watched the dramatic spectacle on television and radio, Nixon added:

"I want Senator Kennedy to know—and I want all of you to know—that I intend, personally, if this trend does continue, and he does become our next president, he will have my wholehearted support. . . ."

My congratulations to Senator Kennedy will be the first I've wished a President of the United States.

Mrs. Nixon gave some indication but she felt the race was lost.

While her husband conferred with aides before making his statement to the nation of defeat in the November Hotel, Mrs. Nixon suddenly burst through the door and sobbed out to the secret service men who had been assigned to the vice-president during the campaign.

"I love you all," she said, and then added with a smile:

back her tears. The spectacle of the teaching Nixons.

Ever-one who heard her had a feeling that the first time she met the vice-president had decided right then.

A few moments later the Nixons walked arm in arm down the long flight of stairs in the Biltmore Victory Celebration Room.

Nixon's face was set in that which sounded as though Nixon had decided to concede defeat, though probably few in the room felt the vice-president still had a chance to win the presidency.

"We want Nixon . . . you've got to get Nixon," the crowd chanted.

Meanwhile, Pat fought to hold back her tears. he spectacle of the usually poised veteran of political campaigns and battling control was poignant.

Nixon's campaign has been seemed on the verge of his first defeat in 14 years of political life—first as a member of the House, then as a senator and finally as vice-president in the administration of the United States.

Sidelights On Election

NEW YORK (AP) — Commentator Edward R. Murrow was a striking Tuesday with pneumonia and was unable to participate in the Columbia Broadcasting System's election night coverage.

MONTEBELLO, Calif. (AP)— Voters and election board members found the polling place for precinct 13 closed Tuesday morning and there was no answer to the knocking at the door.

Police were called to the house and finally decided to break in with a crowbar.

Sitting in a chair in the front room, dead, was the election board in a precinct, Mrs. Ruth Sotoul, 70. The polling place was her home.

The polling place was moved next door.

WASHINGTON (CP)—The only community in the United States that couldn't participate in Tuesday's presidential election was Washington itself, a federal district without representation in Congress. The capital is governed by a board of district commissioners appointed by Congress. The district itself has about 760,000 residents.

PORTSMOUTH, N.J. (AP)— Senator Kennedy Tuesday night carried this seacoast city, which has backed the winning presidential candidate for the last 65 years.

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP)—About 150 persons were arrested here Tuesday as they marched into the courthouse singing and prayed carrying signs protesting what they said was voter discrimination in nearby counties.

LONDON (AP) — Moscow Radio told its home service listeners today a victory for Eisenhower administration had suffered a "crushing political defeat" in the U.S. presidential election.

An early morning Soviet news broadcast quoted the New York Herald Tribune as saying Senator John Kennedy had been elected president of the United States.

Actually Electoral College Will Choose the President

NEW YORK (CP) — Strictly speaking, American voters cast ballots Tuesday for Dwight D. Eisenhower and Richard Nixon or John Kennedy, but for a college of electors who theoretically will choose the next president of the United States.

In some states, the ballots on voting machines list only the names of Kennedy and Nixon and their vice-presidential partners. Lyndon Johnson and Henry Cabot Lodge. In others, only the names of the electors appeared. In most states, however, the list included both sets of names.

As a practical matter, the outcome of Tuesday's voting has decided the matter for the Electoral College. In each state where Nixon or Kennedy had a majority of the popular vote, the electors are bound to follow this lead.

MAY WITHHOLD VOTE

There is a chance, however, that in some southern states where Kennedy was expected to be successful, a few electoral college voters might withhold their support. This happened in the last election when one Alabaman member of the electoral college refused to give his vote to Adlai Stevenson, the unsuccessful Democratic candidate, although the state went to Stevenson a majority of its popular vote.

The electoral college has its roots in the republic's earliest days and seems to be safe from reform despite criticism of the system.

The republic's founders were concerned with protecting the rights of smaller states. They worked out a system of weighted voting so that each state would have electors for each of its representatives and one for each member of the House of Representatives where seats are distributed on a population basis. The present college has 537 members.

VOTE DEC. 19

On Dec. 19, the electoral colleges members will gather in the various state capitals to cast their votes for a president. These votes are then sent to the U.S. Senate.

The senate's presiding officer, the vice-president, opens the electoral college ballots and has them counted in the presence of Congress Jan. 6.

President Eisenhower continues in office until Jan. 20, inauguration day of the new president.

Jet Pilot Stays With Plane Until Crash

CHATHAM, N.B. (CP) — "I couldn't bail out . . . I was a disabled right at Newcastle."

With these tense words, Flying Officer Ken Greenaway explained why he brought the limping F-86 Sabre jet aircraft down for a crash landing at the RCAF base here Monday night.

The plane crashed and burned on the runway as the pilot scrambled to safety.

The dark-haired, 33-year-old Ottawa native was flown to Montreal Tuesday for treatment of a fractured vertebrae.

Wilmington, Del., is the RCAF's crack jet precision squad since it was formed two years ago. It was selected to return to the airways later this year when the industry is not considered serious.

He told air force officials he decided against bailing out because he was over a populated area when his craft developed engine trouble, while on a routine flight to Goose Bay. Base officials said if he had balled out, the plane would likely have crashed in the city of Newcastle, N.B., a community of 6,000 persons.

The landing was complicated by the failure of the landing gear and the plane skidded along the runway before burning into flames and just as he pilot leaped out.

Wing Cmdr. H. C. Lett, officer commanding training operations at the base, a witness to the landing, said:

"I'm very proud of him. His action has probably saved what could have been a major accident.

Election Climate Much Better Than in 1956

NEW YORK (CP) — The last election for a United States president in America was conducted in a climate of crisis.

While 1960 could hardly be called a quiet year in international relations, there was little resemblance to the momentous events of four years ago.

Shortly before the presidential voting began in 1956, the Queen opened a session of the British Parliament. The speech from the throne, written by Prime Minister Anthony Eden's government, called for world-wide cooperation to help settle the Suez Canal crisis which threatened to end in a third world war.

The night before, Russia had raised the now-familiar threat of rocket retaliation against Britain and France if they did not move out of Egypt.

SOLIDS INTO HUNGARY

Two days before, Soviet tanks and troops pushed into Hungary to quell the cold war terror an uprising against the Communist government.

While Americans were still sleeping on that election day, Ambassador Hotel, Mrs. Nixon arose at Port Said while French soldiers guarded her. A secret service men who had been assigned to the vice-president also left the campaign.

"I love you all," she said, and then added with a smile:

Trans-Continent Train Likely To Disappear

OTTAWA (CP) — Public opinion has largely accepted the idea of flying across Canada instead of travelling by a trans-continental train, CPR Vice - President R. A. Emerson said Tuesday.

He made the statement to the MacPherson royal commission on transportation during cross-examination by Mr. Frawley, Alberta spokesman at the commission's public hearings.

"I think we recognize in time to come the inevitability of the situation under which a service like that (transcontinental trains) will perhaps no longer be available," said Mr. Emerson.

Mr. Frawley replied:

"There is nothing inevitable about it—if you had the same idea of government assistance to keep the passenger trains running as you have to keep the grain moving."

Replied Mr. Emerson:

"Of course, government assistance will do anything but we do not ask for and do not advocate government assistance to simply maintain a service which is no longer required."

Mr. Frawley revolved around the CPR's proposal for a subsidy on its export grain traffic, but the reference was to CPR testimony on its passenger or branch line operations. The CPR says it has managerial freedom to correct the passenger and branch line troubles, but the grain problem is wrapped up in a federal statute that can be changed only at the level of freight rates.

Mr. Frawley contended that public opinion has not yet fully expressed itself on the CPR's plans to scrap its older passenger equipment and concentrate on inter-city runs.

Sen. Kennedy Went to Bed Early This Morning Not Knowing Who Won Election

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — Senator John Kennedy is known as the he is the president-elect, his wife, secretary said today. Pierre Salinger said the senator was told by a campaign aide that he had carried California and therefore has won the election.

The word was given to Kennedy shortly after he awoke at 8:30 a.m. today, Salinger said.

He said Kennedy would not have anything to say, however, until he hears from Vice-President Richard Nixon.

Salinger said he understood from a statement made by Nixon's press secretary, Herbert Klein, in Los Angeles, that Nixon would not have anything to say until noon.

Therefore, Salinger said, he doubted that Kennedy will have anything to say before noon.

California has 32 electoral votes which, if he won, would give Kennedy 293. It takes 269 to win.

Salinger joshed that he knew that Kennedy had "made it" when he found secret service agents at the senator's home today.

Kennedy went to bed at 3:50 a.m. today, Salinger said, after he was president-elect—and slept until 9:30, Salinger told reporters.

Kennedy's announcement that he had gone to bed came moments after he heard Vice-President Richard Nixon, his Republican telecast from Los Angeles, that "if the present trend continues" the Massachusetts Democrat will be elected.

Earlier, shortly before that, The Associated Press returns showed Kennedy leading in 23 states with 332 electoral votes. Nixon had been arranged in the Suez Canal area, a nine-point lead in 12 states with 191 votes.

It takes 269 Electoral College votes to win the presidency.

Press Secretary Pierre Salinger issued a statement from headquarters, about a mile from Kennedy's home, that Nixon had told Kennedy said he was going to bed.

The press secretary said Kennedy would have no comment on the election before 10 a.m.

Asked if he thought Kennedy had won the election, Salinger said: "I think we'll just have to wait. It would be inappropriate for me or anyone else to say that. Only the senator can say it."

Reporters asked whether Kennedy was "hopeful" of victory when he went to bed.

"The senator has always been hopeful," Salinger said, "and I think he went to bed hopeful."

Kennedy's advisers said they considered that the senator had won the election. However, the Democratic presidential candidate refused to claim it.

Nixon all but conceded Kennedy's aides felt that he had all but won. Yet, the traditional telegram of congratulations from Nixon was not the customary victory statement from the winning party, nor forthcoming until both men announced that they were going to bed.

It was an unusual situation.

It came—not as a climax, but by an anti-climax—in a big night of surprises, seesaw battle and suspense waiting at Kennedy's headquarters.

The senator spent the early hours of Tuesday morning with his wife, Jacqueline, in their rambling home at Hyannis Port, a rambling, grey-shingled old house looking out on Nantucket Sound.

Kennedy took it easy, wearing slacks and a sports jacket.

Across the wide lawn from his home lived Joseph Kennedy, one of his brother Robert, who acted as his campaign manager. Five miles away lived Edward, who had won 30 telephones and a battery of radio transmitters to bring him returns, analysis and comment from all over the country.

Early in the evening, what appeared to be an election pattern began to emerge.

By 9 p.m. the returns came in from Connecticut and Kennedy had won a whopping victory there.

"Fantastic," said the senator. One of his sisters, Mrs. Eunice Shriver, said he was "jumping with joy."

Court Is Told Woman's Assets Misappropriated

STRATFORD (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court judge was told Tuesday a Meaford solicitor misappropriated the assets of a woman relative who died there in 1940.

Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly heard the allegations in a civil action against Archibald T. Young, accused of misappropriating the assets of Mrs. Emma Hamilton, formerly of Lincoln Park, Mich.

Lawyer Chesler Misener, acting for other relatives who are the plaintiffs, said that Mrs. Hamilton let Young handle her affairs after moving to Stratford in 1927.

Her brother, William Young of Stratford, one of the plaintiffs, told the court that none of the beneficiaries received any part of Mrs. Hamilton's estate.

Mr. Misener told the court that he understood the defendant was an agreement alleged to have been made between Mrs. Hamilton and Young whereby all her assets became his in return for handling her affairs before her death.

William Young testified that after he brought Mrs. Hamilton to Stratford in 1927, she was partially paralyzed and unable to read or talk. The defendant is William Young's nephew.

Mrs. Hamilton died after being looked after by Norman Young, Anne Harrison and Jessie Young, all of Stratford, and Eva Gilbraith of Southampton.

The case is continuing.

Says Canadian Ships Bringing Food to Cuba

HAVANA (Reuters) — Premier Fidel Castro declared Tuesday night that Canadian ships were bringing to Cuba petroleum products and other food from Russia, Czechoslovakia, Communist China and Japan. He apparently did not elaborate on the Canadian angle.

At the same time, Ariel H. Pinto, acting import attache of Cuba's Bank of Foreign Trade, said liquorice received from European merchants proved free trade embargo imposed on Cuba by the United States is "unjust."

Pinot said he has received several inquiries from British manufacturers and agents anxious to trade with Cuba following the embargo placed on the Communist Cuban embassies and consulates in European cities have been "flooded with similar inquiries," he said.

But the British Embassy here was understood to have noticed no significant rise in the commercial inquiries from British firms and has received no instructions from the Cuban Foreign Trade Bank.

OIL FOOD SIDESTEPPED

Pinot referred to a higher supply of liquorice in the wake of reports of a projected Anglo-Canadian pool to market Cuban sugar.

(Canadian authorities in Ottawa said Monday the Canadian government was not involved in any discussions that might have nothing of the existence of any such plan by private Canadian trading houses.

Castro told a crowd of several hundred thousand members, including a delegation of Chinese Communists, gathered in Havana's Revolution Plaza that Cuba "cannot succeed with any form of lithing attack" on Cuba. He repeated that Cuba has been converted into a principal point of attack by the United States and claimed that the "idea had spread of starving a revolution before the election with a view to influencing the result."

The fact that nothing had happened Castro attributed to Cuba's demonstration of strength to the United Nations and Cuban solidarity.

Lack of Overseas Sales Causes Worst Grain Pileup, Ships in Montreal's History

MONTREAL (CP)—A lack of overseas sales has caused the worst pileup of grain and "grain-carrying ships in Montreal's history and officials don't know what to do about it.

The situation is this:

Montreal has four grain elevators, all filled to capacity with 17,000,000 bushels. Anchored in Montreal harbor and downstream are 21 grain ships, filled with another 3,700,000 bushels—bushels that officials don't know what to do with.

The ships cannot be unloaded until space is made in the elevators. This has to be done by shipping the stored grain to overseas markets. Domestic markets also can absorb it.

But at the rate of present shipments from the elevators, it will take several weeks to empty the 21 waiting vessels. Such a delay would hold up the loaded fleet of vessels in Montreal until after the winter freeze-up and the closing of the St. Lawrence Seaway, scheduled for Nov. 30.

Officials say just as serious as the delay is the fact that the grain-carrying ships are waiting to be loaded.

A strike by grain handlers on the west coast could make wheat board officials look more kindly on a Montreal as a possible shipping centre for more grain.

The Montreal Harbor Board is doing all it can to help.

Shipping companies are anxious to get their vessels unloaded and back to the Great Lakes and their home ports for the winter. Some may even be used for wicker storage of grain. Closing of the seaway would prevent this.

The National Harbors Board has established a committee and is doing all it can to help.

"But there's no miracle solution," said one official. "We just have to keep unloading the elevators and then unloading the ships.

"The truth is we just aren't getting the ocean ships we need to get grain moving from the elevators. If we had them we could clear 1,500,000 bushels a day from the elevators, and empty the lake boats at the same rate.

"But we haven't got the ocean ships. All you want to know anyway, the simple, basic reason is that it's a question of lack of sales in the export market."

In the last two days, about 300,000 bushels have been shipped from the elevators — and replaced immediately by an equal amount from the waiting lake vessels.

Two other dangers could throw the present critical situation into chaos. One is a threatened call by the Seaferers International Union (ind.) involving two major Montreal grain hoist, bunkering unloading operations at the elevators.

The walkout has been attempted by the union between the SIU and the National Association of Marine Engineers (CLC) over jurisdictional rights.

The unloading of one ship was temporarily held up and a shipping official said the dispute could tie up the unloading piers if threats that cannot be handled.

A strike by grain handlers on the west coast could make wheat board officials look more kindly on Montreal as a possible shipping centre for more grain.

The Montreal Harbor Board is doing all it can to help.

The National Harbors Board has established a committee and is doing all it can to help.

Civil Defence College Seeks To Erase Canadian Defeatism

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP) — Defeatism on the part of Canadians in the event of nuclear war is the main target of instructors at the Civil Defence College here this week.

Some 100 Ontario mayors and reeves attending a course on national survival were told Tuesday that the chief aim of the college is to combat an attack belief Canada, there would be millions of people left alive.

"A high proportion of our people have the attitude that they can recover ever from the blows of a full - out nuclear attack," Jack Wallace, assistant director of the Emergency Measures Organization.

It is the responsibility of civic officials to minimize casualties in the event of nuclear bombs striking Windsor, Toronto, Niagara Falls, Ottawa or any other city of an 1,300,000 with a quarter of that number dead.

"But thousands of others would not be killed," Mr. Wallace said.

Experts Say Economic Activity Will Be Generally Substained

OTTAWA (CP) — Government experts have forecast that economic activity in Canada will be generally sustained at present levels well into 1961.

This is in line with world trade, the report notes that Canadian exports have expanded to record proportions since 1952.

"World demand has reached and remains at a relatively high level. Canadian exports may thus be expected to remain at a considerable degree of stability."

City Manager To Be Appointed At Peterborough

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—City council Tuesday approved appointment of a city administrator to improve the efficiency of city government.

The decision, based on a report by a firm of Toronto management consultants, will reduce the number of council committees from two from 10.

The administrator will supervise policy set by council and will coordinate long- and short-range plans for expansion of city services.

No one has yet been appointed to the post, which goes into effect next Jan. 1.

The consultants found Peterborough's city government comparable in efficiency to cities of comparable size, but blamed any inefficiencies on an "antiquated cumbersome" council - committee system.

It was just over 100 years ago, in 1859, that the first tariffs were introduced for protection of Canada's growing industry. And the tariff we have today is the basis of our numbers game.

Taking all four figures each time, only one of each, and no other figures at all, make up expressions for basic surveyed numbers from one up.

Then there's arithmetical signs may be used, but not factorial or summation. The simple plus is allowed, of course.

For example, you can express 4 as 18 – 9 – 5.

The limit without a break is probably 180 this time, but I shall be interested to see any lists which reach even as far as the nineties.

Yesterday's Answer: GOLD is 5323.

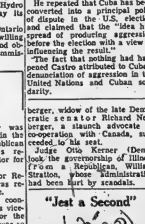
Orval E. Faubus (Dem.) who was re-elected for a fourth term as governor of Arkansas. Faubus achieved worldwide prominence in 1956 with his partly-successful attempt to prevent racial mixing at schools in Little Rock, the state capital.

John Sherman Cooper (Rep.), former ambassador to India, was re-elected a senator from Kentucky.

While Senator Kennedy was sweeping his home state in the presidential race, Republican Leverett Saltonstall was re-elected to the senate from Massachusetts.



Styles Bridges, the senior Republican in the Senate, was returned in New Hampshire.

Estes Kefauver of the cowskin cap, Adlai Stevenson's vice-presidential partner in the Democratic party in 1956, was so far ahead in Tennessee that his victory was conceded early.

Lyndon Johnson was re-elected to the senate by a huge majority in Texas. Johnson would resign his senate seat on becoming vice-president-elect.

Hubert Humphrey, once Kefauver's strongest rival for the Democratic presidential nomination, retained his senate seat against the challenge of Republican P. Kenneth Peterson.

D.S. Harkness, New Defence Chief, Won George Medal For Bravery in Second War

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — HMS Devis was sailing from England to Sicily with men and equipment for the start of the Sicilian campaign in 1943.

Without warning, a torpedo struck the Devis just aft of midship on the afternoon of July 5. Fire broke out. The fore part of the ship was cut off. Ammunition exploded. Came the orders: "Abandon ship!"

A Canadian major was in command of troops aboard Devis. A number of men were trapped on the mess deck. He immediately went to the scene, organized a rope party and pulled them from the flames to the main deck.

Two men still had two more, who had become hysterical, were overboard. The major went off with another soldier and reached the two men who were clinging to a raft that had been launched by the explosion. They pried loose the clutching fingers of the men who had refused to leave, threw their bodily into the sea, then dived overboard. All were saved. The Devis sank three minutes later.

The major, later lieutenant-colonel, was Hon. Douglas Scott Harkness, Canada's new defence minister. He was awarded the George Medal for his courageous act.

Today Mr. Harkness bosses the biggest and heaviest-spending department in government. It has 158,500 employees—19,000 are licensed and 49,500 civilians—and for 1960 budget is $1,596,000,000 or about one-quarter of all federal expenditures.

Mr. Harkness—in his new job he doesn't care whether he is called "minister" or "colonel"—was born in Toronto March, 29, 1906, and graduated from the University of Alberta with a BA.

He joined the militia in 1926 and was appointed to a commission in the 20th Field Brigade Canadian Artillery at Red Deer, Alta., in 1928.

"Some of those who made fun of the militia in those days were the first to be waving flags in 1939," he recalled in an interview in his office at defence headquarters shortly after being appointed to his new portfolio.

Mr. Harkness bought a ranch near Red Deer. To help keep it going he taught history in high school.

Mobilized in the regular army in 1939, he went overseas in 1940 with the 3rd Anti-Tank Regiment. He became second-in-command of the 1st Anti - Tank Regiment in 1942 and in 1944-45 commanded the 5th Anti-Tank Regiment. He served in the Sicilian, Italian and Northwest European campaigns without suffering a wound.

He was asked whether he had some left-over complaints from the Second World War he would like to remedy now.

"The only real complaints were about the food. I can eat anything so consequently I was happy in the service."

Mr. Harkness was nominated Progressive Conservative candidate in Calgary East while he was participating in the final battles west of the Rhine. He won election in 1945 and 1949 in Calgary East and, after the 1952 seat redistribution, in 1953, 1957 and 1958 in Calgary North.

He was appointed northern affairs minister when Prime Minister Diefenbaker formed his first cabinet June 21, 1957. He was also named acting agriculture minister at the same time but took on that portfolio full time Aug. 7, 1957, giving up northern affairs later the same month.

On Oct. 11, 1960, he succeeded George Pearkes, VC, as defence minister.

Mr. Harkness realizes he's in for a busy time in one of the most sensitive and difficult portfolios. He is at defence headquarters about 8:45 a.m. each day and seldom leaves before 6 p.m., taking a full briefcase of work home with him.

"I used to read biography but I've had little time to read anything but official papers, since I entered the government."

Married and the father of one son, he lives in an apartment but has a summer cottage in the nearby Gatineau Hills and plays golf on the nine-hole Laramee course.

"I play an erratic game, anywhere from 44 to 65 for nine holes, but I never get mad at the game."

He's a cigaret - smoker and there was a dark cloud over his face when he took over from Mr. Pearkes who gave up smoking a year ago. At parties he takes his rye with soda. He plays a good game of bridge and even better poker.

DEFENCE MINISTER — Douglas Harkness, as Canada's new defence minister, heads the biggest and heaviest-spending department in government. He had served as northern affairs minister and agriculture minister in Prime Minister Diefenbaker's cabinet before being appointed defence minister Oct. 11, 1960. Born in Toronto in 1903 Mr. Harkness has represented Calgary constituents in the Commons since 1945. (CP Photo).

Wallbridge

WALLBRIDGE — Quite a number attended church service on Sunday morning. The Rev. T. F. Townsend occupied the pulpit while the minister, the Rev. and Mr. McMullen, is still a patient in Belleville General Hospital. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

The Wallbridge W.A. held its monthly pot-luck dinner Thursday with a good attendance. After the dinner hour the W.M.S. meeting was held first and the W.A. meeting later. Plans were made for the Wallbridge bazaar to be held on November 30.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cole and children, Billie and Jackie, were weekend guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Latta, of Gananoque.

Last week guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris were Mr. and Mrs. Casey Mastin of Bird's Creek, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Pound and children, Dale and Cheryl, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dovey of Rosemont.

The euchre party held in the Orange hall on Saturday night was well attended.

Quite a few ladies attended the Stone Church bazaar on Tuesday afternoon and also Foxboro bazaar on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Acker of Brantford were callers on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Spencer.

ELECTED PRESIDENT — Canadian publisher Roy Thomson wears the chain of office following his recent election in London, England, as president of the Printers' Pension Corporation, an organization to help needy printers and their dependents. Mr. Thomson is the first Canadian to ever head the corporation whose former presidents include kings, prime ministers and well-known authors such as Charles Dickens. Seated at left is retiring president Sir Guy Harrison, a sixth-generation master printer. (CP Wirephoto).

Visitors to Great Salt Lake In Utah Now Reported Few

By JOHN V. HURST

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Great Salt Lake — North America's unique inland sea — once drew visitors by the hundreds of thousands every year.

Now those who come in frolic in water so buoyant the human body floats like a cork have dwindled spectacularly. Most are tourists passing through on their way west. Many depart, with the conviction the lake is one of the country's most mishandled tourist attractions.

What's happened?

Stores write the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce to spell out their disappointment. They complain of a sometimes noxious odor and a vista of litter, desolation and decay.

CESSPOOL

The lake is, in the published words of one state engineer, "the cesspool of northern Utah." Its dumping ground for waste — including sewage—from much of the state's heaviest populated area.

But if North America's dead sea is dying, there are many who would save it. The pollution problem is being worked on and many northern Utah communities have completed sewage treatment plants.

The chief trouble plaguing the Great Salt Lake is its loss of water. More is evaporated each year than is added by the streams which empty into it. Part of this is man's fault: He's steadily stopped much of the streamwater for irrigation and drinking use, before it can reach the lake.

The loss of water is the main reason why Saltair, a once-lively spa at the lake's southern end, stands abandoned now and in decay.

160,000 A SEASON

In the early decades of this century, Saltair alone averaged 160,000 visitors a season. It's easy to see why they came. The lake's salty water is amazingly buoyant. It is possible to float in a sitting position; it's impossible to sink in it. Swimming in such brine is an odd, exhilarating experience.

The water contains approximately 27 per cent salt. That's about as much salt as it's possible for water to hold — about eight times the salt in the ocean.

But today, water no longer laps beneath Saltair's boardwalk and great, Moorish dance hippodrome. The pilings are salt-caked and dry and the shoreline is about half a mile away — in the other direction.

Northport

NORTHPORT — Anniversary service was held at Northport United Church on Sunday evening. The Rev. George Dyson, who was minister at Demorestville for several years, was guest speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kerr and family of Rockwood were overnight guests of Mr. Kerr's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Kerr, on Thursday.

A number of local men went north, deer hunting, on Saturday.

Sct. Walter Ruggles of Montreal, who is taking a nine-week course in Kingston, spent a recent weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Barker and Mrs. D. Foshard.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith were dinner guests on a recent Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gunn, R.R. 3, Bellleville, and attended service in the afternoon.

Mrs. J. W. Whittaker spent a recent week with friends in Hamilton.

Mrs. Howard Smith and daughters Lois and Corinne, were dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith.

The turkey supper held in the church hall on Wednesday evening was well attended and everyone enjoyed the supper, served by the ladies of the Northport community.

Mrs. George Baldwin spent a few days in Ottawa last week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Painsetter, Picton; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Elroy and family, Bellleville; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kerr, Dundela and Kathy, Big Island; Mr. and rs. E. B. Kerr, Solmesville; Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith, Lois and Corinne, and the Misses Ruth Wallbridge and Marie Foster, were Friday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Foster.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Elroy and family, Bellleville, spent Friday night with Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Smith.

The November meeting of the Northport W.A. will be held in the church hall on November 15. There will be a bazaar and social get together. Members are reminded to come and bring their gifts for the bazaar table.

Several from this vicinity attended the youth rally at the First Pentecostal Church, Picton, on Monday evening.

Say Canadian Population To Reach 18 Million Thursday But Experts Won't Guess Time

By DON HANRIGHT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The population of Canada is expected to reach 18,000,000 Thursday, Nov. 10.

But government statisticians won't make this estimate decline to hazard a guess as to what time of day this mark will be attained.

If the estimate is correct, it will have taken Canada two years and seven months to add the latest 1,000,000 to its total.

This is well short of the fastest growth on record and reflects immigration restrictions imposed because of unemployment, and a slight decline in the birth rate, which has generally been dipping since 1951.

PREVIOUS GAINS

Fastest gain between millions was Canada's as fast two years, from 16,000,000 in mid-April of 1956 to 17,000,000 in April, 1958. Slowest growth was the nearly eight years it took to climb from 11,000,000 in December, 1948, to 12,000,000 in mid-November, 1944.

The Nov. 10 estimate for the 18,000,000 plateau is an unofficial one, made by the bureau of statistics. And it's a rough guess only—strictly statistics for kicks.

It was done this way:

On Sept. 1 Canada's population was estimated officially by the bureau at 17,930,000, compared with 17,000,000 on June 1, 1956, and 16,000,000 in mid-April of 1956.

The gain of 930,000 people over the two years equals 1,041 a day. Assuming that the 17,000,000 mark was reached at midnight Aug. 31, how long would it take to get the 70,000 people required to push the total to 18,000,000?

The bureau works it out to Nov. 7. Actually it carried to the extreme, it would be about 8:40 a.m. EST on Tuesday, Nov. 8.

MANY FACTORS

But there are complicating factors. Biggest of these is a drop in the number of births during the first nine months of 1960 to 358,936, down more than 10,000 from 369,771 in the comparable 1959 period.

Although no figures are available for periods since Sept. 1, officials here believe the decline has continued since then. This is enough to throw that over-all daily increase rate—1,041 people a day—out of kilter.

Hence the bureau's estimate of the Nov. 10 arrival for Canada's resident No. 18,000,000, whether immigrant or baby.

There will be no way of knowing until well after Nov. 10 whether the estimate is correct. There are no daily statistics on births, deaths, immigration and emigration. The next official estimate of population will be made June 1, 1961. The decennial census will be taken next June.

NET INTAKE

It is estimated that the latest 1,000,000 addition will include 175,000, in net immigration—the number of persons coming into Canada minus those who left—plus a natural increase of 825,000—the total by which births exceed deaths.

Comparable figures for the previous 1,000,000 were not available. But the proportion of immigration would have been higher. In 1957, for example, 282,000 immigrants arrived. This year the total is expected to be about 170,000.

Offsetting the immigration decline, emigration to the United States from Canada has reached considerable proportions in certain past periods. Canada does not keep official emigration statistics but U.S. figures showed an intake of 46,814 from Canada in 1957, the largest in a steady increase from 34,788 in 1948. This total of U.S. intake from Canada declined to 45,149 in 1958, and to 34,589 in 1959.

PAST PACE

Despite the fluctuating immigration, Canada has one of the fastest population growths on percentage terms—of any of the bigger, industrialized nations of the world.

The Sept. 1 population estimate of 17,930,000 represented a rise of 2.3 per cent from a year earlier. Comparative figures for other countries are available only for the 1953-58 period, when Canada's gain in population was 1.8 per cent.

This compares with 1.7 per cent for the United States, 0.4 for the United Kingdom, 1.3 for Western Germany, 1.4 for France, 0.5 for Italy, 1.1 for Japan and 1.3 for West Germany.

Several of the smaller, heavily-populated countries exceeded Canada's growth rate—especially those in South America. Mexico's gain in the 1953-58 period was 2.9 per cent, and Costa Rica's was four per cent. The Bahamas grew by 9.4 per cent.

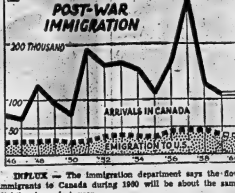
In addition, Canada has one of the highest rates of natural increase—the difference between births and deaths. In 1958—latest year for which comparative figures are available—Canada had a birth rate of 27.6 per 1,000 of population and a death rate of 7.9, producing a net natural increase of 19.7 persons for each 1,000.

The natural increase in the U.S. was substantially lower, at 16.8 per 1,000. For England and Wales it was 12.7, France 8.0, Japan 10.5, India 18.6, Australia 14.1 and Russia 17.4.

HIGH BIRTH RATE

Contributing to Canada's high rate has been a generally high level of births—regardless of the recent declines—combined with what officials here describe as one of the world's lowest death rates.

The Canadian birth rate of 27.6 per 1,000 in 1958 was dropped slightly to 27.5 last year as compared with 25.3, the U.S. at 24.3, England and Wales at 16.4, Japan at 17.9 and France at 18.1. The rate in India was 29.9.



Several other countries have much higher birth rates. For example, it was 44.8 in Mexico in 1958, 36.1 in Ceylon and 37.6 in Peru.

Contributing to the low Canadian death rate, officials here say, is the high standard of Canadian hospital care and the large extent of hospital accommodation, plus extensive prenatal care.

This shows up especially in the rate of infant mortality—children. In 1953, for every 1,000 children born in age of 5 there were 25.8 deaths. By 1958 this had dropped to 7.6.

The result by mid-1958 was a rate of 7.9 deaths for each 1,000 of population, compared with 9.1 in Russian figure of 7.8 and the Netherlands' 7.3.

Most other countries have a higher death rate in 1958. It was 11.7 in England and Wales, 9.5 in the U.S., 11.9 in India, 12.2 in Mexico, 8.5 in Australia, 11.2 in France, 10.3 in Peru and 10.1 in Ceylon.

INFLUX — The immigration department says the flow of immigrants to Canada during 1960 will be about the same or slightly above last year.

Immigration has been an important aid to the growth of Canada's population, expected to reach 18,000,000 this month.

Graph shows immigration since 1946 and emigration to the United States. Total Canadian emigration figures are not available.

The post-war peak of 282,164 immigrants in 1957—caused largely by a sharp increase in British arrivals and Canada's decision to admit Hungarian refugees in large numbers—was topped only by the 400,810 who arrived in 1913. (CP Photo).

PREVOST H.I.

QUEBEC (CP)—Yves Prevost, interim leader of the Union Nationale party, is in hospital suffering from high blood pressure. It was announced Tuesday. The 52-year-old Quebec City lawyer who was to lead the Union Nationale Opposition in the legislature during the session opening Thursday will be replaced by Antonio Talbot, 59, lawyer from Chicoutimi.

SHOW IS WIDE OPEN

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's national art show, starting next May 19, will be "wide open" to all Canadian residents for the first time in its 30-year-history, the National Gallery announced Tuesday. Previously the show, held every two years, was restricted to invited contributors. For the 1961 exhibit, anyone who paints or draws can submit two works.

Restaurant Run For People On Special Diet

BUDAPEST (AP) — Hungary has opened a smart and shiny restaurant for people who need a special diet.

The Lido, on Budapest's widest boulevard, offers the advisory services of a doctor, an attractive 28-year-old brunette. She sits in a screened-off corner of the restaurant.

A nurse weighs what people are eating: "That woman over there is a genuine liver case. If I catch her ordering cream, I shall have oranges sent to her table instead."

The restaurant is becoming so popular it is difficult to keep out the healthy. A notice says: "If you are well, please do not frequent this restaurant."

The Lido daily offers five different menus available for people with diabetes, stomach ailments, gall and liver complaints, heart and circulatory diseases.

Here are typical menus from the lunchtime bill of fare:

Diabetes — clear broth, beefsteak with mushrooms and rice, baked apple.

Heart ailments — Sorrel cream soup, fried veal cutlet with potatoes cooked in raw cream, ham noodles.

Sword Dancer Out of Big Race

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers planned to make another pitch today to hire Casey Stengel as manager.

A two-man delegation is flying to the deposed New York Yankee manager's Glendale, Calif., home, armed with facts and figures about the Tigers. The information is designed to interest Stengel in the vacant job.

Rick Ferrell, aide to Tiger president John Fetzer, and Jimmy Campbell, a club vice-president, were making the trip to California at Stengel's request.

He has asked for a briefing on current Tiger material and on the prospects who'll be brought to spring training.

This will be the third huddle between the Tigers, left without a manager when Joe Gordon suddenly quit Oct. 3 and Stengel. Stengel was let loose shortly after the world series. He'd guided the Yankees to 10 pennants in 14 years. The Yankees said he is too old, at 70, to manage a club.

Ferrell started negotiations four days after the Yankees announced plans not to retain Stengel.

Stengel also is reported in line to become general manager and field manager of the American League's new Los Angeles entry.

Playoff Dates Problem

Eskimos Are Unhappy

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos are still unhappy about the scheduling of two of a possible three final playoff games in the Western Interprovincial Football Union against Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The first game will be here Saturday starting at 2:00 p.m. MST (4:05 p.m. EST) and has general manager Joy Ryan in an unhappy frame of mind as has the second game, in Winnipeg Monday at 8:30 p.m. CST (9:30 p.m. EST).

Eskimos have always tried to get out of playing any game in Edmonton on Saturday afternoon because many fans are working then and Ryan feels "it's going to cut down the gate quite appreciably."

The Eskimos are also unhappy about having to play their second engagement with only two days of rest and travelling in between. Eskimos asked that the second game be staged next Wednesday but this was found impractical due to television commitments with the CBC.

WEATHER LOOKS DARK

The weather outlook is not bright. The weather office says there is a danger of temperatures tumbling 15 degrees below the normal 30 degrees above zero. Snow is also a threat.

Ryan says there are no plans for placing a tarpaulin on the Clarke Stadium turf in the event of snow.

"We've had some unhappy results in using a tarp, and should it snow, we'll probably still go along with the city snow removal crews," he said.

Advised of the forecast, Edmonton coach Eagle Keys said he will make no changes in possible foot gear for his club until he gets to the stadium and knows just what the footing is like.

MAY CONTROL BALL CLUB

VANCOUVER (CP)—A group of Vancouver businessmen is prepared to assume control of the city's Pacific Coast Baseball League team if an appeal to shareholders does not pull the club out of debt, it was reported Tuesday. A spokesman for the group of businessmen said the syndicate has the $85,000 needed to wipe out current club debts.

Galt With West

Oakville Pulls Out

OAKVILLE (CP) — Oakville Oaks Tuesday became the fourth team to withdraw from the eastern division of the fledgling Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series.

Five teams started division play last month but only Galt Terriers remain. The Galt club said it will seek an interlocking schedule with the five-team western section.

Team manager Bud Corbett of the Oaks said the decision to pull out was made because of the earlier withdrawals by Whitby Merchants, Belleville McFarlands and Welland Warriors.

He said the Oaks could not operate in a two-team division. A hockey.

GOOD RUNNER

ST. HYACINTHE, Que., (CP) Basil Dumitru of Montreal won the St. Hyacinthe marathon in record time of two hours, 39 minutes, 45 seconds for the 26 miles, 385 yards. The event was organized by the veteran Canadian marathon runner, Gerard Cote.

Ken Gribbons To Play for Windsor, N.S.

WINDSOR, N.S. (CP) —Windsor Maple Leafs of the Nova Scotia Senior Hockey League announced Tuesday night they have signed 36-year-old forward Ken Gribbons for the 1960-61 season. Gribbons has played for Belleville McFarlands in the Ontario Hockey Association for two seasons.

Gross Appeal Turned Down By C.A.H.A.

TORONTO (CP) — Irwin Grobs of Windsor, suspended recently by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for playing without his release, has had his appeal turned down by the CAHA.

Grobs, who played for Windsor Bulldogs in the old Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, was offered a playing-coach job with Clinton Comets of the International Hockey League.

Bookies Favor Argos To Whip Ottawa

Agase Says He's Worried

TORONTO (CP)—Coach Lou Agase of Toronto Argonauts says he's worried about his squad's chances against Ottawa Saturday in the Big Four football finals opener.

It may be that Agase, who usually exudes confidence, just has pre-game fidgets. The oddsmakers have given Argos a Wi-point bulge in doing the Rough Riders in the first game of the home-and-home series.

Agase was basing his feeling on past performances.

"That club has caused us a lot of trouble. We've won only one game in Ottawa, and that was on opening night," he complained.

"Certainly I think we can win the series, but that first game should be a toss-up."

SIDE AIR-GROUND DUEL

The playing pattern of the series that will decide an eastern representative for the Nov. 26 Grey Cup game in Vancouver has been decided by the armchair strategists. Toronto will play in the air—Ottawa along the ground. Argos this season scored more points through the air than any team in the history of the loop. And Ottawa set a 3,000-yard rushing record, gaining and scoring more points along the ground than any team in history.

But ponder this: In last week's semi-final Ottawa had its runners and Montreal passing pivot Sam Etcheverry. What happened? Ottawa ran, but scored on passes and Sam scarcely passed at all.

It's still safe to assume, however, that Toronto will depend largely on the arm of quarterback Tobin Rote for the attack. And Ottawa will depend on rushing plays, though it won't be a big surprise to see Ron Lancaster heaving the ball.

Rote turned out for practice Tuesday, apparently recovered from his stomach influenza bug.

The game's experts figure a strong passing team with a good defence will beat a running team with equal good defence.

Score Was 9-1

Galt Whips Woodstock

GALT (CP)—Undefeated Galt Terriers, the lone survivor from the dismal Eastern division of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series, rolled to their fifth straight triumph here Tuesday night, blasting Woodstock Athletics of the western division 9-1. Terriers are expected to join the western grouping later in the week.

Ted Maki spearheaded a Galt attack which overwhelmed the Athletics. Maki, big defenceman who played with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchies last year, fired three goals and assisted on a fourth.

Terriers fired 48 shots at goalie Rod Dietrich. They led 3-0 after one period and 5-0 at the end of the second.

Terrier goalie Bost Hurley lost his shutout bid with little more than five minutes to play when defenceman Ray Falkowski poked home a loose puck on a power play effort. Hurley made 24 saves.

Galt's Bill Wylie - Bob McKnight - Butch Martin line dazzled the As with expert passing plays. Each scored once and added three assists.

Pete Kosewichuk, Gene Miller and Darryl Sly were the other Galt marksmen.

Western Hockey

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver Canucks suffered their fourth loss in five starts and Seattle Totems went down to defeat in their first invasion of Prairie cities in Western Hockey League action Tuesday night.

Victoria Cougars travelled to Vancouver to rim the Canucks 3-1. Calgary Stampeders downed the Totems 4-2.

The result left a four-way tie for second place among Winnipeg, Seattle, Victoria and Vancouver. Each team is 12 points two back of the league-leading Edmonton Flyers.

Calgary is a point farther back with 11.

Doug Macauley, Bill Saunders and Don McLeod scored for the hustling Cougars. Dave Duke scored the lone Vancouver goal.

At Calgary, Lou Jankowski fired the puck twice past masked goaltender Ken Wesley of Seattle. Wally Hergesheimer and Sid Finney scored the other marksmen for the Stamps. Gerry Leonard and Ed Stankiewicz tallied for Seattle.

Hawks Meet Leafs

NHL Top Spot Is At Stake Tonight

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

First place is at stake tonight as the 1960-61 National Hockey League season swings into its sixth week.

Chicago Black Hawks have a chance to take sole possession of the league leadership while Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings would move into a first-place tie if they win. The Black Hawks, one point out of first place, play the Maple Leafs, who are two points out, at Chicago. The Red Wings, tied with Toronto, meet the Rangers at New York.

Montreal Canadiens are currently in first place with 17 points but are idle tonight along with fifth-place Boston Bruins who have 12 points.

Detroit is the surprise team of the league at this stage of the season.

USES PLATOONS

The Red Wings have made good use of a two-goalie platoon system and have been able to get considerably milage out of most players.

Veteran centre Norm Ullman has played a big part in Detroit's success.

Ullman, in his sixth season in the NHL, will be shooting for a new club record tonight for points in consecutive games. He's had at least one point in Detroit's first 13 games, tying a record set during the 1956-57 season by Ted Lindsay.

Coach Sid Abel has rested veteran goalie Terry Sawchuk three times in favor of Hank Bassen, who played in the minors for several seasons before coming to Detroit.

"It's a club policy to carry two goalies this year, both fat, grey ones and games," said Abel.

Bassen has allowed only 12 goals in the three games he's played.

The Maple Leafs will have big, rugged and temperamental Eddie Shack in their lineup.

Shack, 23, one of Junior hockey's brightest prospects who failed to live up to expectations when he hit the NHL two seasons ago, was acquired from New York Monday in a player trade.

The Leafs appear unenthusiastic about Shack's professional record.

"I am just going to move him around and see how he fits in," said Punch Imlach, Leafs' manager-coach.

"He's a big, strong skater and he's tough. But he's still going to have to make his place on this team."

WARNS OF—POOR TURF

WINNIPEG (CP)—G. Sydney Haller, Canadian Football League commissioner, warned Winnipeg Enterprises the Western Interprovincial Football Union might refuse to allow games of the 1961 finals to be played in Winnipeg unless turf conditions are improved at the Winnipeg Stadium.

Browns Plum Top Passer In National

NEW YORK (AP) — Errol-ynn Milt Plum of Cleveland Browns threw his 99th pass of the season without an interception last Sunday and held his place as No. 1 passer in the National Football League. But teammate Jimmy Brown bounced back off New York Giants' defensive platoon too often and dropped from first to third in rushing.

Plum, who came into his own as quarterback this season, held the top spot for the third straight week in the NFL's six-point system of rating passers. In addition to his no - interception record, Plum has a 68.7 completion percentage, on 68 completions out of 99 attempts, and has an average gain of 10.86 yards a toss. He has gained a total of 1,075 yards and has passed for eight touchdowns.

Haidy Named Falcon Coach

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Gordon Haidy, veteran wing and leading scorer on Milwaukee Falcons hockey team, was named coach Tuesday, replacing Walt Pawlyshyn.

GeGeneral manager Jack Burnett said the switch was made in an effort to put the Falcons back on their tallspin in the International Hockey League. Pawlyshyn will remain on the team as a player.

Haidy, a native of Winnipeg, played amateur hockey in Windsor, Ont., before turning pro with Omaha of the old United States Hockey League in 1948. Pawlyshyn also once played amateur hockey in Windsor.

SET GOLD CUP SITE

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Race Jr., president of the International Golf Association, said Tuesday the ninth annual Canada Cup matches will be played June 1-4, 1961, at the Dorado Beach Golf Club, Dorado, Puerto Rico. The 1960 matches were held in Scotland with Sam Snead and Arnold Palmer winning for the United States.

More Trouble For Blair

CLINTON, N.Y. (AP)—Clinton Comets of the Eastern Hockey League charged Tuesday night that Dick Wray, their leading scorer the last two seasons, had skipped to the Ontario Hockey Association without obtaining a release from Clinton.

Wren Blair, Clinton general manager, said Wray had played for the Stratford, (Ont.) Indians last weekend. Wray has not been with Clinton this season.

Blair said he would file a complaint with the American Hockey Association and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

He said he would grant Wray a release provided the Canadian Association lifts a suspension imposed on Erwin Gross, Clinton's player - coach. Gross was suspended because he played for Clinton allegedly without obtaining a release from the Windsor Bulldogs.

REACH SEMI-FINALS

TOKYO (AP) — Australians Ashley Cooper and Lew Head Tuesday moved into the semi-final round of Japan's first pro tennis tournament. Cooper downed Pancho Segura of Ecuador 6-4, 13-11 and Head defeated Andres Gimeno of Spain 6-4, 7-5.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The McFarlanite may be hitting that long, long trail that leads to Pembroke, and points east, after all.

Cecil Duncan, secretary-registrar of the Ottawa District Hockey League and president of the Senior Interprovincial Hockey League, said today he had received verbal application from the Belleville club to play in the SIHL.

This league consists of two teams from Hull, Smith's Falls, Pembroke and Ottawa.

Duncan said Gordie Bell, McFarlands coach, made the request by phone and that the league will come to a decision when a formal application in writing is received later.

If Belleville is accepted into the Interprovincial League a few complications are bound to rise, it was stated. For one thing the Macs won't be allowed to play in the district playdowns, the simple reason being that they are not from that district.

That means, it was pointed out, that the Macs will have to play the Northern Ontario senior representative before meeting the Interprovincial champions. Travelling may present another problem to clubs from the Ottawa district as some of them are operating on slim budgets.

However, Duncan said the league will study all these problems thoroughly before announcing a decision at the next meeting.

The SIHL president said that Bell had told him that the Belleville club could not survive in a three-club division as the OHA requests, and the club wanted to compete in the Ottawa circuit instead.

Bell, highly critical of the reorganized OHA setup, to which the eastern division was confined from a three league, said Sammy Pollock of Hull, has assured Belleville of his support in the interprovincial application.

"Jar. H. J. McFarland has poured a lot of money into hockey," Bell said. "It would be suicide to play in the O.H.A. three-club, or say set-up the way western clubs want it."

The Interprovincial Hockey League looks like the last hope for survival of senior hockey in this eastern Ontario neck of the woods.

Senior "A" hockey in Ontario was done to death by the machinations of those who spawned it. The frenzied race for glory, reckless not the golden coast the glitter of the Allan Cup; the glamor of world tournaments and the excitement of Iron Curtain exhibition tours, took their toll.

The gold and glory trail finally came to an end, priced completely out of existence. Its successor, the remnants of the once powerful senior "A" groups and senior "B" clubs of western Ontario, is already teetering. Torn by internal dissension and with no eastern representation, the newly-conceived "savior" of senior hockey may not see a sophomore year.

The senior situation looks bad all over the country. Western and coastal clubs are having their trials and tribulations. Some of them say they will not operate next season.

Perhaps the big mistake was made when this city with others in this part of Ontario deserted senior "B" hockey for the suicidal senior "A". There were few, if any, problems those days. Fans enjoyed a good brand of hockey and the sponsors, and arenas made money.

We noted the other day where the Kingston Frontenacs of the senior "B" days, turned over some $3,000 to a church hockey league. It was the bank account accrued during the club's hockey existence.

REPLACES ROTE

Big Four President

Sees Extra Games As Tie-Breakers

OTTAWA (CP)—Sam Berger, president of the Big Four Football League, recommends extra games as a solution to breaking playoff ties in the Eastern Conference.

He made his suggestion Tuesday after running into trouble determining exactly which of the visiting rules would apply in the case of a deadlock between Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders in two-game, total-point series starting here Saturday to decide the East's Grey Cup representative.

When first asked what result a tie would bring, Berger said it didn't seem "quite fair," but he suspected the series would go to Ottawa because of its 105-83 total-points record in five regular-season games against Toronto.

He said, however, the problem would be put to football commissioner Sydney Halter of Winnipeg for a final decision.

HUDDLES WITH BROWN

Berger then conferred with league secretary Wes Brown. Brown backed Berger and said a conference bylaw ruled that the team with the best points-for-and-against record between the two teams during the regular season would represent the East in the Grey Cup.

But another check of the books by the two league officials showed that the 1953 bylaw actually favored the team with the higher league standing at the end of the season.

Under those conditions, Toronto Argonauts would get the nod if they ended the second games and two 10-minute overtime periods in a deadlock with the Riders.

Berger then conceded he had confused the tie-breaking system for playoffs with the method used to determine the league standing at the end of the regular season.

MUST BE REVIEWED

"The thing sort of sounded crazy to me but I didn't quite know why," said Berger. "This whole business of playoff will have to be gone into thoroughly at our next annual meeting."

He came out in favor of scrapping the present procedure with a less complicated method, saying:

"What's wrong with playing another game. In view of what's happened this year, it might be a good idea."

The only Riders not fit to dress for the game's ends are Jalalic and Ted Smale.

Dave Thelen, Ottawa's top fullback, was responding satisfactorily after rib injuries in the semi-final game.

Blue Bombers Said Hungry For Action

WINNIPEG (CP) — The defending Grey Cup champions, Winnipeg Blue Bombers, are developing a mean and hungry attitude as they prepare to tangle with Edmonton Eskimos in the Western Interprovincial Football Union final.

The Bombers whipped through a brisk work-out on a snow-covered practice field in neighboring St. Boniface Tuesday. Temperatures dipped to the low 20s.

Before the practice, coach Bud Grant commented on the team's attitude as Saturday's opening game of the best-of-three final approaches.

"They're pretty peppy," he said. "They were tired of sitting around and reading how great Edmonton is."

Bombers have been "sitting around" since their last league game, Oct. 24, while Edmonton marshalled Calgary Stampeders to win the two-game, total-points Western semi - final. Edmonton won both games and took the series 70-28.

OFFERED TITLE DEFENCE

LONDON (AP)—Archie Moore, grandpappy of world's boxing champions, Tuesday received a $112,000 offer to defend his dispuled light heavyweight crown against Chic Calderwood, British champion, in London next May.

British promoters Harry Levene and Peter Keenan made the offer.

The National Boxing Association of America no longer recognizes Moore as world champion because of his failure to defend his crown within a stipulated time.

Stamp Quarter Top Passer

REGINA (CP) — Quarterback Joe Kapp of Calgary Stampeders was the top passer in the Western Football Conference this year and his teammate, halfback Gwen Pilling, was the leading receiver.

Kapp completed 182 of 337 passes for 3,080 yards and 18 touchdowns and had a nine-yard average to lead the way in each of those departments.

Statistics released Tuesday night by Bill Hawrylak, WIFU chief statistician, show that Kapp had 17 passes intercepted to share that dubious honor with quarterback Ken Ploen of Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Quarterback Bob Pracek of Saskatchewan Roughriders completed 55.6 per cent of 178 aerials for the best pass completion average. Kapp's completion average was 54 per cent.

Pilipski caught the most passes, 47 of 80, for the most yardage, 875. End Dale Pitts of Winnipeg had the best completion average, making 42 of 45 aerials for 93 per cent.

Pair Shares Junior Lead

TORONTO (CP)—Rod Gilbert of Guelph Royals and captain Wayne Boddy of Peterborough Petes share the scoring leadership in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series on identical records of eight goals and four assists for 12 points.

Boddy has scored almost half his team's 20 goals, and appears on the way to his best year in Junior A ranks. Last season he dropped to 23 goals from a season's total of 27 in 1955-56, when the Petes were Eastern Canadian junior champions.

Official statistics show that Bob Kellough, husky rookie for St. Catharines Teepees, has four goals and seven assists for 11 points, picking up two goals and four assists in the last three game.

Four players are tied for fourth place with 10 points each. Dave Keeper of Toronto St. Michael's Majors has scored seven goals, Howie Menard of Toronto Marlboros six, Murray Hall of the Teepees, five, and Gary Jarrett of Hamilton Tigers' eight assists are tops in the league.

Wayne Rutledge of Niagara Falls Flyers is the league's top goaltender with a 2.33 goal - against average on seven goals in three games.

Macs Shade Hull-Ottawa

The Belleville McFarlands, coming up with their best game of the abbreviated season, edged the fast-skating Hull-Ottawa Canadiens Junior "A" squad by a 3-2 score in Hull Arena last night.

The Macs scored the only goal of the first period and added a pair more in the second frame before the Hull-Ottawa youngsters struck back for their part. One of the Hull goals was scored while Mavety was serving a penalty.

There was no scoring in the third-fought third period.

The Macs defence, with Lionel Boily and Larry Mavety outstanding for the Belleville squad, determined bid for a tie or victory, especially in the dying minutes when Sam Mulholland was thumbed with a tripping penalty.

Bob Senior in the Macs nets was brilliant in thwarting the Habs bids for goals in sensational fashion at times. Lanny Lamiley, Boily, Mavety and company did a fine job in front of him.

Ike Hildebrand could not make the trip, Goalie Lou Gary Goyer to round out his 15-man squad. Eddie Marineau filled at right wing with Billy Colvin and Sammy Mulholland.

The Hull-Ottawa youngsters proved to be a fast-skating hard-checking club that plays a rough-and-tumble game, but should be a thriller here on Friday

Quebec Aces Nip Indians

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Aces Tuesday night beat Springfield Indians for the second time in three days, edging them 3-2 in an American Hockey League game before 2,907 fans.

The win put Quebec within two points of the first-place Indians.

Danny Lewicki scored twice for Quebec, bot hgoals coming in the first period. Jackie Leclair fired the winning goal in the second period.

Art Stratton and Bill Sweeney scored for Springfield in the second period.

The third period was scoreless.

A near-riot erupted at the end of the game when Springfield players claimed an icing play after a Quebec shot, aimed at an empty Springfield net, hit the goalpost.

The flareup occurred after Springfield goalie Marcel Paille had been removed in favor of a sixth attacker.

Players crowded around referee Art Skov and later stormed into the stands. No one was injured.

Skov called seven penalties, five going to the Indians.

Paramount Again Shooting 'Pleasure of His Company'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Paramount's long breath-holding is over. The lambs are back in the fold.

Last April, the studio, took large corporate chances. The actors' strike had interrupted filming of The Pleasure of His Company. The actors trooped back to work after five weeks, but producers William Perlberg and George Seaton had commitments with William Holden and Fred Astaire to make another film, Counterfeit Traitor.

What to do? The movie minds decided to postpone Pleasure for Traitor. So the cast of the comedy was told bye-bye until November with instructions not to get fat or incapacitated.

The eight-month wait is over and Pleasure is shooting again. Happily for all, the performers have returned in virtually the same condition and can pick up where they left off 125 days ago. Some of the film remains to be shot. I asked each what happened in the interim.

ASTAIRE DID SPECIAL

"Well, I did a TV special," said Fred Astaire. "It was a bit of time, you know. No other movies for me. It's a bit of a problem to cast. I can't do every kind of role, and, as for musicals, there simply aren't any."

"I did a TV special, too," said Debbie Reynolds. "It was a bit of time with it, as Fred does. The critics hated it, and now that it got the best rating of the year, I should worry."

She didn't, as married, as some had predicted. The cast member whose marital status did change was Gary Merrill, who was divorced by Bette Davis. He did a Jules Verne movie in Europe.

As for Tab Hunter, he was doing a TV series called the Tab Hunter Show when he wasn't in Warner Bros. gangster charges. He was acquitted after a two-week trial in Glendale.

That leaves Charles Ruggles, who was the gravest cause for concern when the film was postponed. "After all, Charlie is a people — and not getting any younger."

So what did "Old Charlie" do? Two movies, two TV shows and two plays in summer stock?

LAST DAY AT THE REELS — Leslie Caron and George Sheppard fall in love in "The Subterraneans," an MGM-Cinemascope-Mayer film version of Jack Kerouac's novel which continues at 11:30 Color-Cartoon Carnival today ends tonight at the Belle. Watching Television Returns Is Dramatic Spectator Sport

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — As the Kennedy tide rolled Tuesday night, it was obvious that the most exciting and dramatic spectator sport on television is watching election returns.

All three networks in the United States did comprehensive jobs of bringing the public the returns of the totals, but NBC and CBS outdid themselves with brilliant performances.

It was smooth, well-organized and stimulating reporting all around.

All three networks planned to make the returns of the knowledge electronic computers which were supposed to "project" the winner by 11 p.m. evening. But magic machines soon named Kennedy the victor but advised viewers with frequent reports of "insufficient data" to the race to come. They ranged from 6 to 1 at 8:30 p.m. EST to 49 to 1, shortly after 11 p.m. Nixon finally got up to 333 to 1 briefly before shooting down to 6 to 1 again.

Leonard Hall, Nixon's campaign manager, remarked during the evening: "Computers establish—that he'd like to junk the three machines, but perhaps they added to the general sense of excitement.

ABC, it was obvious, was not the weakest sister with either NBC or CBS, its coverage tended to be talky and too often the reporters chose to be general rather than specific. When CBS and NBC were off and running on their coverage, ABC was showing Bugs Bunny and The Rifleman.

John Daly handled the obvious trend toward Kennedy carefully all evening. He was the first broadcast to declare flatly that the Democratic candidate was the winner—shortly before midnight.

ONE-GAME SWITCH

WINNIPEG (CP) — Defenceman Ted Green will play for Boston Bruins Thursday night when they meet Detroit Red Wings in a National Hockey League game in Boston, Winnipeg Warriors announced Tuesday. The Warriors, for whom Green has been playing, said he will be back here Friday night when Winnipeg meets Calgary in a Western Hockey League game.

Bootlegging Big Business In S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — South Africa's bootleggers are outselling legal bars and packing stores this year.

The government acknowledged the that about 35 per cent of South Africa's total liquor production reaches the public through the illegal markets.

The liquor commission says traffic in bootleg liquor is completely out of hand.

Home distilleries find vast scope in this country for distributing their wiliits white lightning, corn spirit, and other gin-like drinks.

SELL TO NEGROES

The Negro population of more than 9,000,000 is not legally allowed to buy anything more potent than kaffir beer, a watery substance with low alcohol content. Consequently, they grab any opportunity to get their hands on something stronger.

Sheebeens, or speakeasies, operate in almost African townships surrounding cities. Negroes gather nightly in these illicit places to get their fill of hard liquor. Lookouts rove the streets. Police activity is rare.

Sheebeen queens, the women who run these speakeasies, revel in the easy profits from a patched-up battered still concealed in a cellar somewhere.

They rule their sheebeens with an iron hand. They are the employer— and bouncers. Rowdy beer-drinkers quickly find out they go. A shout from a lookout and the sheebeen is evacuated in seconds, leaving only a bare alcohol - perfumed room for the police inspection.

LIKE PUBLICITY

Yet the queens do not shy from publicity. They eagerly seek out visitors to boast about the fortunes they are making while playing hide-and-seek with the police. And they insist on being photo-graphed in colored dresses, bejeweled throats, hands and arms, and heavy-painted faces for photographs.

One such is Auntie Mame, who poses in a fur coat in Johannesburg's Orlando African Township jail, accepted her name after coming aacross an American paperback of that title. Auntie Mame is of mixed blood. She chews gum, wears dark glasses and speaks in an attempted American accent:

Man, those cops'll never get me. They're too bloody stupid to find me where I operate. A couple of them dumb hasbacks while police did come stooging around too close for this kid's comfort, I just got rid of them by handing over a few bottles of witbitz.

"Sure, they still come on by for their rake-off. A couple of bottles keeps 'em quiet for a week"— and I can afford it.

Non-whites are not the only ones who have climbed on the illicit liquor bandwagon. Many lower-income whites figure they can pick up good money by peddling bad liquor. They ferment pure apple skins, blackberries, potatoes and a variety of other things in barrels.

Pumper Needs New Valves — Council Told

DESERONTO — Councillor Spence was the only absentee from the regular meeting of the town council on Monday night.

Council were addressed by the representative of the American Marsh Company who supplied the fire pumper to the town some five years ago. Apparently the department have been having some trouble with the valves of the pump and accordingly he Mr. Chapman, the representative, the only way to eliminate the difficulty is by the replacement of the valves the new ones. Because of the cost of the change council decided to hold the matter in abeyance until the next meeting.

They accepted an agreement with the Hydro Electric Power Commission in respect with the new construction on Water St.

Council approved the resolution of the Paris Board of Education as it was revised by the local Board. The resolution asks that the Government assume a larger share of the costs of education in order to relieve the burden on taxpayers.

The request of the Deseronto Athletic Association for a renewal of the lease on the rink for a two-year term was granted.

The local Boy Scouts and Cubs are holding a bottle drive on November 12 and council, agreed to allow them to have the use of the town truck for the collection.

A letter from R. Marks of the Deseronto Plumbing and Heating regarding the Plumbing Inspector acting as a tradesman was read. This brought forth the inquiry if the inspector was paying business tax if he was doing work in the town. Council decided to discuss the matter of the complaint with Mr. Cotter and bring in a report to the next meeting.

On motion of Councillor Lott council reversed their decision of last meeting regarding the extension of the water main on Dundas St. West. They have now authorized the Public Utilities to extend the main. A recorded vote resulted in six to one favor.

The Police Committee reported on the survey regarding the street lights and recommended the installation of nine new lights.

A by-law was passed authorizing the sale of a piece of property to Mrs. Lorraine Morin. This property was purchased in 1946 and never authorized.

By-law No. 1050 which covers the sundry fee for youngsters was rescinded on a request of the police committee and the Constable Closter was asked to enforce Section 33 of the Child Welfare Act, which is a provincial law. The Chief said his procedure would be to take the children home on the first offence and a second offence would bring a summons to the parents. According to reports the curfew is doing a lot of good for the children under six-teen.

As the result of the special meeting held last week to consider the report of the Water Resources Commission regarding the water situation in the town, council have decided to investigate the cost of filtration and compare it with the cost of preparing wells before entering into an agreement with the commission.

'Y' Basketball

Satellites chalked up their third win without a loss in 'Y' Youth League basketball action last night, a 62-37 win over the Globetrotters.

In the other game the Steelers came to a 72-49 win over the Globetrotters. The standing now shows the Satellites in first place some five years ago. Apparently the department have been having some trouble with the valves of the pump and accordingly he Mr. Chapman, the representative, the only way to eliminate the difficulty is by the replacement of the valves the new ones. KINGSTON (CP) — Kingston Frontenac of the Eastern Professional Hockey League Tuesday announced the acquisition of goaltender Ed Babiuk from Toronto Maple Leafs.

Kingston, a farm club of Boston Bruins, has been plagued with goal-keeping miseries this season as well as in the past when it finished last.

Babiuk was acquired on a trial basis. He has not been playing this season. After being let go by Sudbury Wolves, Babiuk was brought to Toronto as a practice goaltender for the Leafs.

Babiuk is the fourth goaltender manager-coach Wren Blair has obtained in his efforts to find a man capable of keeping the Kingston nets clear of pucks.

Barry Bailey and Normand Jacques were the first. "Long John" Henderson was brought in later.

Henderson and Jacques are still with the team. Bailey, from the Junior B Waterloo Siskins, was released before the season opened.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Forty-two in the crowd of 3,471 at Woodbine Park track grabbed one of the best-priced quinellas in recent weeks and two others who had $10 tickets collected $1,826.50 when Bobby Pin and Mavis finished one-two Tuesday.

The regular $2-sized quinella paid a handsome $1,826.50 as Bobby Pin was an 11-to-1 shot and Mavis was 22-to-one in the 1-1/16-mile race.

Stewards brought in their findings after Monday's feature race double inquiry and found jockey Cosentino guilty of impeding Calais II during the race, won by Money, Cosentino was suspended 10 days, Nov. 10-19, for the infraction.

Jockey Charlie Clark turned in a three - win effort with five mounts at the eighteen-program. He won the first with Critic's Choice and took the sixth on Village Squire and the seventh on Admiral Armbro, the last two racing for Charles Armstrong and his father, Elgin, of Brampton.

Admiral Armbro's win came in the featured U.S. Election Day purse.

General Tendencies: This is one day when you want to be impetuous, to lambast everyone with whom you come in contact because you are badly hampered over some apparent duty which you do not understand. Or just plain want to run away from everything to newt scenes But holding steady, doing your work in a conscientious fashion, pays you big dividends.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) —Although you may believe that you can buy your way through any difficulty, it is best to face the problem squarely and get to the root of things. If your motives are good, you can be sure you will be victorious.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) —Any situation at home is apt to be very tense, but if you show affection and absolute loyalty, you can easily restore true harmony. Also, be helpful with any work or repairs that need to be done around the house P.M. retire early.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) —Important you use every care in driving, or in motion anywhere, or there is apt to be an accident and unfortunate loss. Refrain from arguing with those at home. Use considerations and kindness even beyond the call of duty. Grow.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 23)—Although you are usually very economical, this is one of those days when you want to be very extravagant. Get rid of this temptation and get your bills paid. Impress others with your truly fine sense of business interests are needed.

Leo (July 24 to Aug. 21)—You are in an angry mood because you think others are working against you. It may be you who want to lord it over others, so be honest with yourself and them, and you will then be free to put fine, constructive ideas to work. Succeed.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23)—Don't give in to that feeling of self-sacrifice and pity. Your greatest benefits come from whole-hearted service to others. So, follow your better inclinations and you will get excellent results in a comparatively short time.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23)—Steer clear of that individual who is a braggart and could lead you in the wrong direction. Follow the advice of highly temperamental but true friend instead. P.M. be economical in all that you do.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) —If you are not careful in dealing with such individuals you know are out to hurt you, you can lose prestige and the fine credit you now enjoy. Be sure you handle that higher-up with solid gloves. Show respect and admiration.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—Be very careful in conversation with a higher-up, since the slightest mistake or lack of knowledge will be held against you. It would be best to study and be well-informed before you attempt to have important conference.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) —Take care you evince no jealousy today or get together with one quite out of your regular circle, or you can get into a peck of trouble. Also, make no snap judgments—be well-informed before you speak. Be kind instead.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) —Important you follow through with any commitments you have made. Also, be understanding instead of annoyed at one who does not comprehend your plans. Evening may be tense because your mate is upset. Be kind, sweet.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) —Bring cheer into the lives of others today, but do not go overboard financially doing it. Also, follow the ideas of coworkers and if you do not understand completely what is being proposed, ask questions. Don't pout. Be big.

HOW YOUR LIVER BILE HELPS BREAK DOWN FATS IN THE DIGESTIVE TRACT

Laboratory tests have now proved that liver bile emulsifies fats . . . actually breaks them down. It is an established fact that when liver bile is added to fatty solids, the fats are broken down and form a smooth, easy-flowing mix.

In your digestive tract, liver bile helps break down fats the same way. Many of the foods you eat reach the digestive tract as undigested fatty solids. Your golden liver bile helps break down these fats . . . for easier and more complete digestion.

Carter's little Liver Pills* emulsify fats of vegetable ingredients to relieve irregularity gently and effectively. At the same time, it actually improves the flow of liver bile needed to break down fats in your digestive tract.

So when you feel sluggish, headachy, nervous and need it laxative, take Carter's Little Liver Pills today!

Remember, Carter's not only relieves irregularity, but actually improves the flow of liver bile. Get Carter's Little Liver Pills today!

MR. TWEEDY by Ned Riddle

"There's your lunch for trimming the hedge, I locked the gate, so don't try to take off before you've finished."

If Your Child is Born Today . . . he, or she, will early show a tendency to be a decided extrovert and be quite loquacious at all times. Be patient with your talented youngster and encourage the child at the right times, for there is real sense and uncommon wit here, and you must not permit others to ridicule this fascinating young person. A most wonderful chart for the actor, actress or the government worker and politician. Give a fine basic education.

In Regina, there will be special services at the Roman Catholic Holy Rosary Cathedral and St. Paul's Anglican pro - Cathedral, and two Canadian Legion-sponsored observances, one at the armory and the other at Victoria Park cenotaph.

Edmonton will have a quiet observance, with a parade to the cenotaph and a placing of wreaths. Retail and wholesale businesses will be closed.

HERALDED BY CANNON

In British Columbia, Vancouver's ancient cannon, the famed nine o'clock gun, will crash, ben the traditional two minutes of quiet will settle over the city. Veterans will stand silent around the cenotaph in Victory Square.

Vancouver's cenotaph, originally dedicated to those who died in the 1914-1918 conflict, will be re-dedicated to the memory of all Canadians who gave their lives serving their country or the Commonwealth in any war.

It was called Armistice Day in 1918, the day the surrender of Germany was taken in a railway car outside Compiegne. The same car on the same spot, in the forest, on June 21, 1940, was the site of France's surrender to Germany in the Second World War.

It was called Armistice Day until 1931, when it was given its present name, Remembrance Day.

Suggestions have been made such as the one from the Public School Trustees' Association of Ontario—to change the date of Remembrance Day. The school trustees asked that it be brought to an end as a school holiday and be marked with simple ceremony in the schools.

CHARGE MATOR

MONTREAL (CP)—Mayor Adhelo Remillard of suburban Jacques Cartier Friday was committed, for voluntary statement Nov. 10, charged with extorting $100 from a demolition company and demanding a 20-per-cent rake-off on company business. Voluntary statement is a stage of Quebec legal procedure at which the defence may submit evidence to avoid trial.

year, they could provide in the 1961 - 62 crop year 1,000,000,000 bushels of wheat for domestic use, 1,000,000,000 bushels for export and still have 250,000,000 bushels on hand to start the 1962-63 year.

There appears to be little hope for an increase in Canadian wheat exports. Foreign markets will be restricted by new conferences such as the European Common Market, increased Russian competition and world stocks.

SEE CATTLE TROUBLE

Fat-cattle supplies in Canada next year will probably not increase much from this year, but prices likely will be lower. Main reasons will be a larger beef supply and the likelihood of gradually declining cattle prices in the United States.

With the recent sharp decline in stocker prices, more stockers may be held over for another season on grass. But farm winter feeding of calves may increase and fed - calf marketings next year probably will exceed the totals of 1959 and 1960.

Sheep and lamb numbers in Canada will likely continue to increase slightly in 1961.

Canada probably will have larger hog supplies next year compared with the fall of 1960. The outlook is for lower hog prices in the United States late in 1961. In view of this, hog prices in Canada next fall will be lower than they have been this autumn.

GETS THREE YEARS

TORONTO (CP)—Joseph Matsch, who pleaded guilty to eight charges of car theft and three of stealing identity papers to obtain automobiles from rental firms, Friday was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary.

COLLAPSE KILLS 3

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) — Three workers were killed, 30 seriously injured and hundreds trapped Friday near Santa Fe City, about 220 miles northwest of here, when an automobile plant collapsed while under construction. The plant was being built for production of West German cars.

Ulster Unionists in Power For 38 Years, Fought Every Election on a Single Issue

In a tour of Northern Ireland, Dave Oancia of CP's London bureau found that religion remains the dividing line between political parties.

In this story he tells of Protestant and Roman Catholic attitudes toward the nation's place as part of the United Kingdom.

By DAVE OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (CP)—This is a land where one political party, fighting elections time after time on a single issue, has held undisputed power for 38 years.

The party: Ulster Unionists. The issue: Maintenance of the border that keeps Northern Ireland British. Its support: The Protestant two - thirds of the Ulster population.

That they will continue in power—and hence maintain partition of the Emerald Isle—is accepted as one of the realities of life in the six counties making up this portion of the United Kingdom.

This arises from the fact that the nation's political divisions still coincide almost completely with its religious divisions.

CATHOLICS WANT REPUBLIC

Roman Catholics are automatically considered Nationalist party supporters and fervently in favor of joining the Republic of Ireland. The Protestants are equally dedicated Unionists. There are about 918,000 Protestants and 484,000 Catholics.

Between the two groups and between the nationalists and England stand centuries of misunderstanding and conflict.

The present division of the community in Northern Ireland is one of the unhappy legacies of the compromise that finally "settled" the Irish problem as far as Britain was concerned.

Britain gave in to the nationalists in 1920 by permitting the establishment of an Irish Free State (now the Republic of Ireland) covering 26 of the 32 counties in Ireland. She also pacified the Ulster Protestants by giving in to their demands to remain part of the United Kingdom.

One-third of those in the north who remained part of the United Kingdom were Catholics, determined to do all they could to abolish partition and lead the six counties into the republic.

DIFFERENCES REMAIN

There are signs that the old animosities are softening but most observers agree that it will be a long time—possibly generations—before the cleavage in the community is overcome.

The Protestants have toned down or dispensed with some of the violent epithets they used to hurl at the Catholics. Unionist politicians no longer blatantly declare that the government they form is a "Protestant government for Protestants," but one still sees chalked on walls slogans such as "No Pope Here" or "The Hell With The Pope."

For their part the Catholics through the Nationalist parliamentarians they elect, do relatively little to help remove distrusts. The Nationalists form the second-largest group in Parliament but they refuse to accept the title: "Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition." By default, the opposition task goes to the four-member Labor party.

The Nationalists feel their best hope of wiping out partition is to stand firm on a policy of non-cooperation. They have not bothered to adopt a political program with positive and forward-looking social, economic and cultural content.

RECOGNIZE ONE ISSUE

Joe Stewart, the 70-year-old Nationalist leader, says his party "looks after the interests of our people" by supporting legislation aimed at the general good. He does not feel adoption of a broader political platform would help because all the Nationalists vote "and will continue to vote purely on the border issue."

Among the factors tending to keep the northern political situation frozen are the border raids by the outlawed Irish Republican Army. Whenever there's an outbreak, northerners tend instinctively to flee to the safety of their respective religious and political camps. That is, border raids, aimed at "liberating British - occupied Ireland" inevitably strengthen the Unionist position.

There are however signs that, small certainly, that may indicate a modification of the old sectarian divisions. Public housing projects resulting from the growth of the welfare state are dispersing and mixing Catholics and Protestants. Television is broadening horizons. Newspapers in the northern capital are becoming more liberal and are giving more unbiased and balanced reports of local events.

MUST MAKE IT WORK

A few politicians are beginning to re-examine ideas held inviolable for decades. Lawyer Charles Stewart, a Roman Catholic and an MP for Queen's University, is one. He calls himself an Independent Nationalist and says: "The setup is here and we have got to try to make it work."

The Northern Ireland Labor Party has been picking up support from both the Unionists and the Nationalists.

No one really gives Labor much of a chance to develop into a moderate third force in Ulster politics, but MP David Blakely expressed the party's aim this way:

"We're not worried so much about whether or not united Ireland as we are about bringing about a united Ulster. We're still at the elemental stage here where we must find a formula for living together.

He feels the next election will show whether there is any support for a party of moderation.

HOPES FOR GAINS

"For us the next election will be one of doubts or quits. If the trend continues, we'll hold the seats we have and bring in a few marginal ones," he says.

"We are defeated, it will mean 15 years' work will have to start for nought. We'd carry on, of course, but would there be any hope in optimism?"

William Douglas, Unionist general secretary and behind-the-scenes power in Northern Ireland politics, gives Labor no chance at all.

"If the vital issue (the border issue) comes up again, those four Labor fellows will disappear from the House pretty fast."

Nationalist Leader Joe Stewart feels the same way.

"I think Labor will lose ground in areas where the Nationalist vote counts," he said. He thought for a moment.

"Och—they don't count anyhow."

CHARGES BIGOTRY

Stewart, who earns a living as a pub owner, auctioneer and undertaker in Dungannon, charged the Unionists had created a "hard core of bigotry" in the north.

He cites discrimination in public housing, employment and voting arrangements to back his case. In Londonderry, Ulster's second largest city, the Nationalists outnumber the Unionists six to four but the city council is controlled by Unionists.

"The constitution has been fixed to give their gerrymander control of the public administration even where our people are in the majority."

"The effect is that the unscrupulous push go to their people and our people are deprived of a fair share of the emoluments."

Stewart feels there's only one solution "to the shocking state of affairs—unity of the country and fair play for everyone, regardless of where he goes on Sunday."

DENIES DISCRIMINATION

Douglas, who runs the Unionist party machine with the relaxed ease of a professional, denies there's any discrimination against Catholics.

"But I think we'll always have this religious division with us," he says matter-of-factly.

During conversation, he indicated he was not particularly interested in enrolling Catholics as Unionist members.

"There's no rule against it," he stressed. "But we find that Catholics just won't co-operate in running the country. Generally they're against the Northern Ireland constitution and want to join the republic."

He was asked if the fact that Catholics have a higher birth rate than Protestants worries him.

"We've studied the statistics. It will take them at least 100 years to outbreed us."

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mrs. William Yateman, Mrs. Ernest Morris, Mrs. Walter Jones, Mrs. George Bilham and Mrs. W. J. Jeffery were Wednesday visitors at Foxboro bazaar.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Van Alstine, Basil and David were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Fulson.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Copeland received word of the arrival of a new granddaughter on Wednesday, Nov. 1st, at Edmonton Municipal Hospital, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson of Claresholm, Alberta.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Trice and family were Sunday dinner guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Curtis. Friends will be sorry to hear that Miss Cathy Price is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Lynn Barr and children of Brighton, are spending a few days with Mrs. Donald Barr, and children.

The children had a happy time on Hallowe'en dressed as clowns, fairy story characters, and animals.

Those from this district who are trying their luck at deer hunting are Mr. Garnet Jones, Mr. Larry Farrar, Mr. Donald Barr and Mr. Lynn Barr.

White's Sunday School and White's W.A. are sponsoring a pie social, followed by showing of Canadian pictures and local talent on Wednesday November 3rd. Proceeds are for Mission-ary cause.

Dept. Blamed By Member

TORONTO (CP) — The municipal affairs department was blessed Monday for allowing Ontario municipalities to get into financial troubles.

Arthur Resume (L — Essex North) told the legislature's select committee on legislative practices the department should be abolished if it failed to scrutinize financial affairs of municipalities.

All municipalities were supposed to send their budgets to the department for examination, yet both Kanawa and Belleville had budgeted themselves into financial messes, he said.

Attorney - General Roberts said the government is not the guardian and keeper of municipalities, which have their own councils and advisers.

James A. C. Auld (PC — Leeds) said the department hasn't enough auditors to make detailed checks of about 1,000 municipalities.

"Just a Second"

GETS NEW ROPE

ST. MARYS (CP)—Council of this Stratford-area town was told Monday night that the town hall bell, silent for 10 years, has been given a new rope and is ready to be tolled again.

Miss Whitton Will Not Seek Mayor's Chair

OTTAWA (CP) — Charlotte Whitton, who expected to announce Monday she would run for mayor at Ottawa's Dec. 5 elections, announced instead at she is going on holidays—a didn't say for how long.

Miss Whitton, 64, who retired from municipal life two years ago after five years as mayor, now is a columnist for the Ottawa Citizen. She wrote in her column that her expectation that men would help organize her campaign was not met, so "am, instead, simply going on some leave."

Meanwhile formation of a club—Whitton-for-mayor committee was announced Monday. Five men and three women were named as members of the group.

Khrushchev Is Hopeful Of Improved Relations

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) John Kennedy, president-elect for less than 24 hours, prepared today to answer a telegram from Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev about cold war problems and renewed efforts to ease them.

Khrushchev's message reached Kennedy only a few hours after the senator's election as president became definite.

Kennedy also was drafting a reply to Khrushchev's telegram from President Eisenhower. It dealt with the problem of setting up liaison for the Eisenhower administration and Kennedy between now and the time Kennedy takes office next January.

The senator's press secretary, Pierre Salinger, said Kennedy expected to answer both messages today.

At the same time, Kennedy's aides were working out arrangements for him to go to Palm Beach, Fla., for a rest of 10 days to two weeks. Salinger said Kennedy might leave Hyannis Port this summer home, Friday.

Khrushchev's telegram appeared to indicate a desire for direct discussions between the United States and Premier Khrushchev on the most dangerous world problems.

"I think you will agree that the eyes of mankind are turned first of on the United States and the Soviet Union because the destinies of world peace depend largely on the state of Soviet-American relation," Khrushchev said. He referred to disarmament and the situation in Berlin as current problems.

Salinger said the message was in Russian and Kennedy is receiving a translation from Hyannis Port "to make our own translation" and to check with the Russian text.

Waring Jones, Kennedy's personal manager Guy Ouellette, his wife and a male boarder into his official Bank of Canada in this village Wednesday night.

Camille Lalancette, a butcher by day and the village's constable at night, said the two, one of them masked, burst into the bank manager's home several hours before midnight.

Waring Jones, they forced to open the safe and remove $4,400 but left $13,000 behind when they fled via a branch of the local Men, Missions Sunday Held at Centennial Ch.

Men and Missions Sunday will be observed November 13 at the Centennial Free Methodist Church on Avondale Road. Men of the church will assist in presenting the work of world missions sponsored by the Free Methodist Church of North America on 22 different fields. A total of 1,900 Free Methodist congregations in Canada and the United States are expected to co-operate in observing the day.

Last year 1,055 churches reported a total contribution of nearly $130,000. This marked an increase of $17,000 over the previous year. Many of the mission churches will also observe the special day by bringing their offering for world evangelism.

In Africa this will be produce—peanuts, chickens, or corn meal. In the Philippines it will likely be rice or a choice pig.

An all-out effort is being put forth to realize a contribution total of one million dollars for world missions this year, the Free Methodist Church of North America this year. All are invited to share the inspiration of this significant day.

Juvenile Set School Fires, Is Apprehended

Suspicions that the recent fires at the Queen Alexandra School on Ann Street were deliberately set have been confirmed through an investigation by inspector from the Belleville Fire Department and the Ontario Fire Marshal's office.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance stated today that the person responsible for the two fires, one in a ground floor closet and the other in a basement storage room, had been apprehended and dealt with in Juvenile court.

Neither of the fires caused heavy damage except to the rooms in which each occurred, but the school was filled with smoke and eight were given a holiday for the remainder of the day.

Woman Hurt When Two Cars Crash on Hill

BONARLAW (Special) — Two cars met in a head-on collision on the 12th concession of Rawdon at the Northumberland-Hastings county line near here Wednesday at about 4.30 p.m. Neal Whitton of Menie and Jack Morgan of Mount Pleasant were the two owner-drivers involved.

Mrs. Morgan, a passenger in her husband's car, was taken to Campbellford hospital with undetermined injuries.

The accident occurred at the top of a sharp crest where the road is narrow. Both vehicles were a late-model car, were badly damaged.

The Campbellford detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated the accident.

NO EVIDENCE

which prompted Mr. Frost to establish the royal commission last April.

The public hearings occupied 23 days, between April and September, and Mr. Frost said Mr. McGillivray was ordered to bear any costs of evidence after an application by the CCF to the Court of Appeal.

There sitting 3,951 pages of evidence and 173 exhibits, the judge heard 36 witnesses in the "defence" against Hydro.

The charges was that Hydro had paid an amount in excess of $100,000 for land when a Hydro deeded the land for a Lambton County transformer station to service the growing industrial area of Sarnia.

The judge said there was no evidence to link Harry Hustler, director of Hydro's property division, or any other Hydro official with a conspiracy "to buy land from a friend at an excessive price."

Hydro paid a reasonable amount for the land, under the circumstances, but the Interprovincial Pipeline Company paid $16,400 an acre for land, Hydro paid $750 an acre and the Canadian Industries company paid $6,000 an acre for land purchased from Dimensional.

Hydro was in a tight corner and not only because of the critical power shortage, Mr. McGillivray said.

It was unable to expropriate the necessary lands; the Indians refused to allow Hydro to negotiate with the Indian land occupants, which was a necessary preliminary to buying the locations with the band, and Dimensional was ready to buy the land from all but two of the locations.

Had the Dimensional terms not been accepted a serious delay might have ensued either in trying to get through the reserve with the power lines or seeking the permission of other bands of other land, the judge said.

He referred in evidence by Indian Chief Telford Adams that had the Indians been offered $3,000 an acre for the land, the band hydro wanted they would have taken it. Other members of the council also testified the band would have accepted it.

The judge said the statements made after the event. The Sarnia Indians had a right to remember a number of shrewd men of whom the judge was one . . . Hydro was the band without experience in real estate transactions.

The judge said he was unable to find any "laxness" on Hydro's part, in order to deal with the Indians.

He criticized a statement by CCF leader MacDonald that the Indians had been fleeced of $2,500,000 in the land sale.

New England industries, which offered $3,000 an acre in the 1957 for the land in 1957 and was later reported to have been called upon to pay any actual money.

But the judge said the Dimensional agreement was of a different character and if the company fails to fulfill its contract, the interests of the lands will revert to the Crown and the Indians, together with all money paid under the contract.

Tomorrow is "Remembrance Day", 1960.

The various associations, city organizations and individuals will parade to the city cenotaph for the service at 11 a.m.—to pay tribute to the city's war dead.

In the evening Branch 99 Canadian Legion and Branch 219 ANAF will further observe the occasion with dinners and speeches by speakers of "peace and defence" against Hydro.

The parade marshal, Sam Hydro had paid an amount in excess of $100,000 for land when a Hydro deeded the land for a Lambton County transformer station to service the growing industrial area of Sarnia.

Hears Shot, Grabs for Rifle, Local Youth Fatally Shot

An 18-year-old Lakefield bank employee died instantly yesterday, victim of a hunting accident in Grimsthorpe township, northeast of the Centre Hastings village of Gunter.

Dead is Clayton Matthew Rebstock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Benedict, R.R. 5, Belleville.

Provincial police at Madoc said that the Benedict youth, employed at the Royal Bank in Lakefield was hunting with a companion when the shooting took place.

Members of the party were having their noon lunch at the home of Ernest Wheeler when they heard a gunshot in the distance.

Thinking that a deer might be wounded, Wheeler and Mr. Benedict youth reached for his 30-30 calibre rifle which was leaning against their truck.

The accidentally discharged, the high-powered slug striking him in the chest. There will be no inquest.

Other members of the hunting party were Dennis Reid, 17, of Belleville; Wayne Rathwell, 17, of North Front Street, Belleville.

Hunters Enjoy Good Shooting Especially South of No. 7

After a slow start and a disappointing opening day deer hunters are enjoying good luck in their own within a day or so.

The Ontario Department of the Tweed division of the Department of Lands and Forests said today that all indications point to a little better than normal season. Moose hunters are getting their share.

"The opening day kill was very light", he said, "but those of Tuesday and Wednesday were much better".

The deer, he added, are coming down from the far northern area after being driven here by pre-season storms.

South of number 7 Highway, casual hunters, those who go out "on the day" are getting their fine specimens of deer. The same applies to the area south and in the Marmora district. Another good area is in the eastern section of Sheffield township.

Mr. Whitfield said a half-inch of snow is covering the district in McClure township, where deer have been plentiful in numbers.

In the Bridgeview areas where Mr. Whitfield and a party of fifteen "nimrods" are hunting there is no snow. However the party stated that the forest floor was dry, hampering dog action.

However the party bagged three deer on the second day, fine bucks-falling to the guns of Clare Faulkner from this city, Bill Lee of Verona and Glen Ray of Lindsay.

A delight from the McNevin party stated that one of the hunters, a veteran of years, came across a fine buck. The deer stood there some few yards away.

The hunter took aim, then discovered it was the usual policy of all good hunters to release the safety catch on his rifle before pulling the trigger.

Closer at home, Grant Sickle of this city and his uncle of Frank Eckart of Toronto shot two fine specimens while hunting a short distance north of Marmora.

MOOSE BEING BAGGED

Moose are being shot in various parts of the district, according to Mr. Whitfield. Some have been bagged in the McClure district, others south of Wealemkoon.

A small army of gaily clad hunters surged into the northern areas on opening day, Mr. Whitfield said.

Three Winter Works Projects Now Underway

The local Public Works department now has three winter works projects underway. These include a ditching program in the annexed areas to clear away undergrowth and similar obstructions from the present ditches. Six new ditches are being constructed, however.

Repairs to the city's parks and equipment are also being cleared in the sanitary land fill on the Bay Bridge Road, east of Sydenham's farm and are also being effected under the winter works' programme.

Another sanitary land fill project at the base of Farley Avenue is to be started next year. Preparatory work in the form of brush clearing is currently going on. It is intended that this project will result in the creation of a small park upon completion.

The department has been stockpiling sand and salt for the winter months maintenance now and 1,000 tons of each have now been prepared for immediate use by the Public Works gangs.

The leaf clearing program has been completed and Superintendent assistant city engineer Mark Heitshu reports Work was done on the Bridge and Bell Street this week work is being conducted on Dundas Street.

The department was quite busy, of course, with the snow removal with the work incumbent to the changing over to one-way streets.

The sign crew has been active and the new traffic and pedestrians signs advising pedestrians to walk on the left hand side of the road in the vicinity of schools, where sidewalks have been removed.

Besides the above, the department's employees have been preparing out their regular duties of road repair, sewer rodding and drain clearing and the maintenance of equipment during the week.

KENNEDY'S WIN

weeks, and perhaps in two weeks' time would announce the make-up of his cabinet. Kennedy said it will include a lot of liberal-type Democrats.

Working with him will be a Democratic controlled Congress in which, however, Republicans will show some gains over the present Eisenhower era lack four years, Congress and the White House have been controlled by different parties.

Tuesday's election provided a Senate majority of 64 Democrats and 36 Republicans to replace the 64-34 division of the present Senate. With tabulations in five states remaining to be made, the Democrats had elected 257 members and the Republicans 178 with the odd-four seats vacancies, was 235-154. The Republicans had a net gain of 21.

Kennedy will need to designate the men who will be experts to succeed Christian Herter as state secretary. Among those mentioned are Adlai Stevenson, United Nations representative Chester Bowles of Connecticut, Senator William Fulbright (Dem. Ark.) of the Senate foreign relations committee, or Averell Harriman, former New York governor.

Any of these, and particularly Stevenson, might be named by Kennedy as the chief spokesman for to the United Nations. Henry Cabot Lodge resigned this post here to campaign for Richard Nixon. He is also mentioned for the state secretary post.

It is considered likely that Robert Kennedy, the president's brother, will head the cabinet manager, will fill a top advisory job in the fact that Governor Nelson Rockefeller on one side and arch - conservative Barry Goldwater on the other, will be the other. Goldwater contended Nixon lost because he expressed a "too soft" tendency in debating with Kennedy.

NIXON STIR

And in the key state of New York which gave its big 45 electoral votes to Kennedy, there were rumblings of war between the Republican factions in the state, ranging control over the city and state party organization.

High command of both parties began analyzing reasons for victory and defeat. The Democratic national chairman, Henry Jackson, said he and Kennedy and Senator Catholic, would have been defeated if he had not met the issue head on in his talks.

Robert Kennedy said the four television debates gave Kennedy a big boost and that Nixon made the wrong move in accepting the debate challenge.

Senator Thruston Morton, Republican from a rural district, agreed the television debates may have played a role and argued the Negro vote way Kennedy's main reason for victory.

Democrats agreed that Senator Lyndon B. Johnson was the big campaigner for the ticket, leaving his stature in Democratic leadership.

The slow-speaking Texan, Kennedy's vice-presidential mate, captured all the state for Kennedy and held North and South Carolina from other southern states in the Democratic column.

IN MEMORIAM

ASKIN — In loving memory of William (Bill) Smith, who was called away suddenly, November 12th, 1956.

To know you never said goodbye
Will always bring regret,
But heard in Heaven's morning
As the ones that don't forget.
—Remembered always, Mildred and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

We would like to express our sincere thanks to friends and relatives for their kindness in sending flowers, cards and messages of bereavement. A special thank you to Rev. and Mrs. Everett Smith, Dr. Hart, Melcher's Men's Wear and the staff of the Belleville Hydro Mall.

Since it is impossible to thank them individually, Mrs. Ethel and Mrs. Vanliet and family take this opportunity to express their deep appreciation for the many acts of kindness received during their recent bereavement and for the loss of their home and business.

I would like to thank all my friends and neighbors for the lovely flowers and cards they have sent me while I was a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

—Mrs. R. Kennedy.

I would like to express my sincere thanks to relatives and friends who remembered me with visits, cards, flowers and gifts while I was a patient in the Belleville General Hospital and after returning home. Also thanks to Dr. Hart and Dr. Hagerman and to the Kind nurses on 2nd Floor East.

—Mrs. F. Rogers.

Seven-Ender Helps Rink Win Contest

The mixed bonspiel being conducted at the Quinte Curling Club under the chairmanship of Pete Acton has begun to separate the men from the fours. The main event is now down to the eights and the second event will be in that stage by this evening. The first game of the consolation event will also be started in today's draws.

In the early season big ends are not a rarity as the curlers have not got their weights or their sights on the broom. Such a game was seen last night when R. L. "Bob" Smith and his rink rang in a seven-ender on Frank Creegan and his rink. As Mr. Creegan said afterwards, "I could spot do anything right." Nevertheless he was only beaten 11-3 and had the big end been eliminated it would have been a real close contest. Don Stanton stayed in the first end with a draw shot with the last stone against Don Benn. In the 2nd Don had the shot and with the score tied coming home, it looked as if he might win but Mr. Stanton played a perfect downturner to take out the shot stone and win the game.

The ice was exceptionally keen and many of the clubbie curlers had a hard time keeping the weight down. The drawn on every sheet were perfect and the scoring was excellent according to the skips checked the cards. The results of the draws were:

New Principal?

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, principal and vice-chancellor of Queen's University, will retire as principal in June to occupy the new separate office of vice-chancellor.

The Star says he will be succeeded as principal by Dr. J. A. Corry, vice-principal (academic). It says its information comes from the Ontario education department.

The Kingston university has applied to the Ontario legislature to have its charter amended to split the offices of principal and vice-chancellor, held by one man up to now.

CHARGED IN ACID THROWING — Mrs. Igua Santala, 46 (left) leaves for jail at Port Arthur, Ont., where she is being detained on a charge of throwing acid on the head of Dr. R. B. Somerleigh, 43 (right). Both are from Nipigon, where Dr. Somerleigh and Mrs. Santala's husband are members of the town council. Dr. Somerleigh's assailant is believed to have hidden in the back of his car and poured acid over his hatless head. (CP Photo).

And who should be his companion in that little plane? A bewiskered prospector? A sick eskimo? A kindly chaplain? NEVER. Who else but the chic Raymonde Duval, lonely, longing, lovely, in whose father left her enough real estate in the far north to stake out a new province. But don't worry, Larry Brannon will look after her. If you don't believe us, see for yourself when this exciting adventure strip gets off the ground Monday on our comic pages.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

Special Tax Bills Mailed Direct to Owners

To insure that property owners know the full details of the special 1960 Belleville local tax levy, all such bills are being mailed directly to the assessed owner and not to mortgage companies.

City treasurer C. J. Bender said today that the actual owners know the full details of the special levy assessed to pay off the city's hydro losses and other floating indebtedness which it had been decided to mail the tax bills to the actual owners.

The special tax bills started to go out from city hall early this week and all are expected to be in the mails by tonight.

If, in any case owners have not received their tax bills by November 18th, Mr. Bender said that the tax department at city hall be notified immediately.

Payment of the special levy may be made in full at the one time or spread over a period of five years, but the due date for payment in full or of the first instalment is December 31st of this year.

If payment is made in full by December 1st 5% property owners are entitled to a discount of 1½ per cent on the total amount.

Or, if at any time after the initial instalment is paid the property owner wishes to pay off the levy he may do so and take advantage of the discount on remaining instalments.

So far the trend of payments seem to indicate the majority of taxpayers are prepared to pay the special tax levy in full with only about half a dozen owners so far desiring to spread the payments over the five-year period.

"We at city hall hope that the trend continues," Mr. Bender said.

Most of the special tax levy payments received so far have been made through the mails and the stated desire must have included the payment in full.

Some even have omitted to take advantage of the 12 per cent discount offered for full payment.

Full details of the special levy and the breakdown of rates to be paid in the "old" city and in the annexed areas were included on the special tax bill.

Board Will Allow Sewer, Whitley to Build Only One-Family Unit on Lot

TRENTON — At last night's meeting of the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board, members reconsidered an application by G. A. Weaver and R. J. Whitley to erect a building at the rear of their apartment at 85 Queen St.

Dr. W. L. McDonald, chairman of the board, said that in this RM4 zone, which is a zone reserved for the older sections of the town, residences are "fairly close" because the area must be "up-graded" in quality. Small houses erected between the older ones would tend to spoil the picture of the area.

Owners of the older houses are generally retailed their homes into multi-unit dwellings he said.

Dr. McDonald said that the zoning bylaw was drawn up to protect the interests of others. He said that the law could not be whittled and whittled at until it may, however, be amended.

Dr. McDonald warned that chaos and anarchy would result if people started taking the law apart.

Mr. Whitley and Mr. Weaver had not submitted plans for the building they proposed to erect on the lot. The board concluded that on this lot a one family detached dwelling only could be considered.

Board members will make an unofficial visit to the site in Trenton to explore the feasibility of re-zoning the area to permit the erection of multi-unit dwellings.

George Ferguson approached the board to ask that the members approve the erection of a four-plex dwelling in this area. He said that he has received petition from 73 residents who have no objection to the erection of the four-plex.

ASKS APPROVAL

Mr. Ferguson asked that if the board would not consider the North Trenton apartment, that they favorably consider the erection of a six-plex apartment on North Trenton Rd., west of St. Joseph St. Mr. Ferguson lacks 1,100 sq. ft. on the lot size.

WILL NOTIFY

Council will be notified the board recommends that it not be considered as Mr. Ferguson's request because of the isolated location of the lot in the particular shape. The board is of the opinion that no one will be adversely affected by this building. Council could also delay action on this case until after the formation of a committee of adjustment which takes place after the official plan comes into effect. The board considered the lack of land a "minor variance" in this case.

Applicants will be told that the board considers that the application of Charles Gamble to build a double duplex attached to his present residence could be declared null and void by the committee of adjustment, as is the case with many applications of the bylaw on the fact that the lack of 235 square feet in the land size and a nine-foot shortage in frontage measurements were minor variances.

Jim Day, local real estate agent, was asked to acquire additional land from the town at the back of his own lot to make up the 235 square feet he lacks for the erection of a four-plex.

Mr. Day said that the erection of such a building would "save four families for Trenton." He said he knew of 75 people who had moved to Belleville in the past two months because of lack of accommodation in Trenton.

Drama Group Will Present 'My 3 Angels'

TRENTON — The Drama Group's fall presentation, "Three Angels", will be staged in the auditorium of Trenton High School on the nights of November 17 to 19.

The cast of behind-the-scenes workers are bending every effort to make this production the best ever.

Mrs. Alena Fines, stage manager, has a number of willing assistants helping her marshal the talent and almost the entire group into one outlet or another. Mrs. Jane Down and Mrs. Pat Walsh are in charge of hand props; Norman Campey has taken on the lighting job again this year; Bernard Coles is set changer; Mrs. Jean Causey is wardrobe mistress and Mary Halloran is make-up technician. Sound effects are to be handled by Inez Heaney and the publicity is in the hands of Mrs. Ands of Mrs. Ann Larry.

Recently, two representatives from the group, Mrs. Down and Mrs. Renee Starkey, attended discussions on a coming local drama workshop. The discussions were conducted by Ted Craddock, director of the community programs branch of the department of Education, Belleville. George Merton, adviser on drama, music and puppetry, was also present. It was decided to have the workshops all day Saturday and Sunday afternoons on available dates throughout the year.

An acting technique course will be held in January, a one day directing in February and other courses in the Spring. Night classes in drama will be held on Monday nights at the high school, are now being organized.

Is Assessed 2 Ft. Too Much Wants Change

TRENTON — At last night's meeting of Court of Revision, Andrew Gamble of Edwards St., appealed his assessment on the ground that the assessment notice showed his property frontage being 100 feet, instead of the actual measurement of 98 feet.

Mr. Gamble's application for the reduction reads: "I want this corrected" Due to an error in calculations, the land assessment will fall from $810 to $840 and the school support will be increased.

Mrs. Doris Haugh, North Murray St., asked that her assessment be lowered, stating that her home, which she recently purchased is not finished inside. She said that one could see daylight through the door frames and that the draughts came in so that it cost her $37 a month to heat the house.

Members of the court were inclined to believe that Mrs. Haugh was heating the outdoors to a great extent with this heating bill for a small house.

Canada Expects to Benefit By Change in U.S. Govt.

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator John F. Kennedy's capture of the White House has raised hopes here for two favorable results for Canada—more Canadian exports to its southern neighbor and a more flexible United States foreign policy.

But authorities are taking a wait-and-see approach to what possible repercussions for Canada from the first Democratic administration at Washington in eight years. The Democrats won't take over until January.

It's not unusual for Canada's host to be rocked by the ground-swell from U.S. policy decisions as a number of fields such as foreign affairs, defence, trade and finance.

President-elect Kennedy has had far less direct contact with Canadian affairs than has had than President Eisenhower, who commanded Canadian troops in Europe in war and peace, or President Roosevelt, who signed the Ogdensburg defence agreement with Canada in 1940.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, who has met Republican candidate Vice-President Nixon on several occasions, said Wednesday he has met Senator Kennedy only once, about two years ago. Following the Canadian government tradition of strict neutrality in U.S. elections, Mr. Diefenbaker made no further comment on the election outcome.

Officials see no basic change ahead in Canadian-American relations, which have long been cordial.

But general expectations here are for a more flexible U.S. position in foreign affairs and perhaps a greater willingness to consult allies before taking action.

In the trade field, positive results are expected to be felt in Canada if Senator Kennedy succeeds in his declared policy of taking government actions to lift the U.S. economy from its present doldrums.

Authorities say that new economic policies at Washington, with greater government spending to get easier money, would be likely to have an almost immediate impact on Canadian sales, especially of industrial raw materials.

In the vital field of North American defence, the election raises some unanswered questions:

Will the Democrats be willing to make the Canada-U.S. alliance a nuclear power?

Will they be willing to place North American air defence under NATO?

As the answers to these questions are yes, Canada would be able to surmount the sticky political problem of a bilateral agreement with the U.S. on control of nuclear warheads, especially for the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile.

Officials say they don't expect any change in American policy in this regard for some time—if at all.

Oct. Permits Total $86,612

TRENTON — Building inspector William Hutchinson's October report said 18 building permits were issued during the month. The estimated value of this new construction and repair to existing buildings was $86,612.

Fourteen permits have been issued for the construction of new homes in Elmwood Acres by the R.C.P. subdivision at the west of Byron St. These homes will all be in the $10,500 to $12,000 class.

Will Outline Installations On a Map

TRENTON — Workmen hired by the contractor engaged by the town to install catch basins in the bayshore area extended last week were said to have torn up and damaged pipes which form part of the park's sprinkler system. It is expected that the sprinkler system will be extended into the area.

Members of the Board of Parks Management concluded their work yesterday and should have a map prepared with details of parks installations decided.

Miss Marion Baker, secretary, was instructed to prepare the yearly report of board activities for presentation to council.

Equipment owned by the board and to be stored in a shed adjoining the town river shed was listed and insured.

President at the meeting were the chairman, E. M. Parker Jr., Bill Ireland, John Saylor and Miss Baker).

Victory for Kennedy—And Humans

The youngest president in United States history will succeed the oldest.

A junior officer in the Second Great War succeeds the commander-in-chief of the allied forces in Europe.

A Democrat succeeds a Republican; a Catholic follows a Protestant.

All these are important political facts about the result of the victory of Senator John Kennedy over Vice-President Richard Nixon in Tuesday's presidential election in the United States.

The result will be viewed with mixed feelings by residents of the United States, where the voters were almost equally divided in their allegiances to the two candidates, and with mixed feelings, too, in the rest of the free world although, perhaps, Kennedy's victory will be more popular in these lands than in the country whose people elected the president.

The manner of his winning, though, should bring cheers from a much larger multitude. The manner in which Republicans hung in the fight for eighteen hours after the closing of the polls was a smashing and long-overdue victory for human commonsense over the machine and over the mind which places its faith in public opinion polls and electronic computers.

Those expensive electronic computers took a licking in the wee small hours of the morning, when all but a handful of nighthawks had flipped the switch on TV or radio sets and had gone to bed.

As they crawled between the covers the computers were showing Kennedy coasting to the White House with some 330 or 340 of the electoral votes, or 70 to 80 more than the 269 votes needed to win. When they turned out of bed and looked in the morning news they were amazed to discover that there was talk about the possibility of the eventual winner being decided by 18 electoral voters from the South, who were uncommitted to either Nixon or Kennedy.

That ought to slap the computers right back on their expensive haunches. It's not for the fact that we consider kicking a computer when it is down as unsportsmanlike, we could go on at considerable length about the absurdity of a machine which, within a period of two or three hours, would show the odds on Kennedy winning varying from 9 to 1 to 6 to 1 and back to 334 to 1, all this on the basis of the "projected" vote. The trouble with the "projected" vote, of course, was that it was necessarily based on past performances—and man is not an animal who runs true to form and sometimes is more unreliable than when he enters a polling booth.

The idiocy of attempting to predict an election with an electronic device should have been evident quite early, when New Jersey produced a sterling example of the fatal defect in the computer's calculations. New Jersey, Kennedy expected to win as many votes as expected in a normally Democratic county which has a large Catholic population. But in other counties, normally more favorable to Republicans, where Catholics were not so numerous, Kennedy did almost as much as was expected. It was left to columnist the suggestion, offered earlier by one commentator, that many U.S. Catholics who might normally have voted Democrat would vote against Kennedy because he is a Catholic—and because he is an honorable man. They feared that he would fall over backward not to give preferred treatment to those of his faith.

Kennedy's religion was thus a factor in the election—but the religious issue produced many different results. It was fairly obvious that there were those who voted against Kennedy because of his Catholicism, Catholics who did so in New Jersey, Protestants who did so in the Bible Belts of the South and in the Lutheran and Mormon communities in the Mid-West and West. There were also Catholics who voted for Kennedy because he was a Catholic—and probably Protestants who voted for Kennedy because he was a Catholic and they, in their turn, were leaning over backward not to show prejudice against him on that account.

As for the horrible possibility that the election might be decided by the votes of uncommitted Southerners standing in the electoral college—and that Kennedy might have to be "bought" at the price of a truce on civil rights issues—surely even the great majority of Republicans must rejoice that this possibility has been eliminated and that Kennedy has won election without the need to seek these votes.

Miracles of the Universe

A Star Is a Furnace

By HON. ROBERT W. MACAULAY
Ontario Minister of Energy Resources

ARTICLE 20

A star is an immense ball of hot gas. It is not liquid or solid—it is too hot gas held together in a ball by the gravitational pull of the mass of gas. Without gravitation there would be no star—no universe. Gravitation is the dominant force of the universe.

Gravitation is the force of attraction, but Einstein suspected that it might also be a wave, opposite to the vibrating like a force of repulsion which could be pushing the galaxies farther out into space at up to 310,000,000 miles an hour. The repulsion force seems to be weak and they think it is only important where gravitation works more strongly at closer distances. (See articles on curved space however.)

The stars vary in size, density, temperature, color, age and luminosity. Some stars are so close that by a path, prickly with atoms!

The only reason one understakes this article at all, is to show that the inside of a star, is something like the sun (Ontario Hydro, and not too dissimilar to those, of the Bulk Power Grid in Ontario, to produce electricity.)

THE SUN FURNACE

I hastily add, however, that man, with his ingenuity, has accomplished something not procured in nature, nuclear reactions in a fraction of the temperature of the sun.

What is a furnace? It is a device in which we burn some fuel which is ignited and therefore heat is created. Inside the furnace there is a bright light and a big fire. Open the furnace door and you see the light, you feel the heat as coal, wood, oil or gas burns. You do not overlook a single home fuel supplied by Ontario Hydro that comes from a furnace to light one's home—electricity at the lowest prevailing rates in the world, but you feel the heat from the furnace to warm our homes.

You must have be of gas, coal, oil or wood).

A star is a furnace! It is where things "burn." But a star does not need an outside jacket or furnace cover because gravity holds the fuel together in the furnace, in space, while it "burns."

A star is the fire of a furnace, without a furnace around it. Gravitation takes the place of the furnace cover. The gravity holds the fire and fuel together in a ball that may

Psychology of Learning, Topic At Avondale H-S Association

"The Psychology of Learning" was the topic of an interesting and informative address given members of the Avondale Home and School Association by Colonel J. M. Cousins, at the November meeting of the association held Tuesday evening at the school.

Colonel Cousins discussed mainly three aspects of the subject—motivation, security and persistence—which together add up to ability.

"Capacity," said the speaker, "is the factor which intelligence tests attempt to measure. A child's capacity for learning is difficult to measure accurately. It is inherent, and neither a parent nor a teacher can do much to change it. However, something can be done to increase ability, by giving a child the right motivation and by encouraging persistence.

"A child should, therefore, come to school with the proper attitude towards work, and it is important that parents teach children that schools are pleasant places. It is also necessary to satisfy a child's appetites. His appetites of hunger, thirst, elimination, rest, are mainly the concern of the parents, but both parents and teachers must satisfy his appetite for change by not expecting him to concentrate too long on one project."

EMOTIONS PLAY PART

"A child's emotions, too, play an important part in motivation. The fundamental emotions of fear and anger, if kept under control, are a teacher's most important 'tools.' If a child gets a bit angry at a problem, he will work at it and learn something which he can later use to solve a new problem. Since fear is caused by the unknown, the gradual introduction of new material by the teacher gives the child a 'thrill' and adds spice to education. Without anger and fear," said Colonel Cousins, "education would be as dry as dust.

"If a child is to succeed he must have confidence. He will not persist unless he has both interest in his task, and another person who will help or share this interest. He must also believe that he is able to achieve something. Parents and teachers should, therefore, give a child praise for whatever he does well and he may try hard to succeed in his 'weaker' subjects."

In conclusion, Colonel Cousins stated that if parents give love, understanding and care to their children, they should not have too many worries about schooling.

Reports were read by the association president, Mrs. D. C. Harvie, and by executive members Mrs. J. M. McLean, Mrs. J. A. McCullough, Mrs. R. Wonnacott and Mrs. V. DePaul.

Mrs. H. Reilly outlined plans for the association's next project—a recipe book, which will be ready before Christmas.

The principal of Avondale school, Mr. R. A. Wright, invited all parents to feel free to make appointments with teachers to discuss any problems their children might have.

Mrs. MacLean and Mrs. Bristol discussed with mothers of pre-school children questions on preparing children for school.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. C. R. Wilson, assisted by Mrs. J. B. Casey, the grade 7 representative.

Used Toy Price Of Admission At McCarthy

Hey kids! Got a new or good used toy that can be spared?

If so the heart of some underprivileged kiddie can be gladdened this Christmas and at the same time it will serve as the price of admission to a kids' show at the McCarthy Theatre Saturday.

Deputy Fire Chief Gerald O'Brien and McCarthy Theatre manager Willard Fawcett have got their heads together and have come up with the special 'toy for admission' kids' show as a means of boosting the Christmas toy project.

So kids, if you have a new toy or a good toy that you no longer want, bring it along to the McCarthy Theatre this Saturday. Doors are open at 12.30.

L.A. Canadian Legion Holds Tea, Bazaar

Even though the day was dull and dreary, everything looks was bright and cheery when the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion, Branch 59, held its annual tea and bazaar in the Legion Hall, yesterday afternoon.

Receiving at the door, in the hall, which was appropriately decorated in keeping with "Remembrance Day," with its cross of poppies and bronze wreathes creating pretty colored autumn leaves, were Mrs. Gerry Spencer and Mrs. Mary Wiley.

The convener of this most delightful event was Mrs. Gerry Spencer, assisted by the co-convener, Mrs. Shirley Heasman.

ATTRACTIVE TEA TABLE

The tea table with its white lace cloth centred with potted 'white mums, flanked by pretty yellow candles in crystal candelabra and on either end a silver tea service, was most attractive. Presiding at the tea service was Mrs. A. Bradford, and those serving were Mrs. A. Young and Mrs. Joyce Slater.

In the centre of the room were little guest tables with prettily dressed dolls, representative of them centred with identical three-tier cake trays with fancy sandwiches, small cakes and cookies, and on the top tier, cellophane bags of candies. These dainty refreshments were replenished by Mrs. Grace Burton and Mrs. Irene Reed and were taken care of in the kitchen by the committee in charge assisted by Shirley Heasman, Mrs. Shirley Spencer, Mrs. Spencer, and also by Mrs. J. Spence.

VARIOUS SALES

The various sales tables encircled the hall.

The candy table a "Mecca" for the children, had its delicious maple creams, chocolate and peanut clusters, and fudge artfully packaged in cups, cellophane bags, and in attractive boxed boxes. This booth was conserved by Mrs. Ricky Beaumont, assisted by Mrs. Amy Morrison.

The homebaking table, conserved by Mrs. Betty Hodge and assisted by Mrs. Pearl Alexander, was well patronized and displayed all sorts of baked goods, such as apple, cherry and pumpkin pies, fruit cakes, date and marble squares, peanut butter, chocolate and other assorted cookies, orange chiffon, chocolate and white cakes, all equally tempting.

LOVELY APRONS

Many were the lovely aprons and the neat display, some like others dainty tea aprons; all of them colorful in a variety of patterns and materials. This pretty booth was in charge of Mrs. Eleanor Batchelor along with Mrs. Marion Watts.

Next to this was the equally attractive fancy work booth, in charge of Mrs. Annabel Hardwick and Mrs. Edna Blair. Some of the many articles displayed at this table were: toaster covers, luncheon cloths, oven mitts, bed pin cushions, and a novel display of stuffed animals in plain and printed materials. On display at this table also, was a lovely green quilt in autumn leaf design, made by Mrs. Hardwick, which will be raffled in the near future. The tickets for this draw were sold by Mrs. Mabel Green, who also assisted Mrs. Jean Burkitt at the white elephant table which displayed the usual variety of articles such as assorted dishes and trinkets of all kinds.

The next booth, the country store, had almost everything in the line of groceries that one could desire, so see-ing is coming store, from canned goods of all kinds, jam and currant-ing pickles, sugar and honey, to cake mixes and puddings. Mrs. A. Hicks, assisted by Mrs. Lowery, were in charge of this display.

DRAW

Adding a further touch of color to a most successful occasion, was a beautifully dressed doll with its complete wardrobe. The tickets for this were sold by Mrs. Joan Reddit and the lucky winner for this draw was Mr. Ab. Bresult, drawn by little Miss Judy Bailey.

Education Week

Businessmen Attend School For a Day

As part of the observance of Education Week, some twenty-five Belleville businessmen yesterday visited the city's three secondary schools, the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational school, Trenton and Quinte Secondary School and Moira Secondary School. The purpose of the day, organized by Quinte High School Board in co-operation with the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, were a type of "return match". Earlier in the fall, at the start of the school year, the Chamber of Commerce had played host to new teachers on the staffs of these schools, taking them on visits to local industries. This proved so informative and enjoyable that the teachers thought the businessmen might be interested by seeing how the schools operated. They were.

The programs at the three schools were similar, but not identical. At all three schools the visitors were divided into small groups and given the opportunity to attend classes, ranging in number from six classes each, at Quinte to three at the BCI. Conferences and question periods were also held and at BCI and Moira the visitors attended the weekly "assemblies" at the commencement of the morning. At all three schools the visitors were guests at the regular lunch hour in the school cafeteria.

Without exception, the visitors found the experience most interesting. In many cases the highlight of the visit for individuals was provided by the opportunity to sit once more in a classroom and attempt to follow a regular lesson. For others, the question periods of the tour of buildings provided the high point of the visit. Many of the visitors commented favorably on the excellent deportment of the students and their application to their work. The school principals, Dr. Orr at BCI, Staff-Reid at Quinte and W. J. Musgrove at Moira, and their staffs received many well-deserved compliments, not only on the arrangements for the day's programs but also on the school, staff and scholars.

Helpers Needed to Put Over Tag Day for Santa Parade

The Santa Claus Parade Committee needs help.

The committee needs helpers and plenty of them — to sell tags on Nov. 18 and 19 in order to raise money to pay the bills incurred in bringing Santa and a colorful parade to town on Dec. 3.

The committee, which met last night at No. 3 Fire Hall, said anyone wishing to help out could call WO 2-3018. Taggers will be needed from noon Friday, 18 until noon the following day, with time out for a night's sleep.

Tag Day headquarters will be in the YMCA.

In other business before the committee, Deputy Fire Chief O'Brien reported that bands from 6 Repair Depot, RCAF Station Trenton, the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Port Hope and Colborne Sea Cadet corps and Fort Hope Legion will definitely participate in this year's parade in addition to the Colborne Boys' Band and the Kawartha Cavaliers.

Fire Capt. Ted Potts said 19 floats so far have been entered in the parade but he expects more. His committee requires more wagons to carry the floats, he said noting only 11 wagons had been secured.

"I think anyone who is entering a float in the parade should get in touch with me (WO 2-3018) immediately so that together we can arrange times and places to build the floats and to distribute the materials that will be needed to decorate them", he said.

MORE MONEY NEEDED

Secretary-treasurer George Rutledge reported that the committee so far had received $485 in donations. Fire Chief Gerald Vance, however, noted that the success of the parade will depend on raising enough money Nov. 18-19 to pay the bills. Mr. Rutledge said "a lot more donations must come in yet."

Inspector Bob Fair, in charge of refreshments, said he is still negotiating for the purchase of chocolate which Santa's helpers will distribute to the kiddies lining the parade route. He noted that last year $250 was spent on purchasing more than 8,000 pieces of candy.

A delegation from Teen Town, headed by president Bruce Jarvah, asked permission to participate in parade activities. The committee suggested the teenagers could help out when Santa visits the children at the hospital after the parade.

Three Persons Are Injured As Car Chased After Crash

An early morning accident in the downtown area of the city sent three persons to hospital. Two of them with serious injuries and caused property damage to three vehicles amounting to approximately $2,000.

Taken to Belleville General Hospital with a fractured pelvis and dislocated hip were Mary Theresa Williams, in Murray Street, Mrs. Mary Sesmark, 39, of 36 St. Charles St. with a compound fracture of the left leg and facial cuts, and her husband, James Sesmark, 46, who suffered facial cuts and bruises Mr. Sesmark received only outpatient treatment.

Police said John A. Preston, 32 Southwood Cres., was southbound on Front Street and had stopped at the Bridge Street intersection for the red light. As he did so a following car driven by John G. Boyd, aged 30, 96 George Street struck the rear fender of the first vehicle.

Police then claim the lights of the Boyd car were turned off and the vehicle made a right hand turn, speeding over West Bridge Street, with the Preston car in pursuit.

In front of 98 West Bridge Street the Boyd car struck a traffic sign, throwing it 64 feet and then struck a car parked in front of the same house pushing it 15 feet.

The injured were passengers in Boyd's car.

Damage to the Preston car was about $300, total damage to the Boyd car about $1,250 and to the parked auto owned by Allen Mr. Boyd was placed under arrest by police and has been charged with careless driving. Other charges may be pending, according to Constable J. Clair Hayes.

St. Michael's Grade Niners Tour Bank

On Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon, as an "Education Week" project, two groups of business practice students from the grade 9 classes at St. Michael's Academy, accompanied by their teacher, toured the various departments of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Arrangements for the tour were made through the courtesy of the manager, Mr. Simpson, and the assistant-manager, Mr. Ellis, who welcomed the students on their arrival.

Mr. Ellis acted as conductor through the various departments, with co-operation of other members of the staff, he gave the students practical experience in making out the regular banking forms connected with savings accounts. They also gained an insight into the regular routine of banking as they watched the business machines in operation, listened to explanations on the transfer of funds carried out by the foreign exchange department, and saw how drafts are cleared for distribution to other local banks.

The tour ended with a visit to the vault where the measures for safeguarding securities were explained. The trip was described as a thoroughly satisfying and realistic follow-up for the students' classroom studies on the subject of banking.

KILLED BY TRAIN

PORT CREDIT (CP)—Chester Henry, 60, of Port Credit was struck Wednesday night when his car was struck by a CNR passenger train at a level crossing just east of here.

Wedding

McMECHAN — STORR

A very pretty autumn wedding was solemnized recently in Ebenezer United Church, when Gladys Beth Anne Storr, of Marysville, Ontario, was united in marriage to William Harold McMechan of R.R. 1 Shannonville, by Reverend W. R. Hall. The groom is the son of Mr. A. Haynes of Roblin, Ontario, officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Storr of Marysville and the bridegroom is one of Mr. and Mrs. McMechan, R.R. 1 Shannonville, and the late Mrs. McMechan. White, mauve and yellow chrysanthemums in ferns formed a lovely setting for the ceremony. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mrs. A. Haynes of Roblin presided at the piano, and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. C. Jarmin of Marlbank, in her rendition of "The Lord's Prayer" and "I'm Growing up", and "The Wedding Medley" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely as she was charming in her full-length bridal gown of white satin, fitted over net and taffeta, enhanced with fine lace applique on satin. The molded bodice featured a lateau neckline embroidered with seed pearls and sequins. The full length sleeves ending in "V" points were fitted from the wrist to a finger-tip veil of illusion tulle, and crown headdress encrusted with pearls and sequins. Her bouquet of red roses mingled with white carnations.

The maid of honor, Miss Linda Storr of Marysville, wore a floor-length gown of silver-green nylon chiffon over taffeta with a fitted bodice and full skirt featuring a round neckline and short sleeves; matching hat, gloves and shoes. She carried a bouquet of yellow and white mums.

The bridesmaid, Miss Gail Nuno, of Belleville, and Miss Shirley Storr, of Marysville, were gowned in pale yellow made on lines similar to that of the maid of honor. They wore matching hats, gloves and shoes. They carried bouquets of blue and yellow mums.

Mr. Carl McMechan of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Kenneth McMechan of Shannonville and Mr. Ralph Darrington, of Belleville, were ushers.

The reception was held in the church hall where the bride's table was centred with a cake, having a Dior blue crepe with matching blue hat and gloves, and a corsage of pink roses. Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Ralph Stewart, who was gowned in crepe blue dress with matching hat, white accessories and corsage of red and white roses.

The bride's table was appointed in the traditional manner with white damask cloth, centred by a three-tier wedding cake with pink and white icing, beneath cascading streamers of pink and white. The bridal bouquets and bridal veil tradition added the extra nuptial accent.

For the wedding trip to Eastern points, Mrs. Paradis, U.S., will surface Mountain, Syracuse and Niagara Falls. The bride chose to wear a mauve knitted sheath dress, with brown accessories, and yellow rose corsage.

Previous to her marriage the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Miss Doreen Brown; at a personal shower, at the home of Miss Barbara McTaggart of Napanee, with Miss Lucie Card of Napanee, as co-hostess; and at a rehearsal party at the home of Mrs. Gladys Merrit.

Guests were present from Belleville, Peterborough, Merrion, Syracuse, N.Y., Napanee, Shannonville and Marlbank.

Mr. and Mrs. McMechan are residing at Shannonville R.R. 1.

Miss Margaret Potter, daughter of Mr. Clarke Potter, 105 Hunswood Drive, and the late Mrs. Potter, was successful in her Registered Nurse's examinations at Belleville General Hospital. At present, Miss Potter is on the operating room staff of the Belleville Hospital. She received her early education at Belleville Collegiate Institute.

ST. MARGARET'S E. G.

The regular meeting of St. Margaret's Evening Guild was held on Monday with a good attendance.

The president, Mrs. A. Paradis, conducted a business meeting and the treasurer, Mrs. F. Platt, gave a favourable report of the annual bazaar held last Saturday.

An auction sale is planned for the next meeting.

Refreshments were served, by Mrs. B. Bishop and her group.

Divorce Laws Antiquated Says Council

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial Council of Women of Ontario unanimously agreed Wednesday that present divorce laws, recognizing only adultery as sufficient grounds, are "antiquated, unrealistic and degrading."

Winding up its meeting, Women made the recommendation, which will ask the provincial government to broaden Ontario's divorce laws to parallel those in the Maritimes and Canada's New England.

Mrs. J. R. Cutt of Orillia, president of the provincial council, was chairman at Wednesday's semi-annual meeting.

The meeting resolved to ask the government through the National Council of Women, to have the deceased husband's estate relieved for tax purposes on money he been earned by the widow and not subject to succession duty.

W.H.A. 'Fashion Fiesta' Fills BCIVS Auditorium to Capacity

Undeterred by drizzling blacksky, by one's, two's and three's, the ever fashion-conscious women of the city poured into the Collegiate auditorium last evening for the first "Fashion Fiesta" sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of Belleville General Hospital, under the convenorship of Mrs. A. J. Wolfenden. Every available seat was occupied with many left standing.

In contrast to the inclement weather, the atmosphere inside was most inviting with bright lights, pleasing music on the Hammond organ by Mrs. Victor Hennessy, clusters of white chrysanthemums, and a stage draped in its artistic simplicity with blue-carpeted ramp and tall white Christmas tree exemplifying the theme, "Holiday Inn."

The large assembly was tendered a most cordial welcome by the president, Mrs. E. R. Burley, who introduced the convener, Mrs. Wolfenden who, in turn, presented Mrs. J. H. Forrester, the narrator of the evening, charming in a floor-length knitted sheer with in Puritan grey, with mink stole.

VOCAL SOLOISTS

Mrs. Howard, Actinolite, 3100 (Leslie's), Mrs. Larry Rollins, handbag; Molnicoff Bros., Mrs. Bergy Hinkleboom; fur coats; Ashley's, Mrs. K. K. Edwards; permanent waves from Vogue Beauty Salon, Mrs. R. F. Davenport; cosmetic set, Lattimer's Drug, Mrs. Ashley Wilson; train case, Leslie's, Mrs. J. Darlington; fern, Barber's Florist, Mrs. Sherwood Mason; hand sheer trim in Puritan grey, with mink stole.

VOCAL SOLOISTS

The display of beautiful gowns, and furs, was presented in three parts, each with a commentary. The vocal selection bearing out the theme, the first being, "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas"; the second part, "Happy Holiday" and the third part, "Let's Start the New Year Right," rendered by Mrs. Arnold Downes.

A fur part was the showing of original holiday and resort wear by Lattimer's Drug, a beautiful model in green with ribbed wool sleeves and bodice, worn with a black leather and spruce green jerkin and slim-line, and blouse of lilac crepe with quick-dry cotton. A fur outfit in brushed orlon in feather-light weight, consisted of slacks for ease in movement, so nice because of no bagginess after wearing. The curling, tapered stretch slacks with Zebra jacket in black and white stripes, with white Shetland sweater, an unusual sportswear costume.

TARTANS

Tartans are as much in the highlight as of yore, with several fashion models constituting the theme for traveling. Tweeds were also shown. One was worn in subtle plaid in identical yarns, with a matching jacket shown in the weave of the coat. A car coat in black tartan, with shoes to match Santa Claus red was eye-catching.

An intriguing number was the capelet combination which buttoned down the front with no sleeves.

The cruising, many useful and delightful outfits were modelled including pure silk shantung in which the bride wore, and which much prized for travelling as well as for other times. A pure silk Rajah from India was exceptionally fine.

COCKTAIL DRESSES

Cocktail dresses included reception and later dancing attire, in soft Rembrandt beige, another in nearnymph green with matching jacket, and another in sheer net with leaves of opalized metal. Also a black net dream of a party dress was in red with matching jacket and demure bodice.

For theatre wear, a Monet grey brocade with great skirt fullness, and full coat, was lined with mink and delineated satin. This was from the Hartzell collection. Another lovely gown was also in pink with a sequin cut skirt which also did duty as a cloak.

The furs, rich, luxurious were of many types; black Persian lamb in three-quarter and full length grey lamb in sheeny styles with shawl collars; brown-dyed Kolinsky, with large pattern scalskin, sleek and golden brown; and the soles, of many types and shades in the most beautiful of all furs, the mink. Muskrat in a good stretch by, nice in texture and durable. Canadian squirrel was also shown.

There was shown several jewelled bodices on the special occasion gowns. Hemlines are still ankle length, but knee and in a few cases just below the knee. In the straight line skirts, a back kick pleat was noted. Wide shoulder necklines are quite fashionable, also the deep-dipping back v's.

The hostess-lady was 'whiz' and most becoming, and the accessories lovely to behold.

The fashion show was concluded with a running commentary on the pictures of the evening was a brief

JOHNSTOWN W. A.

JOHNSTOWN — The Johnstown W.A. ladies held its missionary meeting at the home of Mrs. Alva Meyers with a good attendance recently. The devotional was read by Mrs. J. Marvin and the lesson thoughts by Mrs. Earl Dilabio.

Mrs. Brunt called on the guest speaker, Mr. Thresher who spoke on missions. He said "it has been said by the saint that it is compulsory for the Christian people and all of the civilized world to say that the underfed peoples of Africa have what we have, or else they will join the Communist bloc. The choice is to have China on our side so we must see to it that we do not lose Africa." A discussion followed.

Mrs. Brunt thanked Mr. Thresher for his fine talk. Letters were read from Belaven W.A. to attend the tea and sale Nov. 30th and from Frankford W.A. to attend the meeting on Nov. 8th. An invitation was received to attend a rally of the W.M.S. at Wallbridge on Nov. 8th at the United Church with Ashintsering leading the dedication of the offering.

The Christmas meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stickle on December 8th with Mrs. Brunt and Mrs. Alex Vandervoort in charge of the program. Plans will be set exchange of gifts not to exceed one dollar.

Mr. Carey as possible are asked to meet at the home of Mrs. Fred Wynes on Nov. 10th in the afternoon to prepare for the bazaar and tea Saturday, December 9th at Glen Miller Hall. It is requested to give $30. to missions.

The study of readings "Good Tidings," by Mrs. W. Smith and "Reaching for the Moon," by Mrs. Wm. S. Harry were given. Lunch and a social half hour was enjoyed.

WOOLER W.M.S.

WOOLER — The Evening Auxiliary of the W.M.S. held its November meeting, November 1st, at the home of Mrs. Harry Nelson, with a good attendance.

Mrs. D. Fox acted as president and opened the meeting.

Business was discussed. It was decided to entertain the bandands in December with a turkey banquet.

The worship was in charge of Mrs. Fox using the theme "Reaching Out." Mrs. Beverly Greatrix, Mr. F. O. Deschest and Mr. S. S. Thurston, of the Belleville General Hospital, all of whom made the "fiesta" possible.

Those who sold tickets on the prize were: Mrs. K. E. Bailey, Mrs. J. Anion, Mrs. K. Smith and Mrs. J. Darvell. Taking tickets and ushering were Mrs. J. Soetsinger, L. Dickey, J. H. Hall, H. S. Thurston, D. Burley, G. Gault, H. P. Cox, Bailey, W. Shand, D. Wright, train Mrs. J. Mumford, F. Beeby, A. H. Casey, K. M. Bird, W. Dallas well as Mrs. Gilmore and Mrs. E. Musgrove.

RECEIPTS ARE HELD

Following the close of the fashion Fiesta a reception was held for the guests, personnel and Nurses' Education Hall. Those receiving were: Mesdames G. Tripp, W. Noble, R. Bell, V. Puke, J. Macklin, D. Burr, E. Wilson, R. Hinch, Dr. Sydney Cox, P. L. Allcorn, J. N. Anion and Miss M. Hall.

All concede this year's fashion fiesta one of the best, yet.

Alpha Lambda Views Metalcraft, Welcomes New Members

Mrs. Orville Summers, better known to handicraft circles as Wilma Summers was introduced by Mrs. R. Kostachuk to the members of Alpha Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi as speaker of the evening. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Earl Reed on November 7th.

Mrs. Summers is a skilled craftswoman and has taught metalcraft locally to student nurses and residents of the Hastings County Home for the Aged, as well as evening classes in Trenwd. She described several types of metalcraft and made of aluminum and copper and showed the various shapes, sizes and gauges of the raw materials and told of ways in which they could be used.

She also had on hand several completed articles, examples of acids, glues, paints, glazes and design patterns available to the craftsmen.

ILLUMINUM ETCHING

The speaker outlined the method used in the process of etching to decorate serving trays and other articles, which are durable as well as popular today. Also discussed was the making of coppercraft which this artist has had much success with, two attractive pictures of copper, a hammered copper bowl and a beautiful picture of enamelled copper jewellery and a typed of metalcraft candleholds were used to create these and of wire shaped, designed and skillfully soldered by Mrs. Summers.

Many facts to remember and others to avoid when handling metalcraft were given by her as several ways to overcome a few inevitable flaws were discussed.

This talk was highly entertaining, highlighted with many amusing anecdotes relating to the hobby's evolution.

Mrs. Robert Irvine thanked Mrs. Summers for her informative address and spoke of her many talents.

The president, Mrs. H. L. House, welcomed two new members to the chapter. Future plans to have Mrs. Summers' members, Mrs. V. Simmons and Mrs. J. Simpson, were discussed and several events will take place shortly. Among these will be a "welcome" party to be held by a banquet and the pledge ritual ceremony. At a later date, the pledges will be guests of "Xi" group, to serving as which will also honor the hostess of the forthcoming play. The Hostess for the October Thompson, who is a sorority member of this will appointed the chapter's cultural program in investigating the possibility of buying directly in Europe, thereby increasing the buying power. As a matter of interest it cost $4.10 to send a gift parcel of 22 lbs. of light weight material.

Several members attended the Women's Hospital Auxiliary "Fashion Fiesta" held Wednesday, en masse, and proved to be a splendid supporter for the fellow-auxiliary organization model, Mrs. Douglas Horne.

A social hour followed the business meeting. Mrs. William Pitham, director, presided at the tea service and delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. William Simpson and Mrs. Earl Brett.

Chi Rho Holds Successful Autumn Dance

Climaxing a month of careful planning and preparation, Christ Church Chi Rho threw open the doors to their "Falling Leaves Dance" Friday evening. The affair, well attended, provided patrons with a delightful program of round and square dancing. In diverse forms, as well as stunts and prizes which contributed greatly to its success. Light refreshments were served during the intermissions, tea and coffee, were served, while soft drinks, potato chips and pretzels were also available out.

Adding impressively to the occasion, with seasonal attire, the social committee members were appeared more elegant in contrasting, flaming-red, gold and brown shades. A color note emphasized among gaily colored balloons, which were released at intervals, and were strategically placed on walls and stage curtains. Various types of decorations were used in the frontals of serving tables, with delicate centrepieces of fall wood and marigolds hedged by side candlelight completed the artistry.

MANY PRIZES

Many prizes, donated by local merchants, were awarded during the course of the evening. The winners were as follows: Square dances: Mary Dack and Charles Newson; Lorna and Charles Jane Stivens and Fred Page; elimination dance: Marg Page and Bill Bowker; mad "legs" dance: Art Keller (and, again) Jane Stivens and Fred Page; elimination dance: Marg Page and Bill Bowker; mad "legs" dance: Art Keller (and, again) Jane Stivens and Fred Page; "squat dance": Marj and Bob Bulter. Two saucers, marked "X" prizes, to serving of the freshmenti, won prizes for their merchant wares. They were June Hutchison and Lorna Bates.

Under the direction of the fellowship's chairman, Al Gaskell her, all members dug in to do on committee in charge of the merchants, the services of square caller Fred Page, those that attended (other than members), the evening proved a tremendous success. One that could not be soon forgotten by anyone present.

Kinette Club Enjoys Colored African Films

The regular dinner meeting of the Belleville Kinette Club was held recently at St. Thomas' Parish House.

After the sumptuous repast everyone joined the song leaders, Kinette Rae Brain and Kinette Loreen Henderson, with a few songs. Each Kinette introduced herself and her guest.

The meeting was opened by president, Thelma Stefan. The secretary, Kinette Betty Dixon, read her report followed by the treasurer's report by Kinette Flo Pinchett.

After a short business discussion, Norma Bacon introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mr. H. Putman of Hamilton, who was one of the men who participated in "Operation Crossroads", a program that sent 186 Canadian and American students to Africa last summer.

Mr. Putman thanked Norma Bacon and spoke briefly of his trip. He read a short passage from a book before showing his films illustrating the work carried on in camping projects in Africa.

The films were most interesting and very colorful. Following the films, Mr. Putman answered questions from the members and showed some souvenirs he had brought back with him.

Kinette Loreen Henderson thanked the guest for his most interesting talk and films.

Refreshments were served and a social hour was enjoyed by all.

Trousseau Tea Honors Bride-to-Be

A delightfully arranged Trousseau Tea was held at the home of Mrs. M. E. Bronskill, 54 Queen Street, on October 29th, 1960, when Mrs. M. E. Bronskill, Miss Hilda Collier and Miss Jane Stevens entertained in honor of Miss Nora Wade, bride-elect of November.

Receiving with the guest of honor were Mrs. Wade, Mrs. W. F. Wolfe, Victoria, B.C., mother of the bride-to-be and Mrs. J. S. Barker, mother of the bridegroom-to-be.

Showing the guests to the trousseau rooms was Miss Judy Aselstine and in charge of the trousseau were Miss Mildred Wade and Miss Margaret Ann McCollum.

The tea rooms were tastefully arranged with white chrysanthemums and baby bronze 'mums. The tea table was covered with an heirloom hand-drawn cloth centred with a crystal bowl of 'mums flanked on either side by tall yellow tapers.

Pouring tea were Mrs. H. Davis, Mrs. R. Sherwin, Mrs. C. Barker and Mrs. R. Stewart, and those serving were: Mrs. Keith Chambers, Mrs. W. Barber, Miss Doris Lloyd and Miss Pat Maiden.

Family to Continue Trip To Yukon Despite Accident

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP)— A 2,000 - mile trip by covered wagon from one to British Columbia interior to Whitehorse in the Yukon nearly ended in disaster for Erich Heikkila, 37, father of three children and their 16-year-old driver, Roddie Naylor.

About 20 miles west of here a car struck their wagon, injured the driver, who was taken to Dawson Creek hospital, and killed one of the two horses. Mrs. Heikkila shot the other horse because it had been seriously injured.

The children, Wendy, 8, Linda, 6, Chris, 2½, and their mother all escaped serious injury.

"I heard the car coming," said Mrs. Heikkila, "and I told Roddie to pull over and hitch the last I remember until I came to, standing by the wagon. Roddie was crying and dead one of the horses fell on top of him. We couldn't find him at first and than it took five people to pull the horse off him."

WINTER STOPOVER

Because of the accident Mrs. Heikkila plans to spend the winter here, but she says the family will continue their wagon trek in the spring.

The group started out from Anahim Lake, B.C., about 320 miles southwest of here, last June, but stopped for a month at Williams Lake on the Hast Highway while one of the children had a operation.

"I rode in the stampede while I was here," said Mrs. Heikkila.

A conscientious mother, she is proud of the fact that Wendy and Linda have kept up with their studies by correspondence.

"They study their lessons while they're riding the horses or sitting in the wagon, and then we stop for a couple of days while they complete their lessons."

Mrs. Heikkila said the family will start up the Alaska highway in spring with three wagons and seven horses. It had originally nine "horses are quite a bit cheaper here than they are down below."

Asked why she planned to go in the Yukon, she replied: "I don't think I might stop during the winter and then guide during the hunting and fishing season. I have done that before, you know."

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Mrs. R. F. — Our son refuses to visit a grandmother she has never met.

Lloyd F. — She disowned my parents. Why revive things now?

Mrs. R. F. — They say that worms turn but this one took so long that my son got used to it on the wrong side. He wants to leave it that way!

When my husband and I were married, 36 years ago, his family disowned him. We were of different faiths. My family, too, gave us a hard time, but with the birth of our son four years later they softened somewhat. Although they were never particularly cordial to my husband, the relationship improved when Lloyd got married a few years ago. Now we all enjoy get-togethers with Lloyd, his darling wife and their three little ones.

In recent years my husband's mother, who is now 77, has started to warm up to us. I met her for the first time five years ago on Christmas. She then dressed me and gave me a beautiful heirloom bedspread. And of course my husband and I agreed to let bygones be bygones.

Now it is her fondest wish to see Lloyd, our only child, and the only grandchild she has has never seen. But Lloyd keeps refusing to call. He says she left too many years roll by. Now he's not interested.

Lloyd F. — For the 34 years of my life, I got along fine with only one set of grandparents. Why complicate my life now?

I'm not sentimental; I don't feel any strong "pull" toward family and bloodlies. Maybe I'm a cold fish when it comes to relatives.

I have scant time to go visiting. When I do, I'd rather go to people I know and like. As for this, I'm way behind on those kinds of visits.

My mother was quick to forgive and forget. But I remember how she suffered when she explained why I had "no family" on Dad's side. All on account of her, she'd say. Now that Dad's family has decided "enough's enough", why must I jump at their bidding?

They can't wipe the slate clean with a bear hug and a bed spread — nor anything else so easy. Let my grandmother keep on wanting to see me. She should have started about 30 years ago!

The Council: Lloyd is being short sighted, if not pig-headed. What is accomplished by being vindictive toward an aged woman?

His grandmother has punished herself all these years in forgoing the joy of seeing her happily married and watching her grandson grow up. She deprived herself of a rightful share of family happiness and pride. It's not in Lloyd's power, nor is his parents', to make up for that.

But before sitting in such severe judgment on this elderly ancestor, Lloyd should ask himself this question: How much free choice did the latter have in turning against her son, surely many age-old influences were pressing down on her. Chances are it wasn't pure malice or cussedness.

No matter how we prate about freedom and free will, when you look closely at people you find that so much is foreordained it's extremely hard to break loose. Only the very brave — the very reckless — and, sometimes, the very brilliant — succeed. Grandma P. was none of these.

Lloyd has nothing to lose and much to gain in greeting his grandmother at long last. Who knows but that they'll click on sight and he'll wind up adoring her? And for his children, she's a precious and interesting link with their past, an important symbol. If nine, allows she can also become a fascinating blood relation to Lloyd and his descendants, a genuine great-grandma.

Added to this, Lloyd will be making things smoother for his father and mother who are eager for an end to family feuds. The grandmother is a victim of her past. Lloyd Senior is her present and waning future.

DESERONTO — The November meeting of the Afternoon Guild of St. Mark's Church, Deseronto, was held in the rectory on the afternoon of November 3rd with a good attendance.

The president opened the meeting.

A new member, Mrs. A. Wakelin, was welcomed as was a visitor, Mrs. Ross. The only correspondence to be read was a letter from the T. Eaton Co. A lovely parcel of remnants donated by Simpson-Sears was distributed to the members to be made into articles for the bazaar.

A favorable report was given by the treasurer.

Mrs. Walter Joyce of the Evening Guild addressed the group regarding arrangements for the bazaar on November 30th which will be a joint affair.

The Afternoon Guild will meet in the Church Hall on December 1st for a pot-luck supper and the exchange of gifts for members only.

Canon Coleman closed the meeting with prayer. Mrs. Cole-man, assisted by Mrs. Wakelin served a dainty lunch and a social half hour was spent.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Coleman by the Association.

Grade X — Rosemary Brady, grade XI, Anne Neal, grade XII Joanne Bertrand.

High School Board prizes — grade IX 1st award, Jane Neal; 2nd, Dianne Bell; grade X 1st, Rosemary Brady; 2nd, Linda Middleton; grade XI, 1st Anne Neal; 2nd Phyllis Neal, grade XII, 1st award, Joanne Bertrand; 2nd William Flynn.

Agriculture grade IX Douglas Howden; grade X — Leo Shannon.

Attendance cups were presented to 4th Lapels and 31 pupils were named in the honor roll. A quartet of girls, under the direction of Mrs. R. Hover, sang "Blow, Balmy Breeze". They were Dianne Bell, Linda Glover, Sandra Gray and Joan Lemcke.

Also interspersed in the awards was a piano duet, "Roses From the South", played by Jane McCarthy and Rosemary Brady.

Following the awarding of diplomas and prizes, the students enjoyed a dance until 1 a.m. when graduates of the 61 class were hosts.

ABOVE TORONTO

TORONTO (CP)—The port of Hamilton is expected to establish cargo records in overseas trade this year but the port of Toronto is not far behind in last year's tonnage. Statistics released Friday show Hamilton's total tonnage handled was 7,923,138 to Oct. 31, compared with 6,741,822 at the same date last year. The port of Toronto had handled 376,038 tons as of Oct. 31 compared with 378,859 last year.

Doughnuts Drop and Regular

By Mary Moore

Do you want to have a party for your pre-teens or teen-agers and serve something that they will enjoy and that will cost little?

One of the mothers of a bunch of teen-agers that I know made doughnuts — drop doughnuts — and served them with fresh cider. Twenty of them consumed 3 gallons of cider during and after they danced to Hi-Fi music. Isabel said she made the following recipe up twice to have a yield of 9 dozen doughnut balls about 1 1-4" in diameter. They ate all but 3 which were reluctantly left for Dad to take.

If desired, to sugar doughnuts, put before serving time, shake each doughnut in a paper bag with a little granulated or icing sugar.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

Baked Ham Slice; Duchess Sweet Potatoes; Brussels Sprouts; Shredded Carrot and Lettuce Salad; Apricot Cobbler with Milk; Tea.

SUNDAY

Orange Juice; Chicken with Pilaf (see Wednesday); Cauliflower with Parsley White Sauce; Wedges of Lettuce with Roquefort Dressing; Chocolate Soufflé; Coffee.

DOUGHNUT DROPS:

2 eggs, 1/3 tablespoons sugar (1-2 cup plus 2 tablespoons), 2 tablespoons salad oil, 1-3 cup milk, 1 teaspoon lemon extract, 1 1-3 teaspoons finely grated lemon peel, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon, granulated sugar for coating.

Beat eggs with sugar, salad oil, milk, lemon extract, and lemon peel until light. Sift remaining ingredients and stir into liquid. Blend mixture until smooth. Drop by measuring teaspoonfuls into hot fat heated to 365 deg. Fry, turning often, 3 to 5 minutes, or until golden-brown. Drain on absorbent paper and sprinkle with granulated sugar. Make 4 1-2 to 5 dozen.

TENDER POTATO DOUGHNUTS

2 eggs, 3-4 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons soft shortening, 2 3-4 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 4 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon mace, 1 cup mashed potato (unseasoned).

Beat eggs well, then beat in sugar and shortening until smooth. Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt, nutmeg and mace and add alternately with the mashed potato until dough is smooth. Chill dough at least 2 hours. While rolling and cutting out doughnuts, heat fat to 375 deg. Fry. Lift doughnuts with wide spatula and slide quickly into hot fat, frying only about 4 or 5 at one time. As they rise to surface and are beginning to brown, turn over, frying about 2 minutes in all. Lift out with long fork without pricking doughnuts, drain over edge of kettle for a moment, then transfer to paper towel. This amount makes 3 dozen 2 1-2" doughnuts.

P.S. Holds Graduation Banquet

POINT ANNE — The annual graduation banquet for the Point Anne Public School was held recently in the club house.

In the absence of the Reverend A. McDowell, Mr. A. O. Dryadale gave the invocation.

Following a toast to the Queen the ladies of the Parent Teacher's Association served a delicious turkey dinner.

The president, Mrs. Charles Hart, welcomed the graduates, guests and parents and thanked all those who were in any way responsible for the success of the evening. She introduced Mr. H. O. Walkom, the former principal, who had been the principal of Point Anne Public School for more than 30 years.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. Walkom, after a few special remarks, introduced the guest speaker, Mr. James Musgrove, principal of Moira Secondary School who told the graduates about the importance of doing one's best and most of all, being oneself and honestly trying.

Mr. Frank Insley thanked Mr. Musgrove.

Mr. A. O. Dryadale was introduced by the president, and thanked everyone for the pleasant evening and, on behalf of the Canada Cement Company, presented graduation pins to the following:

Miss Suzanne Insley; Miss Carolyn Chisholm; Miss Peggy Hull; Miss Linda Marcle; Miss Dorothy Reesole; Miss Mary MacDonald; Miss Penny Hart and Master William Jubry.

HOW TO ADDDRESS WEDDING INVITATIONS

To return to our wedding plans. The next step, after learning who assuming the financial obligations, and how to prepare the guest list, (which I covered recently) is to know how to correctly address the wedding invitations.

Two envelopes are proper for the formal wedding. But it seems like a waste of paper, you say? Why two envelopes? For two reasons. One, tradition gives this all-important announcement the dignity it deserves. Two, the Invitation should arrive at is destination unbent and unsullied in any way. The inner envelope is unguumed and is, of course, not sealed. The invitation is placed in it, and then inserted into the outer envelope so that the front of it faces you as you open it.

Now, about addressing the envelopes! The same rules hold good for both the wedding invitation itself, and for the announcements if they are to be issued instead. They must always be handwritten. Never typed. Make every effort to be sure that the writing is legible and neat. Never resort to the use of abbreviations, except "Mr." and "Mrs." Figures may be used for house numbers, but not names, cities and states are spelled out in full, as are names of those being addressed.

Correctly written, the outside envelope should read: Mr. and Mrs. John Philip Dow 1520 East Tenth Street Chicago, 31, Illinois.

On the inner envelope only the surname is written: "Mr. and Mrs. Dow." Of course, no address is included.

Never use the phrase "and Family" when addressing wedding invitations or announcements. Greater courtesy is shown to the individual adult members of a family by sending them separate invitations. For example, a daughter, sixteen or over, would be addressed as "Miss Mary Sue Dow" on the outside envelope, and "Miss Dow" would be placed on the inner one.

When placing the invitation in the envelope, do not remove the little piece of tissue that the stationer has inserted. It is there for a purpose. Engraving is likely to smudge. To be sure that the invitation arrives in spotless condition, the tissue should be retained.

Invitations should be placed in the mail (all at the same time) four weeks, or at the very least three, before the wedding is to take place. Announcements should be mailed the day the ceremony is performed.

"Lines on Life"

By Dr. Stuart B. Rosenberg

Who asked the question of the angel? And who shall stand in His holy place?

It is often think of the Psalmist's query as a single question. Actually, he has posed two different and distinct problems: "Who can rise up? And who can stay up?"

It is one thing to go up; quite another to remain up. There are many who can, on occasion, rise to the occasion. Great moments call out greatness as deep calleth unto deep. But how many possess the spiritual stamina to stay at the heights? How many can keep their head and spirits high and stay at the top when the going gets rough? Staying power is the real test of character.

One thinks of religious-minded people and the tremendous force for good they could build if they had staying power. The lives of the poor about such people come to mind:

"They do it every Sunday. They'll be 'all right' on Monday —

It's just a little habit they've acquired."

Most of us are innoculated with a very mild form of religion, and as a result we are immune to the genuine article. North America boasts over 55 million religious adherents. If 55 million people did more than just go to the mountain of the Lord, if they would also to learn how to stay there, the world could become a radically different place. Materialism besirides the globe like a mighty giant. It is no form — it is a force! We cannot meet a force with a form.

This is the principal underlying problem of democracy. If democratic freedom is to become a force in the world, we'll have to learn how to stay on top of our ideals; to take our democratic responsibilities as seriously as we take our benefits. No conventional acceptance will do. For the whole earth has become a mammoth battlefield where not shadows but dynamic forces are contending. It will not do for us merely to rise to an occasional peak and forever after smugly rest on our laurels. We shall have to climb ever-higher peaks and learn how to stay there.

If those who truly believe in democracy behaved as if they meant what they said, we could change the world tomorrow.

Women's Activities

SHANNONVILLE W.G.

The last meeting for October of the Women's Guild of Shannonville was held at the home of Mrs. A. McKenzie with ten members present.

The president, Mrs. S. Fitzgerald opened the meeting.

Mrs. H. Houston and Mrs. W. Edwards put in their birthday offering.

Mrs. A. McGeachie thanked the Guild for a card sent to her father, Mr. W. McFarlane, Mrs. J. Williams also thanked the Guild for a card sent to Donala.

Mrs. R. Cook read notes of appreciation from Mr. and Mrs. R. McFarlane and Mrs. S. McDonald. Some summer fodders were handed in. The treasurer gave her report.

A turkey dinner is planned for November 22nd to be held at the home of Mrs. A. McGeachie, all details to be finished at the next meeting.

Mrs. S. Fitzgerald closed the meeting.

The next meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. W. Houston on November 10th.

Mrs. A. McKenzie to be in charge of the devotional and Mrs. W. Houston and Mrs. R. Cook of the program.

Mrs. Fitzgerald thanked the hostess for a delicious lunch and, Mrs. J. Williams for hospitality.

MOIRA W.A.

MOIRA — On Wednesday afternoon Moira W.A. sponsored a tea and bazaar in Derry School Hall, which was well attended.

Mrs. Wesley Farrel opened the meeting by welcoming the guests. Bible reading was by Mrs. Milton Vanderwater and comments by Mrs. Donald McGarvey.

Mrs. W. Farrel declared the bazaar and tea open.

Refreshments were served and Mrs. Charlotte Vanderwater and Mrs. Frank Emerson poured tea for the first portion, and Mrs. Earl Mikel and Mrs. George Foster for the last part.

The financial returns for the afternoon were gratifying, and to those in charge, the W.A. wishes to say "Thank You" for their time and help, due to the guests, for making the afternoon such a success.

Soviet Prisons Said Too Much Like Home

By JOHN MILLER

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet prison life is under fire in the local press as being "too much like home."

Prisoners are coddled, according to Sverdlovskaya Rosiia, the Russian Federation Communist party newspaper. They do embroidery. It says, instead of hard work. Entertainment is not educational. Prisoners are not made to realize the guilt.

Prisons and corrective labor camps are accused of too often giving convicted criminals too soft a time "just like hotel life but without paying any bills."

Sverdlovskaya Rosiia found that hard-working inmates can earn 750 rubles (about $75 at the official tourist exchange rate) a month, or almost as much as the average industrial working wage.

GOOD WAGES

A prisoner working "reasonably well" may earn 500 rubles (about $37) and even the idler gets 175 rubles (about $17) — more than enough to cover the 100 to 130 rubles (about $10 to $13) deducted from prison earnings for food.

Prisoners, it is stated, have the right to soap, clothing, matches, tobacco, to receive parcels, to education, to a change of bed linen every 10 days, to free medical attention and to false teeth. There is volleyball, guitar-playing and sing-songs.

Some prisoners complain that they are shown movies they have seen before being sent to prison. One complained that there was no casino.

Prisoners, the newspaper declares, should follow a prison routine designed to accustom them to honest work, discipline and the "socialist way of life."

"There should be no soft beds, a special prison garb instead of ordinary clothes, no candy shops, no delicatessens. For people who embezzle or waste state money, there should be one condition: Stay in prison until you refund your debt."

Cattle Poisoned By Carelessness

TORONTO — A surprising number of cattle were poisoned this year with insecticides and herbicides, reports Dr. Howard Neely of the Ontario Veterinary College. Apparently too few people have been reading and heeding the warning labels on the containers.

"We have seen cases, this past year, where barn sprays were being used directly on the livestock. This practice is dangerous," emphasizes the veterinarian, "It can frequently cause death of the cattle and certainly will cause cattle to be sick."

Manufacturers of barn sprays stress that barn sprays should be used when there are no cattle in the building or area.

An affected animal usually will slobber, points out Dr. Neely. Its eyes become swollen. Frequently the tongue is out on the side of the mouth. Sometimes there is shivering.

"Some farmers have suspected that there is a choke, particularly if the animals have been fed turnips," he observes.

In one herd our Farm Service reported a loss of 20 per cent of the cattle during a 24-hour period.

Some herbicides are a problem, too, says the veterinarian. The spray — sodium arsenate — will kill potato tops. The spray will also kill cattle if they eat the tops or if the wind carries the spray to adjoining pastures and lanes.

"I recall seeing seven big steers lying dead in the barnyard one day as a result of spray drift."

We've got to remember that the sprays were developed and licensed for a purpose. Read the directions carefully before you apply the product.

Dr. Neely feels that custom operators should be cautioned about care with sprays around farms. He feels that they should inform the farmers of poison dangers. Manufacturers might also consider making labels bold and legible — not a fine contract-like type.

"Jest a Second"

"I tell him Corsets. He's tied up all day and let loose at night."

Mrs. R. Collins, Toronto, and Mrs. Bert Raitray were Friday guests of the former's sister-in-law, Mrs. Norman Tice.

Mrs. Donald Root and baby daughter have returned from Picton Hospital and are with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Allen Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wanamaker visited in Newcastle, Oshawa and Bowmanville at the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Russel Eaton, Hamilton, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. N. Tice.

Mrs. M. Trumpour was a recent guest of Mrs. Walter Nelson, at Wellington.

Grain Handlers May Be Out For Long Time

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thousands of tons of grain sat heavily in five grester Vancouver elevators today, tied up by a strike of 325 grain handlers.

The walkout started at midnight Tuesday night. A meeting prior to the deadline failed to settle contract issues between the companies and Local 333 of the Grain Workers' Union (CLC).

A union spokesman said the strike "looks like a long one."

The tieup is the second this year. Last spring grain arrived here from the Prairies wet or frozen and a long drying process halted shipments.

Government mediator George Carrie said there has been no indication that the federal government will intervene.

The elevators involved are the Alberta Wheat Pool, Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, Pacific Elevators, United Grain Growers and Burrard Terminals. They have a total capacity of 21,000,000 bushels.

Ed Sims, Canadian director of the International Union of Brewery Workers of America with which Local 333 is affiliated, said:

"Carrie made an honest, strenuous effort, but there has been no indication in the last 11 months of any attempt by the companies in trying to negotiate. The companies never offered a figure of their own on wages."

Company spokesmen were not available for comment.

Sims said wage adjustments and vacations were the main stumbling blocks.

Even before the strike became official, its effects were felt. Canadian Pacific Railway placed an embargo on all grain shipments at Vancouver and Canadian National Railways followed suit. An estimated 3,000 boxcars loaded with grain have been held up on the western Prairies.

Three ships were idle at berth here today, unable to load, and another eight, waiting to load, were anchored in the harbor.

In the tieup last spring it was said the daily expense of each of the ships tied up in midstream was $1,000.

Aussies Want Special Type Merino Ewes

By HAROLD TILLEY,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CANBERRA (CP) — Australian scientists are trying to develop a merino ewe with the habit of having twins — or even triplets.

The Australian merino is virtually the backbone of the country's economy. It's skinny body grows wool five to eight inches thick and from it comes a little less than a third of the world's output.

Canada buys more than half her sourced wool imports from Australia. And the suit the average Canadian business man wears or his wife's woollen skirt is most probably made of cloth woven in England from Australian merino wool.

But the merino has a disadvantage — it does not breed enough lambs. Of every 100 ewes mated, only an average of 90 lambs are born. Other breeds — bodied types of sheep bred for the meat industry produce about 120 lambs for the same number of matings.

A FEW DO

Some types of merino ewes do have multiple births. One of the famed Boorooola sheep station ranch in the state of New South Wales has given birth to five sets of quintuplets.

So a search for this type of ewe is being made among Australia's 150,000,000 sheep by the Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Organization—a federal government group that does things like putting chemicals into women's skirts so the pleats do not come out, or putting chemicals into clouds to make them rain.

The organization put 190 of these ewes on its "outdoor laboratory", a sheep station near Deniliquin, N.S.W. When these ewes mated, they produced 240 lambs in one year. There were a set of quintuplets, eight sets of quads, 40 sets of triplets, 79 sets of twins and 88 single lambs. This was a birthrate of 195 per cent.

DRAWBACKS

Some of the multiple births did not survive and many of those that did gave up about a half-pound less — than - average wool when eventually shorn.

But when lambing reached these proportions it was only a small disadvantage.

Now that heredity has been found to increase the production rate of Australian sheep — and there are 13 times more sheep in Australia than there are people—the organization is searching for a hormone that may push it still further.

IMPERSONATED VOTERS

MONTREAL (CP)—Four men were sentenced Tuesday to jail terms of from 10 to 30 days in municipal court for impersonating voters in Montreal's Oct. 24 municipal election. Among them was Victor Arnold, 30, and Michael Wood, 21,e both of Toronto, each was sentenced to 30 days in jail.

Mrs. F. Smith spent the past weekend in Peterborough visiting at the home of her son, Mr. Lawrence Wilson, Mrs. Wilson and family.

Those from Eggleton W. A. who attended the bazaar and tea sponsored by Moira W.A. last Wednesday afternoon were: Mesdames Maurice Clancy, Forde Stapley, Keith Johnson, Warren Harlow, Nathan Wennaker and Clarence Fitchett.

Messrs. Raymond and Harold Chambers received word that their brother, Hubert Chambers had passed away in the Kitchener Waterloo Hospital on Saturday of last week. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Chambers, Mr. Raymond Chambers, Mrs. Burkitt and Mrs. Russell Sills attended the funeral at Kitchener the following Tuesday. Friends here wish to extend sympathy to all the bereaved.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fitchett were dinner guests on Sunday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Harlow of Stirling.

Mrs. William McMullen and Mrs. Bruce Stapley attended the bazaar and tea, held in St. John's Parish Hall in Stirling, under the auspices of the Afternoon Guild, on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Carl Bridges spent part of last week visiting with relatives at Renfrew.

Members of Eggleton Mission Band spent Saturday afternoon selling boxes of Christmas cards for the local mission band funds.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clancy and Lloyd attended anniversary service at Mount Pleasant United Church last Sunday morning and were dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Merrick, Carolyn and Glenn.

Those from here, who attended the autumn rally of the Belleville east section of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, which was held November 10 at Cannifton United Church were Mesdames Maurice Clancy, Bruce Stapley, William McMullen and C. Fitchett.

Mr. W. Lindenfield visited Eggleton Sunday School on Sunday morning.

Carmel

CARMEL — There was a good attendance at church service on Sunday morning, also at Sunday School.

Mrs. Edna Moorman, who has been in town for a few weeks, is home again.

Mrs. John Reynolds was a recent caller of Mrs. Henry Gerow, Foxboro.

Several of the W.M.S. ladies of Carmel took in the bazaar at Foxboro, on Wednesday afternoon.

Carmel community was shocked at the sudden passing of Mrs. Fred Hall, who suffered a heart attack on Thursday in Belleville, with her daughter, Mrs. Chisholm of Roslin. Heartfelt sympathy is extended to all.

The funeral was held at Mr. and Mrs. D. Chisholm's home, on Sunday at 2 p.m.

The W.M.S. rally was held at Cannifton on Monday morning and afternoon, with a large number of W.M.S. workers present. Dinner was enjoyed in the Sunday School room.

Mrs. George Vanderwater, Toronto, spent a week with Mrs. H. Dafoe, Carmel, and made many calls in the community.

Mrs. M. Pitman and daughter, Grace, also Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wells, Stirling, Mr. and Mrs. D. Williams and girls, Belleville, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pitman, Carmel.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Reynolds, Nancy and Jennie, Madoc, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Reynolds and boys. At the same home guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Reynolds, Foxboro.

Carmel W.M.S. meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Gowthorpe on Wednesday evening with a good attendance, and a good program was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clarke and family have recently moved into their new home on the Fifth Line.

Glad to report Mr. McCauley is improving, having injured his foot while hunting.

Mr. Beaudrau, who, with many others, is enjoying the hunters' season.

Mrs. J. Reynolds visited with her great granddaughter and boys.

Grain Tieup in Montreal Port Continues With Situation Complicated by SIU Walkout

MONTREAL (CP) — Grain laden ships lay idle in Montreal's harbor today and Nr 17,000,000 bushel elevators remained filled as a tieup in shipments continued.

The situation has been complicated by a walkout by members of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) against two shipping companies—W. M. Paterson and Sons Limited and Scott Misener Steamships Limited.

One shipping official said: "The struck ships can't be unloaded and they're blocking the piers so other ships can't move into position to be unloaded."

Lack of sales in the export market is blamed for the clogged elevators and as long as the elevators are loaded to capacity, 25 ships may be docked in the harbor or downstream are unable to unload their cargoes.

ARBITRATION

John N. Peterson, president of the Association of Lake Carriers, called on the federal government to intervene in the walkout. In a telegram sent Wednesday to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, he said that the strike is a "serious strain" be placed on Hal C. Banks, Canadian director of the SIU.

SIU members walked off ships at the Canada Steamship Lines Montreal because they claim the company refused to sign a new contract with the National Association of Marine Engineers (CLC).

The SIU said the proposed agreement with the N.A.M.E. would have cut salaries and holiday pay considerably for the unemployed. They, in turn, said Labor Minister Starr had been unhelpful.

Shippers in Montreal are trying to unload ships that have left them back into the Great Lakes for winter storage, rather than face the scheduled Nov. 30 closing of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

GRAIN MOVEMENT UP TOO

Grain problems are not confined to Montreal. Across the country, millions of bushels of grain remained in five elevators, tied up by a strike of grain handlers.

The walkout started at midnight Tuesday after an earlier meeting failed to produce a wage settlement between the companies and Local 333 of the Grain Workers' Union, an affiliate of the International Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery of America (CLC).

Before the walkout became official, the CNR and the CPR placed embargoes on all grain movements in Vancouver to escape 3,000 grain-loaded boxcars reported being held up on the western prairies.

Accused Freed Of Attempting To Murder Wife

TORONTO (CP) — William Kingan, 63, was acquitted Wednesday on a charge of attempting to murder his 62-year-old invalid wife by knotting a plastic bag over her head July 16.

The all-male seven count jury returned the verdict after eight hours' deliberation.

Kingan left the court with friends who were uncertain about his future. His wife now is believed to be permanently confined in hospital, crippled with arthritis.

Evidence in the trial showed Kingan had been a devoted husband, caring for his wife who was disabled by arthritis for 25 years, doing the housework, preparing the meals and washing the dishes.

He cared for their son Teddy, born a cripple, who died two years ago at 15.

Austin Cooper, Kingan's counsel, described him as long-suffering, conscientious and uncomplaining.

"It's a wonder he stood up as long as he did. Not many could have," said Crown counsel Henry H. Bull.

Accused Guilty Of Extortion

HAMILTON — (CP) — A man who was alleged to have demanded $800 from a woman "to buy her wife" was found guilty Wednesday of extortion and fraud.

Grabtus Pieper was remanded in custody a week for sentence. He had pleaded not guilty.

In evidence last week in magistrate's court, Mrs. Tamara Lewczuk said Pieper had told her that her husband was trying to arrange her murder, at a fee of $1,800.

She said Pieper had told her he could stop the plot "if you pay something for that." She said he later asked for $800.

Mrs. Lewczuk's husband, Wasil Lewczuk, in evidence last week, denied that he had arranged to have his wife killed and denied ever having met Pieper.

325 Grain Handlers Tie Up West Coast's Export Trade

VANCOUVER (CP)—The unresolved differences of a comparatively small portion of British Columbia's restive working force and its employers have virtually halted West Coast grain exports.

A total of 325 grain handlers went on strike Tuesday at five lower mainland elevators, also tying up about 3,000 boxcars of grain, originally headed for the Prairie sidings.

The dispute, between members of Local 333 of the Grain Workers Union (CLC) and the Interlake Wheat Pool, Pacific Elevators, United Grain Growers and Burrard Terminals, centres around the wage and fringe benefits. Negotiations continue today.

East of here on the incomplete $23,000,000 Port Mann Bridge, part of the province's Trans-Canada Highway complex, a bridge crew was recently fired for allegedly conducting an illegal strike following the firing of an employee for incompetence.

CLAIM ACT VIOLATED

The contractors, Perini Pacific Limited, later charged officers of Local 115 of the International Union of Operating Engineers (CLC), with violations of the Labor Relations Act. The charges will be heard at a date to be set.

Another hotspot was a continuing battle between the independent Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Transport and General Workers Union and the rival Railway, Transport and General Workers Union (CLC) for control of the waterfront.

The SIU has won two important battles during the last week. The latest came Tuesday when the B.C. Appeal Court upheld a labor relations board ruling that allowed the SIU to bargain for employees of the Black Ball Ferry Line.

A. T. Baker, general manager of the Alberta Wheat Pool, said in Calgary a prolonged strike of grain handlers here will threaten grain export markets.

It was learned that the employers offered a settlement package of $200 to each employee and a minimum rate of $2.25 an hour, with three weeks' paid holiday after six years. The offer was believed rejected before the strike started.

The handlers seek two seven-per-cent hourly wage increases over two years, vacation of three weeks after five years and four weeks after 15 years. The former contract gave them $2.01¼ an hour plus a cost-of-living bonus and two weeks' vacation with pay after 7½ years.

Nine other passengers on the bus were released after treatment for various bruises. The accident occurred as the bus was turning off Carling Avenue.

All the injured are reported in fair condition.

Saving Bonds Campaign Now In Final Week

TORONTO — With the 1960 Canada Savings Bonds campaign now in its final week, officials of the Ontario payroll savings organization are making a concerted effort to chalk up a 10 per cent increase over last year's total.

The latest figures on sales through the payroll plan in the Eastern Ontario area total $12,823,000- for 91.3% of the 1960 objective.

Among the leading organizers in volume of sales and 5 percentage of objective attained to date are: D. K. Drury, 102.3% and P. W. O'Connor, 97.8%.

Supervisor of the region is Walter F. Wilson.

C. G. Beatty, regional director of the campaign, says the ensuing week will see an all-out effort by the 30 supervisors and organizers throughout the province to "go over the top".

Nikita's Congratulations To Kennedy Seen Manoeuvre Toward Summit, Lull in War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet support of the Soviet government."

Premier Nikita Khrushchev apparently is manoeuvring for a summit conference with American President-elect John Kennedy. He has begun with soft words and has probably signalled a lull in the Cold War for the next several months.

Western diplomats here agree that Khrushchev's interest in resuming negotiations looking to a summit meeting was behind the unusual message of congratulations which he addressed to Kennedy Wednesday.

In his message, Khrushchev called for a return to the kind of Soviet - United States relations which existed in the administration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt at a time when the two countries were allied against Nazi Germany. But he went beyond that reference to the past. He declared that in the interest of world peace the Soviet Union is ready "to continue the talks to solve even a pressing problem as disarmament, to settle the German issue through the peaceful conclusion of a peace treaty and to reach agreement on other questions."

"Any steps in this direction," he said in a sentence that could encourage both summit and diplomatic negotiations, "will always meet with the full understanding

Kennedy during the campaign declared himself willing to go to the summit but only on condition that "there is some reason to believe that a meeting of minds can be obtained on either Berlin, space, or general disarmament—including nuclear testing."

Khrushchev has said repeatedly that he wants a peace treaty signed separately by East and West Germany, whereas the U.S. insists firm on a peace treaty signed by a united Germany. Khrushchev wants the Western allies to pull out of West Berlin. Kennedy, like President Eisenhower, has pledged firm U.S. support for the continued independence of West Berlin from Communist rule.

Some top diplomats here said Khrushchev's friendly tone to Kennedy may be related to the top-level meeting of Communist leaders in Moscow this week. It could be, they said, an effort by Khrushchev to demonstrate that he still has a chance to make peaceful co-existence work.

Lot o' Luck In Winning Barley Title

CORDEN (CP) — The world's best new barley champion, 17 - year - old Allie McGaghran of Cobden, Wednesday night attributed his success to two people — his father and Lady Luck.

In a telephone interview at his Ottawa River Valley home, Allie said he would never have won without the expert training of his father and "a lot o' luck."

Allie, a 4-H member for four years, said that it felt "just great" to be a world's champion.

"I didn't use any special method," he said. "Dad and I just let the stuff grow."

A grade 12 honor student at Cobden and District high school, Allie helps farm his father's 200-acre wheat and oats farms.

Allie's entry, York barley, placed third at the Ottawa Winter Fair before he brought it to Toronto for the world's championship.

Canadian Banks Embarrassed By Favored Treatment Given Them by Castro Government

Jack Best of The Canadian Press is in Cuba to report on Canada-Cuban trade relations. In this story he examines the activities of Canadian banks in Cuba as a result of the deterioration in United States - Cuban relations.

By JACK BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HAVANA (CP)—The Canadian banks in Cuba, long a bulwark of the island's economy, have been placed in an uncomfortable position by a nationalization program which on the face of it appears to favor them.

Unlike the American banks in a country which is seething with political unrest and economic uncertainty, the Royal Bank of Canada and the Bank of Nova Scotia have not been taken over by Premier Fidel Castro's revolutionary regime.

At times, officials of the two institutions must wish they had been.

The Communist-style regime's wholesale nationalization of industry and business has deprived the banks of their bread-and-butter customers—state enterprises must deal with state banks—and the placing of full control over foreign trade in the hands of a state buying authority has forced importing concerns out of business and left them heavily in debt.

"They left us in business and they're going to keep us in business," said a spokesman for one of the banks.

Adding to their troubles is the general business stagnation.

The banks are not being cut out even if they wanted to. Under revolutionary laws, businessmen are forbidden to close down without permission.

Well informed sources say the banks might be better off if they had been nationalized. At least, they might stand a chance of col-lagain.

Castro has said the two Canadian banks were spared because they did not attempt to obstruct the revolution. Many observers, however, contend that Castro's government likely felt the banks would be of more use to it if left alone. They point to the recent outpouring of sentiment towards Canada in the government-controlled press, the profound satisfaction with which officials here greeted Prime Minister Diefenbaker's statement that Canada would not join in the U.S. trade embargo against Cuba.

The two banks at the end of 1959 had assets totalling $217,000,000 in Cuba—$160,000,000 of it belonging to the Royal, which has 24 branches in Cuba compared with eight for the Bank of Nova Scotia. Twenty of the Royal's branches are managed by Cubans. The 300 people employed by the Royal, all but 20 of them Cubans, form the bank's biggest foreign operation.

The Bank of Nova Scotia employs 150 persons, most of whom are non-Cubans. Six of the eight branches are run by Cubans.

The Royal Bank has been in Cuba for 52 years. The Bank of Nova Scotia has been here for 52 years. Both have grown rich on the Cuban boom by the brisk trade which has always flowed between the island republic and its Yankee mentor provinces.

Now the two banks are struggling to stay afloat until times change. Cuba is known as the island of cash. That was official of one of them. "It often goes unspoken, but it always boils up they might stand a chance of col-lagain."

Provinces Showing Interest In Federal Plan to Widen Uses of Agricultural Land

OTTAWA (CP)—The provinces reacted with interest Wednesday to federal plans for widening the uses of agricultural land in an attempt to improve the farm income problem.

Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton set out the broad lines of a national rural rehabilitation and development program to be discussed by federal - provincial conferences.

The provinces expressed interest. But Manitoba said it has specified what it wants to know the costs involved for the projects to be undertaken before it presents proposals with the provinces.

Mr. Hamilton in Regina Monday, singled out the Prairies as the heart of the farm problem. He said the west has lagged behind those for other sectors of the economy and that the wheat surplus is the key to Prairie income.

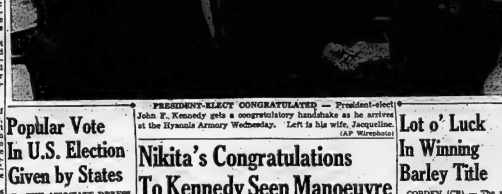
HOPE FOR LESS WHEAT

Informants said the federal government would like to see wheat acreage trimmed from the 35-year average of 27,000,000 acres to a target of 17,000,000 acres.

This would be done by putting more marginal farm land into pasture, recreation, side crops such as rapeseed which provides vegetable oil, or forestry.

Mr. Hamilton reiterated Wednesday, in speaking to the open meeting of the federal-provincial agricultural conference, that Canada may be hard pressed in the next 15 years to meet surging world demand for paper products. Hence his proposition which is turning marginal land across the country like woodlots as a long-term source of revenue.

USING LESS BUTTER



Generally, he said, the farm picture "isn't too bad" excepting the certain situation such as dairying where butter consumption continues to decline and milk production rises more than proportionally.

Agriculture Minister W. A. Goodfellow of Ontario said he felt all federal-provincial programs should be discussed first if only to see what the tab would be for the province.

The conference met in closed session Monday and Tuesday and further closed meetings continue today among provincial authorities, farm groups and federal officials.

A forecast for 1961 Wednesday said the outlook is uncertain. Farm income might rise slightly but higher costs—a continuation of the cost-price squeeze—might nullify gains.

The Canadian Federation of Agriculture urged support for development plans and said farm-controlled marketing and production

Lived on Frozen Apples, Ditch Water 3 Weeks

GUELPH (CP)—Bert James, who lived on frozen apples and ditch water for three weeks and was near death from starvation, pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing pleaded guilty Wednesday to food.

A doctor who examined James after his arrest by provincial police said he would have died within 48 hours if he hadn't been found. He had been sleeping in ditches, barns and culverts.

Police said James stole 56 pounds of sausage from a farmhouse. He was remanded to Nov. 16 for sentence.

Fraud Charge Is Withdrawn

TORONTO (CP) — The Crown Wednesday withdrew a fraud charge involving $200,000 laid last week against the president of a Toronto importing company.

Magistrate W. F. R. Rogers permitted withdrawal of the charge against Yassin Rabah, 37, an Iraqui national who has been in Canada for the past two years.

Crown counsel N. D. McRae said the step was taken after consultation with the attorney-general's office. No reason was given.

BELFAST SHIPYARD — The hull of a ship (left) begins to take shape in the Belfast shipyard of Harland and Wolff Limited, one of the world's largest. Northern Ireland Starts Drive To Diversify and Expand Industry to Cut Unemployed

During a tour of Northern Ireland, Tom Ozanda of CP's London bureau talked with businessmen and government officials about efforts to build up the nation's industrial base. In this story he reports on the campaign to make Northern Ireland attractive to foreign capital.

BY DAVE OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (CP)—Thirteen years ago a Canadian textile firm and a British financier teamed up to start making women's hosiery, in a factory at Enniskillen, overlooking picturesque Lough Erne deep in the heart of Northern Ireland.

Their decision puzzled many and there were none who doubted that the operation would ever be profitable. Raw materials had to be brought in and the finished product had to be shipped to markets hundreds, sometimes thousands, of miles away.

But the scoffers soon were having second thoughts. The company, Taylor Woods Limited, expanded twice — once in 1953 and again a year later. It now provides jobs for 750 and pumps about $25,000 a week into the local economy.

This is one of scores of business success stories resulting from Northern Ireland's drive to diversify and expand its industrial base. The goal is to cut unemployment and provide a cushion against a feared recession in the shipbuilding and aircraft industries.

MANY NEW FIRMS

Since 1945, when the commerce ministry started its campaign, more than 150 companies have started operations. They turn out products ranging from petrochemicals to oil well drilling bits, turbines and spectacles.

A measure of the campaign's usefulness is that unemployment has been trimmed from a high of almost 30,000 in 1953 to the current figure of about 30,000—still a worrying six per cent of the total number of workers.

"We picked Northern Ireland because its government offered us more help than any other," says M. B. Hughes, the British managing director of the hosiery-making firm once controlled by York Knitting Mills of Toronto.

Hughes said his firm was influenced by existence of an untapped labor pool in the area 100 miles southwest of Belfast and the generous government inducements. The government built the factory to the company's design and provided it rent-free for the first five years. The firm now pays a rental of about 15 cents a square foot, compared with the going rate of about $1 in the London area.

FUEL SUBSIDIZED

In addition, the treasury subsidizes coal and fuel costs and foots the bill for one-third of practically all capital expenditures.

"We regard this sort of help as a social investment—not as a commercial proposition," said a high-ranking official in Belfast.

"The rents are fixed and the grants made, not with the idea of giving us a return on our investment, but with the goal of attracting more industry to provide more jobs."

A few investors, notably the du Pont Company, do not take advantage of the available grants. This American corporation this year opened a neoprene plant at Londonderry, an operation that provides jobs for 400 persons in the area.

"We didn't get any great or subsidy," said work's manager John Weyrich, a soft - spoken American. "But the commerce ministry was a tremendous help in assisting us to meet requirements for good transportation for raw materials and products, plentiful water and power supplies."

TOUGH TIMES AHEAD

The importance of Northern Ireland's drive will almost certainly become obvious in the next year or two. Difficult times appear to be looming in the big industries that, historically, have been the important.

The linen industry has been forced steadily since the war to cut its work force, now 35,000.

The trend in agriculture is towards larger units and increased mechanization, pushing farm workers into the industrial labor market.

But the big worries are over the future of aircraft and shipbuilding. Employment in the aircraft industry dropped steadily from a peak of 30,000 during the war to its current level of about 8,500. Recently a four-day week was started as orders for planes dwindled.

Shipbuilding has held up well since the war, but the world surplus of shipping is discouraging new orders.

RECESSION FORESEEN

"The outlook here is good for at least the next 12 months," said Dr. Dennis Rebbeck, deputy managing director of Harland and Wolff Limited — one of the world's largest and most versatile building and repairing organizations. "But after that, work will thin out a bit and we'll feel a recession for a couple of years. We're getting down to rock-bottom, pre-war realities again."

The Northern Ireland government is worried. Lord Brookeborough, the prime minister, has been shuttling between Belfast and London in an effort to get some British aid that would avert a serious recession in the two industries.

Rebbeck said his company is making every effort to provide alternative employment for his labor force, now totalling roughly 20,000.

BUILDING LUXURY LINER

"But the stark, horrible truth is that 2,500 men are working on a ship like the Canberra," he said. "It will take one half of a lot of diversification to provide jobs for all of them when she's launched.

The Canberra is a luxury liner due to be launched next year for the run to Australia and across the Pacific to the west coast of Canada and the United States.

Senior government officials are confident, however, that the industrialization program will help maintain the current wave of prosperity in Ulster.

"The program hasn't wiped out unemployment and it is not yet large enough to cope with any serious dislocation in our basic industries," said one. "But this much is certain: If it hadn't been started, we'd have far more serious problems than we have now."

TOMORROW: The Republic of Ireland steps into world diplomacy.

EXPAND INDUSTRIES — Girls stitch slips and nightgowns in the textile factory of Taylor Woods Limited at Enniskillen, Northern Ireland, one of many firms established through the government's expansion and diversification program. Started in 1947 as a stocking factory by Canadian and British financial interests, the plant has expanded twice and now has 750 workers. (CP from UKIO).

Budget Deficit Is Advocated By Labor Head

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said Tuesday Canada should fight unemployment with the same weapon it used to defeat Hitler—deficit financing.

"The situation we find ourselves in today calls for a budget deficit," he said.

"We are not suggesting deficit financing as a permanent policy. We are suggesting it as a remedy for the extremely serious situation we find ourselves in today."

Mr. Jodoin, in a speech reiterated Labor's bid for a government program of social projects —hospitals, schools, roads, urban development and so on—to counter Canada's unemployment problem.

Addressing the school of business administration at the University of Western Ontario, he predicted unemployment this winter could easily reach 750,000 people or one worker in every eight.

"We have a large amount of idle plant and a large and growing number of idle men. In this situation, the extra money created by government deficit financing will not push up prices."

Reeve Says Nobody Wants To Use Shovel

TORONTO (CP) — Hunger is the only remedy for unemployed specialists who will not adapt themselves to various types of work, Reeve Norman Goodfellow of suburban North York said Tuesday night.

He told a panel discussion on employment, organized by the township community council, that everybody wants to be a specialist and nobody wants to use a pick and shovel.

"Too many people are getting fat and sloppy. It's time they got lean and hungry."

Fred C. Stinson, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for York Centre, criticized the federal government for not holding the recent conference of unemployment earlier.

Suggests Coin Laundries Close In Church Hours

TORONTO (CP) — The secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Coin Laundries Association Wednesday suggested coin laundries close during church hours Sundays to head off criticism from the pulpit.

Harvey Wolfe made the suggestion at a meeting of the association called to discuss possible stands in the light of a court decision that held laundries must close Sundays under terms of the Lord's Day Act.

M. B. Issa, association president, said the association is assuming that pending the appeal Nov. 14 against a ruling by Mr. Justice W. F. Schroeder which found a Sarnia operator guilty of violating the Lord's Day Act, the laundries aren't breaking the law by staying open Sundays.

"If the court finds we are operating illegally," he said, "we'll close up."

Eight Canadians On Western All-Star Team

EDMONTON (CP)—Eight Canadians are among 36 players named to the Western Interprovincial Football Union's 1960 all-star team.

Two are offensive guards and the others the defensive team. Only four Canadians were named last season, one on offence and three on defence.

The team was chosen for The Canadian Press by sports writers, sportscasters and coaches in league cities. Ballots were weighted to give all five cities equal voting strength.

Offensive team: Halfs Willie Fleming, British Columbia; Earl Lunsford, Calgary; Leo Lewis, Winnipeg, and Johnny Bright, Edmonton; quarter Jackie Parker, Edmonton; centre Ned Hibig, Saskatchewan; guards Tony Pajaczkowski, Calgary, and Cooper Piper, Winnipeg; tackles Frank Rigney, Winnipeg and Roger Nelson, Edmonton; ends Ernie Warlick, Calgary, and Ernie Pitts, Halifax.

Defensive team: Safety Harry Langford, Calgary; halfs Ted Smith, Edmonton, and Clare Exelby, Calgary; corner Hasbeck Hosmer Hodgson, British Columbia, and Rordie Rowland, Winnipeg; middle linebackers Phil Burrell, Saskatchewan, and Dave Burkholder, Winnipeg; inside guard Ron Atcheson, Saskatchewan; tackles Urban Henry, British Columbia and Don Luzzi, Calgary; ends Herb Gray, Winnipeg and Art Gray, Edmonton.

EIGHT CANADIANS NAMED

The Canadians are Pajaczkowski, Piper, Wylie, Smith, Fleming, Exelby, Atcheson and Rowland. Fleidgate and Wylie are the only repeaters from last year.

Notably absent is Canadian Gerry James of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, fullback and placekicking specialist who won the league scoring title this season with 114 points on 14 touchdowns, 32 converts, six field goals and four singles.

Selectors moved Parker out of the star-studded halfback category and named Miller, Langford and Lewis as a quarterback. He has been an all-star halfback every year since he came to Canada from Mississippi State College in 1954. He was third in the league scoring race this year with 107 points, two behind Fleming.

The Blue Bombers, who ended up in first place in the regular season league race, placed seven men on the team. Calgary Stampeders had four, Edmonton Eskimos five and B.C. Lions and Saskatchewan Roughriders three each.

Fans Rally Behind Team

NELSON, B.C. (CP) — Nelson Maple Leafs of the Western International League, one of two senior leagues operating in the British Columbia interior, have changed their minds about disbanding.

Leafs threw in the towel last Sunday because of financial problems.

But Wednesday night 200 enthusiastic fans refused to allow the club to fold and pledged full support in an all-out drive to give Leafs a new hoobol.

Sora Rail Shooting Sharpens Eye

Every year a great many gunners throughout the North American continent (and elsewhere, I suppose, gunners being pretty much alike no matter where you find them) are busy getting ready for the autumn shooting season.

Some are content to shoot a few practice rounds at skeet. Others take to the cornfields after mourning dove. But there is another little game bird that offers excellent wing shooting if you know where to look for him — the Sora Rail.

The little fellow is classed as a shore bird but he does not confine his activities to the saltwater areas by any means. His range stretches clear across the country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. He nests anywhere from the marshes of Nova Scotia clear across the continent to British Columbia. Being migratory, each fall he makes his way south to winter in the southern states.

Evidently his migrations are governed pretty much by the food supply. In the fall, when he is making his way south, he favors such things as wild rice and wild oats. Thus, find a field where there is a stand of either or both of these plants and there you will find Sora Rail.

LIKES TO RUN

While the Sora is a good flier, his preferred method of locomotion is walking or running. Don't make the mistake of hunting for him by walking or wading through a marsh as you would when hunting Jacksnipe. A rail won't flush at your approach. Instead, he will run ahead of you or around you. Consequently, your rail hunting is marshes that will float a skiff or a canoe. Not being able to run in deep water will flush and give you some excellent wing shooting.

During migration a scattered few of the little birds will find themselves temporarily in unoccupied country. I have found them in the cornfields of central Pennsylvania, hundreds of miles from their usual haunts about the river mouths. Mostly, however, you will find them in the marshy areas near the larger rivers.

In such places as the mouth of the Connecticut River or the salt marshes of Maryland and the Carolinas, rail shooting is enjoyed by many gunners each year. We should be in the marshes of the Patuxent River of Maryland. Here the river is affected by the tides coming in from Chesapeake Bay. When the tide is high, flooding the marsh, guides or "pushers" pole their rail boats through the bulrush and wild-oat growth, flushing the birds as they go.

Rail boats are designed for the job in hand. Sixteen to 18 feet long, they are narrow and shallow prowed, narrow beam and low freeboard. They are flat-bottomed with no keel and their length gives them quite shallow draft. The gunner seat is well forward and the rear seat actually is a platform on which the pusher stands.

GETS BETTER VIEW

It is unwise to stand up in a rail boat over deep water as they are quite "tippy". Once in the marsh growth — oats, buttonwood, spatterdock, etc., gives a tip-proof foundation or sorts, the gunner stands, straddling the forward seat. In this way he commands a better view than he could while sitting.

As I say, the rail is an excellent flier. He's a lively little devil and won't exert himself unnecessarily. The newcomers in the marsh are quite leisurely wild, and flush fairly close to the boat. Their flight is leisurely and fairly short. Although presenting an easy target, they have a disconcerting habit of shooting out of the pattern just as you pull the trigger.

But let a rail be shot-at and missed so that he becomes frightened and his next flight rivals that of a jacksnipe for speed and eccentricity. It is indeed a rare day that any gunner returns to the landing with a perfect score — one shell for one bird. Even for 20 years, shoother each fall, the best I have been able to do is 22 birds with 23 shells. But with a terrier rouge, not a .410 which I usually shoot.

By and large, rail shooting is not the difficult wing shooting that you find with grouse, doves or woodcock. But it can be tricky shooting, particularly where the reeds are high and visibility limited. It gives a gunner a chance to get outdoors in the early fall, well ahead of the upland shooting season. If you haven't tried it, you are missing some unique and excellent sport.

NO CHANGES PLANNED

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Ingalls Knee Football League will operate in 1961 with the same teams and clubs now in the loop, Barron Hilton, owner of the Los Angeles Chargers, said Wednesday at a club fan luncheon. Hilton said he is disappointed with league attendance in the maiden year but is still optimistic about the future.

Rider Boss Gets $2,000 Salary Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ottawa Citizen says George Trrieo, general manager of the Big Four Ottawa Rough Riders, has received a $2,000 salary increase for next year.

Trrieo was signed as a scout by Riders last season after being fired by mid-season as coach of the Regina Rough Riders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

He signed a two-year contract as general manager of the Ottawa club at the end of the 1959 season. The contract is reported to have called for an annual salary of about $12,000.

Bay of Quinte Basketball

Belleville Crawford Metals and Trenton Wilsons, co-leaders of the Bay of Quinte Senior A League, failed to snap their first-place tie in their initial meeting of the season last night.

The clubs fought to a 66-60 deadlock in Trenton High School gym thus both maintaining their undefeated records. Each club now has three wins and one tie.

The teams meet again next Wednesday in Belleville at 8:30 p.m. in Moira Secondary School gym, here in Belleville.

Never-the-less seven points separated the evenly-matched teams in last night's battle. Trenton was a tie score, 38-38, at half time.

Bert Faulkner paced the Belleville attack with 20 points while Teddy Batchelor and Ron Bennett were right behind with 18 apiece.

Bob Burleigh topped the Trenton scorers with 14 points, aiding Gil Bembare who had 13. Warren Whitley and Will Borden had ten each.

Lineups:

Crawford Metals (66): Faulkner 20, T. Batchelor 18, Bennett 18, Aldarde 4, Genela 3, Walmsley 2, Rogers 1, Sobaty 0.

Trenton Wilsons (66): Burleigh 14, Bembare 13, Whitley 10, Borden 10, Burke 6, Rogers 5, M. Jeffery 3, T. Jeffery 2, Thiault 0, Sinclair 0.

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Rooster, owned by Mrs. W. D. Latimer of Toronto, won the featured Ellero Purse at New Woodbine Wednesday, three horses finished inches apart as Mr. Rooster defeated Kitty Girl by a nose while Peggy Page was third, beaten a nose by Kitty Girl.

Mr. Rooster, ridden by Charlie Clark, paid $56.00, $14.80 and $6.90 as he ran the 1 1-16 miles final in 1.45 1-5 over a rainswept strip.

Disappointment of the race was War Eagle who finished sixth. New Providence, second choice to War Eagle in the wagering, finished seventh.

The afternoon's secondary feature, the Talbot Purse, was won by Its Ann, one of the smallest fillies in competition in Canada.

Its Ann, owned by Ross Woodrow of Toronto and ridden by Jimmy Parnell, scampered six furlongs in 1:11 as she defeated King's Newton by one length while Rash Decision finished third.

Its Ann paid $7.50, $4.20 and $3.10 for her third win in eight starts this year.

The daily double paid $116.40; Acme Gal and Air Chief won the first two races. The quinella of Federal Judge and Sink or Swim in the fifth race paid $19.10.

TORONTO (CP) — Grey Monarch, the talented but moody horse whose winnings total more than $180,000, will run in Saturday's one mile—and three furlong Mohawk Stakes at New Woodbine.

Owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Taylor, Grey Monarch can boost his earnings close to the $200,000 mark if he wins Saturday's race and then the $10,000 Yorkdictory Stakes on November 24, the closing day of the season.

Mooney, which narrowly defeated Grey Monarch in the $25,000 Niagara Stakes at Fort Erie, will carry the colors of Roxie Glen and Fred Torch, of Buffalo, in the feature race Saturday. Mooney will be seeking his seventh victory of the season.

Other horses listed as probable starters are Mate Turfic, Chic Miss, Prompt Hero, Calais II, Kitty Girl, MacBern, Hooker, Grand Canyon, Percy Yates and Our Sirdar.

The reorganized Seattle Totems have received on their current swing through the Prairies has been as cool as the weather.

Totems have played two games here and lost both. Each time Doyle Plaster, league scoring champion the last four years, failed to score a point.

Edmonton Flyers edged Totems 4-4 Wednesday night. Last-place Spokane came up with a 5-4 decision over Victoria Cougars.

The Edmonton scoring was shared by Roger Dejordy, Bruce MacGregor, Lloyd Haddon, Don Pulls and Eddie Joyal. Ed Slatkiewicz, Tom McVie, Don Chiupka and Rudy Pilous scored for Seattle.

At Spokane, the Comets won on goals by Forbes Kennedy, Bev Bell, Colin Kilburn and Steve Wilinda. Winger Jim Moore handled the Victoria marker.

The wise money, we are told, is riding on Toronto Argonauts and Winnipeg Blue Bombers to meet in the Nov. 26 Grey Cup final at Vancouver. If this comes about, the gamblers and football buffs should ponder this:

Argonauts are the only team in the country with an unbeaten cup record since the final became an East-West affair back in 1921. They've been 5 for 5 over that period, and guess who their favorite patsies have been? Nobody but the Bombers, who are 0 for 6 against Argos in this showdown game.

Then, dependent, of course, on Argos getting past Ottawa Rough Riders in their two-game total-point Big Four final and Bombers taking Edmonton Eskimos in their best-of-three Western Conference final, eastern bunch bettors are likely to play it right to the hilt because of a sad-faced little man in Toronto.

He is Lew Hayman, managing director of Argonauts and a guy whose football path has been filled with Grey Cups since he first came to Canada from Syracuse in 1933. He's the winningest coach in Cup history with five titles.

HAS CUP THIRST

Hayman should be a little dizzy with all this champagne guzzling, but he hasn't had a hand in a Grey Cup final since Edmonton Eskimos beat his Montreal Alouettes in that heartbreaking 26-25 decision in 1954. And Hayman is getting a little thirsty.

Hayman was manager of that 1954 Montreal club and he'd just as soon forget about it. He likes to look back on those years when he won the cup as a coach.

It started 27 years ago when he crossed the border in search of a job and landed with Argonauts. He started the three-man extension play, a real bow-tooter gimmick with the backs lateraling the play in a sort of devil-may-care manner. It paid off.

That also was the year the western challenger was required to play in a semi-final for the first time and Winnipeg bowed to the Big Four champions 13-0 in a rousing battle that easily could have gone either way. Argos iced the cake with a tight 4-3 squeeze over Sarnia Imperials of the Ontario Rugby Football Union in the cup final and Hayman's future was assured in Canadian football.

REFEREE FROZE

In 1937, the Blue Bombers again were the western titleholders and they lost 4-3 in one of the most controversial cup finales on record. They had a touchdown called back on a call by umpire Eddie Grant, a Winnipegger. Grant also "froze" on a play in which Bill Sukus of Argos fumbled on the Toronto seven-yard line in the opening quarter and four Bombers dove for the ball.

Grant was right on top of the play and referee Hec Crighton of Toronto following downfield, ran to the scene and asked: "Whose ball?"

"I don't know," blurted Grant. Crighton ruled it Argos' ball, figuring they would have been hurt most by losing possession near their goal line.

Argos and Bombers met again next year and the easterners, with Red Storey running wild for three final - quarter touchdowns, won it 20-7.

The same two clubs met again in 1945-6-7 and Argos, with Teddy Morris as coach, beat them 32-0, 26-6 and 10-0. Their last meeting was in the 1950 mud-bowl game which Argos won 13-0.

Meanwhile, Hayman had coached Toronto RCAF - Hurricanes to an $-3 victory over Winnipeg RCAF-Bombers in 1942 and Montreal Alouettes to a 26-25 decision over Calgary Stampeders in 1948.

Now, he's back with Argos and the Bombers probably would love nothing better than a Winnipeg-Toronto meeting at Vancouver. The Bombers have a few scores to settle.

One-Armed Farm Boy Grid Star

By ROSS M. HAGEN

NASHVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Franklin Luke is pretty much like any personable young high school athlete you'd meet, except for one thing. His left arm ends just above the wrist.

But the 17-year-old farm boy first-string end on the Berrien County high school football team and is one of its most dangerous offensive weapons.

In his latest outing, Luke grabbed a pass with his handless arm and ran for a touchdown. The play covered 35 yards.

GOOD BASKETBALL

Before losing his hand in a hay-baler accident three years ago, young Luke appeared destined for a fine career in basketball.

"The accident didn't dampen his morale a bit," says his high school coach Arnold Gullerner. "After recovering, he went back out for basketball and did okay except in tight situations. He finally became discouraged and quit.

"This opened the door for another outlet — football.

"He catches the ball as well as anyone we've got and does a real good job for himself.

"We had to show him how to catch the ball with both arms, even though one hand was missing. We taped a couple of pads on the end of his long arm and he used them to help hold the ball, just like a normal player".

Gullerner said the 168 - pound youngster, a junior, is an above average blocker and is rough on defence.

Royals Tie Teepees 4-4

GUELPH (CP)—Guelph Royals fired two late third-period goals in less than one minute to tie St. Catharines Teepees 4-4 Wednesday night in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A play.

Teepees led 1-0 after the first stanza, and 2-1 after the second. Bob Cunningham sparked the third period comeback with a goal and an assist. Barry Jakeman, Rod Gilbert and Borden Smith scored the others.

Ray Cullen, Murray Hall, John Brenneman and Duke Harris counted for St. Catharines.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The moose, the goose are on the loose.
The hunter's heavenly, brother.
But then as far, the hunters are Not shootin' at each other.

—Fingers-Crossed Carver.

Moose hunters ranging in the wide open spaces of Northern Ontario never had it so good. And Otto Hwagg-Nase had better look to his atom-bomb dugout because he's liable to be chased to the Russian border before official time calls it quits.

Speaking of the previously-closed stretch of the trans-Canada highway between Sault Ste. Marie and the lakehead has opened a wide moose domain.

There's an open season in North Hastings, too. But moose-hunters of the type who haven't seen a king of the woods other than the kind that decorates the wall of a hunting lodge had better beware.

Take the case of the tyro hunter who battered at the cabin door of a friend the other morning.

"Come a'running," he shouted, "there's a moose standing in the water near the lake."

The friend came a'running, gun in hand. He saw the misty figure of the "moose" standing in the water at lake edge. His finger barely nudged the trigger when he looked again.

It was a nearby farmer's horse which had come down for his early morning water cocktail.

But from the far northern moose haunts where hunters draw from the hip and the others help 'em drink it, comes stories of frustration, disappointment and luck.

For instance, Chief Constable Reg Parker of Pickering township, with three companions, made the 600 mile trip by highway to a camp 20 miles northwest of Wawa. They went in seven miles by boat. Their time was limited, so, on "opening" morning, they were out early, the party splitting into two canoes, each with a guide.

For what happened next, be ready with a towel to catch your tears. "And hour after the season opened, the guide called our attention to a giant moose swimming in the lake. He had a rack of horns as big as a harndiver," said the chief constable, cockeyed in his first moose hunt. "Of course, it's against the law to shoot a swimming moose, so we waited and waited and waited until he reached the shore. He started to clamber up the shallow bank. I waited for a shoulder shot.

"He had just nicely emerged from the water and I started to squeeze the trigger. As I did so, two shots rang out. The moose took one faltering step and then fell with a thud. From behind a nearby island, where they had not been visible, came two hunters in another canoe. They too had been waiting for the moose to get out of the water. I actually believed my own rifle had exploded until I looked at it.

"So then we hunted for three more days, walking innumerable miles. We saw countless moose tracks, paths worn as smooth as a city sidewalk by moose. And we never saw another animal."

Just to illustrate the lucky part of moose hunting, he went on: "When we came out to the highway to start for home, two Americans, an older man and a young fellow or about seventeen, were at the road with a canoe, tent, camping equipment.

"Just going in?" we asked.

"No," replied the older man. "We had chosen a camp site a few miles from the road and were enroute to it. We came aroound a bend and there were two moose. We got them both. Now we're going to pack our stuff in the car and return with the empty canoe to get the moose!"

It was quite apparent, he said, that the moose, being the smart animal he is, quickly realized there was an open season and after the first few shots on opening day, the big animals moved farther back into the bush.

Hawks Blank Leafs, Wings Dump Blues

Take Over Top Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goalie Glenn Hall came through with a shutout performance Wednesday night to lead Chicago Black Hawks back into first place in the National Hockey League.

Hall, the NHL's all-star goalie for the last three seasons, had found the going rough in Chicago's five previous games—allowing 22 goals.

But Wednesday night the mild, soft-spoken goaltender was back in top form, stopping 26 shots en blanking Toronto Maple Leafs 3-0 at Chicago.

The victory pushed the Black Hawks into a one-point lead in the standings over Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings, tied for second spot.

The surprising Red Wings scored three times in less than six minutes in the third period to turn a seemingly sure defeat into a 4-3 triumph over the Rangers at New York in the league's only other scheduled game.

Chicago now has 18 points while the Canadiens and Wings have 17. Toronto dropped three points off the pace with 15 points. Boston Bruins are fifth with 12 and the Rangers, losing their third game in a row, are in the cellar with nine points.

SECOND PERIOD

Hall's shutout was his second of the season—most by an NHL goalie this year.

Bobby Hull, the league's scoring champion last season, got his eighth goal with a blast from the boseline. Defenceman Elmer (Sailor) Vasko got the second goal when he took a pass from Hull and beat the Toronto goalmouth and beat Toronto's Johnny Bower visually with a 10-footer as he crossed in front of the net.

The Red Wings' victory marked the second time in less than a week they had to come from behind with at least three goals to the third period to win.

They trailed 3-1 as late as 12:45 of the third period. Then the fireworks started.

Alex Delvecchio let go a 40-foot screened shot that eluded Lorne (Gump) Worsley, back in the nets after missing two games with a back injury.

GETS FIFTH GOAL

Then Gordie Howe scored his fifth goal of the season less than four minutes later, during behind the net and slapping an angle shot past Worsley.

Defenceman Pete Goegan got the winner with less than two minutes to play.

Murray Oliver scored Detroit's first goal in the opening period while Brian Cullen, Camille Henry and Dean Prentice got the other three.

The Red Wings and Canadiens play their second game into a first-place tie tonight. The Wings play the Bruins in Boston while Canadiens host the Rangers in Montreal.

Can Win if They Click

Clair Worried About Ottawa Frost

OTTAWA (CP)—Coach Frank Clair of Ottawa Rough Riders is worried about a Saturday no-show.

And by that he doesn't mean the weather, but the frost that might seize his players' nerves in the first game of their two-game semi-final series against Toronto Argonauts starting here two days from now to decide the East's Grey Cup contender.

Riders can win if they're clicking, he said, but if they freeze they could be so far behind by half time they would never recover.

What Clair is hoping for is to recapture the fine defensive edge that allowed Ottawa to swamp Toronto 38-1 in their last regular-season encounter here Oct. 22.

On that day it was superior defence that did it, says Clair, and he is banking on a repeat performance of the same hard-hitting tactics to send his team to the Grey Cup final in Vancouver.

Clair has not decided whether to start Russ Jackson or Ron Lancaster at quarterback. Both are expected to see action on the field.

The return of Lou Bruce to his end spot in the defensive lineup improves Ottawa chances of meeting the Toronto offensive threat. It also releases Milt Graham for duty at offensive tackle and Fred Robinson for his regular job at guard.

The club worked out as usual Wednesday despite a light drizzle and a muddy practice field.

Bears Shade Indians 3-2; Bisons Win

If Springfield Indians ever entertained any thoughts of making a runaway of the American Hockey League race, the notion has been quickly dispelled.

The Indians, who won 11 of their first 13 games, lost their third straight Wednesday night. Hershey Bears turned back Springfield 3-2, while Buffalo Bisons beat Rochester Americans 5-2.

Springfield's league lead over the second - place Quebec Aces was cut to two points.

Hershey goalie Hal Laycoe snapped a seven-game winning streak at home.

Willie Marshall, who assisted on Hershey's first two goals, scored the deciding tally in the third period. Ray Kinaswick and Claude Laforge scored the other Bear markers. Gerry Pilchen and Bronco Cline were the Springfield marksmen.

Buffalo erupted for four goals in the third period to break up a close game. Billy Dea sparked the Bisons with two goals. Barry Cullen, Bob Gamble and Doug Barkley accounted for the other Buffalo goals. Stan Smrke and John Macmillan scored for Rochester.

Bald Eagle Is Favored In Big Race

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Harmonizing crashed elite circles Wednesday by walking unheralded into the exclusive Washington, D.C. International.

The 1½-mile international, a blue ribbon invitational gallop for $100,000 starting purse at Laurel Park, drew a nine-horse field of the best thoroughbreds available in the world, and the raced Friday over Laurel's 1-mile turf grass course. At the end of the mile and one half grind $70,000 will be waiting for the one to get there first.

Harmonizing, who once ran in the cheapest of races, replaced the injured Sword Dancer as the second U.S. entry. Eleven horses still start behind the Newmarket-type tape barrier, and the 2-1 favorite is Bald Eagle, who won the 1959 International for Capt. Harry F. Guggenheim, New York copper magnate.

No horse has won this global gallop twice.

SOLD FOR $6,500

Harmonizing, owned by Sadie B. King and Mrs. Dean Dumaresco, is trained by Mrs. King's husband, Everett. The six-year-old gelding was bred by socialite sportsman Ogden Phipps, owned by the famed Jimmy Jones Fitzsimmons, and claimed at Aqueduct last July 27 for a paltry $6,500.

Last Oct. 22, the chestnut son of Counterpoint—1951 U.S. horse of the year—shocked the Belmont Park crowd by capturing the $100,000 Man O'War stakes at a mile-and-a-half. Trailing second and third, respectively, were Bald Eagle and Brookmeade Stable's Sword Dancer, 1959 horse of the year.

Harmonizing is arising with some of Europe's best, including Puissant Chef, the French star who is second choice at 3-1 with the departure of Sword Dancer in the stud.

Breaks Could Win Title

Chatham Wins Over Indians By 8-4 Score

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham Maroons outclassed Stratford Indians in every department to post an 8-4 Ontario Hockey Association senior victory before a crowd of 1,200 Wednesday night.

The win lifted Maroons four points up on second-place Windsor and Stratford in the five-team western grouping.

The OHA leaders piled up a 3-1 margin in the first period, rapped through four unanswered goals before 12 minutes elapsed in the second period then coasted the rest of the way.

The Indians rallied briefly in the third for two goals.

Centres Frank Battigale and Ernie Dube scored two goals each for Chatham. Dick Rho collected two assists. Joe Malo, captain Jack Douglas, Earl Tovell and playing-coach Ted Power added single goals for the winners.

Gord Candy was best for the losing Indians, scoring two of the unanswered goals and picking up an assist. Ross (Butch) Graham and Billy Fiske tallied the others.

Maroons outplayed the visitors by a wide margin in every period. Chatham outshot Indians 44-21 but their inaccuracy and the fine goaltending of Indian's Ron Sailer kept the score down.

Referee Mickey Brennan assessed three penalties, two to Chatham.

HOLDS UP STORE

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) A man masked with a nylon stocking and armed with a shotgun Tuesday night held up a small grocery store here and stole $60 to $70 from the till. Police said the man held up storeowner Amanda Leo, 45, and two male customers.

EDMONTON (CP) — Coach Eagle Keys of Edmonton Eskimos figures the Labor Day whipping Blue Bombers are so evenly matched that breaks could decide their battle for the Western Interprovincial Football Union title.

"The Bombers have us in depth, weight and health," he said Wednesday night. "But we have them in passing. And if the winning halves get in running, our havies top theirs in blocking. Our defence is as good, if not better, than theirs over-all. Our specials are huge Saturday, matched clubs and our chances are excellent. It will be no walkaway either way."

First of the best-of-three final series in Edmonton at 2:05 p.m. MST (4.05 m. EST) Saturday and the second at Winnipeg at 2:30 p.m. CST (3:30 p.m. EST) Monday. A third, if necessary, will be played Saturday, Nov. 19. The winner meets the Hamilton Tiger Cats at Vancouver Saturday, Nov. 26.

AHEAD STATISTICALLY

Statistics of the four games between the clubs in the regular schedule show Edmonton has the edge in most departments.

Bombers finished in a first-place finish in the 16-game regular schedule but Eskimos, who ended up second, scored more points, had more first downs and rushing yards and from scrimmage in their clashes.

Bombers won three of the game but Esks won the other game 15-2 to outscore Bombers 60-56 on the season.

Bombers outrushed Eskimos 691 yards to 678. But Eskimos held a wide margin in passing, netting 546 yards through the air against 206 for Bombers.

Eskimos had a good workout Wednesday night on a frozen snow - covered turf. Fullbacks Jackie Wright and Normie Kwong both took part and probably will play Saturday. Bright

Ban Player, Release Was Not in Order

STRATFORD (CP) — Forward Dick Wray was dropped from the Stratford Indians lineup Wednesday night only after he had before the Indians met Chatham Maroons in their senior Ontario Hockey Association game.

The Indians had been advised by OHA business manager Bill Hanley that Wray should not be dressed until his status is clarified.

Wren Blair, general manager of the Clinton Comets of the Eastern Amateur Hockey League said Tuesday Wray had not been properly released from Comets.

Blair has played Wray in six games for Stratford this season, reported to the club with a release signed by Blair, but an OHA ruling declared the release must be signed by the team secretary and president.

Blair's playing - coach, Irwin Gross, was suspended recently by the United States Amateur Hockey Association after Windsor Bulldogs complained through the Canadian association that he skipped the team without a release.

has made a rapid recovery from a shoulder bruise suffered in the semi-finals with Calgary Stampeders. Kwong still has sore ribs.

Bombers meanwhile whipped through a 90-minute practice session on a snow-covered field at St. Boniface, Man. Some players wore sneakers as the 15-degree temperatures hardened the ground, making footing for regular football cleats uncertain.

Coach Bud Grant said the practices without pads would bodily contact for fear of injuries.

"The emphasis is on keeping in shape," he said.

Wismer Told To Sell Club Stock

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League has expelled Harry Wismer as part owner of Washington Redskins and ordered him to sell his stock in the club within 30 days, Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Wednesday. Wismer also is president of New York Titans in the American Football League.

Rozelle said if the stock is not sold by Dec. 8 it will be offered at public sale. Wismer has a 36-percent interest in the Redskin club.

It is because of Wismer's holdings in the AFL that the action was taken, Rozelle explained.

Wismer said he and William MacDonald of Miami have signed an agreement for the transfer of his stock.

Player Deal Rocks Montreal Fans

MONTREAL (CP)—A rift that first appeared in the Montreal Alouettes football camp six weeks ago blew wide open Wednesday when the Als traded two of the Canadian game's greatest players to Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

The Alouettes, in a deal that rocked Montreal football fans like a bombshell, sent quarterback Sam Etcheverry and end Hal Patterson to the Ti-Cats.

They got quarterback Bernie Faloney and defensive end Don Pequette, a young Canadian, in exchange.

A player disagreement with Perry Moss, general manager and head coach, and reported dissension among the Als themselves this season, were believed to be the main reason for the swap.

PRESIDENTS MAKE DEAL

The deal was completed by Ted Workman, Alouette president and Jake Gaudaur, president of the Ti-Cats, at Montreal left allenward for New York.

Gaudaur said the trade had been cooking since Saturday when the Als were beaten 30-14 by Ottawa Rough Riders in a Big Four sudden-death semi-final game.

"Frankly, I never dreamed the Alouettes were interested in getting rid of Etcheverry. I was surprised when he was offered as for Faloney," Gaudaur said.

"I always regarded Sam as one of the greatest quarterbacks in the country, a find team player and outstanding box office attraction."

Asked who suggested Patterson for Pequette, Gaudaur said: "I wasn't up, but I sure jumped at the idea."

Montreal fans took the news hard.

"Are they crazy?" "What's really behind it?" These were typical reactions.

Etcheverry, who was described the Etcheverry Express" part as a "case of trading a great individual star for a great team player."

He said he thought the Patterson-Pequette trade would help the Als where they are weakest — at defensive end.

UNAWARE OF DEAL

Neither Patterson nor Etcheverry knew of the trade when it was announced by Ken Brown, the Als publicity director.

Patterson was reached by car to his home in Larned, Kan. Etcheverry learned of it in Otthews, where he had gone on a business trip.

Both say that we can make a satisfactory deal with Sam," Gaudaur said. "And I'm equally sure we'll be able to satisfy Patterson."

Patterson said Faloney and Pequette "have been traded to us unanimously."

In Toronto, Lew Hayman, managing director of Toronto Argonauts, said: "I am shocked that players of Sam's and Hal's calibre should be traded so quickly and so cheaply."

He added: "This is a terrific deal for Hamilton. I would like to have either of them."

Sir Winston Churchill, who gave his approval when it came into competition with the world-famous Spitfire, was a keen yachtsman until his health failed him.

Hull Nipped By Kingston, Soo Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buddy Boone, the Eastern Professional Hockey League's top marksman, scored in the dying minutes Wednesday night to give Kingston Frontenacs a 5-4 edge over Hull-Ottawa Canadiens.

Boone took the puck from his own goal line at 17.28 of the third period to score the tie-breaker. It was his 13th goal of the season and 4th fourth in the last two games.

Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds fired four straight third - period goals to the Sudbury pet to post a 5-4 victory over the Wolves in the only other game.

Kingston ended Canadian goaltender Ed Johnson's record of 140 minutes and 42 seconds of scoreless hockey. It was the first time Johnson had to be lifted from the season.

SHOOTS ON GOAL EVEN

Johnson and Kingston's Ed Sabiuk each handled 31 shots. Sabiuk is now 5-0 with Sudbury 4 Kingston 5 Hull-Ottawa 4.

East, West College Teams May Play

MONTREAL (CP)—Harry Gilbert, director of athletics at McGill University, announced Wednesday that McGill has proposed a football contest to be played by University of Alberta Golden Bears for the Churchill Cup.

The cup game is not an official East - West intercollegiate football championship game but would amount to that if Alberta and McGill meet.

If McGill's Redmen defeat Queen's University Golden Gaels next Saturday, thereby winning the Eastern senior intercollegiate title, the game is on. It will be played Nov. 19 at McGill's Molson Stadium.

If the Gaels win, the East-West game is off. It was announced Queen's does not want to engage in a post-season game.

Alberta's Golden Bears have already won the Western intercollegiate title.

Maroons Ready For Trip To Russia

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham Maroons have added Strathroy Rocket defenceman Stan Long to the list of hockey players who will make a 21-day tour of Russia and Sweden, beginning later this month.

Long will replace Wilson (Copper) Leyte, who plans to retire from hockey Nov. 18, four days before Maroons leave for Russia.

Players from last year's Allan Cup team making the trip include defenceman and captain Jack Douglas, defenceman Ivan Tennant, forward Ted Power, Bill Forhan, Joe Main, Frank Bathgate, Fred Pletsch and George Allen.

Tennant was recently named playing coach with Windsor of the Nova Scotia Senior Hockey League. Forhan is playing with Greenacres of the Eastern Hockey League.

NEW MEMBERS GOING

New members of the current Maroon team scheduled to make the trip include Al Bennett and forward Ernie Dick.

Ed Busch, a centre who played with Toronto Marlboros last season, but has not yet been released by Chatham, will also make the trip.

Galt Terriers of the Eastern Ontario Hockey Association scout look will contribute Floyd (Butch) Martin, a forward, defenceman Ted Maki and goaltender Boat Hurley. Windsor Bulldogs will send captain and centre Lou Bendo, currently tied with Chatham's Pete Conway for the Western OHA senior league scoring leadership.

Maroons are expected to release right winger Earle Towers to Windsor as a temporary replacement for Bendo.

LEAF GAMES ON TV

NEW YORK (AP) — All road games of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League will be available on television for $1 each in 6,000 homes in the Toronto suburb of Etobicoke, the International Telemeter Company announced Wednesday. Two periods of Thursday and Saturday night home games are televised by the Leafs. Last year four Maple Leaf games were on pay TV but only 1,000 Etobicoke homes were connected to the system.

Hockey Hints

By Lloyd Percival

"JACQUES IS NIMBLE"

Nursery rhymes would seem to have little to do with hockey but I can find no better description of the main secret of the great Jacques Plante of Montreal Canadiens than to paraphrase the rhyme, "Jacques is nimble, Jacques is quick. Jacques jumps over the hockey stick."

In modern hockey with its many fast and quick changing plays around the goal the goalkeeper who is not supremely agile is going to have a tough time. The netminder who cannot stop the first shot and then move back again with another quick stop, perhaps at the other side of the goal, will find it tough to stay in the "big leagues". Plante is probably the most agile goalkeeper in hockey history.

When the Montreal Canadien netminder goes down to the ice either on purpose or by accident, he is back on his feet in a flash. On deflected shots he needs like lightning, and many others goalkeepers would be wise to follow suit. Every goalkeeper should spend time developing agility and reaction off the ice drills, gymnastics, playing handball and practising agility tricks on the ice. For suggested drills and exercises see Hints on goaltending gry bulletin, "Plante, Acrobat On Skates" by sending a stamped self addressed envelope and 10c c/o this newspaper.

TCAZA BLAMELESS

NEW YORK (AP) — Aqueduct race track stewards ruled Wednesday, jockey Manuel Ycaza is blameless for the disqualification of big mount, Big Walt, in Tuesday's fifth race. This clears the way for Ycaza to ride Bald Eagle in Friday's Washington, D.C. International at Laurel. Ycaza won the International with Bald Eagle last year.

Quinte Seniors, BCI

Seek COSSA Grid Titles

Two city secondary schools seek COSSA major football honors tomorrow both at home and abroad.

Jack Armstrong's powerful Quinte Secondary seniors invade Oshawa for a sudden death titular battle with the Oshawa CIVB squad.

Here at home Jack McBride's strong BCIVS junior squad hosts the Peterborough CI youngsters.

Quinte Secondary, unbeaten and untied in two years of existence and COSSA play, has a well-balanced club.

Simcoe is depending on Bob Fellwell's passing, Ron Mill's running and the past receiving of Green and McNaught for his offensive action.

He has a big line, well coached and capable, he thinks, of taking care of the enemy attacks. But he is cautiously confident.

The BCI juniors boast an unblemished 1960 record going through a six-game schedule undefeated. They are putting this record on the line at 1.30 tomorrow afternoon at the Secondary field.

It will be a colorful show. The Peterborough CI is bringing its band, cheer leaders, etc., while BCI will turn out with its color, crowd and cheer-leaders, too.

Coach McBride is confident. He hopes to bring back the junior "A" title for the first time in years.

Going for him and the junior club is Lyle Adams, league scoring champion, an end who punts, kicks field goals and converts.

He has a good passer in quarterback Terry Jeffery while in the backfield he has halves, Bob Hidley, Larry Soule, and fullbacks John Miller and Bob Barr. His ends are Adams and David Reid.

The last BCI team to play in COSSA finals was the 1958 senior club which lost to Oshawa CI 18-13.

At the Belle

Lolobrigida and Montand Electrifying in "Where the Hot Winds Blow"

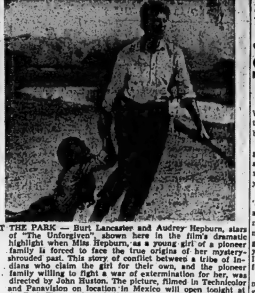
Jules Dassin, regarded by many to be one of the top directors in the world of motion picture, believes his latest effort, "Where the Hot Wind Blows," to have more intrigue and passion than any of his previous successes. The M.G.M. release opens an extended engagement today at the Belle Theatre.

For Dassin, who has scored heavily with movie audiences the world over, the art of the cinema must contain these elements and "Where the Hot Wind Blows" proves to be the perfect vehicle for the native of Middleton, Conn.

Based on Roger Vailland's best-selling Book-of-the-Month Club selection which won the Prix Goncourt, the most literary award in France, the Joseph E. Levine presentation is a powerful, timeless tale of people in a small fishing village, their struggles for power, their revolt against life and their desires filled with passion and hatred.

Dassin, who believes the transformation of the Vailland novel "The Law," to the screen is be a director's dream, carefully worked with producer Gaysport Bar in selecting his fiery cast.

First he set out to get and sign Gina Lollobrigida for the role of the birth spirited Marietta, the girl who villages and the object we as she is desirable, and brazen as she is perfect casting. Dassin says, is not possible. And as the ruthless Brizante, a man motivated with the desire for power no matter what the cost, he signed Yves Montand, the international favorite. Yves Montand, The versatile Frenchman known to millions for his singing and dancing, is also an actor of extreme merit, as he proved in the terrifying "Wages of Fear," which he starred in.



Melina Mercouri, the Greek actress who is becoming a fast favorite, is especially acclaimed for claimed performances in "He Who Must Die" and "Never On Sunday," both directed by Dassin, plays the part of the older woman captivated by the younger man.

The picture, filmed in Technicolor and Panavision on location in Mexico will open tonight at the Park Theatre through United Artists release. The added feature, also in color, stars Lex Barker and Patricia Medina in "Duel on the Mississippi".

AT THE MCCARTHY — Alan Ladd, right, and Sidney Poitier left, star starring as world-renowned paratrooper Ingemar Johansson co-stars, as embattled Marines in Hall Bartlett's "All the Young Men". The Columbia release is now playing the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. 2nd feature is the gay comedy "You Can't Run Away From It", starring June Allyson, Jack Lemmon and Jim Backus.

Thousands Stayed by Sets Until Dawn to Hear Returns

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The experts and the analysts will be working over Tuesday's presidential election vote for days and weeks to come and evaluating the influence of television on politics.

Whatever their conclusions, it is obvious that never before have so many people stayed up for so many hours glued to their TV sets as the returns rolled in at sight on the home screens. Thousands staggered off to work Wednesday without having gone to bed at all. "I just couldn't seem to turn off the damned set," complained any number of bleary-eyed, weary citizens.

And if the nightly TV ratings on Wednesday night — including Perry Como — don't indicate an audience much smaller than usual because all us stay-up-lates were catching up on sleep, I'll never believe another audience sampling.

Those who managed to keep their eyes open past 3 a.m. Wednesday were rewarded with one of the most dramatic moments of the long night of mounting voting returns. That was when Vice-President Richard Nixon and his wife stepped before the cameras and bravely, determinedly and with great poise—delivered his concession speech.

Nixon's concession speech was a woman watching Pat Nixon could identify herself with this tired woman at her husband's side, trying—and failing!—to conceal her disappointment—even heartbreak.

Not long after midnight, NBC publicists telephoned around triumphantly to point out a quick survey by the American Research Bureau showed that early evening coverage by its team was getting the lion's share of the home audience—almost half. CBS came second and ABC third.

This viewer, watching the competition on three TV sets, thought NBC in terms of quality, production values, and understandability. It was a tie between CBS and NBC.

SEVERS RELATIONSHIP

Election night coverage on CBS marked the end of a long television relationship. That of Westinghouse and Betty Furness, who has been its television salesperson since 1945. Her contract expired at midnight but she kept changing her costume and plugging the products until dawn.

Betty, who all through the years has been generally considered TV's best known (and highly paid—between $125,000 and $150,000 a year) saleswoman, now plans to act and perhaps find an interview program along the lines of a daytime show she had several years ago.

Jane Withers, Popular Child Star, Now in Character Roles

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jane Withers belies the popular notion that child film stars grow up to be neurotic, bitter and broke.

She is now one of those, sweetly gently into character roles at 34, she relates the same buoyant attitude she had as a bob-haired youngster.

"A lot of people say to me, 'Isn't it a shame you never had a normal childhood,'" Jane remarks. "Nonsense! I had the most wonderful childhood any girl could imagine. I was in pictures at Fox, from 8 to 18, and I remember them as great years, full of fine memories."

She now is enjoying a sentimental journey back to the home grounds of her childhood. She is playing a six-months' photographer in The Right Approach. What makes the return all the more exciting for her is that she is being directed by David Butler.

GAVE HER START

"Mr. Butler gave me my first job in pictures," she recalled. "That was when my mother and I sneaked on to the Fox lot. Back home in Atlanta, Ga., I had been on...radio since I was two, had my own program at three, billed as Dixie's Baby Dewdrop. My mother brought me out to Hollywood, convinced that I would set the town on fire.

"After we sneaked on the lot, we found out about an audition for kids to play in Handle With Care. All of us were lined up and Mr. Butler went down the line and picked out me."

She was six at the time, and the movies weren't ready for her. But a couple of years later Butler again picked Jane to play the mean little kid with Shirley Temple in Bright Eyes. The film made her a star.

After a decade at Fox, she did a few grown-up roles and then retired to marry Lee Mosso and have three children. The marriage broke up and Jane returned to acting as the plump, noisy oil queen in Giant. That was five years ago.

Jane and second husband Ken Errair have purchased 40 acres near Saugus, Calif., where they plan to build a family recreation centre. "It will be a place where people can go to have picnics, square dances, games, bobbies and all the oldtime entertainments that families enjoy," she explained.

AT THE PARK — Romance blossoms between stars Lex Barker and Patricia Medina in Columbia Pictures' "Duel on the Mississippi", in color by Technicolor at the Park Theatre tonight through Saturday. The companion feature is only the unforgettable "Unforgiven" starring Burt Lancaster and Audrey Hepburn.

TRAFFIC TOLL CLIMBS

TORONTO (CP)—Two persons injured in recent traffic accidents died Wednesday, boosting Toronto's 1960 fatality toll to 99, compared with 83 for the same period last year. Camille Luciani, 52, of Toronto was struck by a policeman's car last Thursday. David Goss, 17, died from burns he suffered when his motorcycle dropped into a road depression, upset and caught fire.

General Tendencies: There are all kinds of wonderful ideas passing through your consciousness and you can find the person and the articles that will add to your feeling of happiness and well-being. Be sure you do some invitations and have happy social or romantic times, too.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — An unexpected occurrence can be quite beneficial for you today. Keep busily occupied in creative matters though you are in the company of good friends and relations. This can be one of the happiest days in a very long time.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Work for greater harmony with others at home by using more effective strategy. Also, in spare time, find the little gifts that will please or possibly amuse them, and get into their good graces. You have great devotion — show it!

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — This would be an ideal day to get together with those you truly like, and go off on some little trip by the theatre or playhouse, etc. First get information from your newspaper, then full speed ahead. Be truly generous and thoughtful.

Most Children (June 22 to July 23) — By elevating your consciousness today, you get the greater benefits soon from your labors. You love to live gracious by so much, and you can today start on a new regime that will permit you to do just that. Think and grow.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Be quite friendly now, you can see the things that give you a great deal of pleasure. However, it is up to you to quickly map up a good invitation and meet others more than half-way, if you want a really good time, as of success to follow.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Be sure you let higher-ups see how much you respect and admire them this day, and you can be sure you will get further assistance and fine results in a short time. Investing is fine for monetary leanings and happiness of all kinds.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Your partners and closest comrades are very helpful now and you will know greater happiness than has been possible for quite some time. Show appreciation — combine efforts constructively.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — It is important you perform your regular labors in the most highly efficient manner today since higher-ups are watching you and will recognize your talents and worth and give you the boost you want so much. Be clever, alert.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Be sure you are loyal and devoted to that new acquaintance and cement closer relations for the future. And since you are exuding much charm right now, dress in very nice taste and be at your best. Have a positive approach.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — If you use a soft charm in dealing with regular associates and those who are in a position to give you a helping hand, you can get much co-operation and moral as well as financial support today. Be sincere in your devotion.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Good comrades are more than eager to co-operate with you right now, but you must tell them of your ambitions and desires and not expect them to guess your thoughts. You can then get whatever you want and should have very easily.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — If you go directly to executives and impress them with your ability, they will do much for you right now. Listen to their advice, also, with regard to a good idea that will be just what you should have at this time. Be courteous.

If your child is born today — there will be much warmth in this nature that will appeal to everyone, and your progeny does not discourage easily since there is great will power and perseverence here too. However, first teach that the things most appreciated are those that are acquired through own efforts, or your child may early be spoiled by doting friends and acquaintances, since the charm here is most evident and there is a great deal of sex appeal, too.

Had Awful Trouble With Indigestion -- Tired, Rundown

Mr. J. H. Bryden, 1626 Wavell Street, London, Ontario, is glad to pass his experience along to other sufferers, because he knows what it means to get relief from long-standing indigestion, backache, rheumatic pains and tired, rundown feeling. Mr. Bryden said:

"I was well under the weather, nothing was a trouble even my appetite. I felt tired, rundown and had awful trouble and indigestion. Many nights I couldn't get my proper sleep. I felt tired, rundown and suffered from nagging backache and sore, painful joints.

"Reading I took seemed much help to until I tried Sanatogen. And by the time I had taken the first bottle my appetite had returned, I no longer suffered the indigestion, soreness and trouble after eating. Gradually I relieved the backache and pains in my joints and I always felt better. Now I am a firm believer in Sanatogen Tonic and feel like myself again."

Why not let this great Herbal compound help you, too? It is pleasant to take and the results are quick to tell.

Sytsema is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan Drugtel.

Body Recovered

TORONTO (CP) — Firemen Tuesday found the body of Robert Ludlow, 21-year-old rookie fireman who died Monday in a $500,000 fire at a suburban Yorkdale township supermarket.

The body was found in the basement rubble 15 feet from a stairway where he apparently collapsed when trying to make his way out of dense smoke.

Firemen pumped the water-filled basement to recover the body.

HUGE TROUT

Scenes of Emotion That Burn Up Movie Screens Are Not Necessarily 'Phoney', Report

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The searing scenes of emotion that burn up movie screens are not necessarily phoney.

Take the one in which British starlet Suzannah York—tipped by most critics as a sure-fire success—has to get into a temporary rage with French actress Danielle Darrieux, and suddenly cool off.

This was no easy chore for the fresh-faced, 18 - year - old blonde who shares top billing with Miss Darrieux and Kenneth More in Columbia's The Greengage Summer, from the novel by Rumer Godden.

"Okay, let's go," snapped the floor director.

Miss York stood on the chalk mark on the polished tile floor of a French hotel lobby—all of it, of course, inside nearby Shepperton Studios—and waited while a hairdresser put her last curl in place.

HOTEL EVIL

Miss Darrieux stood behind her, her professional sophistication revealing no more excitement than that of a morning shopper.

"Action."

Miss York spins around and begins her holdforward speech to the elegant French actress. Gradually she works up to a vibrating pitch as she tells Miss Darrieux about the evils of her French hotel. "The evil was here," she screams. "All of you."

Then, according to the script, she was to turn around again and add, quietly: ". . . Except Elliott."

Elliott is Kenneth More, her secret lover.

But after working up to her tantrum, Miss York was unable to simmer down that quickly. She simply stood there and burst into tears. And that meant a new start.

Eleven takes and two hours later, with continuous echo of desperation and some near-hysterics, the scene was shot, and another 30-second bit was ready to be woven into the feature-length film.

TOUGH ON YOUNGSTERS

"Is this unusual?" a reporter asked the nearest director.

"Not with a young actress", he explained. "It's not easy on them there is front of all these people with lights glaring at you.

"But we don't worry about it!" That, in the face of it, seemed a masterly understatement.

All around the set, slouched on elegant French furniture that would be used in other scenes, stars, small-part actors, actresses and their stand-ins killed time with complete detachment while awaiting their turn. Even the highest emotions from the set failed to attract their gaze.

Kenneth More, the old pro himself, casually thumbed through a book as if in a dentist's waiting room. Earlier he had a love scene with Miss York, but he could turn them off and on like a tap.

"A darned nice guy", said a fellow from Columbia as he nodded toward the high-priced star.

EMOTIONAL SCRABBLE

Beside him, three French actors, two of them dressed as gendarmes and the other as a bar waiter, played scrabble with an English alphabet. They used all their emotions for this, and offered none to outside performers.

A tiny woman, a midget acting as a stand-in for one of the child actresses, told everyone within earshot about her capacity for three bottles of pop at a time.

As the "silence bells" rang and directors hollered for quietness, one of the gendarmes figured aloud that a comparable capacity for his hefty stomach would be three gallons.

Other scrabble players resented the interruption and a director rescinded the rules. Those without responsibilities just laughed.

A Cockney stage - builder dropped a plank outside, making just slightly less noise than his mate who bellowed a beautiful "Silence".

By hissing a well - rehearsed "shhh", a director restored order.

LONG REHEARSAL

The next shot was to be about 15 seconds and required the cameras to swing around so they could catch the perfectly-detailed lobby, the ornate, gilded staircase, the wide curtained entrance to the dining room and the curved woodwork. Standins for Miss Darrieux, a gendarme and a detective rehearsed every movement of the short scene for nearly an hour, studying footsteps, silly glances and expressions. Their every motion was chalked on the floor.

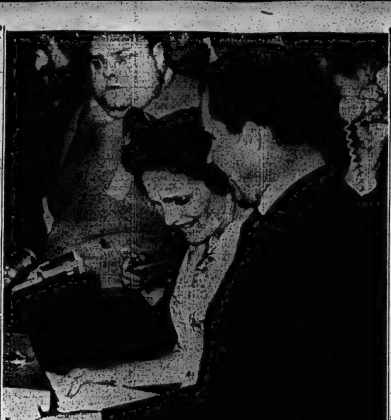
Advice poured out from directors and lighting experts and to the layman there was a babble of confusion. But the three stars scarcely noticed what was going on. They chatted and laughed as make-up artists worked over the faces.

Then it was time for the cameras to roll. The performers walked on, lined up on the chalk marks, and in their prescribed route across the lobby, handed their cigarets to waiting hands, sighed heavily, smiled at each other, and slanched themselves into another emotional crisis.

In a few seconds it was over. Cigarets were reclaimed, ten was provided and another bit of film was ready.

"That one was great," announced a director.

The performers smiled their thanks.



"That's the way it goes," said some official, "sometimes rough, sometimes smooth — an average day, I guess."

FINED FOR SMUGGLING

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Rear Admiral William Erdmann, retired, was fined $25,000 Friday for failure to pay import tax on 504 bottles of liquor brought from Guam aboard an aircraft carrier. It was the maximum fine for a non-commercial smuggler.

Canada Strives To Keep Talks On Arms Rolling

Times Move to Head Off Threat of Red Walkout

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) Canada is driving to keep disarmament talks rolling while the United States gets through the business of installing a new president.

This view was stressed today while disarmament dialogue in the United Nations' 99-member political committee seemed to be hitting a make-or-break stage.

Canada, trying to prevent a breakdown in disarmament negotiations has formally presented a resolution designed to rally middle and smaller powers and form a non-nuclear committee in the disarmament cause.

The resolution was circulated Thursday after Canada — and Sweden and Norway, which are co-sponsors — waited nine days while External Affairs Minister Howard Green outlined the terms of the Canadian proposal in a speech before the committee. The delay was to avoid seeming to interfere with John Kennedy's inauguration.

Green said in an interview Thursday night one reason for the Canadian timing was the threat of Soviet walkout. Soviet Premier Khrushchev had told Canadian Ambassador Chester Johnson in Moscow last week that Soviet delegates would leave the committee soon.

In Green's idea, a small non-nuclear committee of smaller powers could battle to get big-power disarmament negotiations started again and also keep them from closely tied to the UN under its 99-member disarmament commission.

Another value of his committee would be, in the view of some delegations, to give it voice for keeping some kind of disarmament talks going even until after John Kennedy takes over from Dwight Eisenhower as U.S. president in January.

Green ended a two-day stopover in Paris Thursday night and is expected to return Monday when the committee resumes general disarmament discussion after a speech delivered by Sir Saville Garner, Corea of Ceylon, committee president.

Corea suggested that the authors of the nine resolutions now pressing before the committee might be able to agree on a compromise text in private consultations. Failing that, the Canadian resolution could be taken as an alternative, he observed.

We got quite a lift from Corea's speech, Green said in the interview before returning to Ottawa.

"I believe the other resolutions deal mostly with principle, while ours is in the form of dealing with getting negotiations under way again."

Green was "reasonably sure" the resolution could win the necessary two-thirds majority in the 99-member General Assembly.

Rightists Riot In Algiers, Oran On Armistice Day

ALGIERS, Algeria (Reuters)— Police fired tear gas bombs into crowds of stone-throwing demonstrators today as right-wing students and settlers turned Armistice Day celebrations into a massive protest against President President Charles de Gaulle's Algerian policy.

Police and demonstrators staged running battles through the streets of the city. The fracas, chanting "Algerie Francaise" (French Algeria), commandeered a patrol buses and parked them broadside on the streets as roadblocks against the pursuing police.

The main clash developed in the area around Algiers University, where young men, most of them students, used a sledge hammer and shovels to smash iron grilles around pay up cobble stones to use as missiles against police.

Several demonstrators and policemen were reported injured in the battles that flared up in several sections of the central part of Algiers.

SAME IN ORAN

Meanwhile, in Oran, similar demonstrations broke out as a crowd estimated at 30,000 smashed down police barricades and rolled on the promenade overlooking the sea shouting "Algeria Francaise" and "Massu to power."

The demonstration abated while wreaths were placed at the tables were placed but the crowd resumed its slogan - shouting immediately after the wreaths were placed.

In Algiers demonstrators invaded and destroyed the American Cultural Centre.

In Paris, meanwhile, de Gaulle was cheered by about 45,000 Parisians as he drove to the Arc de Triomphe to place a wreath at the tomb of France's Unknown Soldier. A few of the crowd shouted anti-de Gaulle slogans and police arrested six persons for "seditious cries."

Afterward de Gaulle went into conference with Premier Michel Debre.

Lawyer Fined For Contempt

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Defence Lawyer Melvin Belli Cooper, jailed by the court during the second 25-month murder trial, was fined $300 Thursday for contempt of court. The fine will be appealed.

Cooper had objected to a statement by Judge LeRoy Daniels that he thought a murder had been committed.

A third trial will be held in the case of Barnard Finch and his ex-mistress, Carole Tregoff, who are accused of murdering the doctor's wife. The jury was unable to agree.

LIBERAL PROGRAM OF LEGISLATION BY QUEBEC GOVT.

Roads to Higher Education Included

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's new Liberal government has plunked down a program of legislation attacking everything in provincial affairs from roads to higher education.

The highlights of the speech from the throne read by Lieutenant-Governor Onesime Gagnon Thursday to inaugurate the first session of the 26th legislature.

Hospital insurance, increased social welfare payments to the needy, free primary-school education, and allowances for children attending higher grades.

But these measures, and the millions of dollars they will cost are only a fraction of the government's wide-range proposals.

The creation of three men departments forecast a complete overhaul of the provincial government administrative organization, which was for 18 years in the hands of the Union Nationale party.

TO PROMOTE FRENCH

There was no aggressive statement about Quebec bucking federal centralization, but there was a proposal to promote the use of good spoken and written French in Quebec and to strengthen ties between Quebec's French-Canadians and those who live outside the province. Also proposed was a new department of federal-provincial affairs.

There was no verbal emphasis on the farm class being the

Scientists After Twenty Years' Study Discover How Nerves Work

NEW YORK (AP) — Your brain tells your finger to move. The message rides along nerves in a split second, travelling fast enough to cover four miles in a minute.

Columbia University' scientists yesterday described new results from 20-year studies which they say could point out the way to basic mechanism and mystery.

They find that one vital chemical, acetylcholine, which generates this life - electricity, acts only briefly at nerve endings and not just at nerve endings as scientists had thought.

They have isolated a protein on which this chemical acts to trigger electrical current.

A striking discovery is that local anesthetics act because they bind up this protein—hence there can be no electrical activity and no pain.

The fundamental findings could aid research into diseases such as shaking palsy, multiple sclerosis and myasthenia gravis.

The findings, made largely with electric eels, come from Dr. David Nachmansohn and staff in the department of neurology at Columbia's College of Physicians and Surgeons.

The researchers picture nerve impulses along motor nerves as a series of lightning-fast chain reactions. It starts when any nerve ending—from an order to the brain to the pain of a hot-foot—strikes a nerve.

Acetylcholine; a natural biochemical material, is instantly released from protein material in which it is stored and made.

It acts upon a receptor of receiving protein which apparently lies along the wall or membrane of the nerve or axon.

A slight change in the protein makes the nerve wall more permeable.

Positively-charged sodium ions or atoms outside the nerve wall rush through the gate created, sobs as shaking palsy, multiple sclerosis and myasthenia gravis.

U.S. Gets Committee to Back Kasavubu for UN Congo Seat

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) The United States beat down Soviet-Arab opposition Thursday night and pushed through a credentials committee a recommendation to seat President Joseph Kasavubu as the Congo's UN representative. But a bitter fight in the General Assembly is in prospect.

The U.S. resolution was voted through 6 to 1 with the Soviet Union casting the opposing vote. The United Arab Republic and Morocco—which has backed Russia—did not vote.

The Soviet bloc and a number of Asian and African nations want to give the UN seat to delegates of left-leaning Patrice Lumumba, deposed Congo premier.

Both sides interpreted, Thursday night's vote as encouraging for their cause.

A source close to the U.S. said refusal of the U.A.R. and Morocco to vote on the credentials question could mean that the 25-nation African bloc will not vote against Kasavubu.

The Communist informant, on the other hand, declared that by running the resolution through over the strong U.A.R.-Moroccan objections the U.S. had ruined its relations with the powerful 45-nation Asian-African bloc for the rest of the assembly session.

Physical, Mental Starvation Suffered by Some Eskimos

OTTAWA (CP) — Some Canadian Eskimos still are half-starving in the North although government aid has saved their plight, Eskimo Elijah Harper told the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada Thursday.

Starvation has "both the physical and mental kind, he said in describing how government resources surveys in northern Quebec had set up co-operatives enabling the Eskimos to make money.

Co-operatives started last year at George River and Port Burwell in Northern Quebec's Ungava area, now enable Eskimos to market arctic char and catch other fish and game for trading purposes.

Chief Melville Hill of the Deschambault band near Belleville, the first granted a greater degree of administrative responsibility, said this teaches Indians to watch their money and instills a high degree of responsibility.

End of Walkout by Sailors Gives Hope of Moving Grain

MONTREAL (CP)—The end of a three-day walkout Thursday by members of the Seafarers' International Union (ind.) eased the grain tieup in Montreal and Oshawa, were hoping today to start shipping a backlog of grain.

Montreal's four elevators are filled to their capacity of 17,000,000 bushels but a spokesman said about 2,000,000 bushels should be cleared by early next week.

The walkout by SIU members tied up 21 ships, including eight owned by N. M. Paterson and Sons, Limited, and Scott Misener Steamships Limited.

Loading of grain aboard lake vessels resumed in Port Arthur Thursday with the end of the 30-hour-day strike. Gordon Hacquoil, manager of the N. M. Paterson and Sons Limited Steamship Line reported the union ordered its members back to work following a request by Labor Minister Starr.

Earlier Thursday, John Royce, 32, Fort William business agent of the SIU was charged with enticing a ship's crew to desert in violation of the Canada Shipping Act. He was remanded to appear in Port William police court Nov. 30. Maximum penalty for a first conviction on the charge is six months in jail.

The walkout ended after federal Labor Minister Starr met with Hal C. Banks, Canadian director of the SIU, assured Labor Minister Starr that union members on grain ships in Montreal, Owen Sound, Port Colborne and Oshawa would return to work as soon as possible.

In Montreal, shippers are trying to unload grain-carriers as quickly as possible to get them back into the Great Lakes for the winter grain storage before the St. Lawrence Seaway closes Nov. 30.

But officials are still faced with the problem of clearing space in the clogged elevators for more than 8,000,000 bushels of grain in 21 ships in Montreal harbor.

REPUBLICANS CHARGE FRAUD; MIGHT WIN YET

If Charges Proven Could Alter Result

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican National Chairman Thruston Morton has asked state and county Republican chairmen to investigate charges of voting irregularities, particularly in Texas, the Carolinas, Illinois, Michigan and New Jersey.

A spokesman for the Republican national committee said Thursday it had received many complaints alleging fraud, vote buying and other irregularities.

The spokesman said Morton had asked local officials to determine the facts and advise him and the United States Justice department if they found a substantial basis for the complaints.

The New York Herald Tribune said today that allegations of election irregularities in several states caused Republican leaders Thursday to cling to vestiges of hope and wonder whether their concession of victory to President-elect John Kennedy might have been premature.

COULD CHANGE RESULT

A Washington dispatch to the newspaper noted that one top Republican figure told The Herald Tribune that if "half the reports we've been getting can be run down quickly enough to be proven," it is "quite possible" that Vice - President Richard Nixon would become president-elect.

The story also said in part: Leonard W. Hall, chairman of the Nixon campaign, was less optimistic. He said a mass of reports from "almost a dozen states" indicated there had been serious irregularities — espe-

Military Regime Pledged To Fight Communist Bloc

Rule of Diem Family Ends in Bloody Battle

SAIGON (AP)—Paratroop battalions overthrew President Ngo Dinh Diem today in a brief but bloody pre-dawn uprising. The rebels set up a military regime pledged to strengthen South Viet Nam's fight against Communist infiltration and end the rule of the Diem family.

Between 20 and 30 persons were killed and many others were wounded in sharp fighting between the rebel battalions and troops loyal to Diem. But by afternoon calm prevailed in the capital. Armored units rolled into the city from Mytho, 75 miles to the south, in answer to a call from the president—but they joined the rebels.

The rebel military committee which took over the government was headed by paratrooper Col. Nguyen Chanh Thi. It claimed the full support of the army, navy and air force and said it had formed a temporary government to "carry out all military units to remain calm.

AMERICANS SAFE

No casualties were reported among the several thousand Americans in the country and military or civilian advisers to the Diem government.

The 34-year-old bachelor president, a dedicated anti-Communist whose dictatorial methods and family influences had often come under fire, was reported alive inside the presidential palace in the heart of Saigon. It was not known immediately whether he was under formal arrest.

There was no word of the president's brother, Ngo Diem Nhu, or his wife, Madame Nhu, the closest advisers, lived in the palace with him, and who have been considered the powers behind the president.

CHARGE DICTATORSHIP

The rebel military committee, in a broadcast announcing the ouster of the pro-American Diem government,

"Ngo Dinh Diem adopted a family dictatorship and was unable to face the internal difficulties and internal disease of mounting Communist dangers. The army has been divided and the population is without any freedom."

There was no indication that the army rebels contemplated a reversal of Diem's pro-Western policies. Laos has just adopted the new government and it is a fact that it had no political affiliations and had not recognized the government "to re-establish security in the country."

Communist China have been more and more active in this Southeast Asian colony in South east Asia in recent weeks.

Gen. Le Van Ty, supreme commander in chief of the armed forces and Diem's hand-picked man, was arrested.

SEIZE BUILDINGS

In the uprising, four elite security battalions led by Col. Chanh Thi and a fifth American-trained colonel, Le Quang Tung, swiftly, seizing government buildings and broadcasting from the airport and then moving in a

Opens Coffin to Put Ring on Girl's Hand, Discovers Corpse Is Not Her

NEW YORK (AP)—An incredible case of mistaken identity was discovered when a coffin in which was opened so that a young man could place a ring on the finger of an airline stewardess who lay inside.

"My God! That's not Mary," whispered Bob Evans, a family friend, as he looked at the body of a young woman.

Mary Hawthorne, 26, of New York, was a stewardess for Capital Airline stewardesses riding in a limousine from Idlewild, Long Island, City when it collided with another auto.

The four women and the cabbie were hurried to hospital in San Mateo, Calif. One steward ess died, and police with scant terred personal papers found at the crash scene, identified her as Mary Hawthorne. The other girl was a stock car Thomas Frost.

The body of the young woman was sent to a funeral home in the Bronx. It lay unclaimed in a sealed coffin until nearly midnight.

Evans asked the funeral home if he could put a ring on Mary's finger. The funeral, supposed to be at 10 a.m. Thursday, was called off.

American Airlines said the girl who lay in state was dead in Room 202, 26, of New York.

The two other stewardesses injured in the crash were Sheila Murray, 22, and Teresa Dishaw, 22, of Hollywood, Florida. Both were in good condition.

Miss Hawthorne remains in critical condition in hospital in San Mateo.

The bandaged girl regained consciousness Thursday and murmured: "I'm Mary Hawthorne."

The correct identification came to a shock to Thomas Frost,

More Workers In Car Industry Being Laid Off

LONDON (Reuters) — The slump in Britain's automotive industry worsened Thursday night when British Motor Corporation announced further cuts in working time for about half-of its 40,000 - member production force.

About 80 per cent of 23,000 employees working a four-day week since Oct. 17 will go on a three-day week next week while half of 37,000 on a five-day week also will lose a day.

BMC makes Austin and Morris cars. The British automotive industry has been hit in part by the introduction of U.S.-made compact cars on the American market.

There was a flurry of bad news during the day from other automotive centres, with about 2,000 men making car bodies at Coventry near England's new home indefinitely because assembly plants were unable to accept any more.

Marilyn Monroe Seeks Divorce From Playwright

NEW YORK (AP) — Marilyn Monroe, curvaceous film star, and playwright Arthur Miller have separated, a spokesman for the couple said today.

The spokesman said Miss Monroe would file for a divorce soon. He made no immediate plans for consulting an attorney.

Both Miss Monroe and her husband were reported in New York but could not be reached for comment.

Miss Monroe was said to be resting at home after a year of film-making, and will not discuss her personal life."

The couple's parting was said to be friendly.

The actress returned here a few days ago from California, where she co-starred with Clark Gable in The Misfits, which Miller had written.

A few days after the filming ended Miss Monroe was rushed to a heart attack. He has not yet recovered from it.

Earlier, New York Post columnist Earl Wilson said in a copyrighted story that he had told him: "It's all over—there's no possibility of reconciliation."

The film star and Miller were married in White Plains, N.Y., July 1, 1956. Miss Monroe's third marriage, Miller's second.

Leo H. Grills, M.P. for Hastings South, said this morning that Mr. Dinsdale, formerly associated with the Veterans Affairs' Department, would fly in to Trenton Air Station this afternoon.

JUDGE ANDERSON PRESIDES OVER VOTERS' COURT

Presided over by Hastings County Judge J. C. Anderson, a voters' court of appeal was held at city hall Thursday afternoon.

Acting City Clerk Adam Stalker said there were approximately 140 names to be properly included in the municipal voters' list. Most of the names were of voters, who had moved since the assessors had been around earlier in the year with applications having been made for their correction.

In all there are approximately 18,000 named on the Belleville voters' list, including about 1,000 who had a vote through the extended franchise.

6-Year-Old Boy Killed by Car Near Bancroft

A six-year-old Bancroft district boy, Howard Richard Dorman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Dorman of Monteagle township, was killed on Thursday afternoon when struck by a car as he darted out from behind another vehicle on the highway north of Bancroft.

Provincial Police said the boy and his father had been given a ride home from school. The northbound car stopped on the east side of the highway opposite the family home and the boy darted around the back of the car into the path of a southbound auto driven by Lloyd Robinson of Maynooth station.

Marmora Hunter Dies Suddenly Of Heart Attack

Jack Terrien, 30-year-old Marmora hunter died of a heart attack Thursday afternoon at Lake township at the confluence of Deer Bay and Beaver Creek. The man was found slumped in a sitting position. He was helped back to camp from a nearby bush.

Rawdon Revision Court Handles Six Appeals

Six assessment appeals were dealt with by the Rawdon township court of revision when it met November 3 in conjunction with the regular monthly meeting of council.

No action was taken on four of the appeals against the 1961 assessment. Ralph Clements had his assessment on land lowered by $500, and Aaron Anderson was marked off one dog. Appeals by the Arthur Reid estate, Orval Maxwell, Frank Slaght and Gordon Bailey saw no action taken.

The township municipal Habitity road insurance with limits of $25,000 was given to Joseph Thompson.

Harry Geen was ordered paid $25 in bounty for killing a bear.

Road voucher No. 10 for $1,151.41 and voucher No. 10A for $1,048.75 were ordered paid.

A sum of $500 school money for the year was ordered set-aside for School Section No. 2.

This Is for You Daddy-O If You Want to Dig the Jazz

"Like, man, this is Dunsville. I'm splitting this scene".

Secret code? Nope. Guess again.

It's just a teenager who has picked up the slang, and decided he's had enough.

Actually, I think it's the most English teachers, just the opposite. Parents try to, but seldom succeed, as a rule.

Canadian teenagers, like their English neighbors, somehow have developed their own unique way of exchanging views.

Belleville's teens have Belleville are no different from teenagers anywhere else. This "hip talk" is just as common locally as it is any other place. Just listen to the kids in the restaurants after school

It is just as difficult a try to explain this jargon as it is to understand it. However, there is one word in particular that keeps popping up repeatedly, and that is "like". Nearly everything the teenager says is preceded by this four-letter word which, apparently is meant, suitable, pleasing or emphatic, depending something. To some, mind you, it still does not illustrate: "Like, how do we get there?"

Other words to look for are "Like, man", "Like, real gone". These, when used by the teenager, usually mean that what he is listening to, dancing to, looking at or even eating has met with his approval.

When a teenaged boy says a girl is a "swinging chick", she can be sure he likes her. On the other hand, if he considers him "swinging", but, like, that his problem, daddy-o.

A party" can be merely a "scene" "gig" or just plain "Partyville". The suffix "ville" can be used anytime — Dunsville, Squaresville, Gravyville . . . and indeed Hummville, is a frequently used Latin phrase.

Other words in the teenagers' dictionary are "pad", meaning house; "spiv" which means lawyer; "flicks" for the movies; "bomb" for a car; "sounds" for records; "groovy" for well, that needs no explanation.

An extremist will employ these words, and countless others, in an unceasing, incessant chorus. Some, although they are a minority group, don't use them at all. The average teenager will usually use a mixture of English and teen-talk.

If parents or teachers try to "reform" the kids and get them back into the accepted form of spoken communication, namely the English language, they are apt to hear this from the kids: "Like, man, what kind of a square are you, anyway?"

St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill E.G. Sponsors Harvest Festival Tea

On Saturday afternoon, the St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill Evening Guild held their harvest Festival tea and bazaar.

The fine weather brought many out and the tea tables were ably received by Mrs. I. A. Wright, wife of the rector, and Mrs. William Parade, president of the Guild.

The church hall was decorated in a harvest theme, with pumpkins, corn and flowers, groupings of apples, gourds and vegetables. The long tea table with white damask cloth was decorated with two charming arrangements filled with fall fruits.

The individual tables had as centrepieces small pastel crocheted fruit baskets holding miniature chrysanthemums.

Presiding at the silver services were: Mrs. J. Riesberry, wife of Archdeacon Riesberry; Mrs. Vinden, wife of St. Margaret's organist; Mrs. Arthur Watson, president of the Women's Auxiliary, and Mrs. Ralph Thompson, wife of the rector's warden.

The several booths were filled with delights for the Christmas shopper, and those with a "sweet tooth."

The home baking and delicacies tables were laden with good things to eat: delicious pies, cakes, cookies, jelly rolls, home preserves, sausage rolls and many other varied items. Convenors were Mrs. R. Pickering, Mrs. S. Silliloe, Mrs. E. Toulson and Mrs. F. Hobbs.

DELICIOUS CANDIES

The candy booth, convened by Mrs. T. Bennett was a delight to see. It featured cups and boxes of delicious candies, fudge and popcorn for the children.

The children's clothing booth was filled with beautifully sewn and knitted garments. They included overalls, pyjamas and nightgowns, knitted slippers and baby sets, as well as mittens, socks and several toy dressed dolls all convened by Mrs. D. Poulton and Mrs. R. McKnight.

The apron table proved popular as always. There were styles for mother and daughter both for everyday and special occasions, done in prints and organdies. Convener, Mrs. A. [illegible].

The dolls and dolls' clothing booth was convened by Mrs. W. Lindsey and Mrs. H. Grew. There were tiny pony-tail dolls; many little dresses, and crochet sets; several beautifully trimmed doll cradles and a baby doll in christening robes, that would delight any young mother.

NOVELTY TABLE

The novelty table was highlighted by a "Snuffle Tree" which featured many pretty hankies for both children and grown-ups. Other items on this table included: embroidered towels and pillow cases; felt Christmas stockings; clever little felt pyjama bags; cushions; pot-holders; slippers and nylon tote bags, convened by Mrs. R. Bailey and Mrs. M. Gordon.

A booth offering UNICEF all-occasion cards for sale was attended by Miss Susan Clarke.

The very popular "Fish Pond" for the kiddies was convened by the Girls' Auxiliary under the leadership of Miss Ann Watson.

The tea room convener was Mrs. F. Moore and those who served were: Mrs. A. Coles, Mrs. S. Dixon, Mrs. W. Knudsen, Mrs. L. Reid, Mrs. R. G. Burns, Mrs. C. A. Campbell, Mrs. G. Meades, Mrs. J. A. Watkins, Mrs. C. Hodgson and Mrs. S. Sorsed son.

Replenishing were: Mrs. J. Ritchie, Mrs. F. Moore, Mrs. D. Fort, Mrs. W. Ford, Mrs. D. Boyce, Mrs. R. Wilson, Mrs. J. Dobson and Mrs. C. Hodgson.

Kitchen — Mrs. T. A. Collyer, Mrs. F. Sorensen, Mrs. H. Grew, Mrs. D. Fort, Mrs. R. Wright, Mrs. N. Tetrault and Mrs. C. Main.

General convener for the event was Mrs. Bruce Bisbee, assisted by Mrs. Gordon Crawford, as co-convener.

Convener — Mrs. James Hincks.

Mrs. F. Platt had charge of tickets.

Armistice Day Ceremony Held At Cannifton

Residents of Cannifton and Thurlow township paid tribute to the dead of two wars in a Remembrance Day ceremony held this morning at the township Cenotaph at Cannifton.

In charge of the service was Rev. J. A. Macartney, minister at the Cannifton United Church with Rev. J. C. Riesberry, Anglican minister at Roslin, Belleville Reserves participating in the message.

Also taking part in the service were Thurlow Reeve Alfred Vanderwater and Clerk Earl M. Dafoe, and the Cannifton Legion Unit band.

In command of the Carmel Girl Guides laid the wreath from the Province of Ontario as Cannifton Boy Scouts formed a colour guard. A wreath from the Bay of Quinte High School District Board was laid by board member Roy Sills.

SEE TALKS POSSIBLE

LONDON (CP)—A conference of Commonwealth prime ministers within the next six to eight months is regarded in official quarters as a likely possibility. Preliminary hearings are also under way in Commonwealth capitals.

Many Subjects Under Discussion By C of C Board

Wednesday's Business - Education Day, the new one - way street system, the forthcoming civic election candidates' night and the proposal of a new municipal boundary for Belleville were the main topics of discussion at the meeting of the city Chamber of Commerce at the Queen's Hotel yesterday afternoon.

Jerry Corcoran, chairman of the committee in charge of business - education day, reported that a most successful and rewarding experience had transpired for the representatives of business and industry attending the three secondary schools. It was noted that the student was being called upon to take a greater initiative in his classroom work and in working out problems by himself.

This attitude appeared to be quite successful, with students putting forward ideas and developing a certain degree of poise and confidence which was quite noticeable, Mr. O'Connor remarked.

Harold Wishart reported that it had been emphasized to the Chamber's Traffic and Parking Committee of Commerce and the Sales and Advertising Club were quite anxious to consider allowing a return for westbound traffic on Bridge Street wishing to turn south on Front Street.

A motion was passed to the effect that the one-way system was quite successful in speeding up the flow of traffic but that some future provision might have to be made to ensure the safety of pedestrians in crossing Front Street between corners.

Another motion was made suggesting that some consideration might be given by the city traffic committee to the problem of short-time double parking of vehicles for deliveries on the one-way streets.

EXPENSE UNWARRANTED

After some discussion it was felt that the annual meeting at which civic candidates usually may speak on their platforms would be held at City Hall this year as the expense of renting the BCI auditorium was unwarranted for the purpose of meeting of citizens.

The possibility of effecting the change of Belleville's sobriquet from "Ontario's Gateway" to something involving the cheddar cheese business was discussed and a select committee has now taken the suggestion under its consideration for further perusal.

It was decided to change the meeting day of the executive committee from Wednesdays to Thursdays and the next meeting will be held this coming Thursday as there are several important topics ready for consideration and action.

Secretary Earl Dicknoether read a letter of appreciation from the Bay of Quinte District High School Board thanking the Chamber for its work in obtaining prizes for the recent Moira Secondary School graduation exercises.

The meeting was presided over by Chamber president Enos David.

IN MEMORIAM

ASHBURY. — In loving memory of our dear husband and father, James Ashbury, who passed away four years ago, November 11th, 1956.

Our age cannot tell how we miss you,
Our hearts cannot tell what to say;
We think about how we miss you,
In a home that is lonesome today.

Sadly missed by wife, daughter and son-in-law.

—Mother and Grandmother.

ROYLE. — In loving memory of a wonderful mother and grandmother, Annie Pearl Royle, who passed away November 11th, 1959.

Two golden gates and one of pearl,
Two angels met and led her in,
With heavenly left unspoken,
You silently slipped away.
You suffered much in silence,
And bore your pain alone,
You fought your battle with courage,
Until the very end.
Peace, dear one, you've stay with us,
Your fight was all in vain;
God took you home,
He knew you were tired from all pain.
Peace, dear one, we'll meet you later,
Now you're in heaven with God.
There are others, yes, we know,
Who miss you more than we do,
We were not there to see you,
To hold your hand and say goodbye;
But remember, our whole lives
Remember you.
—Ever remembered by son Bob and daughter-in-law Marg.

ROYLE. — In loving memory of a dear wife, Annie Pearl Royle, who passed away November 11th, 1959.

Sadly missed by her husband.

ROYLE. — In loving memory of a dear mother, who passed away November 11th, 1958.

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
Her life's work is over, her race is run,
Her troubles and pains are past.
Her life was filled with kindness,
Her heart was true,
Till God called her home to suffer no more.

—Lovingly remembered by Irene and Art and family.

ROYLE. — In loving memory of a dear mother, who passed away November 11th, 1958.

Memories are sweet, unseen in gold,
This is the picture we tenderly hold;
Locked in the heart of a loving father and grandfather, William Ernest Hall, who passed away November 11th, 1959.

Special care. A special thanks to Dr. R. P. Clarke and Carol of Frankford United Church.

—Myers, Lears and Clifford Cooke family.

ROYLE. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Annie Pearl Royle,
Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days;
Sincere and true, in her heart and deeds,
Beautiful memories she left behind.

Lovingly remembered by son Ron and daughter-in-law Marg and grandson Tommy.

Electronics Industry Subject Of Address to Lions Club

TRENTON — George Kempf, general manager of Erie Resistor Company of Canada and vice-president of the parent company of Erie, Penna., was the guest speaker at the Lions Club meeting of the Trenton Lions last night. Mr. Kempf's address was illustrated by a colored film "Electronics in Canada."

The speaker said that Canada's economic progress depended to a large extent on the electronics industry, which has shown steady expansion over the past few years. Electronic principals and components are employed in the fields of radio, television, military defence, commerce, industry and are beginning to invade the home in the form of electronic range cleaners, washing machines and other home appliances. Electronics have also proven their worth to the manufacturers of high speed mixers and flash units.

Mr. Kempf said that it was impossible to forecast all the wonderful electronic products which would be produced within the next 10 years, but the concept of electronics was born less than 50 years ago. Today, the electronics industry is one of Canada's mainstays, employing many thousands of workers. For the future, the industry will have need of many more thousands of electronic engineers and other types of technicians in the field.

"The electronic industry is essential to Canadian well-being and safety," said Mr. Kempf, enlarging on the many military and civilian applications. "It is impossible to estimate the importance of electronics to Canada's future."

He told the audience that small transistor radios are manufactured at the Trenton plant and that the motors of the Canadian Pacific buses were "best company to buy from," "best company to sell to" and "best place to work in."

In a question - answer period, Mr. Kempf said that imports from Japan and other countries had made inroads upon the Canadian transistor radio markets. He said that heads of the industry in Canada were of the opinion that the government should place greater restrictions on imports along this line.

SPEAKER THANKED

Mr. Kempf was introduced by president Ross Rossiter and thanked by Bernard Fox.

Acting president Tom Bedford reported to the club on the Trenton Community Co-ordination Council activities. He reminded them of the inter - service club social evening at the beginning of the year. Mr. Bedford said that the council's entrances list covering would be Quinte Davis, welfare administrator for Trenton. Mr. Davis will explain to the members the plans for a senior citizens' apartment block. Mr. Cruickshanks was appointed to contact appointees from other service clubs to do something constructive about placing large signs at the town's entrances listing local service clubs and times of meetings.

Don McPherson said that the next newspaper bingo cards would be ready for the next meeting.

Carl Cruickshanks reported that two families who were recently burned out in town had received an ample supply of clothing and household goods.

Bill Slater said that plans for the Lions' Ladies' Night, Dec. 5th, were well under way.

GEORGE KEMPF, general-manager and vice-president of the Erie Resistor Corporation in Canada, was the speaker at last night's meeting of the Trenton Lions' Club.

Mixed Bonspiel Has Reached Semi-Final Stage

The mixed bonspiel has reached the semi-final stage after the three rounds were played on Thursday at the Quinte Curling Club and the gallery for tonight should witness some excellent curling. The spiel has been well patronized by those not playing, the clubhouse being filled especially for the two evening draws. The final games in the three draws will be played on Saturday evening with a social evening to follow and the distribution of the prizes. An orchestra has been obtained and the dance spiel will be closed with dancing till midnight.

The results of the draws:

'There Is No Glory in War' Army and Air Force Veteran Tells High School Students

TRENTON — "There is no glory in war."

Speaking to the assembled students at Trenton High School yesterday at the annual Remembrance Day Service, Fred Irwin, who was a lieutenant with the Canadian infantry from 1942 to 1945, and a Flight Lieutenant with the RCAF from 1950 to 1959, deplored the tendency to glorify war.

He said that when the heads of nations bow before the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, they should remember that the young man buried there had been denied, He had gone into war young, strong and idealistic, possessing the best qualities of the human spirit, with the belief that something good would come out of his sacrifice.

Now, the various heads of governments who assured him that "we was fighting the war to end all wars," are planning preparations and piling up armaments for future wars. Scientists are engaged in developing more devilish ways of slaughtering others.

Mr. Irwin urged his youthful listeners to dedicate themselves to the abolition of all war, "war is a curse," said the speaker.

He told the students to "honour the dead," but to be worthy of their sacrifice and do their best to prevent all wars.

The impressive memorial service was conducted by members of No. 172 squadron, Royal Canadian Air Cadets.

Sentences of remembrance were said by Cadette Judy Wightman, Sgt. Peter Clark and Sgt. Frank Ross; sentences of thanksgiving were said by Cadette Glenna Sprague and Sgt. Les Sterling and sentences of dedication by Sgt. Dan Krystia.

Cadette Jean Kitchen and WO2 Daryl Lincoln carried poppy wreaths through the lines of assembled students and placed them at the school rotunda.

The Scripture reading was given by Sgt. Paul Corrigan and the Last Post was sounded by Cpl. Perry, RCAF, following two minutes of silence.

mixing with vegetative ryegrass, potassium loss inside the nerve. This sets up a flow of electric current, which triggers release of more acetylcholine a mile further along to the muscle to repeat the process.

The acetylcholine released each time is immediately destroyed—within 20 to 40 millionths of a second—by an enzyme, cholinesterase. The receptor protein reverts to normal, shutting the gate against the inrush of more sodium ions. New acetylcholine is made in a flash.

For his discovery, government scientists Thursday opened a new avenue of hope for sufferers from myasthenia gravis, a disease of unknown cause characterized by progressive weakness of the muscles. They said studies in animals suggest that a synthetic compound group of drugs obtainable from bulbs of certain spring flowers such as the daffodil may be effective in treating the ailment.

When told, he collapsed. He and his son, William, 21, flew to their Philadelphia home Thursday night. He was too grief-stricken to comment.

Coroner Paul Leonard, 52, of San Mateo county, explained how the mixup in identification occurred.

"Identification was made on the basis of the girl's clothing and effects arriving at Pomona Hospital.

"Then you have the situation —four girls arriving at the hospital all in the same uniforms, all with the same haircut, and all with the same type of clothing. In a 10,000-to-1 shot that had four people dressed alike."

cially in Texas and Illinois. But he said his offhand view was that it may be too late to muster enough of it" to switch the election result.

It was learned, however, that a preliminary survey at a cooperative Thursday convinced party leaders the situation was serious enough to warrant challenges and possible federal investigations. No one at the meeting, which included a White House representative, would specify the suspected states or communities.

CALIFORNIA MAY CHANGE

A big question mark about the close popular vote resulted from reports of irregularities and a delay in the Nixon total. California's 32 electoral votes—now credited to Kennedy by a narrow margin—could swing the election if those votes still being counted—will end up in Nixon's column. If that happened, Kennedy would still have 300 electoral votes—more than the 269 required for election.

But there is a remote possibility that Kennedy, who could clash frankly more drastically if a sufficient number of Republicans in the incoming Kennedy were found in the Democratic - controlled Congress, might be denied victory if seven other states' also won unofficially by Kennedy.

Those are 27 electoral votes, Texas 24, Should those plus California's 32, switch to Nixon, he would have 274 electoral-votes, or five more than a majority.

Weekend Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Slaughter cattle traded actively with most classes and grades showing gains of strong to 50 cents per hundredweight higher this week at Toronto Stockyards, Monday to Wednesday.

Genuine milky veal calves were strong to 1 per hundred-weight higher while hogs traded on a firm to 25-cent per hundredweight basis. Lambs were 25 cents per hundredweight lower and sheep firm to 50 cents higher and sheep unchanged.

Cattle receipts, estimated at 7,000, were 500 head fewer than last week and about 700 head fewer than the same week in 1959. Receipts from western Canada were 1,000 head compared with 822 last week. Western stock calves numbered 97, off drastically from last week's 2,148 head.

There were three shipments totalling 1,000 head exported to the U.S. and no exports to the United States.

A Wise Decision

A one-day conference on small-boat safety, convened by the Federal Department of Transport, has voked against a proposal that motorboat operators should be licensed, in the same way as automobile drivers.

We agree with this decision.

There is little sense in licensing boat operators unless these operators are required to pass certain tests in order to obtain their licences. Today in Ontario we are seeing increased emphasis placed on testing applicants for automobile driving licences, because in the past the testing procedures have been too lax.

We doubt whether the situation on the lakes and rivers of the country has yet reached a situation which makes it necessary to go to the trouble and expense of setting up the extensive administrative machinery which alone could make licensing of boat operators efficient and effective.

The plain truth of the matter is that, while any boat may be dangerous to its occupants if they know nothing about its operation, only boats with high-powered motors, as a rule, pose a real threat to others. Why license all boat operators?

Even with respect to fast boats, it ought to be possible to curb recklessness within the framework of present laws.

There may come a day when licensing of small boat operators is imperative. But let's postpone it as long as possible.

National Costume? Ha!

The other day The Ontario Intelligencer carried on its front page a picture of Miss Danica D'Hondt presenting a miniature totem pole to the Lord Mayor of London.

Miss D'Hondt is Miss Canada—or one of them. She is in London competing in the Miss World contest—not to be confused with the Miss Universe contest which has a longer name but, up to the present, no extensive list of entrants.

What's bugs us is that Miss D'Hondt was advertised as wearing Canada's national costume—and she was got up in a Mountie uniform.

The fact that Canadians have failed to rush to the barricades to protest this widespread conspiracy to identify the typical Canadian with a Mountie speaks wonders for the character of this police force, but the impression it gives of Canada is palpably false.

If future Miss Canadas must wear a national costume, the nearest approach to one we can suggest consists of a sweater and a pair of slacks.

Is This Work Necessary?

Volume 1, Number 1.

There is magic in those words. A first edition. Perhaps, some day, it will become a collector's item.

The publication to which we refer is "The Road." It is a handsome magazine, printed on the best of glossy paper, generously and impressively illustrated, photographs including several in color which are impressive examples of the printer's, as well as of the photographer's, art.

"The Road" is published by the Ontario Department of Highways. The minister of the Department, from Hon. F. M. Cass, the minister, down, have every reason to be proud of the first issue.

There is just one question—will the people of Ontario really get value for the tax dollars spent in the production and distribution of this publication?

Taxpayer Pays for This

If there are a few people who do not understand the importance of forest fire prevention campaigns, it may be observed clearly in the experience which British Columbia residents suffered this year. The fires in the western province, many of them started by human carelessness, cost the government the huge sum of $4,705,000 for fire-fighting alone. Many more millions of dollars were lost through the destruction of publicly-owned timber. Who pays for this? The taxpayer.

Miracles of the Universe
The Atoms in a Star

By HON. ROBERT W. MACAULAY
Ontario Minister of Energy Resources

ARTICLE 23

In the preceding article we pointed out that a star is a ball of hot gas. (A characteristic often attributed to politicians but at lower temperatures). A star really is a furnace without a cover around it. A furnace needs a source to keep fuel burning in one place, but in a star gravity keeps the fuel "burning" in a huge ball, in one place.

Many stars are far larger, hotter and more luminous than the Sun.

Stars are made of atoms and depending upon the numbers and types of atoms will depend the amount of heat and light it gives off.

Everything in the universe is made of atoms. We know of 103 different kinds of atoms. Ninety several naturally on earth, 13 more are artificially manufactured by man.

An atom is tiny. There are said to be 6,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 in a single drop of water. Atoms are the building blocks of nature.

An atom has a nucleus (a heart or centre).

Around the nucleus or centre of the atom, circle electrons called electrons. These electrons are like little moons or satellites circling around the earth but they travel at vast speeds up to 600,000,000 miles an hour.

Many scientists resist my analogy for many reasons.

1) It fails to give a proper sense of the sizes involved.

2) It fails to give proper sense of the distances involved.

3) An electron is not really a definite shape in a definite spot at a definite time — it is smeared. To try to stop the whole spreading deprives the atom of the very characteristics — movement and energy which makes it atom.

LIKE A STADIUM

Take a football stadium of a good size. Place a pea in the centre of a field (that is the nucleus of an atom.) Around the stadium, at great speeds, circling at vast speeds, electrons (they circle around the pea in the centre like stones circle around the centre of a ball of wool, they circle in all directions and at varying distances).

Each kind of atom differs in the number of bits which make up its heart in the centre and also differs in the number of electrons which circle around the heart of the atom. The total mass of the parts in the nucleus plus that of the electrons in orbit is called the mass of the atom. Some varieties of atoms weigh more than the next (or you can say the mass differs).

The nucleus or centre of the atom is made up of two kinds of building blocks. One kind is called protons (because they have positive electrical charge (they are positives). The other kind of building block combining up the centre of the atom is called a neutron. They are not neutral and has no electrical charge. (It's not a sensible word).

These parts in the centre of the atom are held together by a mysterious atom glue. No one really knows the composition of the glue. (Well it seems to be a very strong force).*

The electrons which circle the centre have a negative electrical charge. (A heavy atom seems as an atom of uranium could be said to look a little like a large ball of very coarse wool).

THREE PARTS

Since the atom has a part that is positive, another a proton, and a part that doesn't either attract or repel, called the neutron, and a part that is negative called the electron, — the atom is said to be electrically in balance. (It has no electrical charge as a whole body, because the positive protons neutralize the negative electrons and leave the atom with no charge as a whole).

Unlike electrical charges repel (and so they jolly well should) whereas two unlike electrical charges attract.

Let's summarize — an atom has a heart in the centre. It is called a "nucleus". Around the nucleus at great speeds are circling little planets called electrons. The nucleus is made up of little particles, some of which are called neutrons (because they are neutral — have no electrical charge), and some of which are called protons (they possess a positive electrical charge).

If an atom has two protons it will, if balanced, have two electrons. If it has 3 protons it will similarly have 10 electrons, if it has 92 protons it will have 92 electrons, if it has 92* protons, it will have 92 electrons (turn-ium). Thus, the number of electron balance the negative electrons and protons (the atom is "neutral". At a young folks' party there may be a "Paul Jones" — 20 young men in the centre (protons), holding their partners' hands, while in the outer ring, 10 music, dance in a circle (the 10 electrons). This is it, this is mothers, this is also the atom!

COMPOSITE STRUCTURE

There are neutrons in nucleus of the atom. In the simpler atoms there usually are the same number of neutrons as there are protons or electrons. So, if an atom has many protons there are, you must be able to calculate the number of neutrons. The neutrons being seeless are less predictable! (Life is full of surprises, particularly in increasing numbers as the atom gets heavier).

Atoms, usually on the move, travel slowly (in ice) modern-day. On earth (on a summer's day) quickly (in equiderable heat) and very quickly (in super heat). Some scientists will revolt at this general description (I'll

Dr. Chisholm 's Advocate Of Birth Control

HAMILTON (CP)—Dr. Brock Chisholm of Victoria, a former chairman of the World Health Organization, stating a population explosion is more dangerous to the world than an atomic war, said he would like to see sterilization practised in Canada.

"The basic unit of our community," he said in a press conference, "is no longer the family, but the human race. Canada should admit more immigrants to offset overpopulation in underdeveloped countries of the world.

Birth control should not only be practised in overpopulated countries, but also in Canada and the United States, the psychiatrist said.

He said Japan, where birth control is legal, is an example of a country which has successfully controlled its population growth.

Dr. Chisholm said the Roman Catholic church is the greatest single barrier to sterilization and birth control.

He was here to address a YMCA meeting.

Bell Telephone Workers Get New Contract

MONTREAL (CP) — New collective agreements raising wages 3½ per cent have been negotiated between the Bell Telephone Company of Canada and two unions, it was announced Thursday.

The Canadian Telephone Employees' Association (ind.), representing some 19,000 telephone installers and repairmen, maintenance workers, linemen, equipment salesmen and office workers, and the Traffic Employees' Association (ind.), representing about 13,000 employees, mainly telephone operators and cashiers, workers signed 18-month contracts effective Dec. 1, 1960, for the TEA and Nov. 25, 1960, for the TEA.

Wage maximums range from $33 to $103 a week, depending on the job and plant location.

Two Storms Due to Hit Ontario Areas

TORONTO (CP)—Two storms are due to hit different parts of Ontario during the weekend.

The first is crossing Northern Ontario today, the weather office reports, and dropping two to three inches of snow in areas bordering the upper lakes. It is expected to pass without affecting Southern Ontario.

A second storm will cross Lake Superior Saturday night, bringing rain to the southern area either then or Sunday. Temperatures will moderate gradually during the weekend.

Father and Son Get $8,754 In Damage Suit

KINGSTON (CP)—Earl Frederick Wells was awarded $2,754 in damages and costs Thursday and his infant son, Darryl Lee Wells, $5,000 damages, by Mr. Justice C. H. Barlow as a result of a July 18 traffic accident, which fatally injured Mrs. Daisy Belle Wells, the boy's mother.

The mother and boy were hurt when passengers in a car driven by William George McDonald, 19, veered off the road to avoid a collision with an unidentified car.

Cement Plant Employees Make Presentation

POINT ANNE — The employees and friends of Mr. Willis Akey, of the Canada Cement plant No. 3, held a party and presented him with a set of electric drills and matching tools.

Mr. Akey expressed his thanks to them and for their kind thoughts and said he had enjoyed the many years he had worked with them.

Mr. Akey is retiring this month and will be missed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Akey live in Point Anne and have four sons, three of whom work at the plant.

'Remembering City' Pauses In Activity to Pay Tribute To Glorious Dead of 2 Wars

A "remembrance" city paused in its stride today to pay tribute to its glorious dead of two wars.

Sullen grey skies reminiscent of that November 11th, 1918 when the "cease-fire" ended the first world holocaust, greeted veterans, associations, organizations and individuals gathered to honor those who gave their all for civilization.

War veterans', organizations, many unaffiliated "old soldiers," civilian associations and private individuals marched in a parade dotted with units of the armed services and their bands in a simple but impressive memorial service at the Station Street Cenotaph.

Tonight, war service organizations of the city will observe "Remembrance Day" with banquets in their respective club rooms and special speakers.

Branch 99 Canadian Legion will hear an address by Lieut.-Col. A. A. Kennedy, DSO, of Owen Sound, former commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, while ANAF Branch 201 has Captain the Rev. Alex Wakeling, chaplain of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, as the guest speaker.

Following the service at the cenotaph, many wreaths were deposited at the foot of the monument. Included were those from the federal, provincial and municipal governments, the armed services, war veterans' associations, civilian organizations and many private individuals.

Also depositing wreaths were a number of women's associations including the ladies' auxiliaries of the Canadian Legion and the ANAF, St. Julien, and Argyll Chapters I.O.D.E., and others.

MOVES FROM ARMOURIES

Under the supervision of his marshal Lt. Peter Ellis, the colorful parade moved away from the Bridge Street Armouries at sharp 10.30.

Headed by smart color parties of the Station Street RCAF band, it swung up Bridge street to Pinnacle thence to Station street and the cenotaph. Returning it marched along Station street to Front Street to Bridge and the armouries for dismissal.

Representing the Dominion Government was Lee Grills, M.P. Mayor A. McLean Haig presended the city.

Following governmental representatives came the Station Trenton RCAF flight followed by a detachment of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment of two dozen or more wreaths laid during Remembrance Day ceremonies.

Dominion Government wreath is laid by Lee H. Grills, M.P. for Hastings South. Government wreath was first offering of their lives in the flower of youth; these men who dared to die in a cause that was sacred."

"There is more in our heritage than is ever published," Mr. MacLean said. "Surely God will condemn those who would exploit that heritage to profit from war."

Previously a solemn hush fell over the assembly as memory leaped the chasm of time. Then two RCAF trumpeters sounded "Last Post" and "Reveille."

Beginning the wreath-laying ceremonies, Mr. Grills, flanked by Messrs. William Bailey and Eric Denyes, deposited the memorial tribute of the government of Canada.

The government of Ontario wreath was deposited by Mrs. Dave Bradford, a war mother of this city, escorted by Everett Liddle and Bob Perry. The city's wreath was placed by Mayor Haig, escorted by Alderman Robert Temple and Ross Bailey.

Wreaths of the armed services were deposited by Sub-Lieut. D. Bailey, Navy; Captain Alex Cunningham, Army, and Flying Officer E. A. H. Weddell, RCAF.

The Canadian Legion wreath was placed by branch president Norman Spencer and that of Branch 202 ANAF by president Jack "Lundberg."

Report Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Fulton Thursday instructed the RCMP to investigate reports that $2,500,000 in counterfeit money was circulated during the June 22 Quebec provincial election campaign.

The inquiry was ordered after Daniel Johnson, former Quebec hydraulic resources minister, charged Liberal ministers' attention to 'reports in a Quebec weekly newspaper.

The Liberal party was victorious in the election.

Two Freighters Collide, No One Injured

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP)—A Canadian freighter and a German vessel collided in Lake Huron today. Both ships were damaged but the crew of neither was reported in danger.

The Canadian vessel was the Algosoo, owned by Algoma Central and Hudson Bay Railway Company. Its home port is Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and its captain is listed as C. G. Wagg.

The ships collided at the lower end of Lake Huron where it meets the St. Clair River.

The second ship was the West German freighter Beteigeuze, which struck and damaged a bridge at Saginaw Thursday. A coast guard inquiry into that mishap was under way in Detroit today.

Port Colborne Police Withdraw Desertion Counts

PORT COLBORNE (CP)—Charges of desertion against 32 former members, arrested Thursday when they walked off the Scott Misener Steamship Lines vessel Frecrest, were today withdrawn by Port Colborne police.

Police withdrew charges of illegally abandoning a vessel, a violation of the Canada Shipping Act, after Hal C. Banks, Canadian director of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) issued a directive that all SIU crew members "involved in an illegal walkout to return to their ships.

Detained, Lyle Trudel, 27, of St. Catharines, was remanded to Nov. 18 for trial on a charge of charges of persuading seamen to abandon their ship and operating a motor vehicle while his licence was under suspension.

Eighteen others, including two women, walked out over a dispute between the Canadian Seamen's Union, affiliated with the SIU and the National Association of Marine Engineers (CLC). They were arrested as they stepped ashore at this port on the southern end of the Welland Canal.

Ten vessels of Scott Misener Steamships Ltd., N. M. Paterson and Sons Ltd., and the Hall Corporation of Canada were left idle along the canal by walkouts.

Hundreds Late

TORONTO (CP)—Fire broke out today on a subway train and made hundreds of passengers late for work.

cornerstone of Quebec's economy—in fact the emphasis was on a new approach to natural resources development — but there was a proposal to increase farm credit and to set up a minimum price companies will pay farmers who cut and sell pulpwood.

There was no statement about the need for balanced relations between employers and employees but the promise of amendments to speed up lengthy labor relations board proceedings and a promise of a new labor code for Quebec in the future.

NEW PROJECTS

Nearly every sentence of the 1,700-word speech announced some new project or a proposed change.

Legislation during the coming session will touch on mining, the provincial police, the Quebec Liquor Commission, the municipal field, the structure of the finance department, the Civil Service Act, the need to preserve the finance department, the Civil Service Act, the need to preserve the distinctive character of Quebec City, the tourist bureau, water pollution, financial responsibility of motorists, highway safety and rational development of Quebec's forests.

There will be laws, too, dealing with hunting and fishing, with investigation concerning fish and game "to make them available to more of our citizens."

SOCIAL and Personal

Mr. G. S. (Babe) Casey, 3 Carmen Avenue, is a patient in Kingston General Hospital, following surgery.

Miss Carole Osborne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Osborne, 135 Charles, has just been successful in her Registered Nurses' examinations, held at Oshawa General Hospital. Miss Osborne is now on the staff of Wellesley Hospital, Toronto.

Retirement Is Slow Process For Reporter

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Retirement is a gradual process for an official reporter.

Miss E. Lillian McKenzie, who recorded evidence in the Middlesex County courts for nearly 40 years, left her job at the beginning of November.

But her connection with the courthouse will continue for weeks, perhaps months.

Lawyers who are considering launching appeals or making judgments usually call for transcripts of trial evidence. Court reporters have to transcribe and type these records from their own hand notes and any transcripts from Miss McKenzie's notes up to the time she left have been made by her.

"Court work can be very trying but it's very interesting," she said after her retirement. "You just have to have a sense of humor."

Most difficult part of the job was to understand witnesses.

"As long as people speak clearly, it doesn't matter how fast they go. Unfortunately many people mumble and too many others drop off the ends of their words."

W.I. Visits County Home

MELROSE — Members of Melrose W.I. visited the County Home for the aged on the occasion of Nov. 8th. Mrs. L. Goasdby presided and Mrs. Charles Bates, a reading by Mrs. E. Paiton and a skit, "Taking the Census" by Mrs. J. English and Mrs. Sherry Demille were heartily received. Refreshments of ice cream and cookies were served. Mr. Charles Long, Reeve of Tyendinaga acted as genial chairman for this occasion.

Women's Activities

CENTRE STREET W.A.

The W.A. ladies of Centre St. United Church held their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday afternoon in the church school, with a large attendance. The president, Mrs. Long burst, welcomed all.

Scripture was read by Mrs. H. Rawley Matthew 5:1-16 and Mrs. Vanderwater gave the topic "Our Commission". "For so hath the Lord commanded us". As a young girl, an uncle took me to see a painting, "The Light of the World". While I stood gazing at it, the lantern caught my eye and childlike asked, "That is not very much light to light the world". My uncle told me not to look at the lantern but to look at the face of Christ.

"Raising my eyes I understood what he meant. The radiance and beauty shining there reflected the soul and I realized that, if our lives are to light the pathway or our fellow men we, too, must have that same love and light in our hearts so that it will reflect in our faces".

"How often, in the Bible, God speaks of us as lights, candles or lamps. How foolish we are not to 'Let our light so shine before men', Many of us are only small candles while others are large lamps, only we must remember that even a small candle may brighten a spot in some person's life. Our lamps must be kept trimmed and burning so the flame will always be bright. We must keep the windows of our lives clean that the beams may shine through. Without hindrance, whatever we do, we should do it in the name of the Master. So we must live in constant communion with Him that we may draw always from His fulness".

Mrs. Wood gave the financial report. The ladies are going to hold a rummage sale late in November. After the business part, we talked care of, the ladies held a contest, the winner, Mrs. Stapley.

The ladies enjoyed a social half hour with a cup of tea and light refreshments. Hostess for the day was Mrs. Vivian Keller.

Wonderful Wool Knits

BY GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Flat wool knit keeps its line nicely and is much used this season, as it is for the attractive suit dress detailed with separate slicker. It is pretty in either Dior blue with paler blue bolero trim or in brown with beige trim.

The jacket can be worn with the slicker, the belt, it has rounded edges and slit sides.

The skirt is lined to hold its shape. A matching short-sleeved sweater can be worn in place of the striped slicker.

Guild Enjoys S. American Travelogue

The Parish Guild of Christ Church held its November meeting on Tuesday in the Parish Hall, with a good attendance. Mrs. R. E. Dawson, the president, opened the meeting. Mrs. E. Colbourne, secretary and Mrs. F. Lafer, treasurer read and answered were encouraging reports.

Plans were made for a "Christmas Dessert" luncheon and assistance with the Christmas bazaar for the Parish.

There will be a corporate communion for Guild members on the morning of November 16th.

The devotional period was taken by Mrs. G. G. Wright, on "Power Through Prayer," saying "the clergy of today have so many problems and so many troubled people coming to them for help, we could assist them a great deal with our prayers".

Mrs. Wright concluded with a liturgy of prayer.

Mrs. Earl Hickey introduced the special guest of the afternoon, who showed colored slides and gave a wonderful travelogue of S. America, covering Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Chile, Bolivia and Brazil. The beautiful pictures were most informative and gave a great insight into the lives of the people and the magnitude of this great mountainous continent.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. Charles Bishop.

A social hour followed with Mrs. Harold Bateman and Mrs. Ron Godden as hostesses.

Teachers Talk To Mothers at H-S Assoc.

A "Teachers Talk To the Parents" meeting was held by the Alexandra Home and Queen School Club in the school auditorium.

Mrs. Downing, the president, conducted a short business meeting. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Green.

Miss Thompson, a former teacher at the school, was presented with a gift on behalf of the Home and School Club.

The room count was won by Mrs. Somerset's grade three class.

The parents met with their child's teacher to their respective rooms. Each teacher gave a short talk on whatever subject she thought would be most interesting and helpful to the parents. It was quite successful.

Later, all returned to the auditorium where an amusing skit was enacted by Mrs. Feather, Mrs. Cavalier and Mrs. Drumm, club members, entitled "An Imaginary Interview Between Teacher and Parent."

Mrs. Clarke gave a report on the UNICEF Hallowe'en night and thanked all who had helped. $103 was collected by the pupils of Queen Alexandra School.

Mrs. Downing announced that there would be no meeting in December; instead there would be a tea for the mothers of the new pupils.

Coffee and cookies were served at the end of the meeting.

Weddings

DICKEY — STEWART

Downsview United Church was the setting for a recent lovely autumn wedding when Gloria Anne Stewart of Point Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Stewart, became the bride of William Watson Dickey of RCAF Downsview, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dickey, of Belleville. The Reverend Francis Downing, pastor of the church, officiated before a background of yellow and white chrysanthemums and ferns in white baskets. The guest pews were marked by the traditional white satin bows.

The wedding music was rendered by the church organist, Mr. Clive Dunstan.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a charming bridal gown of white silk organza over net and taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodice having a scoop neckline and edged with lace accented with sequins and seed pearls. The long, V-pointed sleeves were in wrist-length style, and the fully bouffant skirt in street-length. She wore a tiara with finger-tip veil of imitation bulle, embroidered with sequins and seed pearls. Her flowers were white carnations in cascade style, tied with white satin ribbons.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Jean Stewart, who wore a gown of tiered net in shades of green, mauve and blue with fitted bodice having a sweetheart neckline enhanced by a lace stole forming tiny sleeves over the shoulders. The fashionable street-length skirt was gracefully full. A mauve feathered hat, matching gloves, and cascade of yellow baby 'mums with yellow streamers completed her ensemble.

Mr. John MacLaurin, of Downsview, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. William Carleton, and Mr. Randall Evans, both of Downsview ushered the guests.

The reception, which followed the ceremony, was held in the guest room of the Diplomat Restaurant, Downsview.

The bride's table was appointed with white damask, and centred with white roses, and topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom beneath an arch of pink roses and white wedding bell. Tall white candles in silver holders and the bridal bouquet completed the nuptial setting.

The guests were served for the bride's mother who wore a dress — printed matte-nylon with brown accordion pleats and corsage of bronze baby 'mums centred by yellow pompon heart roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, attired in mauve nylon, with mauve hat, black and white accessories and corsage of yellow baby 'mums.

For the honeymoon to points north, the bride chose a beige wool dress, gold-toned topcoat, matching beige hat, with yellow 'mums corsage.

Guests were present from Kingston; Toronto; Oshawa and Belleville.

The bride, previous to her marriage was honored by two presentations, one by the staff of the Bell Telephone and one by the Traffic Department of the Bell Telephone.

Mr. and Mrs. Dickey are residing in Downsview, Ontario.

BARBER — WOLFE

Tall, white standards of shaggy white 'mums mingled with white gladioli and pews designated by white satin bows, formed the setting for the Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, on Saturday, November 5, at 3.00 p.m. for a double-ring wedding when Nora Christina, Wolfe, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Wolfe, was united in marriage to Robert Stanley Barber, of Belleville R.R. 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Barber, by the Reverend Harry M. Davis, pastor of the church, assisted by the Reverend Robert Sherwin, assistant pastor.

The wedding music was rendered by Mr. S. Alec Gordon, church organist, who played the wedding march in the processional and recessional and sang the marriage of Her Royal Highness, Princess Margaret, and accompanied the soloist, Miss Muriel Johnson, who sang before the ceremony "A Perfect Love" and during the signing of the register, "A Wedding Benediction."

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. W. F. Wolfe, the bride was radiantly lovely in floor-length bridal gown of soft, white satin, appliqued with lace and sequins, fashioned with fitted bodice having a pointed neckline and long sleeves ending in "V" points over the wrists. The skirt fell in graceful folds. She wore a sequin-ed Juliet cap, with bouffant chapel veil. Her bouquet was a golden-throated orchid encircled by white stephanotis and ivy.

Mrs. A. G. Courtenay of Ottawa, attended her sister as matron of honor, gowned in peacock blue peau de soie, in wrist-length, featuring a full skirt and molded bodice centred by a large matching bow. Her headdress and gloves were of matching material, and her pumps of black patent leather. She carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses mingled with bronze 'mums.

Little Penny Barber, cousin of the bridegroom, as flower girl, was frocked in bright turquoise, fashioned in style similar to the matron of honor. She wore a matching headdress and carried a nosegay of Johanna Hill roses and white stephanotis.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. Willett J. Barber, Belleville R.R. 7, and the ushers were tabored by Dr. Ralph MacMillan of Toronto, and Mr. A. S. Courtenay of Ottawa.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Club Canara for 70 guests, where the bride's table was appointed with a hand-worked Italian cutwork dinner cloth, centred by a three-tier wedding cake surrounded by tulle and small flowers. The guest tables were centred by bronze and yellow 'mums.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. W. S. Taylor of Ottawa, to which the bridegroom responded.

The bride's mother, for her daughter's marriage, chose a purple rayon crepe with draped bodice, matching hat and accessories, with cream orchid corsage. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother, in pink-toned soft taffeta with matching hat and accessories. Her corsage was of green orchids.

For the wedding trip to New York City, the bride travelled in a dark grey walking-suit lined with grey Persian lamb. A dark green hat and gloves, black accessories and corsage of white orchids, completed her costume.

Guests attended from Victoria, B.C.; Nova Scotia; Kingston and Port Hope.

The bride, previous to her marriage, was entertained by the laboratory staff of Belleville General Hospital, of which she is a member, with a miscellaneous shower. Also at a tea and saucer shower by the Quinte Belles Chapter of "Sweet Adelines", of which she is a member.

Mr. and Mrs. Barber will reside at Belleville R.R. 7.

Typical Study Lesson Shown At St. Anne's

POINT ANNE — The October meeting of St. Anne's P.T.A. was held in St. Anne's school with the president, Mr. Gerth Bradshaw, presiding.

It was decided that a basket of groceries would be sent out, as in the past, at Christmas time. Mr. M. Flesch was appointed to have the tickets printed and distributed to members to sell. Mr. Harold Palen accepted the chairmanship of the program committee.

Mr. Gehan, principal of the school, was the speaker for the evening. In his address he asked the parents to co-operate in making the supervision of the children at noon easier for the teachers, by instructing the children to treat the school mealtime with the same respect and courtesy as the children show at home. He also suggested that the parents have things of interest to keep them occupied in bad weather when they must remain indoors. Homework was also mentioned and the parents were asked to supervise this as well, and encourage the children by showing interest in their progress.

TYPICAL STUDY LESSON

Mr. Gehan prepared a typical social study lesson for the parents so they could the more easily understand the teaching method, as well as assist the youngsters in their homework. He pointed out how other subjects are taught as the children learn history and geography.

After the lesson had been taught following the same manner as it would have been taught to the children, he asked the parents to sum up the information in a paragraph as the children do. Some of the parents' paragraphs were read. It was explained that these are advantageous to the pupil in the ungraded school room, since the children are exposed to review in hearing the lessons of lower grades. They also learn by listening to work of higher grades.

Mr. Gehan's effort was applauded by the parents, and thanked by Mr. Pelow for his lucid explanations.

Readers' Friday Column

As conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

We are planning on having four baby christened and hope to invite some 40 relatives and close friends to our home following the service at about noon. Seeing as it is lunch time and it would be quite impossible to serve such a large group a lunch, I am wondering if I could invite them later in the afternoon for tea or if you know of a simple but very delicious and different serving which I could use for this occasion. I thought maybe a hot sauce on meat (beef perhaps) made in similar to a sesame roll might be nice. . . However, this may be too elaborate a dish for such a number of people in a home and the guests may enjoy fancy sandwiches, more. It would be very pleased to hear personally of your opinion on this matter. We plan on using the top layer of our wedding cake which we have saved for this occasion. . . M. McD.

ANSWER:

In your case invite them back at 4:00 p.m. and serve tea and fancy sandwiches and the wedding cake. This way you can make the sandwiches and, if necessary, even cut them and arrange them on serving plates and store them with saran wrap in the refrigerator overnight. However, it would be better to have some trusted friend cut and arrange the plates for you on that occasion.

As you realize, you will have quite a number of guests, and baby will be excited and yet necessarily present and probably in the mood of wanting undue your attention — so have someone, delegated to tend the baby throughout the tea. Ask relatives to help make the tea in the kitchen; 2) pour it; 3) cut, arrange and pass sandwiches; 4) cut the cake. Thank you in advance. Thus you leave yourself free to entertain.

I am enclosing some previous releases which will give you a good idea on making ahead in advance.

I am also enclosing some releases giving fancy cookies which you might like to include.

QUESTION:

I would like to know if one can use butter instead of vegetable shortening in making chiffon cakes. What is the reason for using oil in chiffon cakes and would not one use in proportion to the amount of oil called for? . . . M. M.

ANSWER:

No — you cannot use butter instead of oil in chiffon cakes. Oil is used in chiffon cakes because it does not harden even at extremely low temperatures, thus giving the cake its airy and spongy texture.

ANSWER:

I think you are clever to have reserved some wedding cake for this very special occasion.

At the christening for my grandson we invited the guests to return to our home "later". In your case invite them back at 4:00 p.m. and serve tea and fancy sandwiches and the wedding cake. This way you can make the sandwiches and, if necessary, even cut them and arrange them on serving plates and store them with saran wrap in the refrigerator overnight. QUESTION BOX

Question: If the husband of a dinner guest enters the room at the last minute, should he be introduced immediately, or wait until she arrives? — Mrs. H.P.R., Roanoke, Va.

Answer: I dont think it would be very courteous to let the poor man stand around in the room trying to become part of the party. When his wife arrives, she would, of course, be accorded the same courtesy. A word to the husband in this case. If your wife is to simply gone to powder her nose, you should wait to introduce the latter party together. Only if she is detained for a lengthy period of time, such as waiting for a late baby-sitter, should he enter alone.

Question: I recently attended a wedding and was thoroughly disgusted before it was over! After the ceremony, we arrived at the club where the reception was being held, and, by actual checking of a watch, we waited over three quarters of an hour, before we moved in a long line of ushers, people, also waiting. All this because photographs were being taken of the bridal group! We have had this happen before, and I am wondering if there isn't some way that those running a wedding could not find out so the guests wont be imposed upon! — Mrs. T.B.W., Detroit, Mich.

Answer: The procedure of which you speak is quite common, and why the hosts at a wedding reception never think of doing it, I will never know! It is a definite affront to one's guests and is absolutely inexcusable to be brought about by two things — the natural desire of the family to have pictures of the great event, and the overzealous desire of the photographer to get as many shots as he can, because he knows it will be a big order. The whole bridal group cannot be together until after the ceremony. This, of course, makes it difficult. The air can be handled by using an iron hand on the photographer by telling him he has ten minutes — and no more. Also, designate someone in authority to keep the bridal party together for this ten minutes. Make it clear that, if an usher or bridesmaid suddenly does a disappearing act, there will be no waiting for them to return.

Question: I have a cross to bear! I cannot remember names. I try very hard, but I am so afraid I will forget a name, that I always do. At a party I recently attended, all the guests wore little name plates. I can't tell you when I have enjoyed an evening more! Wouldn't this be a good idea whenever a party is held where a lot of strangers are to be present? — Mrs. P.V.C., New York, N.Y.

Answer: I couldn't agree with you more! I have the same unfortunate failing, for years I have been advocating a name plates. Those with whom I have talked are all agreed it's a marvelous idea, but so far very few have had the nerve to start the ball rolling. Not only would it save a lot of embarrassment, but think of the fun the ladies could have. Plain name plates for daytime parties, small jeweled ones for evening. Gentleman would, of course, wear plain ones in their lapels. Let's keep pushing for this idea.

Question: Some hometown friends of ours are going to be visiting the city in which we now live. I want to give a small cocktail party for the couple and would like to know how I should word the invitation. It is in honor of this couple on my invitations. —Mrs. R.N.W., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: For an informal party I like this. I would suggest using the phrase "To meet." This should be written in the lower left-hand corner of your invitation. For example: "To meet Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Green." In other phrase that is gaining in popularity today (and it has a friendly, warm meaning) is "In contentment to." Either one is correct.

Question: There seem to be conflicting views as to whether the father of the bride should be in the receiving line at a wedding reception. Do you feel that he should do this, or should he circulate with the guests, seeing that they are introduced and invited to be late?

Answer: I think the father belongs in the line, standing on the left of his daughter. This is the proud day for him, and I think he should be with the guests whenever it is perfectly proper that he do so. It is up to him to mingle with the guests and keep the party going, if he prefers. But, after all this is supposed to be the job of the best man and ushers.

Question: What goods silver should be placed on a dining table? Only that actually needed for the meal, or should the setting always be included, even if you aren't going to use the implements? — Mrs. P.W.C., Scranton, Pa.

Answer: It is not necessary to put the whole place setting on the table when you are only going to need part of it. For example: if a knife and fork and butter spreader are sufficient, why clutter things up with implements that will not be used?

New Ritz Hotel Helps Prove Lisbon is No Ordinary City

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

LISBON, Portugal — An off-track European capital of cobbled streets and narrow alleys where barefoot farm women sell baskets of fish on their heads dodges wooden-wheeled oxcarts, would hardly seem the spot for the place for a hotel that could stop traffic in Miami Beach. But if the management will do it, the only way would be to open the front door.

We're talking about the 300-room Ritz, opened last month without much fanfare. Since then it has stayed fairly well filled with hotel owners from Europe and from all over the world, all of whom dawdle with reluctance and bidewilding shakings of the head.

Built with Portuguese money by the Grand Hotels Europeens (Ge) and Ritz, the cost totalled $7,000,000. That doesn't begin to tell the story. It happens that many firmly ruled countries, the 16th century on through the 18th, neglect and decreed that all imported construction materials should be free of duty. The exemption cut expenses about in half. Experts say the same hotel built at United States labor costs would cost more than the $30,000,000. In short, the Ritz is probably the most lavish hotel ever built.

ALL STOPS OUT

You have to see it to believe it and even then you still don't. Ankle-deep pile carpets and hand-woven rugs, quarrylike of marble pillars and flooring, antique wall panels of embossed suede, rock-like mahogany doors, pure silk draperies and bedspreads, solid chrome door knobs and faucets, footings in Portuguese chandeliers and rare paintings and special tapestries — the impression is that all the stops were pulled out in heaping elegance upon the Ritz.

Even in classic formal decor — in direct contrast to the Art-of modernity of most new hotels — and with a warmth and hospitality which the owners, the Ritz is, understandably the most talked about hotel in Europe today.

We arrived here on a DC-8 at Lisbon's airport. This is a country in keeping with the enterprising ways of the daughter line. It was the only European airline flying jets between Portugal and the United States and can also be found going into South America, the Middle and other unlikely places.

At 3:45 A.M., it had been a 12-hour flight from New York to this westernmost European city. Which has often been made us wonder why it isn't as popular a jumping-off place to the continent as, say, London. The transatlantic fare is the same, and judicious use of a Eurailpass can parley it into one of the cheapest ways of visiting Europe.

By the time we reached the Ritz in the dawn's early light, the first of Lisbon's varied specials was presented on a platter. They it is a city of incredible color. The air and light have a translucent quality that hone and brighten everything the eye sees to an almost unreal clarity.

Red tile roofs; adobe buildings of glazed whites or pastels seemingly made of Easter egg dyes; green and red flowered parks around every corner and at the end of every boulevard. Like punctuation marks in the sentences of a city's streets; fanciful fountains are used as name plaques on homes or as the facades of six-storey buildings; from high points such as the St. George Fortress the Romans built above the city, views of harbor movement, of terraced streets with ancient gabled houses tumbling upon each other at crazy angles, and image sprawling to the horizon in outline sharpened by the autumn sun — all create a picture of Lisbon as no ordinary city.

NEVER BEEN ORDINARY

Nor has Portugal ever been an ordinary country. Columbus couldn't get an decide out of King Joao II, whose navigation already knew that even if India could be reached by sailing west, the east was still the most likely route.

It was a Portuguese named Vasco da Gama who finally accomplished what Columbus set out to do, and when Ferdinand Magellan's ships got home with-out turning around, they earned for the Portuguese the honor of being the first to sail around the world.

They opened India, the Orient and parts of Africa, places where they still maintain colonies. But the politics of their peregrinations are less interesting than the culture. The Portuguese were unique among explorers in that they brought home the culture of their colonies.

Indian themes from Brazil long have been used in their fabrics and the whimsical Manuelline style of architecture (Gothic — Renaissance incorporating fillips of stone monkery, kneels and other oddities seen by the navigators — is peculiar to Portugal.

The Ritz contains more fine examples of contemporary Portuguese — hotels, apartment houses, office buildings, banks — than any city in Europe.

From the misty day in history they started to develop a culture distinct from that of the Latin dominating most of the Iberian peninsula, the Portuguese have been confounding historians and sociologists alike with their individuality.

How can mere newspapermen figure out what the Ritz is doing — instead of Miami Beach?

More about Portugal next week.

Habit of Smart Hostess Should Include Trousers

By JUDITH AYER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Trousers, once the mark of the men-say tomboy, now are equally the habit of the smart hostess.

And a garment once relegated to the kitchen has come out in satin and gold lame.

Top designers in London and Paris have shown trousers in their collections.

Everybody is wearing them — or should be, say fashion experts of the national press, who have been quick to note that trousers are the latest and craftiest of the fashion gimmicks.

CHIC AND COMFY

The discriminating hostess, they say, should not be without a pair of slim, gold lame trews. They are ideal for entertaining — comfortable, yet chic.

Another, less obvious, variation is the wide-trousered affect. So full are these that it is difficult to distinguish them from skirts. They come in tweeds for the country, satin for evening wear.

Also for evening wear is the pants - plus - overskirt idea. The latter can be made of the same material as the trousers, or of something lighter, such as tulle or chiffon.

For mothers-to-be, trousers and matching tops are recommended as being functional and elegant for any time of day.

Probably the newest idea in the trousers trend is the one-piece trouser suit.

TWEED DUNGAREES

Even the old tried and true types are pulling a new face. Dungarees now are being made in heavy tweed for cold weather or country wear.

Rumor has told that trousers in such materials as velvet or satin foster the long - legged, sexy, seductive look.

A good figure looks even better in tight - fitting trousers, whether, narrow, bell-bottomed, stable-type or knee-length. The problem of wide hips can be overcome by a long tunic or an overskirt.

The only sphere as yet unconquered by the trouser is the office. But judging by the growing trend, secretaries in slacks may yet take dictation from men bewildered by the fact that everybody in the family wears the pants.

WORKSHOP SCHOOLS

Under a national plan in Norway, workshop schools giving preapprentice education for primary school graduates have about 6,300 boys and girls taking one-year courses.

Nurses Given Sterile Method Talk

On Wednesday evening last, Dr. K. M. Douglas of the isolating staff of Belleville General Hospital presented a skit—"How Not To Do A Sterile Dressing," and a panel discussion on sterile technique as the third in the series of lectures for graduate nurses sponsored by the Belleville Community Nursing Registry.

Those in the cast of the skit were Dr. Douglas, Miss Agatha Lanchey, Miss Ann Enright, Miss Marilyn Cormier, —Mrs. Alison Kuglin, Mrs. Barbara Jones, Mrs. Norma Lewis, Mrs. Pearl Hoskings and Mrs. Eva Quinney. The director was Miss Marion Cormier.

The panel discussed points of technique arising from the skit and also questions from the audience concerning sterile techniques. The panel consisted of Dr. Douglas, Miss Murphy, Miss Cormier and Miss Vie Kaskas, moderator.

TOMATO APRIC

Tomato apric is a Christmas looking salad, especially when it is garnished with sliced scalloped olives. For a rich-red and full-flavored apric, use the new concentrated tomato juice from the base. To make the mold you will need 1 cup of tomato jellies in a pattern in the bottom of the mold, then pour over it a thin layer of aspic mixture which is partly set. Arrange in the remainder of the mixture. Chill until firm.

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1 cup (35 ounces) Heinz Tomato Juice
1 tablespoon lemon-juice
2 teaspoons minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon celery seed

Soften gelatin in ¼ cup tomato juice. Add remaining juice; heat to boiling. Add lemon juice and remaining ingredients; mix well. Pour into individual molds; chill until firm. Makes 5 servings.

For your relish plate, be sure to include sweet krinkle-cut cucumber pickles, midget gherkins and pickled sour onions.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement submitted to the Council. Names and details changed. Family problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers.

Adele K. — He forces me to watch wrestling on TV.

Irwin K. — She never sits with me. She's just stubborn.

Adele K. — Can you imagine a man making his wife sit on his lap and look at two gorillas gouging each others eyes out?

I'm a sensitive person and when those monsters start pulling each other's hair out I feel I tried sitting through a TV wrestling match just once because I wanted to be a pal to my husband. I couldn't stand the sight of the two of them. Besides, they ruin my evening entertaining shows and she's free to do what she wants.

They don't know the truth. Anything he's interested in, he says he can't enjoy unless I am interested too. I'm interested in his hobbies. He can't understand that.

Irwin K. — There's nothing worse than a closed mind. I've tried to show my wife that wrestling isn't just a matter of brute force, but requires a skill and strategy involved. If she'd only study the grips and holds, the methods of attack and counter-attack, she'd get interested too. But she won't even try. She says it like something and she'll automatically hate it. She never even gives me a chance to show her why these things appeal to me. Sometimes, when we have the other way instead of following me, I'm really running from me, not the wrestling.

And it's not just wrestling. When I want her to see my home-to plants and watch me transplant them from my small pots to the back yard, she runs. It's the same when I'm developing pictures in our dark room. I'd like her to get the thrill of watching the picture appear.

If she loves me and wants to be yel, she's not doing much to show it. She's being narrow-minded and stubborn.

The Council: "Look and let look" should be the slogan in this home. No matter how close people are they still see things with different eyes. And when it comes to bloodletting in the name of "sports", people polarize into those who delight in it and those who abhor it in the face of the K.'s, the two poles got married!

Mr. K. must desire to heighten his own pleasure in wrestling by sharing it with his wife is natural. But forcing her to look it making it all the more obnoxious to her. She's masochistic for eyeslike which can shut it out and legs which can carry her away.

And Mrs. K's small-scale "desertion" doesn't bespeak a lack of affection for her husband. It's a form of protest against his complete disregard of her tastes, her preferences, her feelings.

What Mr. K. calls stubbornness really a protest. And being a protest, it could selected by her husband. She might be more willing to examine the world if (1) she could go in and out of it with only (2) the slightest hint of a mold of her own.

We suggest to Mrs. K. however that she seek to win her husband's activities, especially since they not only invited but do but urges it. There is no wholesome human activity that is really dull and boring. The more eagerness and curiosity you bring to it, the more fascinating it will be discover.

And around you see couples doing things together — bowling, painting, dancing, playing bridge, playing musical instruments — where before only one of them was involved in the pursuit. That's the essence of a good marriage — enlarging the scope of life for each other.

The day may well come for Mr. K's when Adele develops a wrestling match while Irwin watches the cake in the oven.

High School Activities

By GAYLE McDOUGALL AND SHARON FLINDALL, MOIRA

Every Thursday from now on Moira students will be kicking off their shoes to join the sock hops each noon hour. The Radio Club supplies the records, which will be spun by the stage crew. Naturally there is always a big turnout—it's free!

Moira's football season was brought to a close Nov. 3 by the school's unfortunate loss to BCI's junior and senior teams. Our Bantams promise to form a good junior team next year; their most recent victory was the defeat of Quinte (19-6) on Oct. 28.

The senior girls' volleyball team was triumphant over BCI recently and both senior and junior teams took part in the Jamboree at OSD on November 2.

To keep up with the student athletes Moira's teachers formed a bowling league. Mr. Bell's team of six champs is leading the league at this time. (Yahoo!) Mrs. Bennett's team is hot on their tail, in second place.

The Hallowe'en Howl, sponsored by the high school's Student Council, the Recreation Committee and the city Police Association, was a tremendous success. Darlene Truesdell, Gary Gibbs and Donna Matthews will be on prize for their outfits and tunes.

Moira's Girls' Athletics Society have held their "November Knock Out," another successful dance for Moira.

Coming events still include the publication of the Moira Rambler, which should be out soon, and, of course, exams.

Most Popular Winter Sport Is Hockey

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Hockey is, without a doubt, the most popular winter sport among Canadian youths and here in Belleville there is no exception.

From the tender age of eight to the "veteran" stage of 18, as far as minor hockey teams are concerned, Belleville boys flock to Memorial Arena (numbering nearly 1,200 this season) to take part in the BMHA's extensive program.

There are aproximately 375 youngsters in the spring game alone. They are divided into 12 teams, an expansion of four clubs this season. The annual theirs every Monday from 6 to 8 p.m. Many of the boys have hardly skate but they are getting their start and every game is as important to them as Stanley Cup final. That's where they all hope to wind up playing one day.

The surface is divided into three sections for this youngest division and three hour-long games are played at the same time, across the ice, rather than up and down it.

The squirt age group is from eight to 10. From here the boys advance into the peewee division, for boys from 10 to 12. There are 10 boys on the teams this year.

The peewees are the early risers of the BMHA. They have the arena on Saturdays from 8:30 to 8:50 a.m. Then comes the bantam section for boys from 12 to 14. Many of the boys, who never will be hockey players, have dropped out by now but this reason there are still 300 taking part in the bantam games. There are 10 bantam teams, playing each Saturday from 9:30 am. to 1:15 p.m.

Next in line is the midget league, where some 120 would-be "Bobby Hulls" are playing this season on half a dozen teams. The midgets, the 14- to-16 age group, play three games each Monday, from 8 to 11 p.m.

The juvenile age bracket has proven a bit of a problem since it is difficult to find enough of this 16-18 age group to form a league. There are two teams at present, practising each Wednesday evening and from these 45 boys a strong team will be chosen to enter OMHA competitions.

The men who handle the boys up through the ranks explain the lack of juvenile-age players two ways. It is undgrstood that a boy of 16 naturally starts devoting more of his time to such important matters as girls, jobs, dances, etc., but also the fact that the better class players are brought up to higher ranks, often by professional teams, by the time they reach 17 or 18 has a lot to do with it. Many boys who now have forgotten their earlier dreams of pro hockey quit the game at this point, realizing they will have only another year or two to play — so why bother.

Meanwhile, the boys continue to spend many hours at Memorial Arena and as long as fellows like Intercessional Director Lloyd "Red" Doran, Bill Richards, Russ Soule, "Senator" Harry Rollins and a number of others continue to give freely of their time and effort, minor hockey will be a major sport in Belleville and many other cities and towns across Canada.

Hay-Foot, Straw-Foot, Remember?

By REV. R. D. MACLEAN

Hay-foot, straw-foot!

This is the way that some raw recruits in the army used to be taught to distinguish between right and left. A bunch of hay would be tied to one leg and a bunch of straw to the other.

How do you remember things you should remember? "Tie a string around your finger"?

All of us seem to need a special day for remembering things we should not forget — like how much it cost to have a tooth and free institutions, or even to be alive.

A boy who had been rescued from drowning tried to thank his rescuer. "Just make me glad you're worth saving" was the reply.

The men who died in the great wars did largely that to us: "Make sure you're worth saving. Make sure our country is worth our sacrifice, that it's a country where all men have equal rights and opportunities and nobody is despised for his color nor for the kind of job he has, a country where people know how to work for an honest living, a country with the face among the nations".

Now we shall remember this? Hay-foot, straw-foot . . . !

The students of Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School would like to take this opportunity to congratulate The Ontario Intelligencer on the introduction of the "Quinteen Review". We appreciate this chance to express our own opinions and read about other teen activities.

At the annual Volleyball Jamboree held at the Ontario School for the Deaf on Nov. 3, the BCI senior girls' team finished in fourth place and the junior girls came in third. There were six teams competing in this Jamboree, and we are proud of our teams' fine showing.

Evidence that the art classes have been hard at work since September can be found on display boards both in the third and fourth floor and in the cafeteria. The "pen and wash" technique is well portrayed in the posters of grades 11 and 12. The middle school art work depicting occupations, landscapes and paper mosaics are equally effective.

Those loyal football fans who turned up at the game last Thursday against Bloomfield Jays, despite cold and rainy weather, proudly rejoiced when our junior team as they won the BCI.V.S. Quinte championship. Today the team will compete for the championship of this C.O.S.S.A. district. Good luck boys.

All be there to support you.

Because of fall term examinations, no issue will be out of news from B.C.I. We'll see you in two weeks' time!

Torque Talk

by DOUG PHIPPEN

The past year or so has been most interesting to those interested in the mechanical design and engineering of automobiles. Many of the recent new models have introduced mechanical improvements which are quite significant to the average motorist's comfort and pocketbook.

Take, for instance, the automobile which requires no chassis lubrication. Excluding vintage or antique automobiles, many of the which have featured ideas more recently claimed as innovations by some manufacturers, the Rover P-5-liter introduced a couple of years was the first modern car to eliminate chassis lubrication. This year a number of our domestic products flave perfected their own version of this money-saving feature. The new Fords and several of the General Motors vehicles now boast this worthwhile development.

The Citroen, a product of the French auto industry, introduced a new type of suspension, the oleo - pneumatic suspension, which allows the owner to load the car to the demand of the load conditions.

The British Motors Corporation recently introduced a new series of small, economy cars to the North American market: the "850" series marketed under both the Morris and Austin names. The unit was designed by Alex Issigonis of BMC. It is a startling example of what can be done when a designer-engineer starts out to design a totally different car without having to worry about adapting the car to the demand of the other departments in an automobile company.

EXCLUSIVES AWARDS

The "850" has been selected by a group of Canadian automotive writers as "Car of the Year" and Canada Track and Traffic, Canada's only automotive magazine available on the newsstands, awarded BMC with its trophy for the finest imported car of 1960.

I would strongly suggest that anyone interested in automotive design take a very close look at this car. Its features include: transverse - mounted engine - gearbox - differential - drive unit; front - wheel drive; fully independent suspension both front and rear; 10-inch brakes; which alone are 80 per cent of the vehicles, total space to be used for either passengers or luggage.

For the mechanically-minded, the constant-velocity universal couplings, which allow the front wheels to be turned to the sharpest possible angle without performing their normal duty of steering the car should prove quite interesting for this category. Even falls the new system of springs which the "850" uses. This system does away with springs as one ordinarily thinks of them, replacing the traditional steel leaf or coil type spring with a rubber cone suspension which has proven to be extremely durable over 100,000 miles as a means of providing a very smooth ride.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question: Will the installation of leaner jets in my carburetor give me better gas mileage with the loss of performance to my 1953 Ford?

Answer: Better gas mileage should result but there will be a sacrifice of top-end performance. The installation of leaner jets should be done with care. After their installation, take a test drive and then check the colour of the spark plugs. If the plugs have a greyish-brownish deposit on them, all is well. If a white deposit or no deposit is noted the jets are probably too lean for the engine and richer jets should be used. Improper use of the engine with these jets can result in burnt valves or pistons.

Question: On the 1958 Volkswagen which I drive there are markings on the speedometer which tell when I should shift to the next higher gear. In driving I have found that the car can be driven well past these markings in the lower gears with very little effort. Is it all right to do this?

Answer: This is not recommended by the manufacturer who has built his engine to operate most reliably within the speed indicated on the speedometer. Any excess over these gear speeds will tend to adversely affect the long life for which this engine has become justifiably well known. The occasional lugging of a gear past its normal limit is not dangerous if possible due to the inherent design of the engine and, is not carried to an extremely high speed (say not over 10 miles an hour above the recommended limit in either second or third gear) it should not damage the engine.

Currently Volkswagen have their changed their crankshaft design

Young Timers Hold Dances Every Friday

Last Friday night saw more than 400 Quinte Young Timers having a ball at Queen Alexandra and Queen Victoria schools. This was described as a normal as this group meets every Friday from 7 to 9 p.m. at the two schools for an evening of fun and frolic.

Children between the ages of 11 and 13 years, or who are in public school, are eligible for membership and certainly the club and early teens of Belleville take advantage of the opportunity.

Last Friday saw jiving, ballroom dancing, square dancing and polkas held for a full two hours at each school with elimination dances and jive contest to add variety to the evening.

Elementary dance instruction is provided for the novices and opportunity is given to practice for the more experienced. As an aside to parents who might wonder, they can be assured that competent instruction is provided, as well as willing chaperones. Mrs. Postle and Dave Ross look after the group at Queen Alexandra school, while Bonnie Hibbard and Jim Ketcheson are at Queen Victoria school.

Any of the younger teens who are not already members are certainly welcome to avail themselves of membership in the group. Judging by the fun enjoyed by the members every Friday evening, the new members should find this activity a welcome opportunity for dancing fun.

Be sure and watch this page for more extensive reports on the Quinte Young Timers each succeeding week. And don't forget the date—each and every Friday from 7 to 9 p.m.

so that the new models will endure this art of treatment much more easily than earlier models

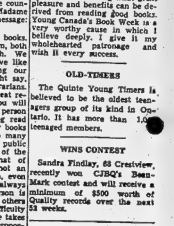
A Message From Madame Vanier

Madame Georges Vanier and the Governor-General are keenly interested in the literature read by young Canadians. Young Canada's Book Week is being observed across the country Nov. 15-23, and Madame Vanier has sent this message:

My husband and I love books. We have many of our own, both in French and in English. We like to read them aloud and to circulate them among our friends. This, you might say, makes us small-scale librarians.

Sending a book is a great responsibility. I think you will readily agree that no person reads the same book twice in the same way. There are so many books already published and so many more are offered at the stores every day that the task of the librarian, be he small or big, or the average reader, is not an easy one. Finding a good book among the good ones, is always difficult and when a person is given the duty of advising others in their selection, the difficulty of making the right choice takes on rather frightening proportions. In Canada, this problem is by no means diminished by the fact that we have two literatures from which to draw our reading material. But, if our difficulties are multiplied and our responsibilities made twofold by this fact, so should be our energy and our reward, for we are laboring toward a greater goal: a better education, and a greater enjoyment for ourselves and for our children.

I hope that, as time goes on and we as Canadians become more fluently bilingual, the librarians who are entrusted with the important duty of propagating good literature will often hear requests by the reader, especially from the younger ones, for books written in their second language.



In conclusion . . . I would like to express the wish that this Book Week will help a greater number of young and older Canadians to understand what great pleasure and benefit can be derived from reading good books. Young Canada's Book Week is a very worthy cause in which I believe deeply. I give it my wholehearted patronage and wish it every success.

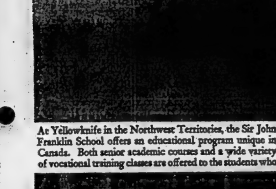
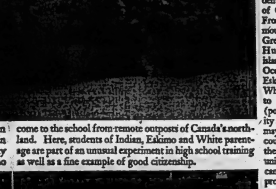
Yellowknife:-Bridging Gap Between Three Worlds

At Yellowknife in the Northwest Territories, the Sir John Franklin School offers an educational program unique in Canada. Both senior academic courses and a wide variety of vocational training classes are offered to the students who come to the school from remote outposts of Canada's northland. Here, students of Indian, Eskimo and White parentage are part of an unusual experiment in high school training as well as a fine example of good citizenship.

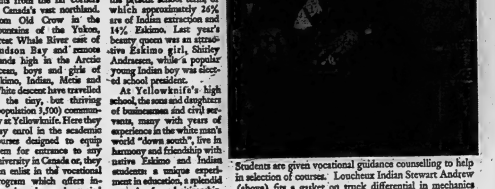


700 air miles north from Edmonton, on the shore of lonely Great Slave Lake, the town of Yellowknife, which made its hasty appearance 25 years ago as a gold rush settlement, is today the scene of a unique educational venture designed to bring high school opportunities to Canada's most northerly pupils. Two-year-old Sir John Franklin School, named for one of the country's great explorers, has attracted students from the far corners of Canada's vast northland. From Old Crow in the mountains of the Yukon, Great Whale River east of Hudson Bay and remote islands high in the Arctic Ocean, boys and girls of Eskimo, Indian, Metis and White descent have travelled to the tiny, but thriving (population 3,500) community at Yellowknife. Here they may enrol in the academic courses designed to equip them for entrance to any university in Canada or, they can enlist in the vocational program which offers instruction in such varied classes as typing and home economics to building construction.

The 3 million-dollar high school, with its accompanying residences and auditorium, is regarded as a hallmark in Canadian education, offering as it does an integrated system for all pupils, regardless of race or creed, geared to their academic abilities and vocational needs. Latest enrolment figures show a total of close to 200 students registered for the present school term, of which approximately 26% are of Indian extraction and 14% Eskimo. Last year's beauty queen was an attractive Eskimo girl, Shirley Andreasen, while a popular young Indian boy was elected school president.



At Yellowknife's high school, the sons and daughters of businessmen and civil servants, many with years of experience in the white man's world "down south", live in harmony and friendship with native Eskimo and Indian students in unique experiment in education, a splendid example of good citizenship.



Students are given vocational guidance counselling to help in selection of courses. Loucheux Indian Stewart Andrew (above) fits a gasket on truck differential in mechanics class.

Beverley Mitchell, 16-year-old Loucheux Indian from the Aklavik district liaises with rapt attention to instructor in art class.

In the library of Canada's most northerly high school, students prepare work for class projects. Centre, above, William Tanchi, Dog Rib Indian from Fort Smith.

Inscription on wall outside gym is inspiration to all: . . . "This school was founded upon the vision of those who first came north—the prospectors, the miners, the bush pilots, the missionaries, the traders, the administrators—and upon their faith in the future of the North . . . Your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions."

News of Your Local Sea Cadet Corps

(A Member of the Belleville United Appeal)

"QUINTE" NOW COCK OF THE WALK

A fine and ancient naval tradition was upheld by the men and officers of the ship when, on Thursday evening, the honored "Cock of the Walk" trophy was obtained for the corps' protection.

The trophy was originally won by the Sea Cadets of RCSCC "Hallowell" of Picton at the intercorps sports day held in October. By tradition the trophy is to be on display on board ship every training night and should be guarded. Any of the other corps who were present at the time the trophy was competed for are allowed, by tradition, to obtain the trophy for their own protection as long as they obtain it on a training night without the possessing corps realizing what has happened until the trophy is out of their hands.

The ways and means by which the trophy was obtained, unfortunately, cannot not always be divulged in case the same technique has to be used again. Needless to say, much careful planning went into the operation to ensure its success. A victory party for the ship's company is to be held this Saturday evening.

PROVIDED HONOR GUARD

Once again "Quinte" provided the honor guard at the cenotaph for Remembrance Day ceremonies under the direction of Chief Petty Officer Wayne Bunnett.

The ship's company paraded with the other units and the veterans from the Armouries, and the wreath was laid at the cenotaph by Sub-Lt. Douglas Bailey, the ship's executive officer.

CHAPLAIN OF THE FLEET'S VISIT

The Chaplain of the Fleet, the Reverend Ernest G. B. Foote, OBE, CD, RCN, who is also Deputy Chaplain-General of the Armed Forces (P), will be visiting Belleville on November 20. He has requested an inspection of "Quinte" and plans are now under way for this noteworthy occasion.

The ship's company will hold a church parade to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on that day. An inspection of the corps will be held earlier in the day.

Also at the church parade will be Sea Cadet Corps from Picton, RCSCC "Hallowell," and Trenton, RCSCC "Trent."

ROOM FOR MORE NEW LADS

Seven lads passed the new entry test held Thursday and another new entry class is now under way. For any boy considering joining the Sea Cadets now is a very good time to do so. The waiting list for those wishing to join the Corps is now down to the point where a lad can enter the corps upon the completion of his six weeks new entry training.

BUYS FOR XMAS

LONDON (Reuters) — The Queen did some early Christmas shopping Thursday when she visited an exhibition of articles made by disabled ex-servicemen. Among her purchases after an hour at the exhibition were a toy rabbit and a nylon squirrel, a baby's blue jacket, travelling rug, a length of tweed, a yellow mohair sweater, a garden basket and a black leather handbag.

CARRYING PLACE

Victoria Church Marks 63rd Anniversary

CARRYING PLACE — November 6 was a red-letter day for the congregation of Victoria United Church. A special anniversary service was held at 2.30 to review its thought and memory some of the details of the years since the church was dedicated for the worship of God in 1897. Previous to that time the congregation met in the school.

The land on which the church stands was presented by the late Mr. David Calnan and the late Mr. Joseph Sager. The parsonage at that time was at Carrying Place and the minister on the "circuit" was the late Rev. Stiles. Services were frequently held on Sunday evenings and on such occasions the church would be packed. Later, Victoria was allied with the Bethesda congregation.

For this, its 63rd anniversary, the church was filled to capacity. The service was in charge of the Belleville Salvation Army, with Lt.-Col. Cuthbert Bond, retired mid-Ontario division, conducting the service. The band, in charge of Bandmaster Green, gave two opening selections. Prayer by Bandsman Price followed.

Mrs. A. G. Cameron led in a Psalm reading. All enjoyed a number by the band, a medley of sacred hymn tunes.

Mrs. S. Gennery sang a solo, "All the Way My Savior Leads Me," accompanied by Mrs. Cameron at the piano.

Col. A. G. Cameron brought the message under the following headings: "The Revelation of God"; "The Gift of Christ"; "His Precious Promises" and "Accepting the Gift of Salvation."

The congregation of Victoria Church was most grateful to the Salvation Army for such an inspirational service.

Sunday School Lesson

Finding God in Difficulty

By ROY L. SMITH

A young man in our city approached the desk of the librarian and said, "I would like to borrow a book that proves there is a God. Some of the fellows doubt it, and I want the proof."

It is easy to understand the lad's problem, but when he is a little older, he will discover that there is no such book written as the one he asked for.

We do not prove God by mathematical processes. Instead, we come upon him as a personal exerience. It is just a little like falling in love. We cannot describe it and we cannot confine it, but we would not be it if we could.

THE PSALMIST'S STORY

The story behind the first Psalm suggested us for this week's study is, in many ways, similar to that one of last week. Both are the songs of men who have gone through great tribulation and have come out with a victorious faith.

The author of this Psalm had, quite evidently, been very ill, and while prostrate he had entered into a vow with the Almighty that if he recovered he would proceed immediately to some sanctuary, probably the temple in Jerusalem, and there he would publicly admit his guilt, confess the goodness of God and offer an appropriate sacrifice as an expression of the gratitude he felt within his heart.

The ancient Hebrew who composed our Psalm knew nothing of bacteria, infections, or the microbic origin of disease. Instead, he looked upon every disease as being a punishment sent from God in revenge for some evil he had done. The fact that he was ill was convincing proof that he was a sinner. To be restored to health meant that he had been forgiven. It was all as easy as that.

But one more element enters the picture. The healed body found expression in the thankful heart. It is one of the shames of our generation that so few children are being taught to say "I thank you." They will become the thankless generation of adults who will lose the sense of the presence of God, and that is a terrible loss indeed.

GOD WAS SO VERY NEAR

We can smile at the naivete of the ancients who saw the presence of God in every mountain stream, floating cloud, downpour of rain, or abundant crop. Modern men have lost a very great deal as a result of their scientific attitude.

As a frontier father arose from having drunk deeply from the little rivulet that ran through the woods, he said to his six-year-old son who trotted along beside him, "Wasn't God good to provide us with a good drink of cool water, just when we were so hot and thirsty?" And forever after that little fellow walked with a consciousness of the nearness of God—a priceless possession.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for November 13: "Our Experience of God." Psalms 116; 117; 118.

The man who turns the faucet and drinks deeply from the stream that issues from the hydrant is not apt to think about God. Instead, he is apt to think of the big water bill at the end of the month. Separated as we are from the bounty of nature by the technologies of science, we must find some way to continue sensitive to the nearness of God. The ancients were fortunate in the fact that life seemed to obtrude everywhere. We have to create so many of the conditions which make His presence vivid.

THANK GOD FOR PAIN

The author of our Psalm had been taunted by his friends, and accused of wrong doing. The proof that he was a wrong-doer appeared in the fact that he was a sufferer. But his good health restored seemed to be a vindication. Now he could look his critics in the eye and defy them. The same God who had afflicted him had restored him.

Deep down in the conscienceless of the healed man was the satisfaction that he had kept his vow. No matter how terrible the pain may have been, it was worth it to be assured of God's personal interest in him and his welfare.

It was worth going to the hospital, just to discover God for myself," exclaimed a woman who had recently passed through an agonizing experience. "He is no longer a theory for me; He is now an experience. If anyone asks me now whether or not I believe in God I can say, 'Yes, I met Him in the hospital'."

Nixon's Hope of Obtaining Second Chance Appear Slim

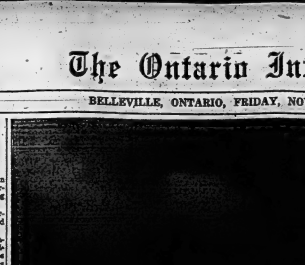
WASHINGTON (AP) — Has ... President Richard Nixon lost the right to another shot at the presidency by his strong popular vote showing against President-elect John Kennedy in Tuesday's election?

The answer to this question is puzzling Republicans of all shades of opinion today. It is a query that only the political developments of the next four years can answer.

In those four years, while Nixon holds the usually vacuous role of titular party leader, other Republican will be busy. Men like Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York, Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Senator Everett Dirksen of Illinois will be in the daily news. Some little-known Republican governor may blossom into a national figure.

The first tendency of many Republicans is to write off Nixon as a future chanceless because he is in a contest at the beginning of which he seemed to have everything going his way.

He had behind him nearly eight years of the best kind of training a popular Republican president could give him for the job. He had visited 53 foreign countries and talked with their leaders. He had argued with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and, according to the Nixon version, had "stood up" to the man who had become to many Americans the world's most menacing villain.



At 47 Nixon was young, vigorous, progressive in his views and politically acute.

President Eisenhower was substantially for him. Nixon's party can liberals and conservatives had set aside their differences and were working hard for him. Yet, with all of these assets and others, Nixon failed to win the electoral vote battle with Kennedy, the 43-year-old senator who was not widely known at the start of the campaign and who carried with him the imagined political burden of being a Roman Catholic.

The thought occurs to many Republicans that this was a failure of personalities, as well as parties, and that Kennedy won it and Nixon lost.

Their feeling is that the vice-president failed to project as much warmth as his opponent and thereby lost the margin of voters who don't care very much which party occupies the White House, don't pay much attention to party platforms but 'make their choice on whether they like the way a nominee smiles.

All of this leaves Nixon in the plight of an also-ran who can hardly expect to operate under the same circumstances if he ... tries again for the presidency.

May Revise LCA in Face Of Rising Costs

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Kelso Roberts' commission on alcoholism is indicated Thursday that the Liquor Control Act may be revised in the face of rising costs of maintaining alcoholics in penal institutions.

Legislation may be introduced to reduce the maximum penalty for public drunkenness from six months to jail to a fine of up to $50 or 30 days in jail, plus compulsory treatment in a projected "drunk farm" not exceeding three to six months.

Frank Wilson of the attorney-general's department refused figures showing that an estimated 70 per cent of the $942,000 required last year to run Toronto's Don Jail was due to chronic alcoholics.

The province plans to approach the city in the near future with a view to establishing its first medical condition institution as a part of the now unoccupied city-owned 700 - acre Langstaff Jail Farm. A three-man subcommittee has been named to assist the attorney-general in drawing up a draft proposal and cost estimates, it was reported.

Commenting on the number of alcoholics in the Don Jail, Mr. Roberts said: "If all they have done is get drunk, they would not be in the prison farm."

Health Minister Matthew B. Dymond considered that treatment should be compulsory.

"Once they are dried out, we cannot hold people in hospitals who come in voluntarily," he said, "I see no merit in the voluntary patient approach."

Salvation Army Brig. J. J. Monk said the disease alcoholism is treated as a criminal, rather than in a clinical way, he would fail to alter his attitude."

Kennedy to Pick His Cabinet During 'Vacation' in Florida

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — President-elect Kennedy flies to Palm Beach, Fla., today to begin a working vacation, with a school of fish that includes completing the blueprint of his cabinet and a conference in Texas with his vice-presidential running mate, Senator Lyndon Johnson.

There were indications Kennedy might ask President Eisenhower and Vice-President Richard Nixon to shoulder important responsibilities in the incoming government.

Adlai E. Stevenson, twice unsuccessful Democratic candidate for president, remained on the list of his plans somewhere. Considerable speculation has centred on the possibility that Stevenson might be the next state secretary.

Kennedy prepared to leave here today with his wife, Jacqueline, who is expecting a child soon. Kennedy's private plane is scheduled to stop in Washington and Mrs. Kennedy may fly on from Palm Beach there. Kennedy plans to rejoin her before the birth of the baby.

He was moving ahead, full-tilt, with the business of government, barely 48 hours after winning the presidential election over Nixon.

He announced he has appointed two super-important positions already and is considering others. Incumbents to remain in office.

The incumbents are Allen W. Dulles, head of the Central Intelligence agency, and J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Both agreed to stay.

One of Kennedy's top advisers said, "he felt that, because they are both sensitive posts, requiring the utmost in confidence, the best thing is to keep Dulles and Hoover in the job."

Kennedy also announced he has named Clark Clifford, Washington lawyer, to be his representative as liaison with the Eisenhower administration during the period between now and the day he takes office. Clifford previously served as special counsel to former president Truman.

He assigned four members of his personal "staff" to duty in the White House. They are:

1. Pierre Salinger, former San Francisco newspaperman, political manager, and one-time plane student, to be White House press secretary.

2. Andrew Hatcher, official of the Democratic national committee, to be assistant press secretary for Negro affairs.

3. Kenneth O'Donnell to be special assistant. O'Donnell was a key man in the team of advisers who worked with Kennedy during the presidential election campaign.

4. Theodore Sorenson to be special counsel to the president. Kennedy said Sorenson has been "a member of Kennedy's family for years" and member of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Kennedy said the Lands study is being undertaken "with a view to maximizing the effective dispatch of their (the agencies') business."

The president-elect said he hopes to nominate appointees for all cabinet posts by "late November or early December."

Kennedy said he would break his Florida vacation next week to fly to Johnson City, Tex., for a conference with Johnson.

Kennedy gave Johnson considerable credit for the election victory.

"I was delighted that he agreed to run," Kennedy said. "I think his part in it the election was most important, and what is even more significant is, I think, that he will play a major role in the next administration."

It is generally believed Johnson will play as big, and perhaps a bigger role, than Nixon played in the Eisenhower administration.

Ethnic Group Leaders Oppose Proposal of MP

TORONTO (CP)—A member of Parliament's proposal that some immigrants to Canada should be admitted on two years probation was criticized Thursday at a national Toronto ethnic group leaders.

The plan, outlined by Charles E. Rea, Progressive Conservative member of the Commons for Toronto Spadina, would allow "a year or two" to decide whether he wanted to stay in Canada and allow the government "a year or two" to decide whether wanted him.

Dr. Michael Voj Ketelhodt, president of the German Canadian Business and Professional Association, said the plan would be "completely alien to the Canadian way of life" and would divide immigrants into two groups, the regular ones and the irregular ones.

Paul Skaniewski, president of the Toronto branch of the Polish Canadian Congress, said the scheme would create second-class immigrants "who would always be frightened that after two years they might be shipped back."

Dante Demonte, president of the Italian Immigrants Aid Society, said it would amount to "conditional immigration" and "that is not a good idea."

Second Russian Scientist Will Study, Lecture

OTTAWA (CP)—A second Russian scientist has arrived in Canada to study and lecture under an agreement signed in Moscow a year ago for exchanges of Canadian and Soviet scientists.

A third Russian scientist will arrive in Ottawa in about two weeks and the first to visit Canada under the exchange arrangement is returning to the Soviet Institute of Chemical Physics.

Four Canadians went to Russia under the plan also have completed their assignments and arrangements are being made to send additional Canadians to research institutes there.

The second Soviet scientist to visit Canada under the exchange plan is Dr. N. V. Maksimov, 38, an engineer working in the field of mineral processing. He is scheduled to return to Moscow Dec. 1.

Dr. Fredrick (Eric) Diatchkovsky, first Russian scientist to come to Canada under the plan, returned to Moscow a few weeks ago after working for nine months with Dr. E. W. R. Steacie, president of NRC.

The Canadians who have returned to Russia are Dr. W. B. Pearson of NRC; Dr. H. R. Rice and Dr. J. M. Ham of the University of Toronto and Prof. L. H. J. Shebeski of the University of Manitoba.

Dr. Maksimov has made a study of mineral processing methods in this country. He visited mining areas in British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec and now is working with scientists of the federal government's mines branch in Ottawa.

Dr. Maksimov has made a wide study of mineral processing methods in the country's nationalized industries—which include just about every "enterprise" of importance in the island—also are in the hands of the government's economic department. There has been a mass nationalization of business and industrial executives to the U.S.

The unweaned managers, untored in planning the operations of a complicated industrial economy, are responsible for shortages of supplies or parts.

Director Wins More Plaudits Than Author

DETROIT (CP)—Love and Libel, a lighthearted comedy by Canadian playwright Robertson Davies, was seen by American audiences for the first time this week and it was director Tyrone Guthrie who won the plaudits.

A comedy centering on a fraudulent newspaper announcement of an impending wedding between members of two feuding families, Love and Libel had its world premier at Toronto earlier this month.

It will wind up a two - week United States premiere at the Cass Theatre here Nov. 19.

Critics treated the twisting plot lightly and about 1,000 have seen each of its six performances.

Guthrie, well known in Detroit for his work at the Stratford, Ont., Shakespearean festival, was favorably mentioned by all critics.

"Tyrone Guthrie staged the presentation with his famed imaginative flair," said Callaghan in the Detroit Free Press, "scooping settings which veer hugely enlarged newspaper typefaces in a large stage area."

ALSO LIKES HIM

John Gardner, drama and music critic for the Windsor Star, also put Guthrie in the spotlight and dealt less favorably with Davies' work.

"The miraculous part of it all is that distinguished and world-renown actor - director Dr. Tyrone Guthrie was able to unligger the ligsaw puzzle of Davies' play and Libel is put piece together so that the actors and actresses moved all the pieces to the innumerable scene changes."

FAST-MOVING

This indeed was a feat of genius, a feat which might well test the ingenuity of a master director like Guthrie."

Mr. Gardner continues:

"The play, Libel, has many ludicrous scenes, many laughable bits of business here and there, and a thoroughly competent cast. Delightful touch in the play are the bits of the actors and actresses moved all the pieces to the innumerable scene changes."

FAST-MOVING CAST

Callaghan satisfied the cast but did not touch on the plot.

"The most delightful of those are played by John Milligan as lovely Corinne Cooley," he said. "He is responsible for a duet of rage and sympathy."

The Free Press Bridge gives a delightful account of a bumbling constable."

He said Laurence Hardy played the role of a belligerent Scottish Canadian bridegroom, while Madeleine Christie and Barbara Chilcott Milligan strikes a note of authentic pathos.

In his final verdict Gardner said:

"If this play is to take Broadway it will have to be trimmed of its excesses, but cut and tightened.

"Conclusion: Yes; acting, yes; substance, no. Love and Libel needs corrective surgery."

The play is the first of a Spokesman for the company said that it has yet had an inquiry from a government agency that two-week engagement in the Canadian trade official.

Wire Service To Be Started By Railways

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Communications Thursday announced introduction next week of a new, high - speed facsimile wire service between Montreal and Toronto.

The new system, to be known as Wirefax, will be the first of its kind in Canada and will reproduce an exact copy of typed or handwritten letters, reports, drawings, sketches and documents between the two cities.

The service will be offered on the same basis as telegrams. The material to be transmitted will be picked up and delivered by messenger and it will also be possible to use the service collect.

Operating on a 24-hour schedule, Wirefax will accept copy prepared on paper 9½ inches in width with a transmission width of eight inches and an initial length of 24 inches. The length of material can be extended.

Wirefax will be provided between cities where there is a demand for the service increases.

Second Set Of Triplets Born in Area

QUEBEC (CP)—The birth of triplets Thursday to 35-year-old Mrs. Roger Roberge of Quebec City was the second set to be born in this area in 48 hours.

Tuesday 19 - year - old Mrs. Roger Larochelle gave birth to boys weighing four pounds five ounces, four pounds, and three pounds, 11 ounces.

Mrs. Lavoie, the mother of four children, gave birth to one boy and two girls.

The boy weighed five pounds 10 ounces and the girls weighed five pounds, and four pounds seven ounces.

Hospital authorities said Mrs. Lavoie and the triplets are doing well.

Some Feel Liberal-Minded Senator Will Set Hot Pace

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Amid the buzzes of welcome for President-elect Kennedy, a small voice may be heard cheering concern over Africa.

There are some who feel the liberal - minded senator may set too hot a pace in that sensitive continent.

Once he settles into office, runs the argument, Kennedy may do little heavy breathing to speed up the "wind of change." He may, it is thought, put pressure on the nationalist governments in South Africa, where American business circles exert some influence, and try to persuade Britain to accelerate African advance in Kenya and the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

As some see it, this will produce — like situations, or worse. Then the United States will step in and Russia will foster Communism, widening the area of ideological contest in Africa.

Such a view is obviously hypothetical. Kennedy is likely to be engaged on other fronts for some time. His first African test may still come in Algeria, where six French policies have caused American disquiet.

The French are already said to be "nervous" about Kennedy's anti-colonial views.

In relation to Africa as a whole, British influence is on the side of prudence and moderation. Whitehall is still conscious of the ... justification over the independence declarations in Nigeria where African gratitude to the departing British overlords remains. Yet there are sentimental scenes that called many a stiff upper lip to tremble.

Britain's influence is present at these celebrations said he feels Russian influence may be absent or ... feat of some magnitude in Algeria. He said they had misplayed their hand in the Congo and shown little understanding of events in Nigeria.

Perhaps the only important Soviet beachhead so far is in Guinea, but new chances are leaving Premier Sekou Toure almost exactly where he started in courting to "helpers" from Russia and China.

Remarks Losing Candidate Hates to Hear After Election

NEW YORK (AP)—Remarks a losing candidate hates to hear the day after an election:

"Wish a brother stayed in your corner all the way."

"We just found 50,000 of your campaign leaflets that somebody forgot to distribute. Would you like them for souvenirs?"

"Of course, you could always try again. But if you ask my opinion, I suggest you find yourself a less expensive hobby."

"The telephone company just called up and asked when you are going to have that picture off its poles."

"Let's put it this way: The voters knew what you were talking about but you didn't."

"What do your plans for the future—if any?"

"The smartest thing you did was to send the winner a congratulatory telegram collect."

"The saddest thing you did was to send the winner a congratulatory telegram collect."

"Better luck next time."

"Your party activities have all gone back to their regular jobs. So I guess you'll have to sit down and draft the letter of appreciation to the faithful workers yourself."

"Gee, dad, you still have my vote. I thought you did real swell."

"You don't lost everything, honey. After all, you still have me—your wife."

"Anyway, they'll remember for a long time some of the unforgettable things you said about motherhood, son—and the best one for pitting our best foot forward, as I recall."

"Now about those unpaid campaign bills . . ."

Casey Turns Down Tigers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Casey Stengel, the former New York Yankees manager, conferred for four hours with executives of Detroit Tigers Thursday and then advised them to look elsewhere for a manager of their team in 1961.

John Fetzer, president of the Tigers, said Stengel was unable to make up his mind whether to accept the Detroit offer or take one of several television proposals that have been made.

"Casey said that in fairness to us he wants us to proceed with our efforts to select a manager," said Fetzer. "Accordingly, we are going ahead. Rick Ferrell has screened a long list of candidates and we will make out selection before the American League meeting Nov. 17."

"I am sorry that we had to terminate our negotiations with Casey. Time is getting away from us, however, and we are unable to wait longer."

FIRED BY YANKEES

Fired by New York Yankees after the recent world series, the 70-year-old veteran said:

"I don't have any idea at this time what I want to do. I love this game of baseball but I've had so many outside offers to think over that I can't decide. Everybody is asking me when I'll make up my mind. I just don't know.

"I feel more hurt about turning the Detroit people down than they do. They offered me a wonderful opportunity. I want to apologize to them. Seldom does a man get such an opportunity. I'll probably regret the day I turned them down."

Speculation is that Casey may take a job in television, probably telling video watchers some of the fabulous baseball stories collected after 50 years as player and coach.

GAME POSTPONED

TORONTO (CP) — A benefit football game on behalf of 19-year-old John Ellwood of North Toronto Collegiate, who lies in a coma in hospital after being injured two weeks ago in a football game, has been postponed one week. The Toronto Secondary Schools Athletic Association said Thursday the game will be held Nov. 18 when the entire gate receipts will be given to the benefit fund.

HANSEN FINED

WINNIPEG (CP) — George Hansen has been fined $20 as a result of being thrown out of the second game of the Western Interprovincial Football Union semi-final in Calgary last Saturday, football commissioner Sydney Halter announced Thursday. The Calgary tackle was ejected from the game, won by Edmonton 41-21 after he threw punches at Edmonton safety man Oscar Kruger in the second quarter.

Most Canadians think that Labatt's is just about the best beer you can get anywhere. But it's also nice to know that independent brewing experts rate it as highly as we do. In a brewing contest held recently in London, England, among 120 competitors from all over the Commonwealth, the Brewers' Guardian Challenge Cup was awarded to Labatt's as brewers of the beer judged to be finest in all classes competing . . . the best beer in the Commonwealth. This is the latest of 28 occasions on which Labatt's quality has brought top honours to Canada in International Competition, including the Prix d'Excellence won at the World Beer Contest in Belgium in 1958. So any time you call for one of the great Labatt brews—Labatt's IPA, Labatt's Pilsener Lager Beer, or Labatt's "50" Ale—remember, you're drinking the Commonwealth's best beer.

Wings Share Perch, Defeat Bruins 4-1

Habs Thump Rangers 9-7

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks are no longer alone as principals in the race for the National Hockey League championship.

After a month-long drive, Detroit Red Wings Thursday night made their first appearance of the season as league leaders by defeating the faltering Boston Bruins 4-1 at Boston.

The Red Wings now are tied with Canadiens for first place with 17 points, one more than Chicago which led Wednesday. The Hawks were idle Thursday night.

Canadiens, who were tied in second place with Detroit before Thursday night's games, defeated last - place New York Rangers 9-7 in the highest scoring game of recent years to keep up with Detroit.

SCORED TWO EACH

In that wild - scoring spree at Montreal, Dickie Moore and Ralph Backstrom scored two goals apiece to lead Canadien scorers. Geoffrion, Jean Beliveau, Henri Richard, Bob Rousseau and Claude Provost scored the other goals.

Eight players' Andy Bathgate led New York scorers with two goals and two assists while left winger Johnny Wilson collected two goals.

Other scorers were Andy Hebenton, Dean Prentice and Brian Cullen.

Detroit's Al Johnson scored two second-period goals — including the winner—to lead Detroit to its victory over Alex Delvecchio and Parker MacDonald scored the other markers for Detroit.

Bronco Horvath scored Boston's lone goal.

The Red Wings appear to be stoning for their poor performances in the last two seasons. This year they have won eight games to Chicago's seven and have scored 52 goals to the Hawks' 45. Canadiens have eight wins and 48 goals.

Most sportswriters picked Detroit to finish fourth this year and attention is centred mainly on Chicago and Montreal.

In 12 games Detroit sleepers Terry Sawchuk and Hank Bassen have allowed only 24 goals, the same number which Chicago's Glenn Hall has let in. Jacques Plante of Montreal, faltering this season, has allowed 56 goals.

Toronto Maple Leafs, second-place club last season and Stanley Cup finalists, have a chance to move within one point of Chicago with both squads meeting in Toronto Saturday.

Detroit and Montreal will attempt to break their deadlock when they meet in the other Saturday NHL game in Montreal.

Petes Wallop Marlies 7-2; Wings Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough Petes powerloaded attack Thursday night overwhelmed Toronto Marlboros 7-2 to propel the Petes into a first place tie with St. Catharines in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series.

The victory also dumped the Marlies into the series cellar as Hamilton Red Wings vaulted it by defeating Niagara Falls Flyers 4-2. Red Wings and Petes now share fourth place with four points, three behind the leaders.

In Peterborough, captain Wayne Scadding paced the Petes with two goals, getting the series scoring leadership on his 10th goal of the season.

Other Peterborough tallies came from Hugh McGregor, two, Keith Wright, Reg Mundland and Doug Senior. Sonny Robertson's first Hornet record scored for Marlies.

SEVEN SEVEN PENALTIES

Marlies drew seven of the 13 penalties in the game marred only by an injury to Ricky Eckert, Petes' rookie rightwinger.

In Hamilton, Red Wings trailed 2-0 at the end of the first frame but managed to net two unassisted second markers in each of the following periods.

Flyers were off to a fast start with tallies by Jeanco Gilbert and Bill Knibbs, but Bob Pond, just up from Wings Junior B team started the comeback rally early in the second period.

Midway through the second period Flyers were shorthanded, and Wings turned the coup as Lowell MacDonald netted Terry Gilbert and Wayne Rivers got the other goals.

Flyers drew four of the six major penalties.

Tonight, Hamilton plays a return contest in Niagara Falls.

Race Tracks Set Record

TORONTO (CP) — More people were going to the races in Ontario.

Officials of the Jockey Club of Canada said the 1960 attendance at Ontario's three thoroughbred tracks—Fort Erie, Woodbine, Old Woodbine and Fort Erie—was bit 1,590,819, about 1,400 higher than the record set last year.

There were 1,588,443 patrons at Ontario tracks last year during the 1959 season. The record was broken this year on the 184th day and club officials said that with 12 days of racing remaining, the 1959 record attendance will be topped by about 75,000.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Cgo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

The hockey future of the McFarlands, it seems, rests on the shoulders, or decision of one man, or one club.

As is now known the Macs have made application to the Interprovincial Hockey League which embraces two teams from Hull, one from Ottawa, Smith's Falls, Pembroke and more recently, Cornwall.

The fate of the Macs will be decided at a meeting of the league slated for the near future. It seems there is a league ruling that admission of any team to the circuit must have the unanimous approval of member clubs.

Rumors from down east have it that at least one club is not in favor of the McFarland entry, with the old bugbear of all hockey teams, cost of transportation, being the reason.

However, it is understood certain interests are working hard to get a McFarland entry and things may not be as dismal as they seem at this writing.

Crossing that bridge must wait until it is approached. In the meantime the Macs meet the high-flying Hull-Ottawa Junior Canadiens in what should be a fast, hard-checking bout tonight in Memorial Arena.

The Macs took a well-earned 3-2 decision from the Habitant youngsters last Tuesday down in Hull and tonight's game should be in the thriller class.

Coach Gordie Bell expects his squad to be at full strength. Larry Mavety has been working out with the Macs and showing plenty of promise. The rest of the club is gradually rounding into shape.

Mannerisms: a story from Windsor says that M'sieu Wren Blair, who besides masterminding the Kingston Frontenacs pro club, mentors the Clinton Comets, is having his woes.

As is well known Irwin Gross, Windsor Bulldogs klargnin of last year, suddenly turned up as playing coach of the Comets. He was promptly suspended by the CAHA for not getting a Windsor release and the AHA later concurred in the suspension.

Meanwhile, Dick Wray, Comet ace, it seems had deserted the Clinton club and joined an OHA team, Stratford Indians, to be exact. He forgot to get a release from Clinton.

Now Blair has come up with a quaint move. He is willing to let bygones be bygones and give Wray a release if the suspension is lifted from Mr. Gross.

And now after all that bleating and yakking out of Western Ontario, especially that sports-writing antique of Stratford, regarding the high costs of operation, and hollier-than-thou attitude of the Western Ontario clubs, comes this story.

It is part of the Windsor yarn, too.

It says "Windsor paid $3,800 to have Gross reinstated as an amateur, then offered him $300 weekly, plus a $65-a-week job to stay in Windsor this season as playing coach. Gross is reported to have gone to Clinton for a straight $250-a-week salary."

In Windsor owner Bill Butcher of the Bulldogs when informed of the CAHA move, said about Gross. "We want him back if he'll come. He was a key man on our club last year and figured to be a key man this season. That's why he was offered the coaching job in the first place."

"As far as making a deal with Clinton is concerned," Butcher is quoted as saying: "I doubt if that will happen. They have never yet contacted us about Gross. They just grabbed him."

Shades of Long John Henderson.

And as for that Rip-Van-Winkle Archimedes Theopholis Chick Appel and his Western Ontario "share-the-wealth" hoop, Phooey!

B.C. Lions Won't Appear In Parade

VANCOUVER (CP) — Grey Cup officials complained Thursday that the British Columbia Lions football team won't participate in the Grey Cup parade Nov. 26.

"We're cheesed off", said parade chairman Fred Moonen.

"We feel the parade is for the benefit to the Lions as well as to the city."

Moonen said he has been trying since August to get the Lions to pay $450 for the Lions band in the parade. If the Lions don't pay, the Grey Cup committee will have to find the money because the band is already entered.

Ned Pinkerton, a B.C. Lions director of the committee, said the policy of the football club has been not to enter a float in the parade. However, he urged Moonen to ask the club again.

PLAY FOR TITLE

SASKATOON (CP)—Saskatoon Hilltops, aimed for a second three consecutive Canadian junior football titles, meet Calgary Mount Royal Cougars, a first-year club, in a sudden - death game today for the Western championship. The Hilltops are in good shape. Calgary lost two first stringers through injuries and four others are doubtful.

Lancaster Ottawa Worry

Clouds, Rain May Greet Big Game

OTTAWA (CP) — Early forecasts were for cloudy skies and the chance of intermittent rain for the first clash of a two-game final series here Saturday between Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts.

But for Rider coach Frank Clair, the prospect of inauspicious passing weather for his team's duel with the Big Four's top-ranking team and its passing artist, Tobin Rote, was no special cause for anxiety.

A damper on Toronto's offensive aerial attack could blunt its most effective weapon and favor Ottawa in a department where its arsenal is weakened at the moment.

Worry is mounting in the Rider camp over Ron Lancaster's health for Saturday's encounter.

UNDERWENT OPERATION

It was feared that a lingering shoulder ailment and a minor operation Wednesday to remove a cyst from the back of his spine might make a difference in the quarterback's passing potential. Lancaster at short the team subbed Toronto 21-12, 26-13 and 28-1 on different occasions this season.

In the two games where Russ Jackson was the main helmsman, Riders lost 21-7 and 37-13. Jackson was reported to be in fine health.

The game at Lansdowne Park starts at 1 p.m. EST and will be televised on the eastern network of the CBC with Ottawa blacked out. Meanwhile, many Ottawa fans are put out over ticket sales for the game.

Five outlets across the city had been supposed to hold up sales until Thursday morning but a check showed that two of the distributors had not been aware of the embargo and were already sold out.

Leafs Place Gerry Ehman On Waivers

TORONTO (CP)— Gerry Ehman, 28-year-old Toronto Maple Leafs rightwinger, has been placed on waivers, Leafs' manager-coach George Imlach announced Thursday.

If Ehman, a native of Cudworth, Sask., is not claimed by any National Hockey League club, Leafs hope to make a deal for him with Springfield Indians in the American Hockey League.

Imlach declined to discuss his plans for Ehman. The right-winger did not accompany Leafs to Chicago earlier this week. Apart from an injury, it was the first game he had missed since he joined the team two years ago.

It is believed Ehman would be exchanged for rightwinger Floyd Smith and defenceman Bob McCord, of the Springfield team.

Ehman joined Edmonton of the Western Hockey League in the 1952-53 season. He moved up to the American and Quebec leagues before joining the NHL Boston team in 1957.

Since then he has played for Hershey in the American League and Boston in Leafs.

In the 1958-59 playoffs, Ehman scored six goals and seven assists in 12 games. His best year in 49 games for Leafs he scored only 13 goals and 16 assists.

NIGHT SHOOL PLANNED

CINCINNATI (AP)—Fred Hutchinson, manager of Cincinnati Reds, blames the team's poor showing last season on carelessness and is going to hold "night school" sessions this year to correct it. Hutchinson ended three days of conferences Thursday with Bill de Wit, new general manager of the club, and changes in the lineup in 1961 appear to be a certainty. Cincinnati finished six in the National League last season.

N.H.L. Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens' high scoring trio of Bernie Geoffrion, Jean Beliveau and Dickie Moore forged ahead in the National Hockey League scoring race as Canadiens defeated New York Rangers 9-7 Thursday night in Montreal.

Geoffrion scored one goal and assisted on two others to increase his lead to two points over Moore. The right winger now has 10 goals and 16 assists for 26 points.

Moore scored two goals to bring his total to 17 goals and seven assists for 24 points, one better than Beliveau who has nine goals and 14 assists for 23 points.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Geoffrion, Montreal	10	16	26
Moore, Montreal	17	7	24
Beliveau, Montreal	9	14	23
Ullman, Detroit	6	15	21

Montreal's Bernie Geoffrion who scored the winning goal and set up two others as Canadiens beat New York Rangers 9-7.

Detroit rookie Al Johnson who scored two first-period goals, including the winner, to lead Red Wings to a 4-1 victory over Boston Bruins.

SENT TO HERSHEY

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Red Wings Thursday sent right-winger John McKenzie to their Hershey, Pa., American Hockey League farm club on 24-hour recall. The National Hockey League club said it intends to bring McKenzie back after he plays himself into shape. McKenzie has missed the last five Detroit games due to a back injury.

Moss Hanged in Effigy

Montrealers Angry Over 'Big Deal'

Wants to See Contracts Before Fight

QUEBEC (CP) — The Canadian Boxing Federation has asked the backer of Don Poulton and George Chuvalo to submit copies of the contract before the two heavyweights meet here Nov. 23 for the Canadian title.

Commissioner Gene Lebrun, head of Quebec City said the move is in line with the federation's new policy aimed at preventing a repetition of the mixup that developed after the pair's last match.

Cleroux stripped Chuvalo of the crown here Aug. 17 with a 12-round split decision. After the bout Chuvalo's manager Jack (Deacon) Allen claimed there was a rematch provision while Cleroux's manager Al Bachman denied there was one.

Allen said he had left the contract in his safe at Montreal in the offices of promoter Eddie Questel. Quinn had not destroyed it. He threatened a $100,000 legal suit.

Quinn denied the charge and was supported by the Montreal Athletic Commission. The matter was later settled amicably and a rematch negotiated.

Letourneau's directive was sent today to Allen in Toronto and Bachman in New York.

MONTREAL (CP)—Not everybody is Montreal is mad at Terry Moss and Ted Workman. But their supporters sure are scarce.

A reporter took an informal poll of 20 persons on their feelings about the deal that sent Montreal goalie Workman and Hal Patterson to Hamilton.

He found out who backed the Moss-Workman strategy.

The 9 to 1 vote censuring the move seemed like an accurate cross - section of general sentiment.

Thursday, with the trade 15 hours old, the Alouettes' rookie coach and general manager, was hanged in effigy from the balcony of their offices.

CALLS FURED IN

Calls continued to pour into the team's offices. The callers cursed, threatenedly pleaded and demanded they would not receive their season - ticket subscription next season.

At least two callers said a bomb had been planted to blow up the building at 11:35 a.m. But this was received more with amusement than alarm.

Others sent a telegram of petition of encouragement to quarterback Kenny Ploen and end Pat Fatterod was being circulated by some fans. The group, headed by Doug Ross, reported 326 names on the telegram in the first three hours of circulation.

"Cheer up Sam and Hal," the telegram read. "We're also anti-Moss . . . you wuz you to be turn, not Moss. Hope to see you return next year."

SENT A NOOSE

Two fans sent a parcel to the Montreal Gazette. Inside reporters found a rope tied in a hangman's noose with a note that read:

"Would you be kind enough to forward this to Mr. Moss? Also please give him any help he may require in putting it to use. Thanks."

Club owner Workman has been in New York since the trade with the Tiger-Cats — for quarter-back Bernie Faloney and hometbred defensive end Don Paquette—was announced.

But the Als called a press conference Thursday and duly unveiled Faloney.

Buchholz won by default when Mack Collins of Queensland failed to show up for their match.

Italy's Nicola Pietrangeli, third seeded foreigner, teamed with Orlando Sirola, also of Italy to beat Ken Baker, South Africa, and Don Boyle, Canada, 6-0, 6-1, 6-0.

Al Balding Shares Lead Mexican Golf

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Al Balding of Toronto and Billy Maxwell of the U.S. both shot 3-under-par 66s Thursday to take the Tolomod lead in the $10,000 Mexican open golf tournament.

Tommy Renson of the U.S. was next with a 67 on the 6,736-yard Chapultepec course.

Most favorites were under the par 72 Thursday, with defending champion Angel Miguel Sosta posting a 68. But Belgium's Flory Van Donck, this year's Canada Cup winner, shot a disappointing 73.

Briton Says He Can Beat Pender

LONDON (AP) — Terry Downes, British middleweight champion, confidently predicted Thursday, "I can beat Pender with a left hook."

Paul Pender of Brookline, Mass., agreed Thursday to defend his version of the world middleweight championship against Downes in Boston Jan. 21. Downes has 25 professional fights, Pender is regarded as the' world champion in Massachusetts, New York and most of Europe.

Linemen Play Big Role

Big Race Had Field Of 11 Horses

By GEORGE BOWEN

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—The snap of a tape barrier this afternoon will signal the end of diplomatic courtesy for a couple of minutes while eminent horses from six countries race in the Washington, D.C. International.

Booting and belting will take over once the field of 11 breaks from the tape and pumps away for 1½ miles on the grass infield course for $100,000 in prizes.

The ambassador from Ireland, Dr. T. J. Kiernan, summed up the secret feelings of the diplomatic corps by confessing: "I'm not going to say I wish the best horse wins. I'll say I wish the best horse it is the Irish horse."

He spoke also for the backers of horses from the United States, France, Russia, Italy and the United Kingdom in the mile and one sixteenth of the invitation race.

The horse on which the 10 other jockeys will keep a particularly wary eye, and the bettors probably most of their money, is the five-year-old Bald Eagle.

Not only because the Eagle is the symbol of the U.S., but the racer of New York's Mrs. Isabel Guggenheim won last year's International by 2½ lengths.

"He's still the horse to beat in my book," said trainer Woody Stephens.

Out to stop Bald Eagle will be his countrymen, Bo Sag - Jo Stable's Harmonizing, Henri Aubert's Pulsean Chef and Jean Stern's Hautain from France, Russia's Zabeg and Zadorny, Rafael de Erasta's Santa Severa and Gino Mantovani's Rio Marin of Italy, Mrs. Matt E. Donnelly's Farmey Fox from Ireland, Hon. Nancy Davis Mosinga's Apostle and Mrs. Camille Evans' Prolific of the United Kingdom.

If it turns out to be Harmonizing it will be the first filly to crasher winning the grand prize. Harmonizing was invited to the race only last Monday because Brookmeade Stable's Sword Dancer hurt an ankle and the six - year-old was a second choice substitute in the lineup.

In his first 4½ years of racing, Harmonizing won only four times in minor races and in July he was claimed by James DiMarco of Philadelphia for $6,500. He came through with an upset victory over both Bald Eagle and Sword Dancer in the Man o'War stakes at Belmont in New York last month.

The distance, weight and type of course were the same as for the international.

Prospects were for clear weather. Post time is 3:45 p.m. EST.

TORONTO (CP) — Despite all the talk about Toledo Rote and his razzle-dazzle passing to star receivers, the unheralded linemen will play a big role in Toronto Argonauts' bid to reach the Grey Cup classic.

Nobody is more aware of it than coach Lou Agase. He sends his Argonauts against Ottawa Rough Riders Saturday in the opening engagement of their two-game, total-points final series of the Big Four Football Union, knowing that the offensive line must give Rote time to pick out his men on passes and the defensive unit must contain Rider running.

Argos head by plane for Ottawa tonight for the curtain-raiser, then return for the windup game here Sunday, Nov. 20.

Saturday's battle starts at 1 p.m. EST and will be televised over the CBC's French network with the Ottawa area blacked out. The second game will be under way at 1:30 p.m. EST. It will be televised over the CBC's national network with no blackout of the Toronto area.

HAS GOOD RECEIVERS

In considering the importance of linemen, don't underestimate the brilliance of the 30-year-old Rote as a passer. The former Detroit Lions star is a good one.

He's accustomed to a good shape. The only doubtful starter is guard John Casey, bothered by a charleyhorse. He may be replaced by Freddie Black.

out with 21-7 and 37-13 victories.

The series winner will represent the East in the Grey Cup at Vancouver Saturday, Nov. 26, and if Argos hope to get there they will have to stop the Rough Rider ground attack, mainly the running of fullback Dave Thelen and halfback Ron Stewart.

HELD THELEN

In Argonauts' two wins over the Riders, they held Thelen to fewer than 100 yards in more than 20 carries, and Stewart, who scored 15 touchdowns during the season, didn't get a point.

Agase, 36 and attempting to win a Grey Cup in his rookie coaching year in Canada, might end everybody and rely heavily on a ground offensive. He has had Argos working on running plays this week with Dick Suttie, Cookie Gilchrist and Dave Mann in reserve.

Agase said the team is in good shape. The only doubtful starter is guard John Casey, bothered by a charleyhorse. He may be replaced by Freddie Black.

Meet Eskimos Saturday

Bombers Are Favored 5-1

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers head into tonight's Edmonton today, hoping to make the flight another stop along the trail to their third consecutive Grey Cup championship.

Bombers tangle with their arch rivals, Edmonton Eskimos, Saturday in the first game of the best-of-three Western Interprovincial Football Union Final.

The game at Edmonton's Clarke Stadium marks the fourth time in as many years the two clubs have clashed in the final. Winnipeg won the three previous battles at the occasional hill followed up with Grey Cup victories.

Coach Bud Grant ran the Bombers through a 90 - minute workout here last night, then announced his lineup for the opening game.

On offence will be centre George Druzman, guards Cornell Piper and Ed Sloboshan, tackles Frank Rigney and Mike Wright, ends Norm Rauhaus and Ernie Pitts, quarterback Kenny Ploen, halfbacks Leo Lewis and Ray Jauch and fullbacks Larry James and Charlie Shepard.

TOMMY OUT DEFENCE

The starting defensive unit will be manned by middle guard Steve Patrick, tackles Bud Tinsley and Roger Savoie, ends Bert Gray and Gec Lubing, linebackers Garland Warren, Dave Burkholder, Jack Delveaux and Gord Rowland, deep backs Ron Stewart and Nick Miller and safety Vern Cole.

Punt return specialists Henry Jamen and Non LaTourelle, along with tackle Rod Hmenuck and fullback Rick Potter, round out the Bomber bench.

The only question marks had been whether Jauch or speedy Carver Shannon would play the right halfback slot and whether Lubing or Ron Mendonow would play right defensive end.

Grant said he considered the Bombers "as strong a team as the 1959 club," which defeated Eskimos 19-11 and 16-8 in last year's two-game final.

"Whether we're better than last year, remains to be seen," Grant said. "It's a question of whether Winnipeg or Edmonton has advanced the most."

MAKE LITTLE CHANGE

Eskimos are expected to go with virtually the same lineup that eliminated Calgary Stampeders in the two-game, total-points semi-final series.

However, Eaks reported that halfback Jo-Bob Smith, a fine pass - catching halfback, is expected to miss the opener due to a throat infection. Fullback Johnny Bright seems recovered from a shoulder bruise, but his running mate, Normie Kwong, may also find a sore shoulder because of bruised ribs.

Coach Eagle Keys indicated that veteran Rollie Miles will fill the flanker spot at halfback and Jim Shipka will take Kwong's fullback assignment.

R. Richard Turns Swami, Picks Habs

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—Maurice Rocket Richard was in a perfect mood for making predictions Wednesday but his crystal ball seemed to be tuned in mainly on members of his family.

Richard, the great scorer who retired from the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens this season, to become a goodwill ambassador for the team, was here to attend a benefit game for Chet Mcdaid, a Sydney player who was injured late last season and probably will never be able to play hockey again.

Among the Rocket's predictions:

Canadiens will win the NHL championship and the Stanley Cup again this season, but Chicago Black Hawks will give them "plenty of trouble."

His younger brother Henri, a centre with the Canadiens, is "a pretty good skater" and should do "okay."

Another brother, 22-year-old Claude, now with Philadelphia Ramblers of the U.S. Eastern League, "will never make it because of his stubbornness. He hack Vernon Cole as defensive safety.

Game time Saturday is 4:05 p.m. EST.

CBC-TV will telecast the first game on the Western network and the second on a national hookup. If a third game is necessary, it also will be telecast nationally.

The Edmonton weather office said the outlook for game-time Saturday is for clear, cold weather, with temperatures in the 20's. A little snow is expected on the ground and winds should be light.

TV Writers Fail to Follow Book in Their Adaptation

By CYNTHIA LOWRY.

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the problems confronting all the television writers, who this year are so busily adapting our novels (a word which unfortunately is used as loosely as "creative" in TV circles), is reconstructing characters and situations to fit dramatic forms.

Books are written to be read, while TV is made to look at, and often the twain fail to meet in any comfortable form. Possibly one reason so many persons who have read the book are so outraged when it is presented. When they see a TV adaptation is that the dramatized version rarely matches the pictures conjured up in the reader's mind.

For instance, NBC's next hour of great mysteries—Tuesday, 10-11 p.m. EST—will try an adaptation of E. Phillips Oppenheim's "Great Impersonation, a suspense novel written 30 years ago and long out of print. It so happens, however, that this writer has an affection for the work of E. Phillips Oppenheim that goes back to high school days and only a few months ago, while luxuriating at home with a head cold, re-read The Great Impersonation.

"Of course, you will play the wife," I said to Lisa Gabor, star of the forthcoming production.

"Not this mark Sir Basil you have played a lady with a bad mental condition?"

"Oh, no," replied Miss Gabor. "I'm playing the Princess Stephanie."

"But Princess Stephanie isn't at all important in the book—all she does is recognize the hero as a former lover and thicken the plot," I protested.

"Well," confessed Miss Gabor, unperturbed, "I think they have built up the part a little bit. Oh-ee-oh-ee I mean I've accepted the role in the show."

Unions Move To Save Cuban Ball

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro's labor unions have moved to save professional baseball from collapse in Cuba, where for the first time in history the game is being played without Americans.

Several unions announced plans today to purchase box seats for the current season, which has been games played to nearly empty houses since the opening two weeks ago.

Even the appearance of Castro at the baseball-minded fans failed to fill more than about half of the 30,000-seat stadium.

The International League franchise was moved from Havana to Jersey City last season because of the uncertainty of Cuba's political situation.

Whether the lack of American talent is responsible for the attendance decline is a matter of conjecture. Baseball men here do not credit it as a factor because the lack of players from the United States has forced the fans to draw on talented youngsters and, as the result, there has been a corresponding decline in the quality of play.

However, they say a general deterioration of the economic situation is a contributing reason. Cubans have been forced to take salary cuts and pay the highest income tax in history.

INGO WILLING

GENEVA (AP)—Ingemar Johansson said Thursday he hopes to get his return bout with heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson in Los Angeles or Miami early next year. He said in a letter a match between January and March "is certainly okay with me." Humbert (Jack) Fuller, managing director of Pacific Sports Incorporated, said in New York he expected to announce next week the site and date of the third Patterson-Johansson fight. Patterson knocked out Johansson last June, reclaiming the title he lost the year before to Ingo by a knockout.

Frankie Vaughn Comes Back For Another Hollywood Try

By ROB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Frankie Vaughn is back trying to make it at Hollywood.

In his last outing, the English entertainer spent six wacky months on a film with Marilyn Monroe and much of his work ended on the cutting room floor. The film was Let's Make Love.

This time he's hurtling through a film in 23 days. He can't be cut out of this one, because he's in almost every scene.

Luckily, Frankie has a resiliency born of the Liverpool slums and British music halls. His experience with Let's Make Love might have shaken a less hardy soul.

"My scenes were cut and so were some of my numbers," he sighed. "When I did have a number, the camera focused on other people. My makeup was terrible, Marilyn is so white that everyone else had to be whitened up to match her."

ASIAN TREATMENT

Frankie's partisans among the British press assailed such treatment of their boy. Oddly, the film has been drawing nicely in England while United States reviews have been below expectations. Aware of Frankie's fan base in the aisles, Fox has given him a more auspicious role. He is playing a no-good singing Kid in "The Right Approach."

Frankie's support includes Juliet Prowse, Martha Hyer, Gary Crosby and Juan Hernandez.

Frankie is still mystified at what happened to him in Let's Make Love.

"I didn't understand it," he said. "All I could gather was that they started out to make a musical, changed their minds and made a comedy."

The result was that he sings seven songs on the soundtrack record album but is seen in fragments of three in the film.

AT THE McCARTHY — Alan Ladd and Ingemar Johansson make a brief cameo fighting Marines in Ralph Meeker's "Mickey Spillane's Mike Hammer" now at the Odeon Movie Club. Ladd, who is also the main producer, is the spy comedy in color and Cinemascope "You Can't Run Away From It", featuring June Allyson, Jack Lemmon and Jim Backus.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Saturday, November 12

General tendencies: This is the day for you to be sure that you do get out and get every single detail as you would like to have it. You have some of the best Saturday aspects of a long time for cementing present good things and for adding to your benefits in a definite, determined and decisive manner. The night is fine for pleasures, too. Be very active.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Perfect day for clearing up all that work that is impossible to do during busy work week, whether at home or at some other place, out - of - doors, etc. Don't litter away one moment of this valuable day and hrs. Work.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Much happiness can be yours today if you will amicably make the effort to get together with relatives and friends, associates and look on the bright side of life. Be human, kind and understanding with all. Be generous, loving.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Now it is possible to engender greater harmony within the family circle that has been lost in the rather difficult months past. Do whatever is necessary to get the co - operation of all and be sure to make repairs in whatever is shabby.

Mass Children (June 22 to July 21) — Make those calls that are impossible to you during the work week, also getting your important shopping done, not forgetting accessories to brighten up your ensemble. P. M. fine for getting together with friends for fun and frolic.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) — The right day to get repairs made on property as well as getting appearance at its peak by placing yourself in the hands of experts. Then the evening is ideal for going out to the sociable pleasures you so enjoy. Be gay, happy.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 23) — This is one Saturday when you can be the life of the party, since you are full of charm and good spirit. Also, you can contact those persons who can be of assistance to your aims in life and get their support and co-operation.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Be sure you go after whatever is necessary to increase success in your chosen field of endeavor. Also, be with fellow - workers informally and talk over ideas and ambitions.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Provided you make the effort to contact good comrades who can assist you in your plans, they will understand your ideas and gladly do so. P. M. entertain them wholeheartedly and be very, very sociable. Charm them.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Don't stay at home today, but handle those duties out-of-doors that will bring further success and happiness. Dine out. In P. M. and then off to the places where there is fine entertainment and not very costly, at that.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Fine day for meeting the right people and seeing old friends who can understand your ideas for the future and help to make them an actuality. Then tonight, sit down and study until the wee hours. Prepare for the future.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Follow your intuition in dealing with that person who is not thinking quite right. Once he, or she, has been straightened out, you can then plan the days ahead wisely and with fine results following.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Spend this day with associates informally and cement heartier relations during leisure time. Also, you can better get those who have been somewhat inimical to you and get them on your side. P. M. have dinner out and save time and money.

If your child is born today — he, or she, will be one of those fascinating people who love to go into minute detail in all important matters, which leads to a very great success in life. However, early give the benefit of fine spiritual and ethical training for that need for brevity can also be learned and how to cope with fellow man to the best advantage, hence being prepared from early life for the handling of money — and especially large sums during adulthood.

LEGISLATURE OPENING — The Quebec legislature was opened Thursday under the first Liberal Government since 1944 as Lt.-Gov. Onesime Gagnon read the traditional speech from the throne. Standing beside him is Premier Jean Lesage. (CP Wirephoto).

PICTON

Former Deputy Reeve Leads Meeting in Attack on Council

PICTON — Mayor H. J. McFarland was the chief target of a ratepayers' meeting held Wednesday night in Queen Elizabeth school.

Former deputy reeve Robert Cockburn headed the ratepayers group which called the meeting, at which their criticism and questions sparked a lively discussion lasting over three hours, said "There is talk I am out for the mayoralty and there is some truth in it. Later he said "There are rumors I am a candidate but we will see what happens. I am a taxpayer. If I am in office there will be no big show. I will do nothing as you would like to see it done."

Robert Walmsley, local lawyer, was elected chairman by the 125 persons present and at times had a difficult task to keep the meeting under control and free from personalities.

PAPERS ATTACKED

As first speaker, Mr. Cockburn attacked the Picton papers for "lack of complete reporting." The sewerage system in Picton he termed a "white elephant", He doubted the system has been working at 40 per cent of efficiency, and remodelling of the disposal plant is being suggested at a cost of $150,000. Judging by estimates and actual cost of the system, that means $200,000, he said.

Mr. Cockburn attacked the sewer-term of council. He asked who was to blame for the flood of a new roof on the county jail, and cannot be blamed entirely on council, Mr. McFarland said.

J.Dr. J. B. Clapp said there was no use in confliction of a sewage system built 13 years ago. Councillor Andrew Jarvis said the present council cannot be blamed for faulty construction or inadequacies and the contractor cannot be held responsible for errors of the engineers.

DEFENDED TERM

Councillor Randolph Clapp defended a two-year council term as against suggested half of council elected each year for two-year terms. Councillor L. B. Cainan thought yearly elections held more interest.

INCREASED PRESTIGE — Since joining the United Nations four years ago, the Republic of Ireland has gained increased prestige in the field of international diplomacy. Much of the credit for this goes to two men—Foreign Minister Frank Aiken (left), former soldier, and Frederick Boland, permanent head of the republic's UN delegation and president of the current session of the UN General Assembly. (CP Photo).

Republic of Ireland, Kept Out of UN by Soviet Veto For Long Time, Makes Good

The Republic of Ireland has made a distinct impression on the United Nations in the few years since it was admitted to membership, Dave Daniels of CP's London bureau, who talked with external affairs officials during a visit to Dublin, tells in this story of the reasons for this impact.

By DAVE OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DUBLIN (CP)—Four years ago a newcomer was sandwiched between the delegations of Iraq and Israel in the impressive hall hearing the United Nations General Assembly.

Soviet veto had kept the Republic of Ireland out of the world organization for a decade. No one knew much about the small new delegation and no one really expected a great deal from it.

But in less than half the time it took the Irish to get in, the majority of the nations of the world developed so great a regard for this group that they elected Frederick H. Boland, its permanent head, as assembly president.

The election was more than just another story of an Irishman who made good in New York. It was a tribute to Ireland's personal qualities as a diplomat. He's a scholarly square-set figure with a keen sense of humor and a strict sense of fair play.

The vote was also a tribute to Irish diplomacy, often described as unorthodox and bold because it tries to introduce the element of common sense into the jungle of international relations.

REALISTIC APPROACH

Boland's recent election is but one of a string of Irish successes at the world body in recent years. It's a story that reflects the value placed by delegates on an approach to modern problems that is realistic, independent and yet conciliatory in tone.

It is the story, too, of a small nation championing the cause of other small nations while at the same time trying to ease the tension between the major power blocs.

In these roles, the Irish diplomats owe at least a little to history. The nation obtained self-government scarcely four decades ago and understands the language of anti-colonial nationalism.

Although basically Roman Catholic and Western in outlook, Ireland performs a vital service in interpreting the demands and sensitivities of Africans, Asians and Arabs to other Western countries.

The integrity of Irish diplomats has won the respect and trust of uncommitted countries. These diplomats, for example, risk offending Roman Catholic feeling both at home and abroad by arguing that the UN should at least consider the question of membership for Communist China.

MINISTER PRAISED

Much of the credit for this success story must be given to External Affairs Minister Frank Aiken, peppery soldier - statesman, and his small band of able diplomats and advisers.

In conversation the 59-year-old minister constantly displays the unorthodoxy that is drawing the spotlight to his nation.

This is his view of Ireland's UN task:

"The role is not to exhaust our energies in denouncing injustices and war, much as we detest them, but to make contributions for true peace."

His reply to the critics who complained he was betraying Christian civilization in voting for discussion of the China issue:

"On the basis . . . that it is betraying civilization and spiritual values if contact takes place with people of whom you do not approve, St. Patrick would have stayed out of Ireland."

MUST TAME LAWLESSNESS

During a lengthy interview, Aiken drew on an encyclopedic knowledge of foreign affairs to explain his views. Lawlessness in the world, he said, can be tamed as the U.S. sheriffs and the judges tamed the wild west. That was a gradual process that spread from area to area until the whole of the west was under the rule of law.

Applying this simple principle to international affairs, he said, the first and the most hopeful areas to work for peace are those where there's the most trouble.

Tension in these areas — The Congo is among them—must be eased if war is to be avoided.

Establish peace and the rule of law first in the trouble spots, he says, and then work to spread this rule until it includes all of the areas of this tormented globe.

Because he feels that human nature makes only gradual progress possible, he thinks that negotiations for a general and complete disarmament—such as those proposed by Khrushchev—are a complete waste of time.

NEED TRUST FIRST

"We've had disarmament for 40 years, ever since the First World War — except for five years when armaments actually were used. I can't see arms reductions coming until trust among nations, the political conditions, are created.

As a first step in his program he would like to see a worldwide agreement to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons. His delegation to the UN are expressing a resolution aimed at achieving this.

"Common sense rejects the fatalistic argument that, because we cannot at once by force or persuasion secure total disarmament and the universal application of the rule of law, we should make no attempt to apply the law in areas where we can."

The minister stressed his hope for general support of United Nations efforts to restore order in the seething Congo. This, he says, is the best hope not only for the Congo but for the whole of Africa.

PROVIDED IRISH TROOPS

His hope was that the emerging African nations would not develop into a dangerous flashpoint for conflict by becoming objects of a ruinous struggle between the major power blocs. In a bid to prevent this, Ireland responded with alacrity to a request for troops to serve in the central African state.

This contribution of troops and the growing respect that the nation is gaining in international councils have been major factors in the development of an Ireland with a new confidence.

The Irish have become more outward-looking. They are thinking less about the injuries they feel they are suffering because Northern Ireland still is part of Britain. They are devoting more and more of their attention to events in places as far afield as Washington, Moscow and Stanleyville in The Congo.

TOMORROW: Irish republic takes new initiative to end partition.

Nixon's Top Aides Do Not Expect Vote To Change

Some Hope for Lead In Final Popular Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans clung to the hope today that recounts and absentee ballot tabulations might give Vice-President Richard Nixon a popular vote lead over Senator John Kennedy.

That was the practical valuation put by spokesmen for Nixon and Republicans in the Republican national chairman, Thruston Morton, for a recheck of the vote in 11 states. Nixon was not consulted about Morton's recheck request as aides said.

While some Republican leaders had dreamed of overturning Tuesday's results that gave Kennedy more than enough electoral votes for the presidency, Nixon's aides made it clear they expect no such outcome.

Chief of Herbert Klein, Nixon's press secretary, and Robert Finch, the campaign manager, said they believe the vice-president has a good lead over Kennedy in the final count of popular votes. They didn't say so, but any such results would be regarded as a boost for Nixon to run again in 1964.

LOOK FOR FRAUDS

When Morton asked for the recheck Tuesday he said he had Republican officials in the states in mind. The "purported vote frauds."

Reports from some of the 11 states indicated that local Republican officials were hopeful of changing the results in any significant way. In fact, some said there was no evidence of fraud.

The latest Associated Press tally, with 1,477 units still yet to be counted, showed Kennedy 33,627,229 and Nixon 33,248,377.

Finch and Klein told a press conference Friday that Nixon was not consulted about Morton's request.

Finch said any recounts or absentee ballots will be entirely in the hands of local Republicans in the 11 states. He added that he has been told that the national result will be determined when the votes in all states is very slight."

Democratic national chairman Henry Jackson dismissed Morton's manoeuvres as "a fishing expedition" in the last extended two-thirds of the state's 200,000 absentee ballots in question

Theatre Guild Will Present 'The Heiress'

According to latest reports many students of the Grade 11 classes in and around the city will be on hand towards the end of this month when "The Heiress" by Belleville's Theatre Guild's latest production, is staged at the B.C.I.V.S. auditorium. This popular drama as well as being an old universal favorite, is the curriculum play for this year, it is under the direction of T. K. Schwab, assisted by Mrs. P. L. Parry.

An exceptionally fine cast has been selected for this production. Vera Thompson, Betty Gordon and Phil Flagler, three of the city's most capable and well-known performers, together with a newcomer, Wm. Gullen of Toronto, assume the four major roles in this stirring story.

They are supported by a bevy of tried and true troopers such as Flo Vanover, Helen Thomas, Ruth Nightingale, Beryl Slatter and Reeve Greig and the director feels that vocal and dialectic audiences will enjoy one of their best theatre nights in years. Rehearsals have been going on for several weeks and will continue at a brisk pace to assure a polished performance.

An unusually capable technical staff, headed by David Jardine, the Guild's current president, will work preparing the backstage necessities. Mrs. H. Butler is designing the sets with Al Hall as the stage manager. The wardrobe of this Victorian-era play is under the supervision of Mrs. Ed. Rickards and Mrs. C. Wilson handling the properties. The sound and lighting effects are being engineered by Rodger Greig, the make-up is being taken care of by Mr. A. Vannevar. These department heads, allied by their reliable assistants such as Helen Sulman and others, make for a very strong support to the actors.

Tickets for the play are on sale at Hinton's Cubicle Book Shop, Schwab's and Thomas' Cigar Store or from any Guild member. The play will run one duration are Mon.: Tues. and Wed., November 29th, 30th and 30th with a curtain time of 8 p.m.

Hastings Reeve Is Third Cousin Of New President

Senator John P. Kennedy, elected President of the United States on Tuesday, has relatives in Hastings County. Pat Fitzgerald, reeve of Monteagle township, near Bancroft, is a third cousin of the President-elect. Members of the original Fitzgerald family came to north Hastings many years ago, from Massachusetts. The new President's grandfather, "Honey" Fitzgerald, was mayor of Boston and was one of the most influential Democrats in the United States. Kennedy has always been a Democrat, and is reliably reported, that the Monteagle reeve is in possession of a book tracing the history and lineage of the Fitzgerald family, the original members, having come over from Ireland, and settled on the east coast near Boston many years ago. The grandfather of the new President-elect was a brother of Reeve Fitzgerald. Since President-elect Kennedy has never been to Canada, members of Hastings council, recently elected years a little influence on Reeve Pat, to request that his illustrious third cousin visit this part of the country, at some time in the future.

British Car Workers Facing Dull Christmas

LONDON (Reuters) — British car workers today faced a gloomy Christmas as the automobile industry's depression had led into its biggest post-war crisis.

The car industry has been rocked by a sharp decline in North American demand for imported cars and jolted by a government credit sequence.

With increasing layoffs and an estimated 70,000 workers on short time, the Conservative Ministry officials have called for government action to stimulate a revival.

But Selwyn Lloyd, chancellor of the exchequer, has said that tax deductions or an easing of credit should not be made. He said the government would use credit as soon as it felt the time was safe.

The only company which has not cut down on time to recover lost ground is the American-owned Ford Company.

BACKS EAST SIDE DRIVE

Sir Patrick Hennessy, British chairman of the company, backs an export drive to continental Europe as an alternate to the United North American and British markets.

Ford gathered 1,000 of its continental dealers in Hamburg, West Germany, recently, and urged the dealers to carve out a larger portion of the market for Ford, which now controls 80 per cent of British car exports to the Continent.

At the same time in Detroit Henry Ford II announced plans to spend $70,000,000 ($10,900,000) on expanding British Ford production in the next three years.

League to Run Own Slate Of Candidates

EASTVIEW (CP)—The East-view District League has made a bid to disqualify members of the present town council from running in the forthcoming elections on the grounds they participated in the demonstration on the grounds of the alleged breach of the Municipal Act.

The league which was instrumental in bringing about the provincial inquiry into Eastview municipal affairs in September, claims that testimony given by witnesses during the hearing established that members of the council had split among themselves and were earmarked for entertaining town guests.

The league has announced that it will run its own slate of candidates.

Fire Destroys One-Car Garage At Shannonville

For the third time in little more than two weeks, Belleville firemen were called to Shannonville Friday night, this time for a garage fire at the home of Wesley Ferguson.

The large one-car garage was completely destroyed along with a quantity of lumber and other articles stored in the building. Firemen had to leave the Green house wet down to prevent it from being consumed by the flames. The side of the house was scorched from the heat of the burning garage.

On the other two occasions on which Belleville firemen were called to Shannonville barns were burned, one of them resulting in heavy loss.

Firemen had a busy day yesterday being called out on two runs for overheated stove pipes. One was to the Conway Street and the other to Hillcrest.

And firemen were also called out on one of their Good Samaritan runs.

This time a woman on Bridge Street found herself locked out of her home. Firemen pumped up a window and went in and unlocked the front door.

Remembrance Day Service Held at Cenotaph

TRENTON — The annual Remembrance Day service was held here yesterday under the auspices of Branch 110 of the Canadian Legion.

At 10.30 a.m. a parade, comprised of members of the Legion, Ladies' Auxiliary of the branch, a representation from the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, RCAF personnel, the Trenton naval cadet corps and veterans of the two World Wars and the Korean War, marched from the market square through the town to the Cenotaph. The parade was led by the R.C.A.F. band, drum and bugle band. A bicycle police escort preceded the band and members of the police department directed traffic.

Charlie Baker, a veteran of the South African War, marched with the veterans.

At the Cenotaph, Mayor James MacDonald extended a civic welcome to the large number of citizens who attended the service. His sentiments were echoed by William Ash, president of the Legion branch.

The service was conducted by Rev. J. T. Irwin, chaplain of the Trenton Legion branch.

The lines of remembrance were read by John Silver, MBE, Senior Cpl. A. T. Robinson of the Salvation Army Corps read the scripture lesson and wreaths were laid by Flight Lieut. the Rev. W. G. Chapman.

At the close of the service wreaths were laid by Mrs. Beatrice Hinde, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion.

The parade salute was taken by Air Commodore F. S. Carpenter, officer commanding Air Transport Command.

W.A. Seeking New Members

TRENTON — The RCAF Women's Auxiliary is looking for new members. Recruiting for new members has been successful this year, but new members are always welcome.

At the recent monthly meeting of the auxiliary, members were urged to contact Mrs. C. Hall, 44 Dundas St. if they heard of new RCAF arrivals in the neighborhood.

Mrs. D. Ashcroft, president of the auxiliary, was in charge of the meeting. Minutes were read by Mrs. G. B. Quinn, secretary and Mrs. D. A. New, treasurer.

Members were asked to take part in the Christmas clothing to the Opportunity Shop.

The padre service may be had by calling Mrs. Hewitt.

Volunteer workers are needed for Friday evening.

Leather working classes will soon start under the direction of Mrs. Jean McNes. A driving instructor, J. H. Cox, has been secured and evening instruction is now under way.

Mrs. L. Sanders announced that she still has a number of tickets for the RCAF Women's cook book on hand.

There are still a number of vacancies in the nursery school. This school is for all Air Force children between the ages of 3½ to five years.

In October there were 249 children fingerprinted in the immunization clinic. The next clinic will be held at Brewster School, Nov. 17, from 1.30 to 2.30 p.m.

The arts and crafts convener and co-convener have resigned. Mrs. Gregg has consented to take over as co-convener, so a convener is still needed.

The members played several games of whist after the meeting. Winners were: Ruth Lloyd, Dot Milliken, Iona Herod and Aling Sanders.

Entertainment for the next meeting will be a display of furs and cocktail dresses.

Lunch was served under the convenership of Mrs. E. Irvine.

Boy Found

TRENTON — An all-day search Friday for 10-year-old John Wayne Boyd, R.R. 2, Carrying Place, ended at midnight when the boy was found unharmed in a fort he had built at the back of his parents' property.

The Brighton OPP detachment, Trenton police department, the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Boyd, friends and neighbors began a search when he was first missed at 10 a.m.

Remembrance Day Service Held at Canoe Lake

Remembrance Day was observed in Canoe Lake Sunday morning when a service was held at the cenotaph. Rev. Canon Bedford Jones officiated.

Wreaths were laid by Mrs. Beatrice Hinde, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Trenton Legion branch, Mrs. Ruth Clark on behalf of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canoe Lake branch and Mrs. Ruth Clark on behalf of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion.

The last post was sounded by Bugler Fulford for the Legion branch.

Mr. Lawson for the Legion branch and Mrs. Ruth Clark on behalf of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion.

The parade salute was taken by Air Commodore F. S. Carpenter, officer commanding Air Transport Command.

Results Good At Blood Donor Clinic

TRENTON — Mrs. Harold Keefer, president of the women's Auxiliary of Trenton Memorial Hospital, said yesterday that the results of last week's Red Cross blood donor clinic were good. More than 165 persons each donated pint of blood. Some would-be-donors were turned away as they had given blood at the last clinic and sufficient time had not elapsed to allow another contribution. Some persons were suffering from colds and also had to be refused the opportunity to donate.

This is the best record of donations Trenton has had in a long time, Mrs. Keefer said.

London Kinsmen To Discontinue Home Bingo

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — London Kinsmen Club has decided to the advice of the crown attorney to discontinue its weekly home bingo games, conducted through a newspaper, to raise funds for a new school for retarded children.

Club President William Tarr said the club has also decided to drop the contest invitées.

Mr. Tarr and Harold Taggart, lawyer for the club, said they construed a communication from Crown Attorney J. C. Mackenzie as an order from the Ontario government to the club to continue the game or face prosecution.

Mr. Savage said his attention was drawn by the department to the provisions of the criminal code relative to lotteries, and he was reminded that last February a Kinsmen club in Ottawa was charged under the Criminal Code for conducting a similar bingo game through newspapers.

"There was no order to prosecute', Mr. Savage said. 'I felt that a word to the wise should be sufficient."

Mr. Tarr said Sarnia club members told him a complaint was made against the activities by a church organization.

NO NEW GAMES

Games currently in progress in London will be carried out, Mr. Tarr, said, but no new games will be started. He added that the sum required for the school has almost been realized, and the club is hopeful of reaching its target.

Mr. Tyrr said the government has made a grant of about $23,000 towards the 123,000 cost of the school.

"This school would never have been built if it wasn't for the support of the bingo players", he said.

IN MEMORIAM

SCRIVEN. — In loving memory of Sarah Scriven, who passed away four years ago, Nov. 14th, 1916.

We lost a mother with a heart of gold,
Who more to us than wealth.
We laid her 'neath the cold, cold clay,
And left her there by herself.

One of the best brothers in the world.

—Always remembered and deeply mourned by her brother Jim, sister-in-law Betty and boys Gary, Reggie and Eddie.

SCRIVEN. — In loving memory of our mother, Sarah Scriven, who passed away November 14th, 1916.

Our mother dear is sleeping,
That the hills were hard to climb;
But the journey's very lovely,
And whispered, "Peace be thine."

Sadly missed and deeply mourned by the valley of rest we lay,
Where the flowers fade not, we know not we will meet our loved one there.

—Ever remembered by June, Lila, Gail and Linda.

Former CO of Hasty Pees Speaker at Legion Banquet

"The proudest days of my life were the days I commanded the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment," said Colonel A. A. (Ack-Ack) Kennedy, DSO, in speaking to members of the Canadian Legion Branch 99 at their annual Remembrance Day dinner.

Reminiscing on war experiences both serious and humorous, the Owen Sound resident felt that there were four important facts which were to be realized from them. Tolerance towards other people; even if one did not agree with another's belief or attitudes one had to learn to live peacefully with him as a neighbor rather than try to kick his teeth in, the colonel said.

COL. A. A. KENNEDY

Duty to one's country; this was perhaps the one underlying attitude which drew men together into a fighting organization during wartime, not because they had a feeling that they were wearing a uniform to save the world from a menace, the speaker explained.

Self-discipline was a necessary and vital attitude which Canadians had to accept in order to accomplish the job they had set forth to do.

Devotion to one's duty and one's country was also quite necessary, especially when one's raw men die uselessly; not from the standpoint of what they were fighting for but from the standpoint of stupidity in how they were used. Their sacrifice must not be forgotten, Col. Kennedy exclaimed.

MUST BE STRONG

—Canada must be strong in her armed forces and the Canadian Legion must maintain its good work in order that Canadians do not forget that tolerance towards their fellows, duty and devotion to their country and self-discipline are quite important to maintain any a free and democratic nation, said the Ontario Hydro Electric commissioner.

He also commended the Legion for having done an excellent job in advising the government on what to do for returning veterans at the end of the two recent wars.

The speaker was introduced by Major Black, Branch 99 president, in command of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and by president William Heasman thanked Col. Kennedy for his address.

Past Poor Commander William Bailey acted as master of ceremonies for the dinner-sponsored by branch chaplain Bram Humphreys gave the blessing; president Norman Spencer extended a welcome to members and their guests; Alderman Hales Bailey represented the city. The toast to fallen comrades was given by Chris Legrow and Les Digby proposed the toast to the Queen. Thanks to the Ladies' Auxiliary were given by Clarence Reed.

The members were entertained by a number of Irish songs by tenor George McLean. His performance was enthusiastically received by those present.

Boy's Heart Near Freezing In Operation

TORONTO (CP)—Details of a unique operation in which the heart was chilled to near-freezing point were revealed Friday as the patient, 15-year-old Arthur Berry of nearby Uxbridge, left Toronto General Hospital in good health and spirits.

The temperature of the boy's heart was dropped to three degrees above freezing by packing it with ice chips in the operation 10 weeks ago to repair a defect in the aorta, main artery leading to the heart.

It was Canada's first "deep freeze" operation, so far as known here.

The operation was performed by Dr. Tay Holmbeader and other leagues of the hospital's cardiovascular unit.

Canadian Citizen But Czech-Born Given 7 Years

PRAGUE (AP)—Milorad Cop, Czech-born Canadian citizen, was sentenced to seven years in prison Friday on charges espionage on behalf of a foreign power, the official news agency CTK reported today.

The agency said sentence was passed Thursday but did not disclose what Czechoslovak court he had appeared in. It said the agency go into details of the charges.

Montreal press reports said Cop emigrated to Canada in 1952 and became a Canadian citizen in 1957.

The reports said Cop was arrested while visiting his native country last summer. His wife, who was with him then, returned to Canada.

Cop, who lived in Montreal, was described as a accountant and was studying for a doctorate in Slavic studies at the University of Montreal. His wife is a surgeon.

Eastern Ontario Wins Titles In Sheep Class

TORONTO (CP)—Lloyd Arts of Bowmanville entered the champion ram in Southdown sheep competition Friday at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair. Premier Lloyd and Son of Canfield, Ont., entered the reserve champion.

Ayre also entered the champion ewe.

The champion ewe and the champion ram in the North County Cheviot class of sheep competition came from opposite ends of Canada.

The ewe is owned by Allison Stewart, Charlottetown, and the ram by C. Buck and son, Drumbeller, Alta. The reserve champion ram was A. M. Juby, Regina, Sask., and the reserve champion ewe was owned by Stanley Bagg, Oshawa.

A pretty breakaway goal by Larry Moore with only a couple of minutes left to play gave the Canadiens a 2-1 victory over the Red Wings in one of the five peewee league games this morning.

Moore went in alone and pulled the goalie in real pro style to give his club the win. He also scored the Canadiens' first goal. Rodney Law was the lone Red Wing marksman.

Jerry Beatty's second goal of the game proved to be the winner as the Black Hawks edged the Rangers 4-3. Bryan LaHue and Steven Thorne scored other Black Hawk goals. Dennis Chambers trigered two Ranger goals while Mike Smith assisting.

Ravens downed the Mads 6-3 with Two Holgate scoring three goals. Tim Doran, Ron Brooks and Clifford Scott had the other Baron goals while Bruce Brown, Jim McCreary and Brooks drew assists. Trever McDonald and Allan Picard were the Mac marksmen.

Frank Noble netted an unassisted goal to give the Bruins a 2-1 decision over the Browns. Ray Ronnie Hannah also scored for the winners and Jim Murray had an assist. P. Goodfellow had the Browns' tally with B. Parsons helping on the play.

David Hardenbrook's two-goal effort paced the Maple Leafs to a 3-1 win over Quinte. Donnie Blaind also scored while Alex Bradley assisted. Steve Antle and Bob Scott one. Richard Ellis had the Quinte goal and Wayne Muir earned the assist.

Evict Family But Cats Stay Till Housed

READING, England (AP)—Twenty-seven cats—black ones, white ones, tabbies and tortoiseshell ones—snoozed in the warm sofa chairs in the living room the day saved from eviction by Britains be-kind-to-animals laws.

But the law didn't save their owners, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gus Colling were evicted for not paying the rent.

And until the Collings find another house for themselves the cats can't be moved. The Royal Abandonment of Animals Act says cats can't be parted with without their owners' consent.

The act also makes it illegal to abandon any domestic or tame animal.

So while the Collings are away, officials of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals are dropping daily calls at the house, loaded down with cans of cat food.

Commission Not Informed Says Police Chief

HAMILTON (CP) — Police Chief Douglas Mitchell of Ancaster Township said Friday he did not feel criminal charges were warranted when he found some of his men taking a few potatoes from a farmer's field last year.

"It was a very foolish thing to do . . . something you would expect from younger persons," Chief Mitchell said, "but they acted without thinking."

The chief said the incident was also while touched off a provincial police inquiry into affairs of the township department.

The township police commission Thursday exonerated chief under the Police Act against two members of the force. However, the charges will not be pressed unless the OPP inquiry indicates charges are warranted.

Chief Mitchell said he treated the potato theft as a disciplinary matter. As a result the police commissioner was not informed of the matter.

"I did not suspend the men — I made them forfeit 10 days' pay each," he said. "If I ran to the police commissioner with every disciplinary matter that arises I wouldn't have time for anything else."

The chief said the incident came to the attention of the commission two months ago at an appeal by a constable dismissed from the force after an accident involving a police cruiser.

"It was on the officer's record and was part of the evidence I submitted," Chief Mitchell said.

Twelve bags of potatoes worth some $26 are understood to be involved.

Miss M. Blaind Opens Corset Store Monday

Belleville's first specialty corset store opens Monday.

Appropriately called The Home of Corsetry, the store will be run by a well known local corsetiere, Miss Margaret Blaind, previously employed by Eaton's here and later as representative for the S. H. Camp company.

Initially, at least, Miss Blaind plans to run her business from her home 336 Pinnacle St.

One room has been equipped with a couch for corsetry fittings, and stocked with foundation garments.

Decor in this businesslike room is a soft pink, using two contrasting shades of rose coral and wood tone.

Miss Blaind feels the homelike atmosphere will do a great deal to encourage customers.

"I think they'll like the friendly feeling here. To me, corsetry is such a personal thing and such a real source of help to the customer. It should be well adapted to working out of my home."

While surgical fittings will play a big part of her business, Miss Blaind intends stocking a wide range of merchandise.

"I intend giving fittings by appointment in the mornings, but in the afternoons I'll be completely free to attend to general business."

Orillia Chief Not Afraid Of Inquiry

ORILLIA (CP)—Police Chief Edward Eddington Friday challenged the attorney-general's department or any other agency to investigate its 15-man police force at a week-long controversial inquest which ended charges of corruption.

Speaking during the controversy is Orillia merchant Wilbur N. Cramp who is running for mayor in the Dec. 3 civic election. Mr. Cramp Thursday called for town a "clean sweep" inquiry and demanded action from the attorney-general's office if he said he would appeal to Premier Frost as a last resort.

The police department came into the spotlight recently after two constables were reprimanded and ordered to return $100 they accepted from a prisoner they were taking to Orillia. Another officer resigned, claiming he was framed, after fellow policemen alleged he drank beer with a teen-age girl.

Mayor Arthur J. Truman, retiring mayor, said there is no trouble and that "everything's all right." Mrs. Cramp and Reeve John C. Macdonald called for a full-scale attorney-general's investigation of charges that some police officers were out to "get" or "frame" fellow police.

Helicopter Pilot Tells How He Became a Jungle King

It isn't very often one finds a king who doesn't know who his subjects are; But one has been found. He is King Roman Godlewski who, with his wife and a companion, is spending the weekend at the Park Lane Motel, just west of Belleville.

He's not here on royal business. But he is here on other business. King Godlewski, or Ed as he is better known, flew in with his wife, Barbara, late Thursday aboard a helicopter which he landed in a small grass square at the motel. Mr. Godlewski's a helicopter pilot for Spartan Air Services of Ottawa. His companion, Leslie (Kipper) Anderson, is a mechanic who follows them in a station wagon as they barnstorm their way across the province.

How did Mr. Godlewski become a king? It's rather difficult to explain. Even he isn't too clear about it. While he was flying helicopters in Venezuela and Columbia this year, one of the tribes of natives he visited in the jungle threw a party, presented him with a live newborn baby and slipped a crown on his head. He didn't know what the score was until later when a missionary told him he had just been made king of the tribe.

"I don't know what tribe it is," he said yesterday in an interview at his motel suite. "I didn't even know what they were talking about. I just suddenly found myself named king of their tribe."

COULD WRITE BOOK

Polish-born Mr. Godlewski has been flying helicopters for eight years. At present he's barnstorming for Spartan because there isn't much call as a helicopter pilot can do in the winter unless he heads north into the Arctic. And after just coming out of tropical South America, he didn't think too much of that idea. He and his Ottawa-born wife think it will get cool enough for them right here in these latitudes. Some day they hope to own their own helicopter and become full-time barnstormers. There is a profitable market for it in Canada, they believe.

Darling of the Eggheads, Kingsley Martin, Is Retiring

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Kingsley Martin, the darling of the egg heads, is retiring as editor of the left-wing New Statesman after 30 crusading years.

White-haired and high-spirited, at 63 still ruling with a boyish enthusiasm for sauce and clical cause, Martin's giving way to deputy editor John Freeman, one of Britain's best known television personalities.

Martin will stay with the paper. He will devote himself to expanding its circulation "to" ensure and, he says, his name will appear in the editorial but ums more often than before.

Lively, unpredictable and, always on the side of the underdog, Martin made his special stamp on The New Statesman as an intellectual weekly with a deeply followed power pread ers, professors and dedicated members of the Labor party.

The New Statesman, sometimes accused of a bias against the United States, is also known for comments on politics with a sprinkle literary and cultural s says.

USES WIDE APPROACH

Martin's editorials have come to umn above the signature Cri and touched all the editor bases in a free-wheeling, personalized style.

The Guardian of Manchester commenting on his retirement as editor, said: "Under Kingsley Martin, without any qualifications.

Canada Muggeridge, frequently a contributor to The Statesman, is another avowed right-winger, has paid tribute to the editor's ability to "distill" a point of view.

Special:

Here's a few small pollti add a brimming tablespoon political intrigue, a dash of some granulated pritchett's we eggheads of the world l it up."

"Pritchett" refers to V. Pritchett, author and Ne Statesman reviewer.

Algiers Calm After 100 Hurt In Day of Riots

ALGIERS (Reuters) — Calm returned to Algiers today after riots in which the American Cultural Centre was sacked, 100 persons were injured and 70 were arrested.

Extra police remained on duty in the university area but fears that right-wing students might take advantage of a university holiday today to continue agitation did not materialize.

About 3,000 policemen who battled rioters all day Friday were withdrawn from the streets during the night.

There had been fears that the students, who live in Algerian Day demonstrations, might have used their day off to step up further protests against French President Charles de Gaulle's "Algeria for Algerians" plan for a revolt-torn North African territory.

Friday's troubles, the most serious in Algiers since the short-lived European settlers' revolt against concessions to Moslem nationalists 10 months ago, brought a day of street fighting among right-wing demonstrators shouting "Algeria Francaise" and hurling paving stones at police.

Buses were used as barricades. Cars were damaged. Police used tear gas to disperse the demonstrators.

The most prominent European "activist" organization kept aloof from the violence, adopting an attitude with that of the army which has shown no open sign of sympathy with any movement in defiance of authority.

Damage to the American Cultural Centre, sacked by demonstrators to protest against the reported American attitude on Algeria, was estimated at about $13,000.

In Paris, police arrested about 1,900 demonstrators, most of them youths in the Algerian quarter area, for shouting anti-Gaullist slogans and refusing police orders to move on. All but three were released after identity checks.

President de Gaulle partici pated in a reception at the Palace de Tricompole but Marshal Alphonse Juin, the pro-army vice-marshal, stayed away because he told reporters, he felt obliged to protest "in one way or another" against de Gaulle's Algerian policy.

BABY'S SAFETY

If the baby has reached the crawling stage, it's a good idea to put a cover of tape over unused electric sockets at floor level.

TIME RUNS OUT

FORT SASKATCHEWAN (CP) — Robert Raymond Cook, 23, sentenced to be hanged for the murder of his father, was reported calm today as time was running out for any possible reprieve from the executive, scheduled at the Alberta Provincial Jail here early Tuesday. He was convicted in the shot and bludgeoned bodies of his father, Raymond, 53, his stepmother and her five children were found concealed in a garage grease pit adjoining their Stettler, Alta., home in June, 1959.

What of U.S. Foreign Policy?

Nikita Khrushchev lost no time in communicating th President-Elect John Kennedy. His motives may ve been mixed. It is possible that he actually hopes at Kennedy, and his yet-to-be appointed Secretary of ate, will be easier to deal with than President Eisenower, the late John Foster Dulles and Dulles' successor, hristian Herter. It is possible, too, that Khrushchev erely seized at the opportunity to deal Eisenhower a ick-handed slap.

Whatever may have motivated Khrushchev, his essage, and Kennedy's reply, will have little import except as they provide some clues as to general attitudes hich will determine the broad outline of specific olicies.

Almost certainly Kennedy already has definite eas about the course to be followed in foreign policy uring his regime and these ideas will probably differ ubstantially from those of the Eisenhower administraon, in spite of the fact that such differences were not evealed during Kennedy's campaign addresses. One ould expect, though, that Kennedy's ideas might be ubject to minor modification resulting from conferences ith whomever he selects as Secretary of State.

Naturally enough, speculation on the probable olice has started. An Associated Press story names e possible candidates—Senator J. William Fulbright, erell Harriman, Chester D. Bowles, David Bruce and lai Stevenson. Of these five, three are former ambassadors, Harriman, Bowles and Bruce. Chief interest Canadians, though, may lie in the possibility that e post may go to Bowles or Stevenson.

Bowles is one of the few remaining members of e high echelon of the New Deal team still active in olitics. He has been one of Kennedy's chief advisors uring the election campaign. But Kennedy is already eing depicted as a tough leader who will not permit entiment to prevent him from judging every man by s merits and his suitability for the particular job to e filled. An expert on how to win friends and influence people in the U.S. during an election is not ecessarily the best man to win friends and influence eople abroad.

As for Stevenson, there are rumors that he is not egarded with particular warmth by Kennedy. It may e argued that the very attitude which may prevent ennedy favoring his friends would also result in him erlooking personal cool relationships with Stevenson in choosing him the best man. But it is interesting o note that, if there is any rift between Stevenson and ennedy, it may stem from the former's indecision at e Democratic convention, when he refused to either eclare himself a candidate or to come out forthrightly nd support one of the committed candidates. Indecision is hardly an admirable attribute in a Secretary f States.

Another interesting speculation is that Stevenson ay be named as U.S. delegate to the United Nations, ling the post held until recently by Henry Cabot odge, whom Kennedy defeated when he first ran for e Senate and whom the Republican vice-presidential andidate, Stevenson's urbanity, his talent for making riends and his broad-minded ability to see the other man's viewpoint might here find a most useful field of ork.

The chief change in the State Department, though almost certain to be the final elimination of the ulles approach. There were many members of the anner in which Christian Herter had modified the ate Department atmosphere—but when one remem- rs Eisenhower's complete and oft-expressed confidence n Herter it is ideas it must surely be self-evident hat Dulles' influence would linger on as long as Eisenower remained president, regardless of who was ecretary of State.

Aside from foreign affairs, the most interesting eld of speculation lies in economic policies. It has een freely predicted that Kennedy will re-introduce a liberate policy of deficit-financing—certainly large eficits are almost certain to be incurred if he attempts o fulfill all his campaign promises. At a time when e possibility of a recession is worrying business leaders the U.S., deficit-financing would be in line with ertain theories of economics. It is interesting to note, however, that Kennedy himself obtained forsight in economics and that some of this was acquired at the London School of Economics, under the te Prof. Harold Laski, the British Labor Party's onomic Moses. Kennedy will certainly not endeavor least the U.S. to any socialistic promised land—but e cannot help but wonder whether what he learned om Laski may have some effect on his economic inking.

Miracles of the Universe Inside a Star Itself

By HON. ROBERT W. MACAULAY
Ontario Minister of Energy Resources

ARTICLE I

There are thought to be approximately 100,000,000,000,000,000 stars in the universe.

Some are as small as the Earth, some are the size of the Sun, and one at least is so vast that it is nearly three billion times larger than the Sun.

All stars are not the same size. Some are young (a few million years old), some are middle-aged (a few billion years old) and some are old, (many billions of years old.)

Some stars may have burned out and now are floating like dead-heads in the cold void of space of the universe; some stars have exploded and their remnants are all that is left in the sky; some stars are presently burning.

Stars being born are born from vast clouds of cold hydrogen gas. By "cold" I mean very many times the size of the Sun, (billions of miles in diameter) and not the fiercy little fellow that appears in the sky in front of my light summer screen.

A vast cloud of cold hydrogen gas is huge and therefore has a gravitational force which pulls the outer edges of the cloud. As the cloud contracts it gets smaller, but the contraction or is compressed into a smaller and smaller ball.

All clouds which form stars, start out, basically composed of hydrogen gas. (The most simple atom in the universe).

The atom has a nucleus in the center and around this nucleus circels what are called electrons. The nucleus is made up of protons, planets circling around the sun. The electron has a negative electrical charge.

NUCLEAR ENERGY

The nucleus in the centre of the atom of hydrogen is composed of two parts. One part is called a neutron. (It has no charge in electrical charge). The other part is called a proton. (Protons have a positive electrical charge.)

The atom is then termed or, neutral —it has no charge because the proton's positive charge is negative balanced the part that is positive. The atom can gain or lose parts. The kind of parts it gains or loses will determine what happens to the atom.

This is the alteration and exchange of parts between atoms forms the basis of nuclear energy. The atoms will exchange parts and mix up their parts under certain conditions. When they do however, radiation or energy is given off.

There are about 90 different kinds of atoms on Earth and probably a thousand kinds of the stars also.

But this background which has been more fully discussed in earlier articles, we are ready to watch in some detail how star develops and gives off energy, light, heat, ultra-violet rays, radio waves, X-rays and gamma rays.

As the basic hydrogen cloud contracts it of course gets smaller, but it also gets much hotter. It also starts to swirl and this swirling motion, plus the attraction and current of gas, as it contracts, causes it

EXCITEMENT NEEDED

For an atom to produce a nuclear explosion, it must first become excited. To become excited it must absorb energy to get started. This energy comes from the heat of the contracting cloud.

No nuclear reaction takes place under 1,000,000 degrees heat. By this time a cloud has heated up to 1,000,000 degrees by gravitational contraction the stage is set for the hydrogen atoms to start dancing in excitement. (Not from marijuana!) because 1,000,000 degrees is not very hot (by astronomical standards) some scientists say that 1,000,000 degrees is not nearly hot enough). But the majority of many scientists think that 1,000,000 degrees is hot enough and I'm inclined to agree).

After this the temperature reaches 1,000,000 degrees the atoms in the core of our young star have thrown off all their circling electrons. The electrons move free of the nuclei—the nuclei are "stripped". When this happens, the result is called Plasma. No electrons circling

St. Michael's Academy Holds Graduation Exercises

"To lead a child to a realization of his own greatness is a difficult and delicate task. Yet, according to modern educational psychology, this is a major aim of education and educators at the present time."

So stated Reverend J. J. Buckley, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Belleville, in his address on the occasion of Commencement Exercises held at St. Michael's Academy, on Nov. 1.

"Modern trends in education aim to develop in the student the ability to take responsibility. Each individual has a contribution to make to the world. No one can make it for him. He must learn to judge his actions by the measure of his own potential, not by comparison with that of others.

"Leadership presupposes these qualities: the individual must have confidence in himself; he must be able to think independently, and he must be able to act decisively.

TOO MUCH INDEPENDENCE

"One pitfall to be avoided is an excessive spirit of independence which leads youth to despise the experience of adults, and consequently to disobedience, and to rebellion against authority.

"Parents and teachers have an obligation to assist children and youth to mature. The individual must learn to accept his own responsibility before God and man; otherwise arrested development of character and of will power is lacking.

"Psychology and Christianity agree. The developing individual must have a sense of esteem for himself; he must have confidence in his own powers; he must exercise those powers. But all this must be done within the framework of humility which shows him his limitations and thus recognizes his bounds.

"Modern psychology, purified by Christian principles, does hold the solution for many of the problems shared today by parents, teachers and students."

Mr. Joseph Doyle, president of the Alumni Association, then announced that in view of the program which had been inaugurated, regular business proceedings of the association for the evening would be postponed until the December meeting.

Dennis McAuley, a senior student took over the duties of chairman for the program, after stating that it was appropriate to hold the Commencement Exercises during Education Week, as he expressed gratitude to all who had contributed in any way to the progress and success of the academy.

Angus McFee introduced the guest speaker, Mr. J. J. Buckley, who was thanked by Michael Lacey.

Choral selections by the school choir included a hymn in honor of St. Michael, "Onward Royal Knight"; the old favorite song, "Shenandoah". Waye and Mac singers were under the direction of Reverend Sister Mary Joan of Arc and accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Bernard Turcotte.

Charlotte Will Likely Throw Hat Into Ring

OTTAWA (CP) — Charlotte Whitton, only woman to reign as mayor in the history of Canada's capital, is expected to announce today that she will run again this year for the office she held from 1951 to 1956.

Miss Whitton said earlier she would only contest the mayoralty if she was assured of support from men as well as women.

Members of a "draft Whitton" committee said they understand Miss Whitton now is satisfied she will receive support from a broad segment of the public and that they are confident she will accept nomination.

Her entry would increase the number of mayoralty candidates to four with a civic controller, Paul Tardif, a strong possibility.

WRITES COLUMN

In her three years out of public office, Miss Whitton has been her finger on the Ottawa political pulse with pithy comments in a column in the Ottawa Citizen.

Five other women also are seeking civic office in the December elections—largest number in municipal history. They are Aldermen Cecile O'Regan, seeking re-election; Mrs. Gertrude Douglas, Mrs. Dorothy Flaherty and Mrs. Margaret Hamilton, candidates for aldermen, and Mrs. Eva Berry, seeking a seat on the public school board.

TOUGH COOKIES

WILLENHALL, England (CP) — Members of a Staffordshire girls' netball league have been warned by the league secretary that they will be sent off if they are heard swearing during a match. He said some of their language would shock dockers and miners.

Club Activities

The regular meeting of the Energetic Club was followed by St. United Church was held in the evening of November 4 at Merv and Eileen Bowers and Gary Wilson were in charge of the evening.

Taking part in the devotional by were, Eileen Bowers, Thelma and Fran.k Wilson.

The business portion followed with two couples welcomed to the club.

Plans for attending Tabernacle Church Tri-M Group; the fall ally at Picton and the Christmas party were discussed and decided upon.

Following the business, the group retired to the Sunday School rooms for a lively and original game of musical chairs, and the panel show, "I've Got A Secret." Refreshments were served by the group in charge. Carl Wannamaker thanked the group for the fine evening.

GIRLS' GUITE CLUB

The 5th meeting of the Quinte Woollen Wonders" was held at the home of Linda Jones, on November 7th.

The meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Lazariuk on November 23rd.

Discussion included, taking part in sponging and spot removing; pressing; seams; darts and facings. After home assignments were given, refreshments were served.

BLOCK TRAFFIC

MONTREAL (CP) — Twenty mobilers accompanied by their pre-school-aged children blocked traffic for an hour Friday at an intersection here, while a seven-year-old boy was killed Thursday by a police car. The mobilers said they will continue the blockade until more protection is provided for children who have cross the intersection to get to schools.

Charming, Talented Young Matron Crowned 'Mrs. Ontario'

MRS MARY MILLS

Mrs. Ontario is a pretty, charming and talented mother of three young children. Her husband is an RCAF CF-100 crew member, stationed at North Bay.

But she's well known in Belleville.

Mrs. Ontario is Mrs. Mary Mills, wife of Flt. Lt. Keith Mills and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bongard, 75 North Park St.

Mrs. Mills was crowned Mrs. Ontario at Toronto on Thursday and next week she will compete with nine other women in a Mrs. Canada contest sponsored by an Ontario chain store which is moving into Canada.

Mrs. Mills was in Belleville yesterday visiting her parents. She returned to North Bay today.

A 1953 graduate of Belleville General Hospital's School of Nursing, Mrs. Mills finds time to run a fine nursery school in her home at North Bay. Her ten pupils arrive roses to her when they learned she had been named Mrs. Ontario. She said she intends to keep the school so that her son, Christopher, 4½, could have some companions while other children in the neighborhood were away at kindergarten. Also at home is daughter Lynne, eight years and another son, John, four months.

In addition to operating the nursery school, Mrs. Mills manages to keep up with her routine chores around the house and she finds time to be a member of the Galeway Theatre Guild and to play a hand of bridge now and again. She will be a dancer in the Theatre Guild's production of the "Mother Goose" pantomime in February.

College Hill Afternoon W.A. Holds Successful Tea, Bazaar

On Wednesday afternoon the annual bazaar and tea of the College Hill United Church, sponsored by the afternoon group of the W. A.

The Sunday School room was attractively decorated with bunting and white streamers, Chinese lanterns, with bouquets of 'mums highlighting the scene.

Receiving the guests were the president, Mrs. R. Bowers, and Mrs. G. Hoult, with Mrs. J. Ritz at the reception table.

Mrs. G. Hoult, wife of the minister, gave a gracious welcome to the visitors and declared the bazaar open.

Those looking after the various tables were: Mrs. Sharp's daisies and blue 'mums, in a blue shaped container, flanked by tall blue and white candles.

Presiding at the tea services during the afternoon were: Mrs. Arthur Perrett, Mrs. J. Brown, Mrs. K. Smith, and Mrs. G. Hoult.

Those who served were: Mrs. K. Belcour, Mrs. G. Jenkinson, Mrs. R. McDonald and Mrs. A. Wickens.

Those replenishing the plates were: Mrs. L. Brown, Mrs. R. Neal, Mrs. C. Sine, and Mrs. M. Montgomery.

Mrs. F. Walker prepared the delicious cups of tea.

Many thanks are extended to those who helped in any way to make the afternoon so enjoyable and successful.

Tenderize Beef On the Hoof Soon Possible

VANCOUVER (CP)—Tenderizing beef on the hoof may soon enable housewives to buy stewing beef as tender as today's sirloin.

Packing companies in the province working for years on the process have developed techniques with results in certain United States areas. With approval of the Canadian government, test marketing of the Toronto district will begin soon.

The process involves injecting the living animal shortly before slaughter with a minute quantity of the enzyme papain, derived from the papaya tree.

It circulates through the blood stream and remains in the meat when it is cooked, breaking down the otherwise tough tissues.

Cheaper cuts such as round steak or pot roast will be as tender as present sirloins or rump roast. And higher-priced cuts will be still more tender than before.

Costs raise the price ten cents a pound in the United States, but retailers there believe that they did not have to pass on this increase to the consumer due to the fact that this type of meat does not have to be aged and suffer weight loss by drying out.

Women's Activities

The regular meeting of the Women's Guild of Holy Trinity Church, Shannonville, was held on November 10th at Mrs. B. Houston's, with 15 members responding to the roll call.

The president, Mrs. S. Fitzgerald, welcomed the members and visitors, Mrs. A. McKenzie, in charge of the devotional, had a reading on "Remembrance Day," followed by the Psalm for the day being said alternatively.

The flower fund was responded to with the members saying a verse from the Bible.

The treasurer gave her report for the month and some summer folders were handed in.

The next meeting to be held at Mrs. G. Sager's on November 24th with Mrs. A. McBride for program and Mrs. A. Long convening the devotional.

The church calendars have arrived and any one wishing to purchase please get in contact with Mrs. S. Fitzgerald or Mrs. T. Whittle.

Plans for the turkey supper to be held at Mrs. A. McKenzie's on November 22nd were completed with lists being handed out to the members.

Mrs. B. Houston is to see to the purchasing of the turkey.

Mrs. S. Fitzgerald closed the meeting.

Mrs. Houston assisted by Mrs. Cook served lunch and a social hour was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. A. Long thanked the hostess for her hospitality.

Remembrance Day Marked at St. Michael's

Held in compliance with the wishes of the Minister of Education and in a spirit of solemn meditation and quiet gratitude, the Remembrance Day Program at St. Michael's Academy, paid tribute to the men and women who gave their lives in the service of their country.

Over 100 older boys and girls assembled in the auditorium, felt a deeper understanding and appreciation of their own lives and joined in choral numbers, listened attentively to student speakers, or stood in silent remembrance.

Flight Lieutenant J. R. Perrier, chaplain at Trenton, was the guest speaker. John Halloran was chairman for the program.

Contrary Winds

By ALMA MASON

It is eventually much more rewarding to attempt to please God than to try to placate and satisfy one's fellow humans.

Allowing others to make decisions for us; acting upon the advice of this person and that person usually leads to a sign post emblazoned with the word "danger".

There is a familiar, yet interesting story told of an old man, a child and a donkey. It does something like this:

An elderly grandfather guided a donkey with his little grandson astride its back along a road which led through a small town.

He heard bystanders remark to a companion, "Look at that lazy boy riding serenely along as his poor old grandfather walks".

The grandfather lifted the boy from the donkey and took his place on the animal's back. As the trio passed another group of villagers, one said, "How disgraceful that wicked man is taking his ease on the donkey and compelling that little child to walk".

The old man then lifted the boy to the back of the donkey. Soon he heard a man exclaim, "What a shame! Poor little mite is not even allowed to ride on the donkey instead of leading it!"

So many of us are like the old man: blown hither and yon by public opinion; attempting to please the edict of our fellowmen and heedless of the commands of God.

Life is beset with contrary winds of unwise advice; of varying degrees of wavering and confusing counsel.

We cannot please man and God. By attempting to do so we become lost in a labyrinth of indecision and hopelessly lost at the end of the road a jumbled bottled of human failure.

SETS SIGHTS

All the great souls who have contributed to spiritual betterment and world progress have set their determined eyes on a distant star and followed it with an inflexible stubbornness born of deep spiritual as well as mental consecration. They did not turn and swim with every vagrant and whimsical tide but fought the rapids bravely and surely; fortified and protected by the strong arms of the Christian faith.

The scathing of the crowd; the untimely and wayward advice of those will never deter or swerve a faithful and loyal traveller on the path he knows he must climb to redeem his soul.

When one is in a holocaust of trouble; in a dark tunnel of despair; in a land and sea of denial of defeat, human hands and hearts can afford aid and succor, but only God's hand can safely and surely direct bleeding feet and provide wings to fly with the sunshine of a brighter day and of hope renewed.

So often the approbation of man looms as intense and significant to us that we cease to practise godly principals and forget that only God can truly safeguard us as we scale the wall of earthly existence. So often we forget that God is always waiting to refurnish the heart and soul with divine counsel and direction.

History concerning great men God-directed men, has never been confined to public service or public opinion. It has always stemmed from incidents which have stolen spiritual sanctuary at the Throne or Grace; seedlings which have blossomed and produced resulting spiritual activity and growth.

Man-made laws protect us to a certain degree, but God, through Moses, gave us a set of laws which permit us to walk safely and surely. The Ten Commandments point the finger of God exquisitely through earthly life and brilliantly light a high road to eternal life.

SHINING GOAL

Before we are swayed by human advice and criticism, let us first consult our Maker and His laws. God should be our founding stone; our norm point of departure; our true and unending source of comfort and inspiration upon which to endlessly draw; our certain and triumphant shining goal!

Let me seek of Thy hand
And strive with clarity and mastery of soul
To rise above human demand
And reach a goal
Ordained by Thee.
Nor stained with man's perplexity
And wayward bonds of doubt;
May I gaze through the human hordes afar
And find in purple midnight skies
Thy guiding star.

HOME AWAY FROM HOME

(For Tired Travellers)

"There was the Door to which I find no key."—From the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam.

How fascinating are old traditions!

We heard of an extremely ancient one, many centuries old, the other day, about the key of a hotel. On the day the hotel's guests are leaving, the key is thrown away in a traditional inkeeping ceremony.

From henceforth the hotel or inn becomes a place of genuine comfort from dawn unto dawn without ceasing. Early hotel keeping, we learn, started around 500 B.C., when the inns were made a more pleasant walls close to a watering place.

The name roofs and rooms, beds, meals and charges. So tourism was born. Not only did business flourish, but communities became rooted around them and big business was good. As people sought the wonders beyond their horizon and the lands beyond, inns and taverns multiplied. In 1607, the Jamestown Inn in Virginia was founded. The saga of our early hotels runs parallel to our own family history.

Taverns and inns became the gathering place for relaxation and respite after working hours. Many a deal was made in their hall and sometimes, the champion church assembly. They are an essential part of life and by 1656 a New England state made it explicit that every town have to maintain a tavern or be fined. Many operating on condition that the inn be built near the meeting house, as a convenience for churchgoers who might warm themselves by the open fires after attending the Sunday morning sermon. Afternoon and evening services (churches were not heated) could warm themselves again with food and drink added.

In fact, strict rules governed the taverns and inns. One innkeeper slipping had all privileges withdrawn, including religious services, both morning and evening. In those early days, the innkeeper was unheard of, and standards were maintained by the town fathers. Many kept the following public notices: "No boots to be worn in bed."

EARLY TO BED

All good people were to be in bed by the ringing early hour. And servants were not permitted to tarry in the public rooms after the "Demon rum".

A guest could remain at both or a fine paid extra for it. The fire was kindled in a fire-place or stove, by the host. Every guest rolled hot water up from the kitchen and poured it into a wooden tub.

These inns and taverns were all run by a "host" or innkeeper and his wife usually acted as cook. Each was responsible. It is with real interest to learn that Mr. Alistair Cooke, in "Letter From America" in his "Letters to History" that Margaret Simpson and her husband, Sergeant Major Simpson, are attempting to keep "the little settlement" that was Belleville, alive. She says of the early inn "at what is now the southerly side of Dundas Street, between what is now Front and Pinnacle streets". This place, he tells us, became a social and business centre of the little settlement. In 1810, the well-known pioneer Capt. John W. Meyers gathered together those persons destined to become the first Masonic Lodge in this part of the province and the first Masonic Lodge was held in this tavern. Sad to relate, the warden of the lodge was burned when the Simpson Tavern was destroyed by fire in the early part of 1812.

Throughout North America a surprising number of old inns are still in operation today. The John Hancock House in Hancock, N.H., has opened its doors to travellers for a century and tourists since 1790. The most famous, probably, is the Wayside Inn, made famous by Longfellow as a country inn at Sudbury, Massachusetts. Lexington and other notable New Englanders are buried in cemeteries.

While much glamor now surrounds new hotels and motor hotels, for many people, the small inns are coming into their own again. Like the Auberge in the Alpine Inn of Quebec. Weary from folk seek a charm in the quiet beauty of the country inn not found elsewhere.

Bellevignette: Many people like to be pleased to know a sketch of the old Simpson Tavern is printed on page 14 of Mr. Cooke's history. We have also been informed with much pleasure that Mandy Macdonald made a colored etching of the Simpson Tavern. It is owned by Miss Helen Hawley, 113 Moira Street West of this city.

MARSH HILL W.M.S.

MARSH HILL — The November meeting of Marsh Hill W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Berson Mills with 11 members present.

The president, Mrs. Farley Lindenfield, opened the meeting with a reading, "The Garden of Eternal Promise." Mrs. Bert Cook read the minutes, the secretary, read "Stewardship of Investments." Mrs. E. B. Fluhr led in reading on temperance. The members reported sending 18 cards and one letter and mailing four house calls.

Mrs. H. Dettor, Mrs. F. Carmichael and Mrs. H. Mills were appointed to be a nominating committee.

DEVOTIONAL

Mrs. Berson Mills conducted the worship service and read, "Then Is No Death." Mrs. Farley Lindenfield read the Scripture. Mrs. Mills led "Dear Christ Live Here!" Mrs. David Hollinger read "Thou Shalt Love the Lord with All Thy Mind." Mrs. Harold Dettor gave a reading, "Piece of Writing," after which Mrs. E. B. Flakie read the chapter from the study book, "Africa." Mrs. Frank Cook and Mrs. Walter Lindenfield read, "A Dirge."

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

"Little Helpers" Hold Annual Service

The annual service for the "Little Helpers" of Christ Church was conducted by Archdeacon C. R. Creggan on Wednesday at 3.30 p.m.

The highlight of the service was the offering by each of the Little Helpers of his pennies saved over the year for the mission work of the church. This was presented at the altar by six of the children, all of the children in the church having been baptized and members of the Little Helpers until they are five years old.

After the service, the children and their parents were entertained at a party by members of the Woman's Auxiliary.

Going Places

Portugal Still Offers Tourist Unspoiled View of Bygone Era

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

Possibly no place comes closer to fulfilling the tourist's classic image of romantic, picturesque Europe than the Portuguese countryside. Something like France or Italy must have been before the Renaults and Fiats started moving there.

The roads are still piled by grizzled farmers in stocking caps and leather leggings driving mule-drawn carts of hay; straw; and of course, wooden casks of wine. Old women, swathed in black shawls or sleek, fat ladies mourning cowboy, stride these ranest of rare liberian animals, horses, their tiny pants and flat black derbies are familiar, but contrasting strangely with their copper — or wood-sheathed stirrups.

Pumpkin and squash ripen on the roofs and walls of crumbling adobe farmhouses in valleys reminiscent of Mexico. Mostly in the streams and ponds there is to dry on bristly fields. Like-like windmills with cloth blades are similarly in use. Everywhere there is a cork tree that "blush" crimson when they are stripped. The variety is endless and incredible.

Deep in the heart of the country, the giant fern forest of Bucaco a fairy tale place where the fronds grown eight feet out of a clearing, whimsical with tiny concrete work and sweeping tile murals..

It is no longer a summer retreat only but a hotel called, appropriately, the Palace. In the lobby hall's chairs in Indian mahogany intricately carved in patterns of extreme gaudy delicacy. Heroic tapestries hang on the walls of its 310-a-bed bedrooms. There are the gardens of hedgerows and mazes and beyond, in the cellar the king's dirt wine still ages for a clientele that lives royally in a decor created for royalty.

DATES FAR BACK

There is Nazare, a great crescent of beach where a colony of fishing village that dates to Phoenician times. To prove it there are fancifully arched and decorated houses of wattle and daub, its pantaleon and snakey-skirted maidens of the traditional costume.

They still stare at tourists with the curiosity of a child. Lisbon stare at them, but you'd better hurry up! The post card vendors are already at work moving over.

The ancient university town of Coimbra, with its twelfth century cathedral and its Lisbon baroque library where all reading must be done in windows-less cells, is typically Latin. Of Portugal as the Portuguese like to think they represent it. It is to Lisbon what Tahiti is to Hawaii — the real thing.

You can hear "fado" singing — the plaintive, melodious blues of Portugal — in Lisbon night clubs that are quickly discovered by Ed Sullivan. But only in Coimbra are you likely to plumb the depths to which fado sinks the Portuguese soul.

The Portuguese soul is notably sad and sentimental. A Portuguese will not casually hum a happy melody for you; he must be, in the mood. He must have the background of at least three ill-tuned Portuguese guitars and he wouldn't dream of singing fado without a big, tear-lop-eared cape wrapped dramatically about his shoulders, his face rolling and his purple heart-ed by a vicariously unrequited love.

Into this soul are woven obscure Moorish, Arabic, Moorish, Phoenician, Lusitanian and Roman bloods. The exploration of it by a two-century-old Western culture seems most unfitting.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems: major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Mrs. C. R. — I tell him to keep it a secret. People are cruel.

Frank R. — I don't want to have to worry that it will come out.

Mrs. C. R. — Our son had a nervous breakdown in his first year of college. After some emergency treatment at the campus clinic, he was sent home.

Fortunately the sympathy was forthcoming. Fortunately, the psychotherapy.

But who worked with him was able to help to the root of the trouble. It was his terrific anxiety to make good. Anyway, Frank took extension courses near home for a while, and then he was able to sign up at a local college as a sophomore. Last year he was a brilliant student as a junior, and also held a part-time job. To our great joy he is now a straight A student in his study law.

Undoubtedly there's the problem of what to write on application blanks. People rave about previous illness, or being treated by a psychiatrist, but you don't have to.

I know a man who's been lying about his job on his applications, for years. He advises us to do the same.

Frank R. — I know my mother's trying to help me avoid the stigma that still clings to psychotherapy. There are so many reasons for coming right out with the truth.

First of all, I'll never know when someone who knew me here at the college will spill the beans. Why should I have to live in dread of being "found out" when all I am planning is to be ashamed of, nothing to conceal?

That's another reason for telling the truth. I am now living example of an ex-mental patient, someone who was helped by psychiatry, and is doing well in his feet. It may help people understand some mental illness less if I can tell them about myself.

And it seems the fair thing to do, too, when you apply to a university or ask for a job. People like to know what they're dealing with.

I know I'll never feel serious about a young lady, I'll tell her all about myself. I'd certainly expect her to do the same.

I'm ready to take my chances with the truth.

Up to now, though, I'll admit I've kept mum.

The Council: Frank admits he hasn't put his brave resolve to the test. Unfortunately, he will have to. The negative attitudes are often anticipated where mental illness is concerned. Even as Mr. R. senses, stigma has not been erased in many fields.

Where the true nature of mental illness is understood, that is, where doctors, psychologists and social workers, there is no stigma. To these it is the clear and clear cut problem, not unlike heart disease or a waterworks explosion. It is possible to anyone whose capacity for adjustment has been impaired.

But on other levels, over the lunch pail or around the water cooler, the cliches may prevail. It may be the better part of valor for Frank to be discreet.

From the facts there. It seems Frank was overwrought, that he was emotionally ill, disabled by blocks. These were removed by the patient probing of psychotherapy.

His best is to answer legal, confidential forms honestly. A lawyer's friend suggests, for example, inquires about treatment. Frank's therapist should give him a clean bill of health. As follow-up, and that would be wise, Frank and his wife should be informed as to possible situations. Then they will be able to help all to one's fellowmembers. Similarly, in social situations, information should serve no good purpose.

Until our society sees mental illness as just another illness Frank's problem remains. Frank should divulge his own experience only when it is constructively relevant.

MODERN MANNERS

TOO MUCH COMMERCIALIZATION?

A trend has been growing for several years that I dislike deplorable. It is the over-commercializing of the days that we set aside for special observance. Take, for example, Mothers' Day and Fathers' Day. Both are advertising that hound us to buy this or buy that are so pitched that it is difficult to remember that the celebrations are lost entirely.

Mother's Day comes to a close with a vengeance the other day when I saw a booklet extolling the virtues of a certain product that commemorate the celebration of Mother's Day. The real thing.

To digress for a moment. For more than a century it has been the custom in Great Britain that things were symbolic, to be given as gifts when celebrating certain years of wedded bliss. These are very severe:

One year — Paper; Five years — Wood; Ten years — Tin; Fifteen years — Crystal; Twenty-five years — Silver; Fifty years — Gold; Seventy-five years — Diamond.

Until comparatively recently these were the only years that were definitely recognized. Gifts for the intervening years and for anniversaries that occurred in between, but no definite things were assigned to them.

Unfortunately, this is not so today. Anniversary gifts, most of which I speak, there are now numerous lists from which a special gift should be given to celebrate a given wedding anniversary. Everything from clocks to imitation jewelry is suggested.

Can't you see the following pictured? Mr. Big-wallet arrives at the breakfast-table, and greets his wife as follows: "Good morning, dear. Happy seventh Anniversary! Here's a lovely pen that I brought you to commemorate the day." Romantic, to say the least.

There is a new booklet in the selection of the first-mentioned weight, and each is a symbol (those will go into a future column), but what could be better than the real thing. I have been added except a commercial idea?

Many stores, naturally, think I am completely wrong in my opinion. Since there are no definite rulings to abide by, it is up to you whether or not you wish to follow the trend they are setting. If you do, I can only suggest that you make a gift to your community for the "latest" ideas. They add new ones every day.

Readers' Saturday Dinner

As conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . Now I would like some help with red cabbage. Can you suggest any ways to serve it as a vegetable or pickle? . . . C. W.

ANSWER:

PICKLED RED CABBAGE:

8 cups chopped red cabbage, 2 cups chopped white onions, 2 cups chopped green peppers, 1 cup salt, 1 tablespoon celery seed, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 dozen whole cloves, 2½ cups white wine vinegar.

Chop onions, cabbage and peppers before measuring. Sprinkle lightly with salt,— about 1-2 cup and let stand overnight. Drain well and add remaining ingredients. Seal in sterile jars without cooking.

EUROPEAN RED CABBAGE:

1 3-pound red cabbage, green apples, chopped and chopped, 1 onion, finely chopped, 1-4 cup sugar, 1-4 cup vinegar, 2 tablespoons bacon fat, 1 teaspoon salt, freshly ground black pepper.

Shred cabbage. Put in saucepan with apples, onion, sugar, vinegar, bacon fat, salt and pepper and 1-2 cup water. Bring to boil; reduce heat, cover and simmer for 1 hour, stirring occasionally. Serves 6.

Combine beef, pork, bread crumbs, nutmeg, Worcestershire sauce, salt, and pepper and shape into small balls, 1" in diameter. Melt shortening and brown balls. Reduce heat and add pepper soup, water and salt. Cover, simmer 30 minutes.

CHICKEN AND DUMPLINGS:

4 cups chicken stock, 1 cup sliced carrots, 1-3 cup diced celery, 1 tablespoon flour, 2 cups diced cooked chicken, 1 20-oz. can peas, 1 small can mushroom pieces, 1-4 teaspoon pepper.

DUMPLINGS:

1 cup flour, 1 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 egg beaten, 1-3 cup milk, 2 tablespoons melted shortening or salad oil.

Pour 2 cups stock (may be made from bouillon cubes) into skillet. Add carrots and celery and cook until just tender. Blend flour with 1-4 cup of remaining stock. For dumplings, sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Combine egg, milk and oil and add to dry ingredients to make soft dough. Reduce heat. Drop dumplings from tablespoon onto chicken mixture. Cover and cook 15 minutes without lifting the cover. If you would like me to send you my Thanksgiving electric range-cooker cookbook, let me know and I will get another for myself.

Dinner Menus

Wife Preserver

Food particles from badly soiled dishes are removed more thoroughly if you run the utensils under the water in the dishpan when you wash them.

SATURDAY

Meat Balls Baked in Tomato Sauce; Jacket Baked Potatoes; Buttered Green Beans; Pepper; Celery-Apple Salad; Pie-a-la-mode; Pie with Cheddar Cheese; Tea.

QUESTION:

Having just received an Automatic Electric cooker and fryer, would appreciate any information you could give me on its use. The booklet that came with it is just on deep frying and I am wondering if it can be used for baking cakes, pies, cookies, etc., and the method of doing so. . . . P.G.

ANSWER:

I have an automatic electric skillet which I prefer to my deep standard electric frying-pan and is called a "cooker" too. In it you may deep fry, fry, panbroil, bruise, bake, stew and make casseroles. I am also finding you examples of how to use it for a casserole. It may be served at table from the skillet) and a chicken with dumplings dish.

MEAT HALL CASSEROLE:

1 pound ground beef, 1-2 pound ground pork, 1 1-2 slices soft bread, crumbled, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons shortening, 2 flours, 1 cup fresh or frozen, 1 cup cream of mushroom soup, undiluted, 1 cup tomato juice, 1 teaspoon salt.

Cultured Canadians Are Far Too Serious Says Author

By JUDITH AYRE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The trouble with cultured Canadians is that they are too serious.

"Each book they read seems to be a solemn responsibility, and too seldom is just good fun," says Canadian author Mordecai Richler.

He is one of 19 overseas contributors to a book called Alienation, published in London. In the book, each writer tries to explain what Britain has to offer him and why he left his own country.

The scarcity of good writers in Canada, Richler feels, can be looked at two ways.

A promising novelist, for instance, is in danger of being overpraised, and might stop trying to improve. This same scarcity can be an advantage, since new writers do not have their work studied in the light of literary giants before them.

"In most parts of Canada only Mazo de la Roche and blizzards have been there before you."

CANADIANS LIKED

Richler, formerly of Montreal, has lived in Britain for several years. He finds it advantageous to be a foreigner. "Americans may be liked, Canadians . . . are well liked."

He has lived in Britain not because it is the thing to do, or because it is good for him, but simply because he likes it here. He recognizes the danger of assimilating too long. "What I write and care about is Canada and to stay too long is to become a foreigner there as well as here."

Murray Sayle, in his study, gives an excellent picture of the conditions and mental attitudes of his country, Australia.

His desire to study home was prompted by many things, including "current nationalism," the conscious efforts at culture and the "Australian emptiness."

SOME DISILLUSIONS

He looked for signs of the foundations which Britain had communicated to Australia, and found that the roots of his country were in the Britain of two centuries ago.

"The fundamental distinction is that our society is economic, closely related to productive function; whereas Britain's economy is still irritatingly every social, a power structure imposed on the economy by the fossilized hang-over of a past economic order."

Sayle and other Commonwealth writers, such as Doris Lessing from Southern Rhodesia, Patrick Wilson from New Zealand and Dan Jacobson of South Africa, all remembered the impression they got of Britain from books.

Such terms as stream, village, downs and castle typified, to them, England. But none of them came to England in search of this heritage alone — although many do, and return home disillusioned.

Wilson, for instance, felt he had exhausted the variety of New Zealand and came to the source of his country's borrowed history.

FEELS UNWANTED

Merrill Ferguson of The West ladies described the matriarchal society of the country and how Britain seemed to epitomize the maternal security that the average West Indian seeks. But "the idea that he is not wanted in England has fit a fly through through to the man in the Caribbean. Walsh is a pity, because England, at her highest level, is perhaps one of the finest countries the world has seen. But the man-in-the-street doesn't care for such a reputation and the West Indian no longer knows."

J. P. Donleavy, an American, writes of the peace in Eire and and the desperation of the society he left. He misses the chaos of seasons and "how death can come from anywhere."

Irish socialist Brian Behan left his country of exile to write. His essay is entitled Never Trust the Rich.

Victor Anant, in a chapter entitled The Three Faces of an Indian, described the cultural ills of his country and its effects on his growth and development.

Abioseh Nicol, a West African who studied at Cambridge, found on every social plane "warmth and nobility of character" in the British people.

Melrose

MELROSE — Mr. and Mrs. Elliot Embury attended the funeral of the latter's uncle, W. E. Mitchell of Campbellford, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Milligan visited the latter's sister, Mrs. Walter Sedgley, in Campbellford.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Osborne and Mrs. Stanley MacDonald, of Shannonville, spent Tuesday in Kingston, guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dymock.

Recent Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Clarke were Mr. and Mrs. Embury and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Milligan.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur English and Mr. and Mrs. Jack English attended the Buckle-Fox wedding in Consecon, Mr. and Mrs. Fred English of Beamsville, also wedding guests, spent the weekend here with relatives.

Local teachers attended the O.T.F.A.O. meeting in Selby Church on the evening of November 3rd. Mrs. Ross of Ottawa, guest speaker for the occasion, was dinner guest at Loreen's her home and accompanied her to the meeting. Mrs. Ross had lived five months the last year in Pakistan. Her address was of interest in connection with pictures of her stay in that country as well as views seen on her return home. Mrs. Ross's husband, who is at present employed in Pakistan, expects his wife to rejoin him later this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Allison spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. A. English, who were celebrating their wedding anniversary. Miss Margaret English of Peterborough was home for the weekend. Miss Ruth Harris of Belleville was also a guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Allison of Montreal, recently spent a couple of days with Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Osborne.

We regret to report the illness of Mr. Newton Demille and hope for a speedy recovery.

Little Phillip Badgley is recovering nicely from a severe injury received when he fell off a machine his father was operating.

Last Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Embury were members of the family from Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Tinney of Campbellford and Mrs. Ed. Lanier.

Mrs. Russell Macfarlane was hostess to the ladies of the Melrose W.M.S. for the month of November.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jeffrey recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. E. Embury to tea.

The sympathy of this community is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Hall, bereaved by the sudden passing of the former's mother. Several families attended the funeral on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Stevasson and family of Oshawa visited on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John English.

A number from Melrose attended the euchre, sponsored by the Scout Auxiliary, in Shannonville school on Saturday evening.

Some members of the W.M.S. attended the W.M.S. bazaar, in Carrollton, on Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer and Bobbie of Wellington, and family of Toronto, spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cook and family.

Mrs. Grant McFarlane called on Mr. William Blatherwick at the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday and reports he is still seriously ill.

Mrs. Ruth Haight was released from the Belleville General Hospital late last week and has returned home quite well.

SAYS 'JOBS FOR ALL'

MELBOURNE (CP) — Prime Minister Robert Menzies said Friday Australia has taken in 1,500,000 immigrants since 1940 and had found employment "for every one of them." In that period foreign capital being invested in Australia has doubled to a yearly £700,000,000 ($450,000,000), he said.

Can Tell Eskimos by Smiles Says Head of Big Hospital In Northern Health Branch

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — The Eskimo convalescent leaning over the pool table wore a maroon dressing gown and a white cowboy hat. He clutched a vanilla ice cream cone in one hand and a cue in the other.

His opponent watched from a wheelchair.

"I hear he sleeps in the hat," said Dr. Matthew Mintz, pausing on a quick tour of Charles Camsell Hospital to take in the recreation room scene.

Dr. Mintz is superintendent of the hospital, biggest in the Indian and northern health services branch of the national health department. The branch will spend more than $20,000,000 this year to provide medical care for Canada's 179,000 Indians and 10,000 Eskimos.

"You can tell the Eskimos by their smiles," Dr. Mintz remarked as he moved down the halls lined with mobile patients of both races, stopping to look in on wards occupied by sick of all ages and with a variety of ailments.

Television and a frisky tot with a comic book contrasted with an old Eskimo woman whose face bore the traditional blue tattoo lines of a dying way of life.

SERVICES IMPROVED

Federal medical services for Canada's original citizens have rocketed ahead since 1957 when some physicians were appointed as part-time doctors to Indian bands, often being reimbursed from band funds.

The change shows in the fact that Indians — once threatened with extinction from such diseases as tuberculosis, dysentery and smallpox—now are the fastest-growing ethnic group in the country, increasing at a rate of about three per cent a year.

Incidence of TB among Indians and Eskimos remains fairly high, averaging about three per cent among Eskimos. But the mortality rate has been chopped sharply.

Fifteen Eskimos died of the disease in 1957, for example, while TB dropped to ninth place in 1958 as an Indian killer from second place in 1951.

Where 379.1 Indians per 100,000 died in 1946 compared with the over-all Canadian death rate of 47.4, the rate for Indians in years later was 33.9 per 100,000 compared with 8 for all Canadians.

MORE MONEY SPENT

The development of medical services that helped stem the tide of dwindling Indian population is relatively recent. Education for all Indian health in 1937 was about $870,000, roughly half what it costs to operate Charles Camsell hospital for a year now.

A superintendent of medical services for Indians was appointed in 1936 but the position lapsed. It was resumed in 1937 and the health department took over in 1945, with services being expanded in 1954 to the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

By last year, the health services branch had 21 hospitals providing 2,172 beds, 41 nursing stations in remote areas, 76 health centres, 27 clinics, more than 90 doctors and dentists, more than 400 registered nurses and numerous part-time physicians.

The continuing staff battle across the country is to get—and hold — enough trained doctors, nurses and other personnel.

Camsell became an Indian hospital in 1945, initially for 77. The ratio of patients today is about 5 to 2 in favor of the which reflects a shift in the pattern of illness and in patient care, food, housing and treatment.

The hospital, built in the early 1900s, is to be replaced by a new $6,000,000 institute for 600 beds with construction possibly starting this year.

Camsell draws patients from a huge funnel-shaped area taking in Alberta, the Yukon and the western part of the Northwest Territories, where most northerners live. Each spring, it mounts a mobile expedition designed to give a quick tonsilt-to-toes examination for Indians and Eskimos far into the Arctic, flying to remote outposts for xrays, inoculations and checks. Others are sent out by ship, boat and air elsewhere in the country.

Potting Bulbs for Indoor Blooms

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

As soon as the holidays are over we turn our thoughts to spring. To gain a fore-taste of the joyous color of spring flowers let's pot up some bulbs for indoor blooms.

Late in the season bulbs can often be had at reduced prices but be sure these are suitable for pot culture.

Narcissus are perhaps the easiest and most rewarding of the so-called hardy bulbs. (Hardy because they can winter over out doors). They will bloom in a jar of water or in a pan of pebbles or chicken grits (oystershell chips.) They will do much better in soil. The medium that bulbs are changed and will give you several graceful sprays of bloom. We prefer these to the single stem forcing type bulbs.

Tulips or the shorter stem varieties are best for pot use and if you still have a choice, Darwin, Cottage, Breeder and Parrot tulips are good. Hyacinth (lavender), Tea Rose (pale yellow), William (white) and Jenny (yellow) offer a variety in color. The last two named are fragrant.

In daffodils the smaller types are best for pot culture. Old-fashioned, and still a favorite, February Gold is one. So is Thalia, Golden Sceptre and Moonshine.

Many of the smaller bulbs are fine for a splash of color. They are seldom used but they will enjoy a pot of six or eight scillas, snow-drops, crocuses or grape hyacinths (muscari). These will last a surprisingly long time if kept in a cool place.

For potting you will need a layer of coarse material, broken pots, fine pebbles or clean coal. Cover the drainage hole with a piece of broken pot or a button. Fill half full with soil mixture. This can be a mixture of half good garden soil and half humus such as peat moss, rotted manure, leaf mould or sweet potting soil. Hyacinth bulbs should be left with half the bulb above soil. Other bulbs should be well covered. In setting them in the pot place them close but not touching. Fill with soil and firm down well. Set in a pan of tepid water and allow the water to soak up until surface of soil is damp.

Put the pots in a cold frame or in a box out doors. Fill in between the pots with peat moss. Leave in the winter drops to freezing cover with more leaves, a sheet of plastic and a mesh screen with boards or burlap. The point is to keep the pots cold, even frozen, but not to get out after six to eight weeks, according to kind and variety.

When roots and a little top growth have formed bring them in one at a time. Keep them in a cool basement or bedroom where the temperature is 40 to 50 degrees. Place in partial light. Keep soil moist but not soggy.

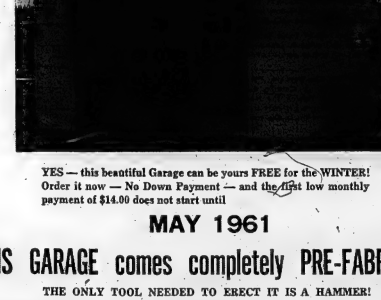
Keep away from heating pipes or radiators. Bulbs require more water as the blooms form and while in bloom but do not water when resting.

To prolong bloom remove to a room where temperature is 55 to 45 over night.

When bloom has faded allow the plants to dry out slowly while the foliage ripens in a cool environment. In the spring plant outdoors and the bulbs will recover and bloom the second year.

Distress Fund Of Law Society To Be Increased

TORONTO (CP) — The Upper Canada Law Society, facing claims which — if legitimate — could bankrupt its distress fund at $275,000, Thursday more than doubled the annual levy on each Ontario lawyer.



It was the second increase in the fee since the fund was set up in 1932 to repay clients for money misused by unscrupulous members of the legal profession.

The original fee was $10, increased to $20 last year. This year's levy is $45.

The $45 fee is in addition to the regular fees paid by each lawyer to the society. It goes solely to the fund, established on a voluntary basis in 1932 "to protect the reputation and welfare of the profession."

John J. Robinette, treasurer of the Upper Canada Law Society which is the governing body of Ontario's 5,000 lawyers, said the current part of the $20 assessment last year was paid in insurance premiums. Under the policy, the society paid the first $100,000 of claims against any one solicitor or firm.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"I was just thinking," the man said, "if it would not be a good idea to forget all about this OHA stuff and go back to the rollicking old days when hockey was a game and not a business, everybody had a good time and nobody made or lost a big package of money."

There was a bit of a twinkle on his eye but his mien was serious.

"From what I see, hear and read, I believe amateur hockey, especially the so-called senior brand, is headed for Boot Hill. I think that within the next two or three years senior hockey in Canada will be deader than a sixth-century dodo bird," the man said.

"We in eastern Ontario have had our fun. We in Belleville have had our extra for the sport and enjoyment we got out of senior "A" hockey. But the glory and the gold, the fanfare and fame are now a memory and we have got to come down to earth."

"Now that we've run the cycle it is only natural that we must start all over again, sadder a little perhaps, but a whole lot wiser. If the McFarlands fail to get hooked in the Interprovincial League, and the prospects, I understand, are not too bright, we may have to resurrect the old Trent Valley Hockey League."

He waited a second or so to allow a reminiscent smile ease itself off his face.

"Now, there was a league," he said softly. "There was a rip-roaring, rambunctious, sweat-backing collection of rough-and-ready puckaroos, who may not have lived as closely to the book of rules as they might, but assuredly had the world by the tail and wrung all the fun they could out of it."

"Then they got quarrelling among themselves. One manager accused another of skullduggery. The league broke up accidentally because it had become a surplus at times, and finally the lid blew off and the oldest hockey league in Ontario passed into history."

"Then we went into the senior "B" circle of things. That passed out very slowly while it lasted. There were no fat cheques awaiting players each weekend. But they had no complaints. Prices were reasonable. The hockey was good, with no high-priced imports and players were scarce usually finished well in the black."

"Gad, we used to run railway trains to Kingston in those days and sometimes well over 300 fans took the trip. A few of them didn't see the hockey game—but who cared. Everybody had a good time."

"Then it happened," the man went on. "We in the east couldn't stand prosperity. A dynamic, gab-gifted gentleman from Whitby who figured the senior "B" opposition in Western Ontario was not good enough for the eastern brand, got the idea he was the cat should enter senior 'A' hockey."

"Belleville hesitated and you opposed it in your sports column," the man said. "But finally we in Belleville decided to throw in our lot with the rest of the clubs and join the charmed senior 'A' circle.

"Brother, it was good while it lasted. As that Whitby man predicted, the east would produce an Allan Cup wheeler. It didn't, produced Belleville with a couple of world tournament championships tossed in for good measure.

"But things were running out. The hockey rainbow with the world championship at its farther end, had a pot of gold at the start point, and we couldn't seem to find it.

"So what?" the man said. "I received my 'extra' tax bill the other day. Part of it was for 'hockey' and the rest for you-know-what. I do not begrudge paying the bill. It will cost me twelve a year for five years, but that amount won't nearly cover the fun, kicks, pride and entertainment I derived from being an ardent supporter of the McFarlands," he said.

He rose to his feet. "That's my little piece," he said. "Let me know if the Macs cannot buck the eastern loop and we'll start from scratch again. Belleville without hockey would become the biggest winter cemetery with lights in eastern Ontario."

Will Listen To Tigers

'Rifle' Has US Offers

MONTREAL (CP) — Sam Etcheverry said Friday night his immediate plans are to talk to Hamilton Tiger-Cats officials and to "listen to them."

The 30-year-old quarterback traded by Montreal Alouettes to the Ticats earlier this week, was interviewed on a nightly sports television show carried by Montreal's CBMT.

He said also:

He'd had a couple of offers from U.S. pro teams but I don't want to name them because I'm no a free agent."

Etcheverry said he plans to remain with his family in Montreal until next June.

He would make up his mind by July about playing for Hamilton next July.

Asked if he would play again for Ferry Mosz, Alouettes' controversial coach, Etcheverry said he can't play "for any man who doesn't want me."

Wings Meet Habs In Fight For Lead

Hawks Clash With Leafs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The battle for first place in the National Hockey League resumes tonight with games at Montreal and Toronto.

Detroit Red Wings, riding high on the strength of five consecutive victories, meet the Canadiens in Montreal in a fight for top spot. Both teams are currently tied for the leadership with 19 points each.

Chicago Black Hawks, only one point behind the leaders, play the Maple Leafs at Toronto. The Leafs are four points out of first place.

The game at Toronto will be marred by a puck-dropping ceremony commemorating the first NHL game played in Maple Leaf Gardens, home of the Leafs 30 years ago tonight.

All six teams will play Sunday. The Canadiens are at New York to meet the last-place Rangers; Detroit goes to Chicago and Toronto will be at Boston to play the Bruins.

The Leafs, who acquired left-winger Eddie Shack from New York Rangers last Monday in exchange for forwards Johnny Wilson and rookie Pat Hannigan, are in the market for more new players.

Punch Imlach, general manager and coach, says he is ready to trade which will "turn this team into a real threat to Montreal." The Leafs were beaten in the last two seasons by Canadiens in the Stanley Cup final playoffs.

Imlach says the lightness of the Leafs' schedule — with a 12th of the schedule played makes for a thrilling atmosphere.

"There are five clubs (he does not count New York) in a dogfight for four playoff spots.

"Somebody's going to get shoved out — and it's not the Leafs. A couple more bodies and we are sitting pretty."

Score Was 3-2

Hull-Ottawa Nips Macs

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The fast-skating Hull-Ottawa Junior Canadiens downed a goal late in the third period here last night to edge the Belleville McFarlands 3-2 in an exhibition hockey game before a small Belleville municipal Arena.

Jermaine Munger broke away from the pack at his own blueline, raced u the right wing and triggered a corner shot past McFarland goalie Ross Brooks at 16.39 to snap a 2-2 deadlock. The win avenged the score by the Baby Habs who suffered a 3-2 defeat at the hands of the Macs in Hull a week this week.

Last night's battle was a tight one all the way with the speedy Hull-Ottawa crew getting an early jump on the Macs. Hull led 2-0 after ten minutes of the opening period.

The McFarlands roared back, cutting the Hull lead to one in the period's end, and scoring the only goal of the middle frame to leave it 2-2 entering the final twenty minutes.

Belleville appeared to have an edge in play in this third period, despite the shots-on-goal total favoring the visitors, but they could not click around the net. Mike Bourdias was wide when in close on one occasion and he and "Wiener" Brown were both robbed by fine saves by Hull's Sony Astore later in the period. Astore also lifted goalie Senior in favor of an extra attacker for the final 50 seconds and came close on a couple of trys only to have time run out. The Macs pressed earlier when Freitag was off for Hull but the visiting defense, led by Captain Jacques Lacerre, backbone of the club, broke up several dangerous rushes at their own blueline.

Faubert sank a rebound off the goalie Senior to open the game scoring at 8.02 of the first period. Faubert was off for hooking when his club made it 2-0 at 9.20. While knocked the disc off a McFarland defenceman's gunned it home from a tough angle.

Lettwinger Fred Eichelberger put the Macs back in the game while Freitag was serving an elbowing penalty at 12.52 of the period. His shot from dead in front of the net went between Aubry's legs to complete a three — way play with Colvin and Hildebrand.

Both goalies stood out in the second with Aubry robbing Richard in the opening minutes. The Macs survived penalties to Jones and Hildebrand but a Belleville power play tied it at 17.18. Lagerriere was off for escorting Brown when Faricelli lifted the rubber over a fallen Aubry as he skated across the front of the Hull net.

Aces Share League Lead With Indians

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The resurgent Quebec Aces, cellar-dwellers of the American Hockey League last season, have moved into a tie for first place with Springfield Indians.

The Aces picked an opportune time to win their first game ever on Rochester ice Friday night. Rochester edged the Americans 6-5 to climb into a deadlock for first with the Indians, who were idle.

Chicago Maki scored three goals as Buffalo Bisons nipped Cleveland Barons 6-5 and moved into a third-place tie with the Providence Reds. Reds whipped Hershey Bears 5-2 with Zellio Toppazzini scoring twice.

Norm Corcoran scored three goals of the 1960-61 campaign to extend the Quebec winning streak to four. Claude Labrosse got the other Quebec goal in the 6-5 shootout. Roger Cote, Wally Boyer and Guy Rousseau scored for Rochester.

PLAYED FOR HONOUR.

Claude Dufour played in the heels of his suspension from the regular netminder Gerry McNeil who is out with a fractured right hand. Dufour had 24 stops. Rochester goaltender Ed Chadwick blocked 26.

Maki, 22, up from St. Catharines Twynes of the Ontario Hockey Association junior A Series, scored in each period at Cleveland.

Larry Wilson, Bob Courcy and Dick Gamble also scored goals for other Buffalo goals. Greig Hicks, Fred Glover, Aldo Guidolin, Cal Stearns and Jim Bradley replied for Cleveland.

Zellio Toppazzini, who returned to competition this season after two years' retirement, fired two goals and set up another in leading Providence to victory.

SCORED FOR REDS

Fred Pilotte, veteran centre, and George Ranieri, rookie left-winger, also scored for the Reds. Bill Needham got their first goal. Willie Marshall delivered at 12:13 in the opening period. Ray Kinsewich left Hershey with a second-period tally. But Paul Laurence clinched it for the Reds by the end of the final period.

Two games are scheduled tonight—Providence at Quebec and Springfield at Hershey. Providence is at Quebec Sunday.

Maroons Stop Terriers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chatham Maroons ended the Terriers' five game streak at Kingsville last night to increase their lead in the Ontario Hockey Association senior league.

Maroons, the last team without a league, were defeated 6-4, giving them 14 points at the top of the table.

Stratford Indians took over Windsor Bulldogs' second place with 10 points after defeating them 5-3 Thursday night after coming from Windsor is in third place with eight points.

Woodstock Athletics are fourth following a 6-2 victory over Stratford Cougars, the cellar dwellers.

Chatham Maroons' winning goal came from defenceman Jack Gamble at 16:39 of the third period. Maroon centre Jim Bucth Keeling was serving a roughing minor.

HURTLED HOME GOALS

Fred Pilotech and George Allen were the other snipers in the late Mar c ers, each connected four goals in little more than seven minutes to overcome a 4-2 Terrier lead.

Mike Miller and Butch Martin gave the Terriers their first-season margin, and George Zak and Bob Gaudette added Windsor's first five minutes of the third period after Maroons had tied it at 4-4.

Chatham goalie, Al Bennett turned back 34 shots. Boat Hurly stopped 22 in the Galt goal.

Pick Colts Over Bears

NEW YORK (AP)—Baltimore Colts are seven-point favorites to beat the Bears in Chicago Sunday.

Baltimore hasn't lost at Wrigley Field the last three seasons. And the Colts are leading the National Football league Western Conference with a 5-2 record.

A loss Sunday could knock Baltimore back into second place behind Green Bay. The Packers (4-2) are idle this week. A point cinch over the visiting Dallas Cowboys (5-2).

In the other western game Detroit Lions (2-4) are three - point home favorites over Los Angeles Rams (2-6-1). San Francisco (3-4) is idle.

DRIVING FOR TITLE

Philadelphia Eagles (5-1) drive for their first eastern title since 1949, are home to the Washington Redskins (1-3-2). The Eagles are 13-point favorites.

New York Giants (6-1-1), in second place, are eight-point home choices to take Pittsburgh Steelers (3-4-1).

The Giants could take over first if the Eagles lose, but if New York loses and third-place Cleveland (4-3) defeats the Browns take over second and the Giants are third.

The Browns rate 10 points better than the visiting St. Louis Cardinals, who are fourth in the east at 4-3.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The league - leading Edmonton Flyers edged Seattle Totems 4-3 Friday night for their third straight victory in the Western Hockey League.

Winnipeg Warriors took over undisputed possession of second place on the strength of a 2-2 overtime tie with Calgary Stampeders.

In other action, Portland Buckaroos shutout Vancouver Canucks 4-0 and Spokane Comets continued their poor showing at Victoria Cougars by grabbing a 3-2 decision.

Four players shared Edmonton's evening — Ed Chadwick, Chuck Holmes, Ed Joyal and Merv Hadden. Marv Bolhess, Gord Sinclair and Gerry Leonard replied for the Totems.

Goalies Jimmy Blair and Howie Hughes counted for the Warriors, as Ron Talkowski and Ron Leopold scored for the Stampeders.

Gordie Haworth, Art Jones, Bill McCulley and Arnie Schmautz replied for Buckaroos.

Steven Witzik, Colin Kilburn and Earl Johnson were the Comets' point getters, while Saunders got both Victoria Goals.

Texas Breaks Course Mark

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Howie Johnson of Texas broke the course record 65 Friday and took the hallway lead in the $10,000 Mexican open golf tournament with a 36-hole total of 131.

May Change Strategy In West Game

Gophers Can Clinch Tie In Big Ten

NEW YORK (CP) — One conference title and perhaps a share in four others are at stake today in United States college football action.

Minnesota, the top U.S. college team, could clinch at least a tie for its first Big Ten title in two decades. A victory over Purdue (2-4-1) would give the resurgent Golden Gophers (7-0) a share of the title. This, coupled with a win over Wisconsin next week, means the title and the possibility of a Rose Bowl bid.

The holder of that Rose Bowl duo should be Washington. The Huskies (7-1) can wrap up their second straight Big Five title by beating California (4-4-1).

MISSOURI LOOKS GOOD

Second-ranked Missouri (8 - 0) is almost assured of returning to the Orange Bowl, but is saving the Big Eight title even more.

The Tigers, playing conference champion Oklahoma (2-4-1), can gain at least a tie for the title with a victory and if second-place Kansas loses to Colorado. Should both Missouri and Kansas win, the title is decided when they meet next Saturday. Missouri hasn't beaten Oklahoma, however, since 1945.

Also eyeing that Big Ten race is third - ranked Ohio State and fifth-ranked Iowa. Both, 6-1, also meet in a televised game. The victor would clinch the title or a share of it if Minnesota falters in its remaining games.

Mississippi is fighting to hang on to the lead in the Southeastern Conference. Ole Miss is 5-1 overall and 3-0-1 in the conference. But the misstep Saturday disaster with 10th-ranked Auburn and Florida tied for second with 4-1 records.

Mississippi meets Tennessee (2-3-1), while Auburn takes on Georgia Tech (3-3) in another SEC champ. Florida plays Tulane.

Flyers Whip Wings 4-1

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Playing before the year's largest crowd of 5,000 customers, Niagara Falls stoned for Thursday night's Ontario Hockey Association junior A setback in Hamilton by roaring to a 4-1 home win here Friday night over the Detroit Red Wing farm hands.

Jeannot Gilbert shot the Flyers in front early as he added a long screen shot in the second minute of the game and the visitor lead held up for the first 40 minutes of play.

Howie Dietrich batted home Ed Westfall's shot from the point to make it 2-0 in the second minute. Then Gilbert triggered home his second goal of the night.

Wayne Rutledge, in the Falls cage, had his shutout spoiled when Lowell MacDonald scored the lone Red Wing goal from a scramble in front with Dietrich of Flyers in the sin bin. Dietrich got that one back with his second goal.

EDMONTON (CP) — A frozen field may force a shift in strategy when Edmonton Eskimos and Winnipeg Blue Bombers meet today in the first game of the Western Interprovincial Football Union's final series.

The weatherman predicted a temperature of about 25 degrees, cloudy sky and little wind for the 2:00 p.m. MST (4:00 p.m. EST) kickoff.

Winnipeg coach Bud Grant said on the eve of the game that field conditions would make it necessary for Bombers to change the type of attack that carried them to first place during the regular season.

He said he left halfback Carver Shannon in Winnipeg in favor of defence because of field conditions. Both Shannon and Meammore would have trouble running on a hard, slippery field, Grant said.

He expected that Edmonton quarterback Jackie Parker would be hampered to some extent by wet conditions but added that Parker could move better on a frozen field than most other players.

Eskimo coach Eagle Keys planned to put veteran Rollie Miles at offensive half for the first time this year, replacing halfback Joe-Bob Smith, out with a sore leg.

There was only a remote chance that fullback Normie Kwong, would be in the lineup. He suffered bruised ribs in the semi-final series against Calgary. His probable replacement was Jim Shipka.

A crowd of about 16,000 was expected in Clarke Stadium, which seats 20,000. The game will be televised over the CBC's eastern network.

Neither team is likely to accuse the other of using illegal footwear.

Last year, Edmonton team officials said fans bowled indignantly when Bombers pranced onto the parlia-brown turf of Clarke Stadium with a new type of skid-proof cleat in their shoes. The Bombs contined to prance to a 18-11 victory in the playoff opener over Eskimos, who slipped and slid on the grassy field in ordinary type cleats or running shoes.

However, when Keys sought a ruling before the game, a representative of football commissioner Sydney Blair examined the cleats and ruled them legal.

As it turned out, the controversial cleats never played an important part in a game again. In the second game of the 1959 final, the Winnipeg stadium turf was frozen so hard that even the new cleats wouldn't penetrate. Winnipeg won the game 18-4 to capture the best-of-three final.

Later, the Canadian Football League rules committee banned all all-metal or metal-tipped cleats.

The new rule later was modified to allow a nylon cleat with

PRENTICE MAKES THE PLAY

Dean Prentice of the New York Rangers, who became a top star last season when he scored 33 goals and a total of 86 points to finish in the top ten scorers, is a smooth, smart player who takes care of his left wing spot as if he had been born there. There is much a young player can learn from Dean Prentice and the key lesson is in the way the Rangers' star gets free to take a pass and flash in on a goal scoring threat.

Watching Prentice I am reminded of a great pass catching end in football who runs his patterns so well that he is nearly always free to take a pass regardless of the defender check on him If you watch the average game of hockey you will notice that most plays made to an open wing are possible because some defensive player is tagged or was caught out of the play. It is well to remember this lesson. For more hints get my bulletin, "Prentice Makes Magic On Skates". Send a stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents to this newspaper.

Big Field For Gold Cup

BOULDER CITY, Nev. (AP) — The field for today's Gold Cup speedboat classic was raised to 14 Friday when two more roaring hydroplanes qualified in time trials.

They were Hawali-Kai, owned by Joe Mascari of New York, driven by Ted Woods, and Miss Burien, racing for Pete Bostock of Seattle, and driven by Chuck Hickling.

Hawali - Kai averaged 110.567 miles an hour for two laps of 102.54, 110.86 and 111.30, while Miss Burien averaged 108.265 with laps of 107.91, 108.09 and 108.66.

Willard Rhodes' Miss Thriftway from Seattle, the national point-scoring champion, remains the favorite. A leading threat, however, is Jim Thompson's Miss Supertest from London, Ont., driven by Bob Hayward.

Harry Stevenson of Treverton is winner and boasts more power than Miss Thriftway.

MOYER VS FERNANDEZ

NEW YORK (AP) — Middleweight Phil Moyer of Portland, Ore., aims for his fifth straight victory tonight in a televised 10-rounder with Cuba's Florentino Fernandez at Madison Square Garden. Moyer Friday was rated 3-5 underdog. Fernandez (21-3-1) moves up to the middleweight division against Moyer (27-2).

Reds, Gaels Meet Today

KINGSTON (CP) — University of Ottawa Redmen will try to end a 32-year senior intercollegiate championship drought in today's meeting when they meet Queen's University Golden Gaels in a sudden-death post-season playoff.

Redmen, seeking their eighth intercollegiate title and their first since 1958, forced the playoff with their 20-14 victory over Queen's. Both clubs ended the six-game season with a 4-2 mark.

This will be the first league meeting between the teams since 1956 when McGill lost out to the University of Western Ontario Mustangs.

Queen's, which has 14 college titles to its credit, won its last one in 1955 season with speedster Ron Stewart at the helm at halfback with Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four Football Union.

Will Decide Future of Galt Terriers

STRATFORD (CP)—The future of Galt Terriers, left without a league to play in after a meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association collapsed recently, will be decided by the club's directors on day of clubs in the western division.

The meeting was called by Don Hughes, of Stratford, convenor of the senior OHA's western division.

Bald Eagle Won It!

By GORGE SOWEN

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — The Pittsburgh, D.C. International was laid to rest for the ninth time today when the weather was livelier than the event.

Bald Eagle took the starch out of the field by finishing off in four-length lead in less than a quarter of a mile, increasing it to 10 after a mile and being a safe two at the end of the mile and half.

Harry F. Guggenheim's five-year-old bay gelding by Eagle's two-time winner of the International said it ought to do it in American racing colors. The victory also supported his bid in the voting for Horse of the Year in the U.S.

But Bald Eagle's supremacy was challenged by the trainer for Harmonizing, E. W. Kling, after the Pittsburgh in turned to yell foul against Harmonizing.

On top of that, the favorite French starter Pulasani Chief jumped his rider at the start.

While Harmonizing came on to finish second, Bald Eagle's King wasn't satisfied for the horse, he claimed for $6,500 in July.

Harmonizing was left practically standing still at the start and field of 11 horses from six nations.

"I had the best horse," said King whose wife owns Harmonizing in partnership with Mrs. Jean Dimarco. "It was the rolling start I ever saw. I'd like to match my horse against Bald Eagle for $50,000."

Woody Stephens, trainer of Bald Eagle, didn't scare.

"I think my man (Guggenheim) will go for it," he replied.

"Strange White Birds".

Provide Good Hunting!

By JOHN YORSTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOACHIM, Que. (CP) — Samuel de Champlain, who founded Quebec in 1608, once wrote about the "strange white birds" at the mouth of the Saguenay River.

Three centuries later the "strange white birds" are providing good hunting for visiting seasons ever for devotees of the greater snow goose, which stop off every spring and fall on their travel between the Arctic and the mid-eastern coast of the United States.

Some 80,000 of the birds are feeding off this village 35 miles below Quebec, the most that have been spotted.

Hunters report making their five-bird limit in minutes. Before the season closes Dec. 11, some 10,000 of the birds will have been shot.

The greater snow goose weighs six to 10 pounds; about three-pounds dressed. The birds are skinned — not plucked. Because they have little natural fat, Quebecers cook them covered with slabs of salt pork.

Stuffed with bread and tart apples, the bird makes a tangy meal for four.

The greater snow goose — or greater blue-bill-faced, explanation when officially discovered a "big-time" by the century. The flock, the only one known in the world, was down to 2,000 birds and hunting them was outlawed.

By 1936 there were 12,000 stopping off at St. Joachim and by 1952 they had increased four times more.

Biologists aren't certain why the birds come here. One factor certainly is American — the rich grass which grows in abundance along the St. Lawrence River up to Montreal.

Romps Over PCIVS 46-5

BCI Wins COSSA Crown

By PETER CARVER

Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School locked away its first COSSA football title in ten years here yesterday, as many crew of youngsters romping to a 46-5 victory over Peterborough PCVS to win the 1960 Junior "A" championship.

The game was played on the Moira Secondary School field before a large crowd of supporters on both schools.

Larry Soule was the individual star of the afternoon, playing a spectacular game on offence and defence. Bob Burr and Lyle Adams each scored two touchdowns with Bob Jeffrey, Soule and John Miller scoring one each. Adams booted three converts.

TAKE OVER EARLY

Right from the opening whistle BCIVS took charge. Burr ran back the kick-off to Peterborough's 45-yard line. Good runs by Burr and Miller advanced the ball to PCVS's 30-yard line. Miller drove to the four and on the next play BCI quarterback Bob Jeffery bootlegged the ball over for the first major. Lyle Adams converted.

Following the kick-off, a shaky Peterborough squad fumbled and Belleville took over at centre field. On the first play Larry Soule took a pitch-out and passed to Burr who ran into the end zone with his first touchdown of the game. Adams' try for the extra point was wide.

Again fumbles proved costly as PCVS dropped the ball on their own twenty-five and Belleville took over. Bob Burr drove to the one but a penalty moved the ball back ten yards. This didn't stop Bob Jeffery but Lyle Adams with a pro pass for Belleville's third touchdown of the quarter. Again the convert was no problem as Adams booted at the end of the first quarter 19-0.

Peterborough's speedy quarterback Bob Aitken tossed a long pass to Jim Horton who ran to BCI's thirty. A fake punt and a pass moved the ball to Belleville's 15-yard line. Then a Belleville penalty gave PCVS the ball, first down on BCI's seven. On the next play Peterborough fumbled and Belleville took over on their own ten.

BCI moved the ball to centre field but could do no more as PCVS tok over. Roger Ling intercepted a Peterborough pass at the mid field, and Soule, legged the ball forty yards to PCVS's twenty. Lyle Adams then scored his second touchdown of the game, and then converted. The half thus ended 32-0.

The third quarter was fairly evenly matched with both teams were hurt by penalties. Belleville came within scoring range but a penalty moved them back ten yards. Adams then took off on a run play to Peterborough's one yard line. PCVS couldn't move the ball and were forced to punt. Adams ran back a short kick to Peterborough's fifteen, yard line. Bob Burr plunged over from PCVS's ten for his second try of the day. The convert attempt was blocked.

A BCI pass and run play to and Dave Reid advanced the ball to Peterborough's thirty. Adams gave BCI the ball on PCVS's fifteen. John Miller, running nicely moved to the one but a penalty moved the ball back ten yards. This didn't stop Bob Jeffery for his third touchdown of the game. Larry Soule made another beautiful run to PCVS's fifteen. Bob Ridley drove to the five, and then Soule swept around the end for the touchdown. Adams' convert finish BCI's scoring.

PCVS ran back the kick-off to Belleville's thirty. A pass interference penalty gave PCVS the ball to Belleville's eight. On the very last play of the game John Wildgoose drove into the end zone for PCVS's only score. The convert was no good.

Wins COSSA Senior Title

Oshawa Defeats Quinte

By BILL BURLEY

In the final game of the COSSA playdowns in Oshawa yesterday, the Oshawa Centrals edged Quinte by a score of 22-14 for the senior championship and the honor of being the first team to beat the Saints in 19 games.

Quinte won the flip and elected to receive. On the kick-off by Oshawa, Larry Mills received the ball and handed off a reverse to Connie Hull who burned up the field for 56 yards before he was stopped. Then on the Quinte third down punt which followed, Oshawa tried to get the ball out of their end zone but a fumbled lateral was recovered by Quinte for the safety and 2 points. Mills then took off up the field, carrying for 23 yards before he was brought down. A penalty brought the ball back 10 yards. On four ground and pass plays Quinte moved the ball back up the field for 61 yards.

Quinte's Chuck Duffy Followell of Quinte took to the air with Bill Green receiving and running for the score. The convert was incomplete. So far it really looked like Quinte's day with 6 and 18th victory, until Klaas Dalldodwick of Oshawa burst through the Quinte defense and ran 64 yards for the touchdown.

But while the play was in motion an Oshawa player had a tripping penalty called on him and the TD was called back.

Early in the second quarter Followell handed off to Ricky Locke who passed to Alex Mc-Meeks who caught the ball in field for 31 yards.

Bob Marchbank of the Centrals, broke through the Quinte line but after a 7-yard gain Don Hull brought him down on Quinte's 20 yard line.

The third down punt by Millocsh into the Quinte end zone proved fatal as the Oshawa tacklers trapped Quinte for the point. Then Hull or Quinte rolled out of a six hole and ran for 21 yards before he was checked by the Centrals.

Once more Hull bombed through the line this time collecting 11 yards before he was stopped. Followell of Quinte then took to the air but Bob Meeks of Oshawa intercepted and raced up the field for 33 yards. Oshawa started to push their way up through the weakening Quinte defence. Then around the end raced Nicholich who ran the ball into paydirt. Mike Milcosh kicked the convert.

The third quarter started with both teams holding each other at bay. Milcosh of Oshawa, moved to Meeks who was in the Quinte end zone but Locke of Quinte knocked the attempted TD down.

Milcosh again took to the air with Meeks pulling it in and starting up the field, but Fisher of Quinte stopped the thrust. Then Milcosh passed, this time to Dalldodwick who ran for 15 yards before Rookie Hull stopped him. Then again around the end burst Nicholich, pulling off all but the tacklers and crossing the line for the TD. The convert was good.

Locke of Quinte took a handoff from Followell and ran 10 yards before he was downed. Then through the lines burst Hull for a 9-yard gain.

Dave Scrameck of Oshawa then pulled in a long pass by Milcosh, but a fine effort by the Quinte tacklers as if they weren't there, to score the major. Milcosh scored the convert.

In the last quarter Oshawa pushed Quinte in their 16-yard line. Milcosh tried another pass but the intended receiver was covered. Ronnie Hull made an interception, then shooting around the end he breezed up the field for 36 yards and the major. The convert was wide.

In the fumble by Oshawa, Latchford of Quinte pounced on the ball for the recovery. Then Followell took to the air for a 40-yard pass to Mills who was stopped by the Oshawa defense as the second quarter ended.

Rookie Bob Rousseau will also be retained for the time being because of an injury to Phil Goyette.

Tremblay, placed on the Montreal protected list before the start of the season, is currently leading the COSSA scoring with nine goals and 11 assists for 20 points in 13 games.

Come, Come Mr. Chuvalo!

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto's George Chuvalo, talking the way fighter's usually talk before a bout, arrived here by air from his hometown Friday night for his Nov. 23 bid to regain Canada's heavyweight title from Montreal's Bob Cleroux.

"I'm not worried about a hometown decision this time," said Chuvalo, referring to the 15-round split decision that Cleroux won here Aug. 17 in an outdoor match.

"This time I'm sure I can put him away before the bout's half way through the 12 - round distance."

Chuvalo starts training here today at the east-end St. Jean Baptiste gymnasium and is to be joined by Cleroux the same day. The Montrealer is to arrive here today from New York where he has been working out under Whitey Bimstein.

National Football League teams but Moss squawked so long and loud that it's said that they eventually cancelled it.

They say betting so certain people own certain towns in Nevada, incorporated NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who was on the receiving end of Moss's complaints.

If this latest deal goes through, Ralph Sheheen's and Paterson return to haunt the Als next year. Moss will have to be at the top of his form to justify his action. He was burned in effigy in Montreal the Saturday night a couple of nights ago angry Montrealers hanged him in effigy.

Think Rigney Will Get Tiger Job

DETROIT (AP)—"Detroit Tigers aren't ready to name their new manager, but the betting is on Bill Rigney to get the job.

"He's a leading candidate, but there are others in the same category," Tiger president John Fetzer said Friday.

Reports in San Francisco and Detroit said Rigney, deposed San Francisco Giants manager, is set to take over the American League Tigers after Detroit failed to sign former New York Yankee boss Casey Stengel.

"We have made no decision of any kind," Fetzer said. "It is not true that anybody has been signed. But we want to name the manager before the American League meeting next Thursday in New York."

Beavers Nip Royals 4-2

Montreal Royals suffered their eighth consecutive defeat on home ice Friday night as Kitchener-Waterloo Beavers pulled out a 4-2 decision.

Sault Ste. Marie broke its second-place deadlock with Sudbury Wolves Thunderbirds downing the Wolves 6-3, dumping them into fourth place.

Kitchener-Waterloo was paced by Ed Hoekstra's two tallies, with singles netted by Mel Pearson and Don Cherry. Guy Black and Gary Morrison scored for the Royals. The win gave the Beavers a lead over Hull - Ottawa Canadiens are first.

ENTER THIRD ROUND

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—Three top Australians and four American Davis Cup players Friday moved into the third round of the Davis Cup New South Wales tennis championships at the City Cricket Stadium courts, site of the Davis Cup challenge round Dec. 16-18. Americans Barry Mackay, Earl Buchholz, Chuck McKinley and Dennis Ralston, and Australians Neale Fraser, Rod Laver and Roy Emerson all effored second-round victories.

Habs Recall G. Tremblay

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens announced Friday they have recalled left winger Gilles Tremblay from Hull-Ottawa Canadiens of the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

Tremblay will be used for at least Montreal's two weekend games in the National Hockey League against Detroit here today and in New York Sunday.

Rookie Bob Rousseau will also be retained for the time being because of an injury to Phil Goyette.

Tremblay, placed on the Montreal protected list before the start of the season, is currently leading the EPHL in scoring with nine goals and 11 assists for 20 points in 13 games.

Television is certainly one of the greatest electronic marvels of our time — yet it is constantly undergoing improvements in design and construction.

One of the major advances was the introduction of the miniaturized picture tube. This allowed resetting inside the biscuits down on light absorption and a much brighter picture even during daylight viewing.

Whatever the age or make of your television set, CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 260 Coleman St. can make it perform like new. From a simple adjustment to a complete overhaul — trained technicians will do the job right. Phone WO 8-8791 for prompt service.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RICHTER

Sunday, November 13, 1960

General Tendencies: This is a Sunday of opportunities. You have every chance to uncover the right ideas and to make an exact plan whereby you can live your life more as a pattern for others to follow and also can then, after services, worship, studies, get right into the actual performance of such new, desirable courses of action, Work.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — It behooves you to see how you can best tie of service to loved ones kind and show your devotion as well as be dutiful. Be sure that abode is in the finest order that you can get clothing spick and span for the coming week.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — By the simple expedience of a charming smile, today you can derive fine benefits from others as well as increase harmony within the home. The afternoon is just fine for going out to mingle ably pleasing places and having fun.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Since your thoughts and duty are mainly for your home and family today, it is well you first be sure to go to church of your choice and begin the day on the right foot. Then be particularly kind and dependable to all. P.M. relire early.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Best to consult with finest personal advisor with regard to any intimate or business problems you may have. Follow any advice given and you can come to real understanding with individuals concerned. Be happy, optimistic.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Refer to the fine principles under which you were reared or on which your family was founded and know true happiness again. Also, plan a better modus operandi for the future which will bring infinitely greater success.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Think of own appearance, how to improve it, as well as how to get out more socially with the right people and have fun while spending up new avenues of success for yourself at the same time. P.M. entertain good friends. Be gay.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Deep meditation fine, today since you will get inspiring ideas. Then be sure you do nothing that will take away from prestige you now enjoy. P.M. fine for any social or club functions. Be helpful to needy, too.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 22) — Can discuss your ambitions and plans with those who have the knowhow today, you can make far greater progress in the future. P.M. fine for being very sociable and entertaining the right people. Be charming, kind.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) — Use the wisdom which those in your sign possess and come to better understanding with everyone. "Give unto God that which is God's . . ." etc. This philosophy will see you through nicely in every relationship.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Test the new avenues of endeavor which are now contemplated against the strict philosophy under which you live and see if the two can work together harmoniously. Be out later and make the right contacts informally.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Think well how you can make all your contacts in both personal and business life more harmonious and satisfactory today. Put your intuition in have it loved one. Strive for true happiness and understanding.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Associates will be very co-operative today if you get together informally and show devotion and a ready smile. Also, be less longwinded. You have been much too serious and stolid. P.M. go out to dinner in style. Have fun.

If your child is born today . . . there will be the greatest love for humanity in his chart, and your offspring can only be happy when helping others. So, it is best to early prepare your son, or angelic daughter to work with charities, philosophical societies, Salvation Army and the like, or for medical and laboratory work of all kinds, where love of detail and patience are prerequisites, early in life give regular duties to perform. Educate well.

Monday, November 14

General endencies: Until 2 P.M. try to do nothing that will upset the harmony that you have established in dealing with those you regard as your partners. Then the rest of the afternoon and through tonight can bring you some pretty tough lessons to learn if you act jealous or envious, or if you start a fight or argument with anyone. Pacify.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Important you meet all commitments by two in the afternoon and after that it is imperative you show loyalty and concealing devotion to loved one. Don't be critical or side in with others. This could be a very destructive day for you.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Be sure you handle all important monetary affairs in A. M., but not later than 2 P. M. Later, many situations arise which require that they be handled wisely and that co-operating be earnestly. Be calm, poised and even with self.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — It is all right to assure yourself as you retire until 2 P. M., but take care you are not extravagant or act unwisely. Later, get down to business, but do not be too forceful with others. Conciliate religious fervor an educate to the best of your ability. Then the chart will produce a leader in whatever may be the field in life. Also, sound training in practical and business matters is a must to bring about all the fine promise in this horoscope.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — If you are not kind and gentle to A. M., that sick-lish situation at home can reach major proportions. Be extra cautious while out in the busy world outside. Don't be extravagant or give overly Wd the to be smart - sickly.

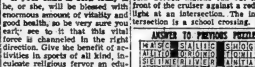
Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Morning and early afternoon require that you drive or walk with caution and be careful in the choice of your words. You could also get into trouble tonight at home if you are not courteous and thoughtful, yet firm.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — The first part of the day could be expenditure of money today, since you are inclined to be quite extravagant. P. M. don't fly off to some worthless pleasure or adventure. Drive carefully or you must go out and be gentle with others.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — It is best not to give in to temptation to indulge before noon 2 P. M., but to quietly go about your business, observe expenditure, etc. P. M. start no argument over money matters. Be economical, budget more wisely.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Until early afternoon you feel like running away from your obligations, but if you handle them wisely instead, this will be a stepping - stone to success in the future. Charm others with a smile and do not be forceful with them.

Sagittaries (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Give comfort to one who comes to you in an hour of need in morning, even if you are busy and out - of - sorts yourself. P. M. be sure you take care of those personal duties that are so important to you right now.



Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) — Rather than give a piece of your mind to a higher - up because you think you are not getting a square deal from him, or her look to your own lack in that respect. P. M. care must be exercised in any social affairs.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Be sure you be up to par off on some new venture until early afternoon because you are dissatisfied with present set - up. This would be even worse. Think and you will prosper in own sphere. P. M. don't take chances with good name.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — In seeking advice in A. M., be sure you take no immediate action, since the person consulted is not conversant of all facets in the matter. F. M. is best spent in study, though you want to fly off to some tangent or temporary pleasure.

If your child is born today . . . be, or she, will be blessed with enormous amount of vitality and good health, so he very sure you early see to it that this vital force is channeled in the right direction. Give the benefit of activities in sports of all kind, inculcate religious fervor an education to the best of your ability. Then the chart will produce a leader in whatever may be the field in life. Also, sound training in practical and business matters is a must to bring about all the fine promise in this horoscope.

Dinh Diem and family."

Today the city was completely in control of loyalist troops. The national radio said Saigon now is under the command of Maj.
Nguyen Minh Man of the 7th Infantry division.
The turning point of the abortive coup came when the crowd of 15 tanks from the southern provinces switched their support to Diem this morning. They trained their guns on a crowd demonstrating against the government.
The initial reason for the coup's failure was the tough resistance thrown up by the elite palace guards when the paratroopers began their assault Friday.
Buildings around the palace were badly damaged. Debris was piled high on the street but workers already are clearing it away and stores reopened for business.
The swiftly changing situation followed the surprising coup Friday when four paratroop battalions, supported by a marine battalion, seized points in the capital and attacked the presidential palace.
The insurgents' aim was to end
what they called the "family dictatorship" of the 58-year-old
Diem and strengthen the country's fight against infiltrating
Communists from North Viet Nam.
Diem apparently remained in his palace even after his 200-man palace guard was overwhelmed despite fierce resistance in which 20 to 30 persons were reported killed.
The revolutionary group apparently was anti-Communist and basically pro-Western.
It was immediately supported by the 66-member United Peoples
Front, made up of Saigon moderates sympathetic to the West.
Many of its members had attempted to organize the Liberty and Progress party last April, but Diem refused to give it official recognition.

New Car Models Offer Extended Warranty in '61

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

If your eye is on a new 1961 beauty, you've probably discovered there is a wide variety to choose from — in size, styling, price and operating economy.

You may also be aware that many of these new models carry a 12,000 mile — or 12-month warranty. This is good news for car buyers because it represents a much greater investment protection.

However, letters indicate that some motorists assume they can forget about service costs as long as the warranty is in force. This, of course, is not so, nor is it implied.

Normal maintenance attention — tuneups, adjustments, changeovers — will still be needed during this period and these must always remain the owner's responsibility.

R. L. writes: "My engine usually runs fine — , except when I give it a very sharp turn. Then it begins to hesitate or miss."

(A) Have the carburetor checked. The float could be binding against the carburetor bowl wall, on turns.

* * *

H. C. writes: "How often should I check the brake fluid level in the master cylinder?"

(A) Every 1,000 miles or so is good practice. Don't be overzealous however. Keep the fluid level approximately 1-3 of an inch below the filler opening.

* * *

From W. P.: "I just bought a 1959 car with standard gear shift. The dealer has advised me to hold down the clutch pedal when starting. How come? I never had to do this with any other car."

(A) You don't have to do it, but it's advisable. Holding down the clutch pedal to disengage the transmission eases the load on the starting motor.

* * *

M. S. asks: "If oil can't be used on the choke valve, by what do I do when it sticks? Isn't there something I can use to make it work freely, as it should?"

(A) Use a carburetor cleaner or solvent to clean off the dirt and gum which is causing the valve to bind.

During a tour of Ireland Drew Ogmia of CP's London bureau found a changed attitude toward the question of unity. In this story he describes the positions taken by the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland.

By DAVE OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Irish Republic has extended the hand of friendship to Northern Ireland in a new initiative to achieve unity of the two states under a Dublin parliament.

It has discarded the policy belligerently that fanned resentment in the north and has adopted instead the art of gentle persuasion.

The change came a little more than a year ago when Sean Lemass succeeded austere, idealistic Eamon De Valera as prime minister of the Republic of Ireland.

One of his first statements was a frank admission that partition can only be ended with the willing consent not only of the Northerners but also of Britain. This belief is the cornerstone upon which

3 Teen-Agers Killed In Cave-In At Niagara Falls

Two Brothers Escape With Seconds to Spare

Bare-Headed Bus Conductors Get Brush-Off

MANCHESTER (AP) — Politely but firmly, Michael Moore reinstated Sunday in a one-man war against bare-headed conductors.

If they're hatless, he won't pay his fare.

Moore, 37, a draftsman, started his campaign last week as a personal protest against the Manchester council's refusal to employ turbaned Sikhs for the city's double-decker buses.

At least six Sikhs — whose religion requires them to wear turbans — have been rejected for employment on the ground that all conductors must have uniform hats.

The first time Moore refused to pay, the hatless conductor took his name and address.

The city transport department billed Moore for the fare — the equivalent of five cents.

Moore paid by cheque.

After repeated refusals with hatless bus men, the chairman of the council's transport committee, Charles Morris, invited Moore for a friendly chat.

"Please do not wage your war against bus men, who are not responsible for the council's actions," Morris asked Moore. The young crusader turned down this bid for peace.

Moore, scenting victory, is sure his campaign will go on until either all conductors wear hats or the Sikhs and their turbans are given jobs.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)— Three teen-aged girls were buried tons of sand and clay Sunday when the cave they helped burrow into a cliff downriver from Niagara Falls collapsed on them.

The cave, 75 feet above the Niagara River at Whirlpool Gorge five miles below the cataract, was to have been demolished today.

Dead are Reginald Eidt, 16, Arthur Halsey, 16, and Wayne Ferguson, 15, all of this city. Eidt and Ferguson were pinned in their sleeping bags.

Two brothers, Kenneth, 13, and Larry Ramsay, 12, escaped with only seconds to spare as the trickle of earth that woke them about 7:30 a.m., became an avalanche. Kenneth had to pull his leg free as he struggled.

"Larry made it all right," said Kenneth. "And Arthur got out. Reg was sitting in his sleeping bag but he didn't seem to be moving. Wayne tried to tell me him and he couldn't get out."

ONE DIED — FELL

"Wayne was trapped right at the first. Then Arthur went back and his dog got out. Then more dirt fell on him. He was only trapped a few feet down and Arthur and Reg for about five minutes.

"Then Reg didn't say anymore. I talked to Arthur again for about 15 minutes and more dirt fell."

Kenneth sent his brother to the top of the cliff to flag a motorist. He returned to the cave and sent back, this time flagging a car driven by Harry Newton of Niagara Falls who went for help at police headquarters.

Police arrived and began scraping away fallen earth with their hands. Firemen arrived with shovels and recovered the bodies about two hours later.

The five were among a dozen youngsters who began digging the cave a week ago. They had previously used scooped out a cavern about four feet high and six feet square. Police said several wooden supports placed at the mouth of the cave crumbled under the weight.

POLICE INVESTIGATED

Provincial police, who operates an aero car over the rapids, also assisted boys working on the cave Saturday and called police. Niagara Parks Commission police also investigated from the bottom of the 200-foot precipice, but said no charges were planned to have the cave demolished today.

The youngsters told their parents they were going to sleep in the cave and a friend, Kenneth, did not know of the cave.

They went to bed in sleeping bags late Saturday night after a snack of beans and soup. Kenneth said sand had been trickling from the roof during the evening but was still falling when the cave fell asleep.

An inquest has been ordered.

PROTEST IN MOVE

LISBON (Reuters)—Thousands of persons demonstrated here Saturday night against a United Nations resolution submitted by 12 African countries asking that Portugal provide data on its African territories. The demonstrators supported the Portuguese government's contention that the resolution is illegal, which have a total population of 11,871,315, are an integral part of Portugal.

Seek to Settle Strike at Sault

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—The department of labor has called for a meeting in Toronto Wednesday between the Sault Dominion Sugar Company plant and the union in an effort to break the deadlock in contract talks and end the strike under way 13 weeks.

The department has appointed R. V. Bradley as mediator.

Talks broke off last Tuesday when the company and United Steelworkers of America, Local 2288, failed to reach a settlement.

Affecting some 100 union men the strike has revolved around a union demand for a master contract covering the company's 13 plants with an offer to settle for a six-cent-an-hour increase this year and a similar increase next, with a half-cent on the increment between job classes.

FIFTY TAKE PART IN WILD RIOT AT LETHBRIDGE

Policeman Stabbed

Civilian Badly Hurt

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — More arrests were expected today in the wake of a riot in front of a dance hall described as one of the worst outbreaks of violence in Lethbridge since the war.

At least 12 were arrested early Sunday in a battle that developed from a fight between two men near the outskirts of the business section of this southern Alberta city.

Five persons were injured in the 20-minute struggle between about 50 persons and the Lethbridge city police, the RCMP and firemen.

Constable William Howitt suffered a knife wound in the back requiring two stitches.

John Pozza, 34, of Lethbridge, was struck by a flying brick allegedly aimed at a policeman. Pozza is in hospital in "only fair" condition.

Three other men were hurt less severely.

All but one with two men fighting outside the Hungarian Hall, 1st Second Avenue South two blocks from the main business district.

CROWD ATTACKS POLICE

When police arrived, the fight broke into simultaneous scrambles between the two. Some bystanders disapproved and attacked the constables.

Some of the crowd pulled knives and clubs.

When the firemen arrived and began hosing down the crowd with their fire hoses, the crowd began to disperse and police began making arrests.

Police handcuffed as many as possible but the crowd overcame them from the patrol cars almost as fast as police could put them in.

At the height of the battle, an estimated 50 persons took part and another 200 looked on. Police confiscated 12 knives, two screw drivers and a sledge hammer, but the battle scene was littered with bricks, glass, beer bottles and other debris.

Police said most of the arrested were charged with rioting, disturbing the peace, assault which carries a maximum sentence of two years.

Cattle Sale Attracts Many Outside Buyers

TORONTO (CP) — The cattle sale of stars, most dramatic of auctions at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair, will be one of the highlights tonight as the annual fair moves into its third day. The sale attracts buyers from across Canada, the United States and countries in Central and South America.

In 1959, a Holstein bull sold for $20,100, highest paid at the royal. Another highlight tonight will be the international horse team jumping competition at which Ireland will attempt to maintain its 9 1-2 - point lead in the five-nation event standings.

The Irish team took over first place Saturday night from the United States on the strength of a brilliant riding performance by Kevin Babington. He piloted one of the 12 hurdles in the individual competition and the "final" competition in 158 seconds.

Scientists Believe Trivial 'Sandmen' Live on Yet Undiscovered Planets

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—There may be true "sandmen" on some yet undiscovered planets, a team of University of Pennsylvania scientists said today.

The sandmen were envisaged as living creatures made of sand — an essential constituent of sand and rocks — but with some component, instead of carbon. Carbon is the key element in the chemistry of all life on earth.

The researchers told about it in a paper presented at the fall autumn meeting of the National Academy of Sciences.

The team, headed by researchers M. Abadzi, also envisaged that some day vitamins and hormones, for use in medical fields, might be prepared from sandy substances.

They said that for the first time they have prepared new, simple silicon - containing compounds which are closely analogous in both chemical and physical properties, to a number of familiar compounds based on carbon.

The scientists said:

"At the present time, our knowledge of these simple silicon compounds is at the stage where organic chemistry was 150 years ago.

"Since all living substances contain both simple and complex carbon compounds, it is perhaps what fascinating to wonder whether silicon compounds will, within the next 150 years, be introduced into living substances in place of analogous carbon compounds.

"The existence of living things, containing silicon exclusively, in the place of carbon—so-called living rocks"—although improbable at the stage of our present understanding, is not necessarily impossible. . . .

"It is possible that living 'things', with their chemistry based on silicon instead of carbon, may exist in some of the billions of yet undiscovered planets having an atmosphere of different composition from that on earth."

U.S. Marshals Guide Negroes Into New Orleans Schools

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — U.S. marshals accompanied four little Negro girls into two white schools today, the first Negro students to attend white schools here in almost a century.

Most of the white spectators, with Negroes interspersed in the crowd, booed as three Negro girls walked into McDonogh No. 19 while the few Negroes applauded. Another girl entered the William Frantz school.

Police stood in front of the schools and ordered people to stay on the neutral ground facing the McDonogh school.

At McDonogh, the only disturbance caused by the entry of the three Negro first graders was a boycott.

One white woman yelled as the Negro girls drove in three Negro-mobiles with, the federal marshals. "Poor black . . . I'm going in there and get my children out."

Some white parents entered the building, apparently to take their children out of classes.

The names of the Negro girls were not made public.

Minutes before the Negro girls arrived, state troopers ordered white school children to the principal with a paper ostensibly the order of the state legislature banning integration and ordering the school closed.

The principal refused to heed the order.

Just 153—minutes after the Negro children entered McDonogh, about 25 to 30 children walked out of the school, some accompanied by their parents.

About a dozen left the Frantz school.

A Negro girl in a white dress and with white ribbons in her hair drew more than a few stares in the building.

"The niggers are going to take over," one woman said. "They're going to run us all out of here."

At Baton Rouge, there was some indication the state legislature—battling to keep the schools segregated despite a federal court order—was ready to keep to the sponge.

House Speaker Tom Jewell served with a restraining order to prevent his interference with the integration move, but the legislature would quit work today after a brief session.

State troopers were reported to be considering each school principal to close the school in line with the legislature's directive. But they were reported to have been told that the principals were following the orders of the school board and remaining open.

Shortly today, a force of state police officers massed on the fringes of the city, under orders from the state legislature to enforce the closure of the city's public schools. At least 75 officers were reported in the group.

In Baton Rouge, Thomas D. Burbank, assistant director of public safety, said there were 40 troopers at New Orleans, under

Khrushchev Travels to Miami For Conference With Nixon

PLAM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Premier Khrushchev of Russia travels to Miami today for a conference with President Eisenhower and Nixon, the man he defeated last Tuesday for the presidency of the United States.

Kennedy took the initiative in arranging the meeting. There is speculation that it may deal with the possible improvement of Soviet-Republican relations and the new Democratic administration.

Nixon promptly agreed to the session. No date, place at Key Biscayne in the Miami outskirts, where the vice-president is vacationing.

Kennedy has lined up a busy week of conferences with possible appointees to his cabinet, which he is expected to name. He has decided at least tentatively to pick up Senator Stephen Spencer Lothrop Hodges of North Carolina as secretary of commerce, which is a post in the Kennedy supporter during the campaign.

Pierre Salinger, Kennedy's press secretary, would neither confirm nor deny the selection of Hodges. He told a press conference Kennedy had informed him only that the final decisions of announcement a ta regarding any cabinet posts until after the U.S. Thanksgiving Day Nov. 24.

Salinger said one of the purposes of today's meeting will be to provide Kennedy with an opportunity "to congratulate the vice-president on the campaign he conducted."

The president-elect also wants "to resume the cordial relations

Missing Ottawa Boys Are Found Hiding in Church

OTTAWA (CP) — Two boys who disappeared from home last Tuesday have been found.

Delmer Campbell, 12, and his 10-year-old brother, Allan, were found Sunday night by Rev. Cyril Miller in the basement of the Canmore Baptist Church, 20 minutes walk at home.

The boys are reported to have left home after their father punished them for playing hooky last Monday. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Campbell of Ottawa. Harold Taylor, 12, the third boy, returned home Wednesday.

FIRE CAPTAIN DIES SUDDENLY AT LONDON FIRE

Loss Estimated At Million Dollars

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Fire Captain David Moffitt, 48, died in hospital today after collapsing at the scene of a spectacular fire in downtown London.

Captain Moffitt apparently suffered a heart seizure.

By 2 a.m., the fire had destroyed two restaurants, offices and apartments in the Eastern Fisher building. Residents in apartments above offices and stores near the corner of Richmond and King Streets had been evacuated.

Retired Chief R. C. McKonald described the fire as the worst in London since the Kingsmill fire 33 years ago.

By 7:10 a.m., four hours after the fire was discovered—firemen appeared to have contained the flames to three buildings just off the city's main drag. Unofficial estimates placed the loss as high as $1,000,000.

Apart from the fire captain's collapse—which occurred on the street outside the Hung Mah building—there were no reports of serious casualties. Though two other firemen were given oxygen treatment at the scene after inhaling smoke.

Believed to have started in the basement of a restaurant, the fire spread into another restaurant, apartments in two of the building's six floors and stores and offices including brokerage offices.

By 8 a.m., the fire had eaten its way through the three buildings of four, three and two storeys a half-block south of the city's main intersection of Dundas and Richmond streets. The buildings were located on Richmond Street near the corner of King.

The fire department said was taken to hospital. Two others were carried by companions out of the smoke-filled buildings and were given oxygen treatment on the spot.

A small hotel—the Richmond—on the next door to one of the burning buildings was evacuated.

Business establishments either gutted by the fire included seven restaurants, a bowling alley, grocery store, jewelry and leather wear stores and various offices.

The fire was discovered by two nurses from St. Catharines, Anne C. Ellis and Janet Boothroyd, who are taking post-graduate courses at the University of Western Ontario here and living in an apartment in the building next door to the one in which the fire started.

They awoke to the smell of smoke in their apartment, dressed, then crawled down a fire escape into a smoke-filled alleyway.

Fog Hampers Deer Hunters

LITTLE CURRENT (CP)— Deer hunting opened today on Isolin Island today in a fog which made accurate shooting almost impossible.

Conservation officers reported that by 8 a.m. only a few deer hunters than usual were out but expect it to increase when the weather clears.

As far as is known no deer fell this year to the bow-and-arrow men, whose season opened Oct. 15 and closed Saturday on the Island.

Strike From Sky At Guatemalan Rebel Forces

Conservative Regime Claims Revolt Crushed

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Paratroops and rocket planes struck at rebel strongholds in northern Guatemala today as President Miguel Ydigoras claimed the revolt against his Conservative government was has been crushed.

A state of siege—modified martial law—was proclaimed in this mountainous Central American republic. Press censorship was imposed.

Ydigoras blamed the attempted coup on long-exiled political officers. He linked the uprising with the Communist regimes in Cuba-Rica and indicated he feels that Cuba was behind the plot.

In Havana, Premier Fidel Castro's government denied it had meddled in the affairs of the Central American countries.

An army force of 3,000 and bombers carrying paratroopers were attacking the rebel concentrations at Puerto Barrios, on the Atlantic coast 150 miles northeast of the capital, and Zacapa 70 miles northeast. Military garrisons at three two cities were reported to have been taken over Sunday by rebels pretending to support Ydigoras but in fact by the government.

Puerto Barrios the commander, Col. Rodolfo Gonzales Mijangos, and 10 others were killed. The commander of the Zacapa garrison, Col. Ramon Arnoldo Ydigoras, a cousin of the president, fled to the mountains.

A government spokesman said bombers of the air force, which remained loyal, strafed the runways at Puerto Barrios to prevent any attempt at reinforcements from the rebel movement that might be flown in from Cuba," where many Guatemalan exiles have gone.

The president's press aide said labor and revolutionary parties had organized the abortive coup, and some Communists are implicated.

The neighboring Nicaragua President Luis Somoza blamed the revolt in his country that started Friday on the Cuban government. It apparently failed, but a hundred rebels were holed up in a teachers' school not far from Managua, just a few miles from the courses at the University of Western Ontario here living in an apartment in the building next door to the one in which the fire started.

They awoke to the smell of smoke in their apartment, dressed, then crawled down a fire escape into a smoke-filled alleyway.

Yule Trees Put Hunters In Hospital

OSHAWA (CP) — Two deer hunters from Ontario came out of the woods safely during the weekend but Christmas trees put two in hospital.

John Garrison, 24, suffered head injuries when Gardiner Cox, 43, received a possible fractured skull when their car hit a roadside tree after swerving to avoid trees scattered over the highway.

The trees had been knocked off a truck by a railway overpass on Highway 401, north Oshawa.

Albertans In For Hard Winter Says Chief

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE (CP)—A cold, hard winter with more than average snowfall is in store for Albertans, the spleen of a deer, the moon, stars and trees tell Chief Walking Eagle.

The 72-year-old chief says one sure sign of the approaching cold temperatures came when he killed a deer this fall. Its spleen, which would have been straight if mild weather was in the offing, was as crooked as a pretzel.

An indication of deep snow, says the chief, is the movement of wild animals closer to settlements. But he wouldn't reveal how to interpret the weather through trees, moon and stars.

That is part of the lore handed down from father to son.

But the secret may die with him. Blue Duck, his only son, was killed in a truck crash in his father's weather predictions.

The chief relies on weather bureau forecasts.

MacDonald Says Hog Producers Getting Knifed

MILTON (CP) — The Ontario Hog Producers' Marketing Board is not an effective bargaining agency may place the producers controlled by marketing board under trusteeship so the board can find an alternative to big packing companies, it

Speaking to the Oakville and District Labor Council, Donald C. MacDonald accused Premier Frost of the Ontario government of "once again wielding the big stick over the largest group of farmers in the province, the hog producers—" through the Ontario Hog Trades Marketing Board.

Mr. MacDonald said the Ontario government "virtually declared war on hog producers" two weeks ago when it dissolved two committees established to study transportation problems and changes in sales methods.

At a press conference then, the CCF leader said the minister of agriculture accused the hog producers' director of repeatedly thwarting the government and hinted at "independent marketing board" may be established.

LADIES' NIGHT BY LIONS CLUB MUCH ENJOYED

The members of the Lions Club were hosts to their wives and special guests at a "Ladies Night" held at the Club Cedars on Armistice night. Dancing was enjoyed and a number of prizes were distributed during the evening, the main prize being won by Lion John Skurka, owner of the club. The music was supplied by the Dixie Five.

A buffet luncheon was served by McEvoy Caterers and the remainder of the evening was given over to dancing and a social evening.

$6,016 Donated To Campaign For Children

Frank S. Folwell, chairman of the Belleville campaign held last month for the Belleville Association for Retarded Children, announced that donations of $6,016.00 have been received. The costs of operating projects of the Belleville School for Retarded Children are met with the donations.

Many thanks are expressed to the citizens of Belleville and area, to committee heads, to captains and canvassers, and to all those who helped with the campaign.

Members of the Belleville Association and the Lions Club also thank the local merchants for donations of material needed to help with the sheltered workshop and repair work being carried on now at the Belleville School for Retarded Children, and Bryant's. The opening of the school, previously set at November 19th, has been cancelled.

Gideons Present 200 Bibles to Albert College

The Memorial Chapel at Albert College, was the scene Sunday morning of the presentation of 200 copies of the Holy Bible to the college by the Gideon International. Mr. Cecil Hymns and Scripture lesson were on the subject of Holy Writ leading to the actual dedication service, which was conducted by Dr. E. W. Dow of Trenton, president of the Belleville Camp of The Gideons.

Standing before the Bibles displayed in the front of the chapel, Dr. Dow expressed his satisfaction in being able to make this gift, and presented token copies to Principal A. MacKenzie and Mr. Stewart on the college staff as well as to Miss Margaret Mitchell and Mr. George Leck of the student body; he then offered a dedicatory prayer.

The evening message was given by Mr. T. A. Watson, secretary of the Belleville Camp. Mr. Watson referred briefly to the founding of The Gideons, their membership, restricted to business and professional men, and told something of the ministry in which they are engaged.

Besides the placing of Bibles in hotels, familiar to many people, they are in prisons and schools are also covered, and in communities where work is being carried on in our 60 countries of the world. In its widest scope, this overseas work is the responsibility of the parent association in Canada, but certain areas of the country, such as Latin America and India have been allocated to Canada, with the result that The Gideons have thousands of Bibles are thus distributed annually. Ralph Graham and Rink Win Mixed Bonspiel at Quinte

A little rub here and there, an excellent draw or a perfect takeout when needed enabled a team of Mr. and Mrs. Wally Partridge with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Graham to win the first mixed curling of the season, which has continued all week and was concluded on Saturday night at the Quinte Curling Club with the distribution of prizes, a delicious buffet lunch and a six-piece orchestra to provide music for the social evening.

A rink of Mrs. Berna Sills, Bill Holway and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Carruthers won the second prize and Mr. and Mrs. Ken Symons the third. Mr. and Mrs. S. Gaulth with Mr. and Mrs. Ron Bean won the third prize and this rink also tied for one game but went to this event when they won two in the main event. The fourth event was won by Mr. and Mrs. Goldie Bjerregaard with Mr. and Mrs. Mac Moffatt. The runners-up in each event were Don Stanton and Mrs. Gault in the first, Peverley in the second, Lloyd Sherwood in the third and Bruce Miller in the fourth.

The committee in charge of the 'spiel with Pete Acton as chairman, decided on pins for the winners and these were not available for presentation last evening, but will be presented and the winners will pick them up later and have another pin put on. The trophy won by winning pins will be slightly smaller than the losers, and all will be suitably engraved. A pleasant note of thanks was forwarded by Don Stanton, chairman of the house committee, when he presented gifts to Mrs. Graham, president of the club, with photographs of the past presidents of the club, they being Bill Gault and C. C. "Pat" Houston. Gault was in the chair for the first two years while the club was in the hands of Houston and Mr. Houston capably filled the last two full seasons.

Mr. Trepanier if accepting the gift stated it was a fine gesture to remember the club the pictures would be placed in a prominent place in the club house. He also thanked the 'spiel committee for the wonderful job that had been done with a real pleasure.

Tweed Finance Firm Robbed, Church's $2,000 Among Loot

Safe-crackers Sunday night forced their way into the Tweed branch of the Lombank Finance Company and after chiselling open the safe escaped with cash and cheques reportedly amounting to well over $3,000, included was $2,000 in cash and cheques collected at the anniversary services of St. John's United Church and earmarked for use in retirement of the church mortgage. The money had been placed in the finance company's safe for safe-keeping.

The finance company office is situated on Victoria Street over the liquor store, entry being gained through a second-floor washroom window after climbing onto a low roof.

Tweed Police Chief Walter Higgins said apparently no attempt was made to enter the liquor store. Provincial police investigation officers from Belleville are also assisting in the investigation.

Police said the Tweed safe job bears the appearances of a professional job and seemed to follow the pattern of other safe jobs recently reported in the Shannonville and Bay of Quinte areas, in which explosives are considered to blow the finance company safe with nitro-glycerine. When the safe is blown the door is the big strongbox was tipped onto its side and the bottom was chiselled out with chisels and sledge hammers.

Teen-Ager Gets Moose On First Hunt

The biggest thrill of his young life!

For seventeen-year-old Bruce Bristol it was not the biggest school-football win, nor Fabian serailing a rock-n-roll ditty.

It was just the fact now moose he had ever seen — and it was lined in the sights of his rifle.

The range was roughly .100 yards when the moose started to move slowly through a patch of Little Long Lake south of the big Westwood road.

Bruce squeezed the trigger. The bullet sliced the moose in the head. It stumbled but kept going. A second shot in the neck brought it down.

Bruce was hunting with his father, John R. Bristol of Toronto, and party, which brought out deer as well as the moose. Bert's deer fell.

It weighed in the vicinity of 900 pounds.

Little Long Lake is in Effingham township.

It was exactly Mr. Bristol's first safari into the north woods with a hunting party.

Survival, Rescue Training Exercise Carried Out by Regt.

Any person travelling along the 401 Highway west of this city over the past two weekends may well have wondered if the vast amounts of declining smoke and the number of army personnel around did not mean that a national disaster was underway. Actually it was only Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment out on manoeuvres.

This past Sunday the personnel from the outlying units of Picton, Trenton, Napanee, Stoco, Millbrook, Campbellford, Bancroft and Marmora were participating in their national survival and rescue training. Realism was the essence of the scheme with casualties, provided by the Boy Scout troops of Belleville in abundance around and in the buildings used.

Each "casualty" had some simulated injury such as broken back, leg or arm, external and internal injuries, burns and such other wounds that would call upon the rescuers, having full knowledge of first aid procedures.

The location of the "casualties," carefully arranged in advance of the exercise, was so planned as to require the rolling personnel to use all the tactics and methods they have received in their training to date. Tunnelling, shoring, ladder work, rope and streecher techniques were all called upon as the militiamen found their "patients" under piles of rubble, on roofs in the rafters of buildings and other awkward places.

EXERCISE SUCCESSFUL

The schemes, conducted by the regimental training officer, Major K. D. H. Willcocks, proved quite successful as had the exercise the week-end previous proven for the members of the Belleville unit. Lt.-Col. Angus Duffy, commanding officer of the regiment, expressed his appreciation of the manner in which all ranks had carried out their duties and the enthusiasm which they had displayed in doing so. Thanks were given also to the H. J. McFarlane firm for the use of its property for the scheme.

The various units in action were the army staff under Captain A. Smith of Trenton, the quartermaster personnel under Captain A. Hart of Belleville, and the motor transport branch under Sgt.-Major N. Tripp.

Acting commanding officers for the exercises were Major H. Campbell of Trenton, and Major D. Riordan of Belleville. Company commanders were: Capt. W. Cochrane and Capt. A. Cunningham of Belleville, Captain S. Down of Trenton, Lieut. W. Rothwell of Campbellford and Lieut. J. Fawcett of Millbrook.

Council Against Railway Taking Away Service

CAMPBELLFORD — A resolution has been forwarded to Canadian National Railways officials by the town council here, protesting the latter's plans to move on the part of the railway to reduce or discontinue rail passenger service on the CNR line serving Belleville, Roy Scout Corners, Campbellford, Lindsay and Toronto. The resolution included a suggestion that the railway improves the service on the line.

The resolution was sent last month with council and representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, when it was explained by the railwaymen that the number of rail passengers using the line means the railway is losing money in the hole to the tune of almost a third of a million dollars a year on the operation. They said the passenger potential was not sufficient to warrant continuing the line in service.

The railway proposed removing the passenger train from service, but would continue express and freight service as well as stations, presently with express being moved by highway transport trucks instead of by rail.

A hearing before the Board of Transport Commissioners is required before the train can be removed from service.

Two Members Ancaster Police Force Charged

HAMILTON (CP)—Two members of Ancaster township police department today were charged with an offence under the Police Act.

Constable William Bradburn and Constable Terrence O'Flanagan are charged "that they acted in a manner likely to bring discredit to the reputation of the police force of the township of Ancaster, having regard to the contents of a report."

This alluded to a report submitted by Chief of Police Douglas Mitchell.

A meeting of the board of police commissioners is expected to be held this week.

Chief Mitchell said today that Constable Bradburn nor Constable O'Flanagan had been suspended.

An investigation into the affairs of the Ancaster police department by the Ontario Provincial Police is under way, instituted at the request of the township police commission.

Wounded Owl Loses Friend Who Gave Aid

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Adam White, who befriended a wounded owl Saturday, is looking for a bird lover because he just cannot bring one himself.

He found the owl, wounded in one wing, while hunting in nearby Stamford Township. He put it in the trunk of his car and took it home—where trouble started.

The owl, a great horned species two feet high and with a five - foot wingspread, objected to being removed and sank three talons in Mr. White's wrist. He couldn't remove them and the police finally did the job with a pair of pliers.

His wounds were dressed at the hospital where he also got an anti-tetanus shot. Now he's looking for someone to take the bird off his hands.

And the owl is strutting up and down the basement floor, apparently planning on staying.

Canada's Index Of Jobless Up Slightly

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's index of industrial employment rose slightly during July, but the increase was almost entirely due to seasonal factors, the bureau of statistics said today.

The index, based on 1949 employment levels equalling 100, climber 0.8 per cent between July and August to 122.9 from 121.9. However, once a seasonal adjustment was made the index did not change appreciably.

The bureau said improvement during the summer months was noted in some goods producing industries and especially in nondurable goods, forestry, 100 and general engineering construction.

The employment situation in durable goods manufacturing and in some mining industries increased during the first eight months of the year.

Average weekly wages and salaries for August were $75.93, down 25 cents from July but still up $2.51 from August, 1959.

ACCENT LENIN?

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Observers here believe Communist China already has gone part way at the Communist summit meeting toward accepting Soviet interpretation of Lenin's doctrines. But nothing official has come out of the communist bloc's meeting, which opened in Moscow a few days ago and continued during the weekend, with delegates present from 26 Communist states and 33 other Communist parties.

Minister Forecasts Probable Annihilation of Human Race As Result of 3rd World War

TRENTON — "It is not only possible, but probable, that we are the last generation of the human race," Northern Affairs Minister Walter Dinsdale told veterans and active servicemen at the annual Remembrance Day banquet of the Trenton branch of the Canadian Legion, Friday night. He warned that unless the thinking men of all races and creeds bend their efforts towards a peaceful Christian solution of the world's problems, modern man, with all the wonderful benefits of present day scientific progress at his finger tips, would only succeed in destroying himself.

"We face the same situation today that we did in 1939," he said. "We are in a situation about which veterans, particularly, should concern themselves."

Mr. Dinsdale said that at the beginning of both world wars, democracy was faced with possible annihilation of Christian civilization.

"Servicemen of both world wars were ordinary men," he said. "They were thinking about them is that they were willing to give up their lives to preserve Christian life in their homes and their countries. That same spirit would be shamed in the world today."

He said that the problem today was one of total destruction of the human race not "who would be the victor in a third world war." He deplored the fact that the free world could continue to live in peaceful co-existence with the non-Christian Soviet Republic whose leaders claimed their grandchildren would continue communist doctrines.

"Proponents of the communist way of life are spreading their ideals with the zeal of crusading missionaries," he said. "No effort is too great to them to achieve their ends. No corner of the globe is too isolated to escape their attention. Communists believe profoundly in their way of life. They are convinced that they have the truth of the nature and the destiny of man."

MUST FIGHT

He said that democracy and freedom had only established a foothold in the midst of this new totalitarian system of government and that democracy must fight for its life against the tyrannical ideals of the communist system.

"We must come to a new realization of the truth that freedom is the sole possession of those who have the courage to defend it."

Ammonia Fumes Fell Woman At Telephone

TRENTON — Mrs. Elmer Potter, 47 North Murray Street escaped death by asphyxiation Saturday when she was overcome by ammonia fumes seeping from a refrigerator in the kitchen of her home.

Mrs. Potter, who noticed the fumes shortly before 11 a.m., said she thought they were coming from the furnace. While checking, she found it increasingly difficult to breathe. She managed to get to the telephone and put in a call to the fire department, collapsing at the phone after she had placed the call.

Capt. Gerald Lewis and Engineer Duane Foshay carried Mrs. Potter to a couch where they revived her. Dr. J. G. Johnston treated her at the scene.

Mrs. Potter was in the house with four small children when the incident occurred. Mr. Potter an employee of the Hinde and Dauch paper, mill was at work.

In an interview, Mr. Potter said that he and his wife had purchased a new refrigerator which was scheduled to arrive Saturday to replace the older model.

Two Injured, Damage $600 In Collision

TRENTON — Two persons were taken to hospital Saturday night following a pay-car collision which resulted in more than $600 damage at the corner of Dufferin Ave. and West Dundas Street.

Released from hospital after treatment were Gerald Menzie, 16, of 31 Ford Street, who suffered leg injuries, and Mrs. Myrtle Falkenham, 15 McGill Ave., Middleton Park, who suffered a neck injury.

The Menzie youth was a passenger in a car driven by Carrier Brown of Batawa. Mrs. Falkenham was a passenger in a car driven by her husband.

Lee Grills, MP for Hastings-South, Walter Dinsdale, Northern Affairs Minister, and William Lawson, president of the Trenton branch of the Canadian Legion, are shown at the annual Remembrance Day banquet held Friday night in the Legion hall.

He said that there was a simple solution to the incredible paradox of modern man having the power to end all poverty and enjoy the fruits of modern science in a peaceful world, and his refusal to do so through personal and national selfishness and Christendom.

"Through most of time and space, man has been in chains. The natural government of man has been servigude. It is only by intense thought, by great effort, by burning idealism and unlimited sacrifice that freedom has prevailed as a system of government. And the efforts that were first necessary to create it are daily as necessary to sustain it-in our own day. The sacrifices of fallen comrades are telling us to guard with our lives the freedom which they valued with their lives. They tell us that they dwell in quietly and ask to be likewise. They remind us that they died, not as men of the British race or the French race, not only as Catholic or Protestant or Jew, but as free men, defending the cause of all men."

Mr. Dinsdale was introduced by branch president William Lawson, who said that Mr. Dinsdale had been a member of 419 "Moequito" night fighter squadron with the RCAF in the Second World War, and that he had been awarded the DFC for being the first pilot to shoot down a German "pig-a-back" bomber. After the war, Mr. Dinsdale finished his education at McMaster and the University of Toronto. He entered politics in 1951 as the member from Brandon-Souris. From 1957 to 1957 he served as the parliamentary assistant to the minister of veterans affairs.

In 1955 he was a delegate to the General Assembly of the United Nations. He has been a member of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews and a national consultant on the Canadian Citizenship Council.

Mr. Dinsdale is also active in Salvation Army work.

Taylor Beale extended the thanks of the Legion to the speaker.

More than 200 active servicemen and veterans attended the banquet. Head table guests were piped into the banquet hall. The list of guests included: Mayor Ross Sumner, Rev. Canon Fire Chief Cecil Ellis, Len McGaughey, Rose Fawcett, Major D. Riorden, Air Commodore F. S. Carpenter, Mayor James Murphy and Mrs. Murphy, T. J. Robinson, Senator W. A. Fraser, Lew Grills, MP, Leo Kinack, Lt. Ross Milligan, Rev. J. T. Irwin, Group Capt. R. Dundas, Lt. John Silver, MBE, Thorne Spear, commanding officer of the Air Cadet Squadron, Carman Livingstone, Norman Bakwell and WO1 John E. Kerr.

A toast to the Ladies' Auxiliary, who prepared and served the banquet, was proposed by Carman Livingstone and responded by the president of the auxiliary, Mrs. Ruth Clark.

Mayor MacDonald extended a civic welcome to the out-of-town guests and spoke briefly to the veterans. First vice-president of the branch, Kenneth Craddock, proposed a toast to the armed forces. This was responded to by Group Captain Schroeder. Rev. J. T. Irwin proposed a toast to the fallen. This was followed by two minutes' silence in memory of the casualties of the two World Wars and the Korean war.

The Best of Cheer

Frank Tumpane, the Toronto Telegram's columnist, notes a difference between men and women when it comes to watching election returns. Women are interested in the results, he says, but cannot understand the fascination of following the progress of the counting of votes.

"Wait until they finish the count and see who won" writes Tumpane. "Why you might just as well wait until the Stanley Cup playoffs are over to learn who won them . . . I like . . . all the analyses, summations, predictions and equivocations that go on all through the evening . . . It gives me a nice superior feeling to have one of the experts make a mistake I can spot. What other game gives you the chance to feel you could do better than the participants?"

What other game? Why football, of course. Not better than the players, but better than the coach. What bigger thrill than sitting in the living room, darkened by drawn curtains, these late Saturday afternoons, with a can of beer in hand. What a glow of satisfaction when the coach or quarterback has the good sense to time in on your wave length and try the play you have selected and see it pick up a good solid ten or twenty yards! What agony when the dumb chuck has a pass intercepted when he should have been hitting the centre of the line. If your team wins, all went well, in spite of the fact that they didn't play it exactly the way they should have. If your team loses, there is the consolation that it is not really a poor club, it just lacks proper direction. Why in the third quarter, when they were at the 30-yard line, if they had only - - - -

Beats politics every time. And we have two more of the best weekends left to us, before the season closes at Vancouver in the Grey Cup. That is the acid test. Most of us armchair quarterbacks, though, pass it with flying colors every year. And, as a matter of fact, it is extremely difficult to find one of us who ever lost a Grey Cup game. Oh, sometimes our team didn't win —but it would have if it had followed our directions.

Companion for Nyet?

Remember "Nyet?"

It became a by-word in the days when the Russians' main occupation was registering another veto in the UN Security Council or, alternatively, staging a walkout.

Was the disease catching?

There are disturbing signs that the U.S. may have come down with a variety of the same ailment.

Wednesday, in a surprise move, Ghana and Guinea sought to postpone the debate in the UN Assembly on the Congo until a 15-nation Afro-Asian commission endeavors to compromise the differences between the rival Congolese politicians.

Any such peace-making effort would appear worth a try. But the U.S. endeavored to delay a vote on the postponement motion. It lost.

On the face of it, if the neutralist African and Asian nations can propose workable solutions to the problems which have arisen, then surely that is the creation of independent nations out of former colonies of white nations, these white nations ought to be grateful—and have sense enough to keep as much out of the picture as possible.

It so happens, however, that Guinea is on good terms with the Soviet Union and Ghana shares Russia's view that Lumumba should be considered head of the Congolese republic.

Far from being a reason for opposing Guinea and Ghana, this ought to make the West doubly cautious about rejecting the Afro-Asian view.

Instead, the involuntary reaction appears to be fairly accurately reflected in the Associated Press report on Tuesday which, in the first paragraph, referred to "Soviet backed moves favoring ousted Congo premier Patrice Lumumba." These moves were supported by the Soviet Union, it is true, but surely the more important fact was the sponsors of these moves—which were not Communist countries but Ghana, Guinea and six other Asian or African nations. This fact was not mentioned until two paragraphs later.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DEVOTION

This fall an acquaintance of mine was honored on the occasion of his silver jubilee. This recognition took place at opening exercises of the university where he has taught for fifty-two years, and where he is still teaching. He notes that in a century he has seen the students come and go on the same campus. Several hundred of his friends have been children of his former students, for the last five years, he has begun teaching grandchildren of his former students.

His record is enviable, and one that few can hope to equal. Relatively few men and women are able to be of service in their professions when they become eighty. And not everyone finds a life-long task which he enjoys so much that he would not exchange it for any other.

But the most impressive aspect of his lifetime of service is his loyalty and devotion to the institution and to his work. His university is not large or prosperous. Many times during the years he could have bettered himself financially by going to another. Or he might have left teaching altogether to pursue more lucrative work. In his ambition to attain a certain ideal he did not disdain money. He just learned how to put it in its proper place.

His service is rewarded now by the love and respect of his colleagues, the affection of half a generation of students, and his own satisfaction in a job well done and a trust fulfilled.

When did the universe begin and how? What will be its ultimate end?

There are three theories that I would like to discuss in this and the succeeding articles.

We'll start with what may be called "The Big Bang Theory."

Mr. Bird's eyes view of this theory is that the universe began with a Big Bang 10 to 20 billion years ago. The universe has been expanding ever since. It will ultimately expand so far that it will become empty and featureless and will die. What then happens the universe will be a graveyard for the dead, the dark and the frozen.

Scientifically the Big Bang Theory seems to have the latest following. The universe was born in a fiery explosion and will end in frigid darkness.

Our universe is thought by some astronomers to be expanding every second at up 300,000 miles per hour. The universe is composed of over 1 billion visible galaxies (immense groups of stars like our Milky Way). These galaxies are of the various proportions of our Milky Way galaxy, for example, measure a hundred thousand light years across, 600,000,000,000,000 miles wide by 120,000,000,000,000,000 miles thick.

Mixed within many of the galaxies are vast clouds of gas and dust which, it is said, may have been created originally and out of which stars are being born. Hydrogen gas is the "making" of the universe.

Earth alone is a whole up of stars. Our Milky Way galaxy has about 100 billion stars. Our star is a sun. Some of these stars are nearly as small as the Earth, others are very large. The Sun's diameter is 850,000 miles. The diameter of the star Canopus Aurigæ is about 1,800,000,000 miles.

LIKE GRAIN OF SAND

Our Sun is a very ordinary member of the star group in the nine planets, of which the Earth is one. Our Sun and its nine planets are called the "Solar System" (it is a tiny drop in the bucket related to the size of the Milky Way galaxy, of which it is a part.) (If you can't call one grain of sand a part of all the sand beaches of the world!) Pluto, the likely boundaries of millions, if not billions, of other systems comparable to the Earth.

Distances in the universe simply annihilate the imagination. It is 93,000,000 from the Earth to the Sun (it is 1-4 that way across the star Antares) 63,000,000,000 miles significant. The closest star to our Sun is Alpha Centauri — it is 25,000,000,000,000 miles away. The closest galaxy to us is 9,000,000,000,000,000,000 miles (nine billion light-years). The farthest measured galaxy is known to be about 36,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 miles away. (Travelling at 186,000 miles per hour it would take 6,000,000,000 years to reach it. The universe, as everything in it, is made up of atoms. Atoms are so small that 1,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 in a single drop of water.

There are some of the fantastic sizes involved in the universe. How did it all happen and when? Where did it all come from and where is it all going?

A GIGANTIC BALL

Many scientists reason that if the universe is flying apart at such tremendous speeds, that it must first have been very very close together. They go on and say that at one time the whole universe was one gigantic ball which exploded with a "Big Bang" ten to twenty billion years ago. As the big ball exploded, billions of hot gas suns were spewed out into space through the void. The gases then cooled they formed into stars and planets. The stars gradually began to pull out to radius in this whole process were born all of the stars we know. We know ranging from helium to uranium and the heavier elements. Every short half-lives.

What existed before the "Big Bang" is a question that we'll enter at least at the moment. It is the realm of religion and philosophy, which I do not propose to discuss.

It seems to be clear that the age of the Earth's crust is about five billion years and if that is so, then, the Earth is somewhat younger than the universe, as is our Sun which is at least as old as the Earth.

The Sun formed gradually from the gas and dust spread throughout the universe during the "Big Bang, the planet also formed to circle about the Sun. This planet building no doubt took place with billions of other planets.

Thus, there was the "Big Bang" followed by a slow mopping up of gas and dust formed into stars and planets. There were many collisions and eventually things settled down to a stage of greater stability as matter became less dense and more dispersed.

EARTH DEVELOPED EVENLY

The Earth would seem to have evolved like a rolling snowball, picking up material as it revolved around the Sun during the mop-up period long after the "Big Bang". The Earth is hot and molten at its centre. It is unlikely that the Earth was ever molten at its surface, although there can no longer be seen that it started out that way. The Earth survived the mop-up period when collisions and chaos seemed to prevail, because it was not spaced between its neighbors and because it had a stable rotation around its centre. It developed evenly because its rotation was fairly even (it never during its orbit gets too far out into space to cause or too close to the Sun to burn. (Clearly, I do not wish to relate together the timing of the "Big Bang" and the formation of our Earth.

It is said that there are approximately 100,000,000 stars in the universe. Some of these are created when the "Big Bang" (some have since exploded, some have since died and can no longer be seen) some were created long after the "Big Bang" and are in the building process now. (Our Sun is a middle-aged yellow star.) Some are white and blue-white and some of the brightest stars are reddish) and the oldest shining stars seem to be "White Dwarfs" which may be ready to explode in dying agony).

It is thought that the initial "bang" lasted only a few minutes, especially by cosmic time.

Since the "Big Bang" and the "mopping up" period have been flying farther and farther apart with increasing speed.

DEATH OF UNIVERSE

The "Big Bang Theory" maintains that the state of dispersal will never cease but will go on indefinitely. The universe becomes a featureless emptiness.

The stars in the galaxies will burn themselves out and after all the stars in the universe are transformed itself into stars, the universe will be a place of life — dead, silent and cold. Then, there will be no more energy and the motion of the dead in the cold dark.

That, then, is the Theory of the "Big Bang" (or the Explosion Theory, according to others) called the Theory of the Primordial Atom.

We'll next look at what I call "The Accordion Theory", where the universe rolls back and forth upon itself in perpetual motion, going and destroying.

To be continued.

Love Beats Book as Guide

Montreal Gazette

By and large, a parent who loves his children is the best guide to be a source of strength and kindness than one who has memorized all the admonitions himself with the book of rules. For he cannot even be sure that the rules will remain the same. Certainly the old rule that a mother ought not to pick up her baby and cuddle him couldn't remain in the book very long. Nature was too strong and too sensible. And there are many other examples children can get back to loving on another.

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

During sessions of the City Council and on special occasions, the mayor of Belleville has henceforth worn a special gown befitting his high Office. By a motion passed at the regular session on Tuesday night by Aldermen Rollins and Pringle, the Council-roller was given authority to purchase a special gown for the use of the Mayor. Alderman Rollins in speaking to the motion stated that there should be some way to distinguish the Mayor from the remainder of the council on all occasions. The members were in unanimous agreement with the suggestion.

Dr. James Semple will address the morning congregation at Bridge Street United Church on the occasion of their anniversary.

Mrs. Jedediah Walter Johnson of Hamilton visited with her parents in the city over the weekend.

Hosts: Gerald Pybus of Petawawa and Mrs. T. R. Pybus of Kingston, were guests of Mrs. Pybus' sister, Mrs. C. Sundays.

Dr. Dorothy Turville, Dean of Women at Western University, was the guest of Mrs. R. Pringle while in the city to address the luncheon meeting of the Women's Canadian Club.

Dr. Don Strickland, home on leave from the Naval Barracks at Esquimalt, B.C. is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Strickland on William Street.

30 YEARS AGO

November 14th, 1930

The civic political pot may be boiling but if it is, few people have heard any rumblings. This year promises to be one of the quietest municipality and aldermanic elections in years. Sometimes it is advisable to come out before the contest is fought. Interest is bound to be aroused in it by some important question to be placed before the electors.

A mighty big sturgeon has been caught in a net near Big Island Bar at Amherst Island, in the Bay of Quinte. The sturgeon tipped the scale at 125 pounds and measured six feet in length and nearly four feet in girth. Reginald Millinan and Robert Hickey made the catch.

40 YEARS AGO

November 14th, 1920

Last night a large transom over the store, now occupied by Benjamin Hagerman in Bawden Township, was destroyed by fire. The flames contained the season's crops and many farm implements. Cause of the fire has not yet been ascertained.

This fall, Greece, who has been superintendent of Belleville General Hospital for some years, left for Toronto. Miss Morrison, assistant superintendent of the hospital, will have resigned their positions, to take effect from today. Mr. Gordon Black of Kingston spent yesterday here with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Black of Hillside Farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Brenner have returned home after visiting friends in Flint, Mich.

50 YEARS AGO

November 14th, 1910

The Rev. R. C. Blagrave of Christ Church addressed a Layman's Missionary Movement in Madoc last evening.

School Inspector W. J. School Inspector H. J. Clarke reported to the School Board that the registration of school-ars in the city public schools during October numbered 1,176 and the average attendance was 1,061.

Mr. Richard Burke and family have left for Toronto where they will reside.

Messrs. S. W. Vermilyea, R. Zufelt, J. Thompson, Collard and J. D. Thrasher have returned home after a successful hunting trip to Northern part of the country.

The Rev. G. Smith is spending several days in Campbellford.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

MANY POSSIBLE CAUSES FOR INFLAMMATION OF MOUTH

"Dear Dr. Molner: What is stomatitis? Is it sometimes caused by gold salts given for arthritis?—Mrs. R. H. H."

Stomatitis, is an inflammation of the membranes of the mouth. It includes a multitude of varieties and causes of sores in the mouth, by definition, is a form of stomatitis, but there are many others. Sores in the mouth may occur along with acute infections, such as scarlet fever or measles, or others which are associated with fever, cold sores, caused by a virus, are another form. Canker sores, which result from a variety of causes, are still another form.

Still another type, fungus infections, can cause an inflammation that is particularly distressing in infants.

Today's inquiry asks whether gold salts, sometimes given for arthritis, can cause stomatitis. Yes, they can. So can some other medicines containing heavy metals. Mercury can cause it also, although it is now used in medicines far less than in the past.

In recent years, fever blister or cold sores has appeared on the stomatitis, ranging from a mild irritation to the appearance of ulcers and swelling of the teeth and gums, sometimes with bleeding.

Eating solid food, in a severe case, may be impossible and the acute stage of the affliction has subsided.

Obviously there isn't any single treatment. The antibiotics, if they are caused by a virus, aren't the answer. They aren't going to have much effect on a rule against virus or fungus cases. They may, however, help in some other instances.

And antibiotics aren't going to help in one other large category of stomatitis causes which I am mentioning last for the sake of emphasis: Allergy or sensitivity to certain foods, tooth powders or pastes, even tooth brushes. In occasional cases there may be sensitivity to substances in spite of all the thought that goes into trying to avoid using substances which can cause allergies. Some people seem to be allergic, at times, to even the safest foods.

Thank You!

Dear Dr. Molner: The base of my spine has been painful since the birth of my third baby. My doctor said I had injured my — it sounded like "sickels" — and if it didn't get better I may have to have it removed. Is surgery the only answer — Mrs. P. D."

It's the coccyx, pronounced "cock-six," which is also known as the "tailbone" or extension of the end of the spine.

It is sometimes bruised in childbirth. When this happens, it is often sensitive for a little time. Give it a chance to mend naturally. It usually does. If it doesn't heal, it can be treated by massaging muscles attached to it, but allow a number of months for nature to take care of matters.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What causes granulated eyelashes and how can it be cured?—Mrs. M. J."

Chronic infection is the usual cause. Allergy may be a factor. Your eye doctor is the one to determine which — and specify the appropriate treatment.

Sometimes that is impossible even if you eat a lot. In such cases, you'll have to make sure you are getting necessary nourishment. Write to Dr. Molner, care of The Chicago Sun Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Murray Hill, N.Y. and ask for his pamphlet, "Vitamins, The Affluent Nutrients." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 10c in coin to cover mailing and postage.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NEVER BACK-STEP

Many of us at times grow discouraged and feel like taking back-steps but none of us should allow the mind to dwell on such a possibility. Forward March should be our urge throughout life.

We must keep giving encouragement to others and grow stronger in self-reliance every day of our life. We must keep the ship of State on an even keel and encourage others to do the same.

We can surprise ourself in keeping our ship up above the water, set upon a place of height, where the hills are, and the sunshine greets and smiles at Earth, and the activity of Nature is never dull nor uninteresting.

All about us there is such a big community we have to work ahead with confidence and security. Never acknowledge that you are through. Call to mind the brave and strong leaders whom you often as much admire.

We should ever keep in mind that Henry Ford and Thomas Edison who said that he was "Not the Captain of my Soul."

Never back-step. March forward, and keep that Victory Urge free of all discouragement. Why should not each one of us realize that we have the world at our feet and should look out upon Nature as though the whole universe belonged to us? One of the reasons why we have about us people and things to give life and hope.

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

The wives of public men must be ladies of extraordinary intelligence, patience and forbearance. Not only at election time but probably throughout the year, except in summer, they see little of their husbands and must accept platonic companionship of quiet evenings.

It seldom occurs to the chairmen of speakers' committees of public meetings that the unpaid, unsalaried aides of the four-day week and its tremendous potential.

Few workers realize that this is the opening to an era long-awaited by the idle rich, of more and less work, more and more time of our own.

Now, this is not kill-joy treatment of that problem for something that goes hand-in-hand with a high standard of living. Unemployment in the wealthiest economy is linked with unemployment of people and money.

Sweden like all these — and a rate of immorality, suicide and general crime among the highest known.

Most of us smirk when this 20th Century is compared with the immorality of Rome which ate away the Roman Empire] long ago.

The four-day week may seem ludicrously insignificant and the farthest cry away from that sort of downfall. But today's accepted standard of living is a signal blaze begins from a tiny flame.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

'Spielbank' in Baden-Baden Is Poor Man's Monte Carlo

BADEN BADEN, West Germany (CP) — Nobody laughs when you sit down to play.

The Spielbank, oldest gambling casino in Europe and the most famous with the exception of Monte Carlo, accepts money from the poor as well as the rich.

The croupier's rake scrapes in the 50-cent chip just as deliberately as the $250 chip — and just as often.

The only difference between Monte Carlo and the Spielbank in Baden Baden literally, Baths, Bathe, but which can also be loosely translated as "The Cleanses is that you can't tie up your yacht at this resort.

The admission fee is only three marks about 75 cents. If this is a come-on, it works, because the casino is jammed every night, including Sunday.

The minimum bet at the 20 roulette tables is two marks, about 50 cents and the maximum 6,000 marks or about $1,500. The big majority of patrons look as if they are better acquainted with the maximum than the minimum.

The play is deadly serious, bets odds as high as 37 to 1. The players are as intent as grim as marble statues. There is hardly any noise in the soaring rooms. Thick carpets muffle footsteps and the patrons speak in whispers. Even the occasional harsh arguments between a croupier and a dissatisfied players are carried on in violent undertones and with angry eyes.

The management appears able to keep out known confidence men and ordinary thieves by requiring each patron to show his passport on the way in. The croupiers speak most European languages or at least that part of the languages dealing with the numbers game. But the operative language is German, which is hardly surprising in Germany.

The chief cashier can tell what denomination chips you want with a flick of the eye and he prods deep into your wallet before you've produced it.

Most of the patrons sitting at the tables keep cards on the numbers as they turn up. Some carry horoscopes. Other players and hitchhikers stand four deep behind these seated shock troops.

The overseer at each table sitting on a high chair in his hat and tucker, keeps darting eyes on which patrons bet on which numbers. He can thus decide any argument over whose chips are on the winning number.

At the big table, where the minimum bet is five marks, about $1.25, elegantly dressed women wearing vast quantities of jewels and elderly men with shaking wallets often bet $50 or $100 a spin. With a spin every three or four minutes, this can amount to a fair sum by the time the Spielbank closes at 3 a.m.

In the outer bar, where coupled dance, don't try to order a drink. The most expensive liquor or champagne are sold.

An escort home is available for big winners, who appear rare. But Baden Baden is so refined and quiet, muggings are practically unknown.

On a recent night, this inconspicuous sign, in three languages, appear near the exit:

"We wish to draw the attention of our clients to the fact that the casino will be closed on Nov. 16 Day of Prayers and Repentence."

Attempt Made To Sink Sea Cadet Vessel

KINGSTON (CP)—An attempt was made during the weekend to sink the brigadine St. Lawrence II in her berth here.

Francis McLachlan, captain of the sea cadet vessel, reported that four lengths of garden hose had been placed in one of the forward portholes and a siphon had been started, pumping the water into the ship. Access to the ship had been gained by jimmying one of the wooden hatch covers on the deck.

The act was discovered by sea cadets finishing the preparations for winter storage.

A diesel generator and a bilge pump were retrieved from winter storage and the hold was pumped out. Damage was minor.

QUEEN LEADS TRIBUTE

LONDON (AP) — Standing alone with bowed head before the marble cenotaph, the Queen of Britain's tribute Sunday to 1,000 servicemen who fell in the world wars. The Queen placed a floral wreath at the base of the stark white monument in Whitehall in the annual Remembrance Sunday service. In silence, she stepped back and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan moved forward with the government's wreath.

Two Consent Judgments Made On Oil Cartel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civil anti - trust consent judgments were ordered today against two of the largest U.S. petroleum companies in partial settlement of the seven - year international oil cartel case.

The decrees prohibit any future agreements or combinations by the firms to fix prices, divide markets or allocate production, with any competitors in the world oil market.

Attorney-General William Rogers announced entry of the judgments before Judge John Cashin in New York.

At the same time, Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, one of the corporations accepting the consent decree, announced a major reorganization of its world oil operations.

The judgments result from government charges that five major American oil companies, with the collaboration of two British - dominated companies, conspired to control a majority of the world's oil with, refineries, tankers, pipelines and marketing facilities.

Joining with Standard of New Jersey in accepting the judgments was Gulf Oil Corporation. The anti-trust suit remains pending against Socony Mobil Oil Company (formerly Socony Vacuum Oil Company), the Texas Company and Standard Oil Company of California.

The settlement was partial in that only two of the five American companies involved in the charges accepted the consent decree. A consent decree is a legal device which avoids prosecution on the charge by the voluntary resignation of the practices objected to.

The decrees provide that Standard of New Jersey must terminate its joint ownership with Socony Mobil of Standard of Vacuum Oil Company which produces and refines oil in the Far East and markets oil products in that area, Southwest and South Australasia, and Socony Mobil in East Africa.

Standard - Vacuum properties will be equally divided between New Jersey Standard and Socony Mobil for two completely independent operations in the future.

Gulf Oil will be required to set aside 100,000 barrels of oil a day from that company's large crude production in the shutdown of Kuwait for a period of 10 years, placing this output at the disposal of independent oil companies.

orders from the Louisiana legislature to enforce checks of the city's public schools.

Reporters said at least 75 troopers were in the caravan. All were in plain clothes and appeared to be unarmed.

The legislature in Baton Rouge completed action Sunday night on three resolutions designed to block the integration decree. U.S. district Judge J. Skelly Wright quickly ordered the state legislature from interfering with the eight-year battle to integrate New Orleans schools.

The legislature, with leaders of Governor Jimmie H. Davis in complete control, had rammed through resolutions which called the New Orleans school system, authorized segregat-ei-a r m s hired to be put at schools to prevent integration, dismissed the New Orleans school superintendent and school board attorney, and declared a school holiday for today.

Administration and segregation leaders said an interposition suit would be filed in New Orleans, placing the sovereignty of Louisiana between the federal courts and the New Orleans school system.

This was described as the long-heralded states-rights challenge to federal authority, based on the 10th amendment to the U.S. constitution which reserved powers to the state not given to the federal government. It is the heart of the Davis-segregationist showdown over school integration.

Castro Supporters Clash Briefly With Mass-goers

HAVANA (AP) — Supporters of Premier Fidel Castro clashed briefly Sunday night with massgoers in Santiago Cathedral over the reading of its archbishop's anti-Communist pastoral letter.

Shouting revolutionary slogans and chasing Castro's hymn about 60 persons interrupted the Roman Catholic services. One woman was injured slightly in the scuffling that followed. Some of those involved were taken to police headquarters accompanied by reporters but were released later.

Earlier, the pro-Castro hecklers broke into each mass at the cathedral, but there had been no violence then over the pastoral letter, issued by Most Rev. Enrique Perez Serantes.

Entitled "Rome or Moscow", the letter did not mention the Castro regime directly but exhorted Catholics to rely more on their own strength and less on U.S. military and economic support in the war against communism. It was read only in the Santiago archdiocese, which does not include Havana.

Four Named To Key Posts On Commission

OTTAWA (CP) — Four men were named today to key behind-the-scenes posts on the new commission which will study the complete federal government organization.

They are Ronald S. Ritchie of Toronto, executive director; F. A. Milligan of Ottawa as research director; Prof. J. E. Hodgetts of Kingston as editorial director and R. J. Gratier of Montreal as executive secretary.

J. Grant Glassco of Toronto heads the three-man royal commission.

Dr. Hodgetts was born at Ennerce, Ont., and was a 1939 Rhodes Scholar from the University of Toronto. Following postgraduate work at Chicago and Oxford, he went to Queen's University at Kingston in 1946 as a lecturer in political science, becoming professor there in 1957.

He has been active in academic groups and publishing, including a stint as editor of the Queen's Quarterly, and is author of Pioneer Public Service, an Administrative History of the United Canadas. He has also collaborated in other publications.

Josephine's Night Out Is Expensive

HOUSTON (AP)—Josephine, a two-year-old spider monkey, escaped her cage in a department store Sunday night and entertained window shoppers for nearly two hours.

Every time Josephine threw a potted plant to the floor, the crowd laughed. And Josephine tried to please. Every laugh brought more smashed pots, 45 in all.

Somebody called the store manager and police when Josephine started throwing pots at the crowd. But she took one look at store manager Bill Secrest, and started swinging through the store via light fixtures.

Police tried bananas for a lure, but Josephine threw them back. Finally Mrs. Lois Boyer, assistant manager, arrived and coaxed Josephine back into her cage with woman talk.

Secrest was considering lowering the $49.95 price tag on Josephine today.

Some Promise In Recent Events Says Green

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — Secretary of State Christian Herter and Green said today the exchange of messages between President - elect John Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev are encouraging for disarmament.

Addressing the 99-member UN political committee, Green said: "There is some promise in recent events that our efforts here and the universal desire for progress on disarmament will yet yield results."

Green spoke in support of a Canadian - Swedish - Norwegian resolution on disarmament calling for renewed negotiations. The resolution urges impartial officers for a East-West negotiating body and an additional committee of middle and smaller powers to bring pressure on the nuclear countries to get negotiations going again.

Owner Granted Leave to Appeal

OTTAWA A(CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada agreed today to hear Toronto coin - operated laundries are breaking the law by remaining open Sundays.

The court granted Lewis E. Gordon of Sarnia leave to appeal against a decision of the Ontario Court of Appeal convicting him of violating the Lord's Day Act by operating an automatic laundry on Sunday.

Mr. Gordon was not called on to present argument in support of his application for leave to appeal. F. L. Wilson of Toronto, acting for the Ontario attorney-general, said he consented to the appeal and the court granted the application automatically.

WILL MEET POPE

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — Prime Minister Macmillan will be given an audience with Pope John Nov. 23, a Vatican spokesman said Sunday. Macmillan is due in Rome Nov. 21 for three days on a visit with Italian government leaders. Less than two weeks later, the Pope is scheduled to receive the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, who will be visiting Rome from Dec. 1 to Dec. 3.

Wedding

NANCARROW—PICKELL

A pretty wedding was solemnized in Bloomfield Methodist Church at 2 p.m. in North Trenton United Church, when the Rev. J. T. Erwin, B.A., united in marriage Rose Elaine Mellin Pickell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Pickell of Bloomfield, and Frederick Nancarrow, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Nancarrow of R.R. 1, Trenton.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her ballerina-length dress of pale blue nylon chiffon and lace over taffeta with fitted bodice and sweetheart neckline. She carried a cascade of pink Sweetheart roses.

Her bridesmaid was Miss Betty Bowman of Frankford, who wore a floor-length dress of pink nylon chiffon with matching accessories and carried a colonial bouquet of pink chrysanthemums.

Roy Gammon was Mr. Donald Ferguson of Frankford and the ushers were Mr. Don Nancarrow, brother of the bride groom and Mr. Richard Cooke, both of Trenton.

Following the ceremony, a wedding reception was held in the church parlors, where the bride's mother received the guests in a floor-length dress of navy velvet, purple wool with white accessories and corsage of white carnations. The bride's bridegroom's mother assisted, in a street-length dress of navy blue wool with lavender with matching accessories with corsage of white carnations.

Following a motor trip the happy couple will take up residence in Trenton.

Out-of-town guests were present from Marlatt, Stockdale, Campbellford, Belleville, Trent Bridge and Frankford.

The bride's cake, the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller of Frankford.

and is now in Marmora again. Mrs. Daniel Shannon, one of the charter member was not able to attend, owing to illness.

Mrs. S. A. Bowerman of Madoc showed slides of a trip to the west coast, showing many historical spots and several floral scenes also breath-taking roads through, or around the mountains.

Mrs. Jaireth and Mrs. Beatty were presented with pieces of Italian pottery.

Mrs. Nichol was asked to cut the birthday cake and a picture be taken for the Twenty-Year Book.

Refreshments were served and during the social hour Mrs. Jaireth favored with a piano solo.

Former members were present from Madoc, Kaladar and Bonarlaw. Mrs. McCrimmon, Eldorado district president brought greetings from the district and Mrs. S. A. Beatty tendered best wishes from the area. The excitement weather many were not able to attend.

Albert College Guild Enjoys Word Picture of Brazil

Last Thursday a large group gathered at the Manor for the regular meeting of the Albert College Guild.

Mrs. Bonney, the president, welcomed the guests and opened the Remembrance Day program with the hymn "O God Our Help in Ages Past."

Mrs. Bonney commented on the capable management of the tea under the direction of Mrs. Jeremy Brown and Mrs. Bonney thanked all who had contributed to its success.

The group voted that, whenever it was needed, the treasurer, Mrs. Ross Wills, be authorized to make a donation of $300 to Dr. MacKenzie to be used toward the furnishing of the girls' common room.

Mrs. Gillis, who was in charge of the program, opened the devotional period.

Mrs. Stonehouse read an article from a Brazilian paper by the Rev. Whitman, stressing the price paid by those who died for freedom and that remembrance should be a Christian duty. There is no greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

Miss Dowen led in prayer, asking that we be worthy of their sacrifice in the cause of peace.

Mr. Garth Jackson, a student at the Albert College, conducted the Mock Wedding, assisted by Mrs. Woodland, sang "My Own Dear Home."

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Gillis introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Santiago, a teacher at Albert College, and a native of Brazil.

In introducing Mr. Santiago, she said that world peace depended on the understanding and understanding of other countries and peoples.

Mr. Santiago gave the group a vivid word picture of Brazil, which is almost the size of Canada, but with more land under cultivation than Canada. The climate is good, with a moderate temperature.

The population of 60,000,000 which is growing at the highest rate in the world. Brazil also has the biggest Japanese colony outside Japan. They have a true racial theme, religious democracy and the country is considered politically stable.

HISTORY OF PEACE

Brazil has an outstanding history of peaceful change rather than revolutions, it became a republic in 1890 without bloodshing and the slaves were freed in 1888 without violence. They had been so years since 1850.

It was hard for the Negroes after they were freed because they had no land, food or education, social standing, but one Negro became president.

There is a close family life and social life centres in the home. Women have the right to vote and hold office. The people don't take themselves too seriously, but are outside and optimism.

Brazilians are still fighting illiteracy and all the ills accompanying poverty. There are schools but the education is thorough. They are proud of their architectural achievements.

curios and closed his address by showing slides of Rio, which is supposed to have the most beautiful setting in the world, and the new capital, Brasilia, the modern city has no traffic lights because no two streets cross at the same level and sidewalks and vehicles traffic on different routes.

The speaker, and others contributing to the program were thanked by Mrs. Fleming.

After observing two minutes of silence, Mrs. Hickey quoted the line by Dr. J. S. Arkwright, 1916: "O Valiant hearts, who to your glory came through dust of conflict and through battle flame; tranquil you lie, your knightly virtue proved, your memory hallowed in the land you loved."

A social half hour was enjoyed.

34th Birthday Marked by White Shrine

Another special event in the annals of "Bethlehem" White Shrine of Jerusalem No. 11, took place in the I.O.O.F. hall, when the Sojourners celebrated their 34th birthday. Sgt. Martha Armstrong, W.H.P., presided during the meeting.

Many visitors were present among them Sgt. F. Gerrard, W. H. P., Lilliock Shrine of Peterborough; Sgt. Pike, W. H. P. and Sgt. Pike, W. O. S., of Mississauga Shrine.

During the evening five Charter members were honored and presented with corsages, viewed were: Sgt. E. Anderson, R. Vick, J. Hearn, G. Smale, and Art Naylor.

Following the meeting, all adjourned to the upper hall, where the tables were prepared for a scrumptious banquet.

Sgt. J. Armstrong, W. O. S., acted as chairman.

The tables were lovely with tiny "mums of all colors, and yellow candles. At each place was a Hodenella Slipper filled with mints, at the head table, the centrepiece was a three-decker birthday cake, flanked by silver candelabras, with yellow candles and yellow bows.

Following the toast to the Queen, all joined in singing "Happy Birthday".

A toast to the Supreme Shrine was proposed by Sgt. Pike W.O.S. Mizpah Shrine, Kingston, was responded to by Sgt. D. Evans, P. W. H. P.; toast to charter members, proposed by Sgt. H. Vick, P. W. H. P., was responded to by Sgt. J. Finch, P. W. O. S.; toast to the guests proposed by Sgt. A. McCarey, responded to by Sgt. O. Newton, P. W. O. S.

A vote of thanks was extended to the refreshment committee, Sojourners Sgt. Williamson, Sgt. Niblick, M. Carmichael, A. Little and C. McKay.

Feted With Many Gifts

CAMPBELLFORD — A surprise bridal shower was given for Gwendoline Jacobs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Jacobs at the Jacobs' home, on Friday evening. The shower was sponsored by the attendant's sisters, Mrs. Tim Scriver and Mrs. Barbara Herrington.

A mock wedding was performed by Miss June Jacobs, Mrs. Edwin Little, Mrs. Fred Wilson, Mrs. Robert Scriver and Miss Barbara Jacobs. Mrs. Barbara Herrington sang the wedding march. The bride received a number of gifts and numerous cards of congratulation on her forthcoming wedding. She is a Reg. Nurse and employed at a, Peterborough hospital.

Company 2 GG Has Full 36 Complement

After registration, Company 2 has a full complement of 36 Guides. Candidates for Patrol Leaders gave their experiences, and the following girls were duly elected: Diane Chapman, Linda Jane Collins, Linda Guest, Heather Ogilvie and Karen Post. They, with the three other executives after consultation at Court of Honor. The members are Beatrice Bedford, Meribeth Clarke, Grace Clement, Louise Holtquist and Constance Ross.

With the Company in such good hands, things began to happen. While the recruits brought in some live (and some very dead) nature specimens, and others made lovely scrapbooks; the Guides, working on first class work, had a long hike to Zwick's Island, and enjoyed a cook-out over their own fires. Not to be outdone, the second class Guides completed their "trail laying" and soon had the water boiling over their fires. The recruits, after an hour on hikes, enjoyed the taste of outdoor life, especially the fact cocoa, wieners and marshmallows, not to mention the hot dogs, were provided prepared by the Guides working on first class. The weather was perfect on both outings. Interest in the Company's recruits were going ahead like wildfire, with company meetings and all are scrolled by Christmas. To a new Guide, the presentation of her pin and subsequent flooding of her uniform is the best present of all!

A full mouth came to an enjoyable close with a Hallowe'en party at which a Witch, a Troop of Boy Scouts were guests bedecked to say, it was a night of screams and spooky games with everyone taking part in the activities. Thanks to Heather Ogilvie, Leaders Lea Furney and Norman Wilcox who kept everything under control, without spoiling the fun.

COSTUME PRIZES

Best costume prizes were awarded to Carol Hughes, Nickie Hopwood-Jones and George Reed.

Proficiency badges were awarded to Linda Jane Collins, Orderly; Dale, swimmer's; Beatrice Bedford, Linda Jean Collins, Linda Guest and Heather Ogilvie, bone nurse. Grace Clement won her first aid and nurse badges on completion of her second class badge. Congratulations, Grace, for persevering.

Captain, Mrs. A. Street; Lieutenant, Miss J. Sulier; helpful mothers, Mrs. K. Collins and Mrs. E. Bedford.

United Church WMS Pr. Edward Section Holds 34th Rally

The 34th rally of the W.M.S. of the Prince Edward Section was held in Sandy Hill United Church on November 9th, with 92 present.

The theme was "Into All the World Together"; "Not by might nor by power, but by My Spirit," said the Lord of Hosts. "Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it." Mrs. Leon Ward of Bloomfield ville, vice-president, presided both morning and afternoon sessions.

The Rev. E. B. Cook led in prayers and the Bible study in Bloomfield W.M.S. conducted the worship service.

Mrs. Sykes spoke on "Faith," saying in part: "Faith is a substance and it is always related to religion. We undertake projects with faith; life itself is an adventure of faith; if our trust is in anything but God it is not good. Faith is taking God at His word, and following Him."

Mrs. Clarence Holmes introduced the guest speakers, Miss Aileen Rait, B.R.E., and Miss Miranda Rait, B.R.E. The candidate secretary, Miss Eleanor Unger, gave a splendid talk on the work in the western fields at home and abroad. She said, "If you have a friend who does not best you are dead, and as missions are the heart of the church, then the church is dead if it doesn't send to go into all the world and preach the gospel. This command is for all people. She urged the W.M.S. to send its young people to go to United Church Training School for two years. She said, "If our faith is firmly rooted in the Gospel it will stand."

A splendid solo, "God Hath Chosen Me" was sung by Mrs. Gordon Fox of Bloomfield.

Mrs. Frank Davidson brought greetings from the W.A. Belleville Presbytery. She likened the three organizations to the mariners of the two societies and it should be a happy union as each organization has a lot to give to the other.

Miss Literature secretary, Mrs. Percy MacAuliffe, gave a good report on literature. Roll call was taken and each secretary gave a report of its opinion on the forthcoming new woman's organization.

Mrs. Harry Pierson, secretary of temperance, spoke briefly on "World Friends," gave a comprehensive report on these.

The W. A. Quartette on behalf of the South Bay ladies, gave an address of welcome, followed by this a splendid dinner was given by the South Bay ladies.

During the afternoon the literature table was visited.

AFTERNOON SESSION

The afternoon session opened with quiet music. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. R. G. Coulter, who acknowledged generistic giving and said to set aside as much each week. The allocation this year was $29,562.00. Of this amount $17,300.00 has been sent to head office, leaving a balance of $12,262, to be sent by the end of the year. Anything raised above this amount is to go to G. B. A. The money which goes to G. B. A. is spent on any of the following: cars, scholarships, Indian work and radio work.

The stewardship secretary, Mrs. H. M. Davis, gave a fine talk; she said that all that some people knew about the church is what they see in you who are members of the church. When we help, it is really the Church of Christ doing it. If we refuse to help, we are failing the church. We are the church. Our habits either honor Him, or we dishonor Him. We cannot all go as missionaries, but our gifts can be used for the extension of God's Kingdom.

Nothing is great enough, or good enough for God. Our obligations in the new organization are the same as now."

The offering was received and dedicated by the ladies of Massassega W.M.S.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker, Miss Miranda Brown, B. R. E., brought a splendid account of her work in Western Canada, among the new Canadians, where she is teaching school. She told how one little girl, who could not speak a word of English, had given all her own small possessions to make others happy. Miss Brown also spoke of her social services work in the slum district in Sydney, N.S. where the Mission was situated among people of many nationalities, as well as human wrecks. She also spent much time working in the Canadian Girls in Training clubs in Hamilton, where she was Guide Captain of a large young people to go to United Church Training School for two years. She said, "If our faith is firmly rooted in the Gospel it will stand."

Miss Aileen Rait, B. R. E., spoke about her work at the Pond of Eeiry" in Halifax, and showed some beautiful and interesting pictures of her work there.

She also gave a good idea of what is to be done for the new Canadians when they first land in Canada. She said, "Help mould the little children are cared for, and the whole people are helped through the customs and on to their trains.

Mrs. Leon Ward thanked the ladies for their splendid talks.

The report of the business and courtesy committee was given by Mrs. Raymond Sinks as was invited to Cherry Valley for the 1961 session.

The following are the officers for next year's program — Mrs. Leon Ward, Bloomfield; hon. Mrs. Holmes Mathle, Bloomfield; Mrs. H. Alder, Bethel; business —

Point Anne W.A. Holds Fall Tea, Bazaar

Red poinsettias and paintings were the theme for the WEST NORTHERD of Christmas scenes for the bazaar and tea held in the hall and bazaar held by the ladies of the Point Anne W.A.

The tea was arranged, met the guests at the door and invited them to the tea table, which was convened by Mrs. Cecil Cumming.

The tea table, in keeping with the Christmas theme, was decorated with a Nativity scene over, which hung a mobile of flitting stars.

Mrs. A. McDowell and Mrs. N. Brown presided at the tea tables. The individual tea tables were covered with white luncheon cloths bib brow Hemstitched cloths with red and green candles set in pine cones as a centrepiece.

Those serving the dainty cakes and tarts were Mrs. F. Fleming, Mrs. E. Hutchinson, and Mrs. H. Sedore.

At the doorway to the tea room stood the fish pond for the children, supervised by Mrs. Bradshaw. Next to that was the parcel post with Mrs. Fred MacDonald in charge.

Mrs. J. Macomber and Mrs. W. Guay convened the bake table which held a variety of home baking, candies, jams and home made candy.

LOVELY ARTICLES

A lovely selection of articles was displayed at the miscellaneous booth, including hand knitted baby garments; doll clothes, large Christmas candles; glove boxes, aprons and crocheted articles. Mrs. E. Andrews, Mrs. Beatty and Mrs. H. Payne were in charge of this booth.

The ever-popular apron table displayed numerous aprons from the gaudiest to the sprous to practical over the shoulder styles. Mrs. E. Norwood convened this table.

Mrs. C. Sedore was in charge of tables for sale and exchange of plates at this delightful occasion.

Cobourg Presbytery United Y.P. Holds Rally in Frankford

Rev. Dr. D. Mansell Smith of St. John's United Church, Campbellford, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada, and ordinarily a preacher at any church, occasion, was one of the crowd at Cobourg Presbytery United Church Young People's rally in Frankford Rose Lowery Hall, Nov. 9. Likewise, the Rev. J. H. VanWalleghem of Hilton United Church, in a Boy Scout uniform, and some other clergy wh collars on backwards, failed to make any records in the potage race or baloon blowing activities, but were a great help in the singing at a hundred decibels, and some young adults almost brought the roof down with Negro spirituals. Lyle Whitehead was song leader and Neal Rootz set the pace on his electric guitar.

RETAINS PLAQUE

The Frankford group, with the largest number present, retained the plaque which they won at Roseneath in the spring rally, and president Colien Stickle of Brighton presented R. Frankford president Marilyn Hall welcomed the guests, which were about 50 boys and girls.

The worship service, conducted by the Camborne group, was an impressive one. The Bible as the Word of God and the speaker of the message was the newly-ordained Rev. Robert Nichols, who comes from Campbellford and is now in charge of the church at Plainfield. He was introduced by his brother, a banker, and gave an interesting talk on the theme, "The Line of Least Resistance." The worship services were enhanced not to evade the problems of life but to tackle them head on.

Messrs. D. Robins and A. Osborne gave reports as delegates to National Council at Hamilton.

All-Purpose Steamed Pudding For Christmas

By Mary Moore

T...

...to: We get an early start on Christmas foods for I have so much test cooking to do — and we like it.

Last night — Sunday night — when Barbara and Danny and Geoffrey were here, for dinner I served a steamed pudding which I hope many of you will try for Christmas dinner.

It is not the world's richest plum pudding but it is a dandy and I think will please the most ardent lovers of steamed pudding experts. Then there was a hard sauce to top it — and little Geoffrey-year-old Geoff polished off the last grains of that.

I hope you slip this now for Sunday's get an urgent request for it will be my steamed fruit pudding I will give between now and Christmas.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

MONDAY

...Pan - fried Fresh Chicken
...Livers with Bacon; Onions in Cheese Sauce; Harvard Beets; Sliced Cucumbers and Tomato Hearts; Apple Cottage Pudding with Nutmeg-Lemon Sauce; Coffee.

STEAMED FRUIT PUDDING:

... 1 cup chopped moist figs, 1 cup chopped pitted dates, 1-2 cup chopped citron peel, 1-4 cup sliced candied cherries, 1 medium-sized carrot, grated, 1 1-2 cups fresh chopped suet, chopped parsley, 2 1-2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, (or 2 teaspoons double-acting), 1 teaspoon each cinnamon-cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon ginger, 1-4 teaspoon allspice, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 cup white sugar, 2 eggs, beaten, 1-2 cup molasses, 1 cup buttermilk, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Measure the sifted flour and add to it the soda, baking powder, salt and spices. Measure the fruits and nuts and grated carrot into a large mixing bowl and mix the flour mixture through them. Add the suet, sugar, eggs, molasses, buttermilk and vanilla and mix well. Oil two fancy moulds well and turn batter into them, being sure moulds are not more than 2-3 full. Put on tight covers or lay double fold of foil or heavy waxed paper over top and steam 3 hours.

IMPORTANT NOTE:

If you are going to make these puddings early in December do not steam them in metal moulds. Use pudding bowls. If your moulds are metal, wrap them well and turn out of them to be stored.

I would recommend that you do not make these puddings too long in advance and better still, make them just before they are to be served. If they are made now they will require re-steaming for 1 hour, longer on serving day, and serve very hot with

HARD SAUCE

...1-2 cup butter until pale and airy ... about 8 minutes if in electric beater. Gradually beat in 1 1-2 cups icing sugar (or maybe a little more), alternately with 2 to 3 1-2 tablespoons cream.

NOTE:

There are folks in this audience who will want to add rum or brandy to this. If so it will absorb 2 or 3 tablespoons without any trouble — more if you like. Some folks prefer this to those who do not want to add rum or brandy, I would suggest adding 1 teaspoon of lemon flavoring. Pile hard sauce in mounds on serving dish, peaking it up at centre, sprinkle lightly with nutmeg and chill until hard.

THERE ARE hundreds of different kinds of baby books, any one of which will guide you in writing down your wee boy's great achievements. Use available is a new type that's almost all business, designed to help you to record your child's health and education data without other distractions.

MORE ABOUT WEDDING PLANS

Now for the next step in our wedding plans: the wedding invitation itself. Tradition has decreed that certain forms be followed in this regard, whether a wedding is to be large or small, great care should be taken to adhere to these rules, which have been laid down by custom. To deviate in any way results in lessening the dignity of this great occasion.

Wedding invitations usually are engraved on the first page of a double sheet of white paper (and it may be an off-white or light ivory). All invitations should be engraved, never printed. Black ink is always used. There are a few many choices in the lettering that one may be used. Script, Antique Roman and Shaded Roman are all used in good taste.

Remember, a wedding is always a legal ceremony, and in most instances a solemn religious rite. Therefore, invitations beaffid of decorative designs, colors or gilt "trimmings" are to be avoided entirely.

According to good usage, all invitations should be engraved in the third person. There should be no deviation from this form. The wording is always formal. Lines should be centered as evenly as possible, capitalization should be used only where necessary, and commas used sparingly. Periods are used only for the abbreviations of Mr., Mrs., Dr., and St.

The traditional wording of the formal wedding invitation is as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. John Francis
Proper request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter
Doris Jean
to
Mr. Philip John Brown
Monday, the fifth of December at three o'clock
National Cathedral.

Cards should be enclosed to give details concerning any social functions following the ceremony. These cards may be invitations to a wedding breakfast or reception. Those to be invited to the ceremony alone will of course receive only the invitation to the Church. Those bidden to the reception will, of course, find a small card enclosed with the ceremony invitation. It may read as follows:

Reception
Immediately following the ceremony at the Town Club
The favor of a reply is requested
Two East Fifth Street

Wedding invitations should be placed in the mail (all at same time) four weeks, at the least three, before the ceremony takes place.

It is wise to consult a reputable stationer when ordering the invitations. You will find him well versed in the correct formes to be followed and, should any problem arise due to family complications his advice will prove invaluable.

Why Diabetes Is Sneaky Disease

...ve called diabetes a sneaky ...se. Why? Because so many ...ople have it and don't know it.

...e American Diabetes Association estimates that there are ...4,500,000 known cases in the United States alone. Another 1,- ...000,000 people have diabetes but don't know it and there are ...4,350,000 who are "potential diabetics," that is, people with hereditaries cases, or people who will, sometime in their lives, develop diabetes.

That's partly why it's sneaky disease. Another reason is that since it is most likely to be discovered in people who are 40 and past 40, or who have been overweight, overweight, it is easy to write off the symptoms as a disease that develops in middle age or later.

This is only approximately true. Some diabetes actually knows no particular age group, just as it does not confine itself to any economic class. It can strike in old age or in infancy, with all the gradations between. And the earlier it starts, the more watchful we have to be, because it is almost always an explosive and severe case when it affects a child or teen-ager, or in general any young person. (About 10% of diabetics are children.)

RISK IS GREATER

A family history of diabetes increases the chance of having it. If one parent has diabetes, a child's chance of developing the disease — soon or late — is greater. If both parents have diabetes, the child's risk of having it, someday, is vastly much higher. If neither parent has diabetes, but grandparents, or even aunts and uncles have it, the disease is present in the family tree, and the child has some chance, eventually, of getting it.

It is entirely possible for diabetes to lay a heavy hand on one's family without one knowing it. So that's another sneaky thing.

The answer? Know the symptoms — and also have an occasional test which, unfortunately, is inexpensive.

Symptoms to watch for: Excessive thirst, frequent urination, fatigue, weight, fatigue, changes in vision, genital irritation, boils and skin itching.

(Note that any of these obviously can come from other causes. It's the pattern that counts, and the pattern is useful to tell you when it's a good idea to have an immediate test for the disease itself.)

The first test can be (a) a urinalysis, or (b) a blood sugar test. Either is a satisfactory test, but the former is the simpler and cheaper, and thus is the accepted "screening test" since it can readily be used for ...numbers of people. The blood sugar test then can be used for conclusive answers or any suspicious or doubtful cases resulting from the first test.

Diabetes frequently can be found early by analysis of a urine specimen taken about two hours after a big meal. This sometimes discloses the presence of sugar — the significant test for diabetes, of course — at a somewhat earlier date than it can be detected with the traditional test with a specimen taken the first thing in the morning. Better still is a blood sugar test taken two hours after a big meal.

PARKDALE BAPTIST W.M.S.

The Ladies' Missionary Fellowship of Parkdale Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. Warren for their November meeting. It was opened by the singing of some choruses. Mrs. Hannah led in prayer.

Following the business part of the meeting Mrs. Ernest read the Scripture, taken from II Corinthians 8: 1-9.

Mrs. Snyder had charge of the prayer time, and read I John 4: 7-21. She asked the study was followed by a season of prayer.

Mrs. Blake presided over the meeting. She asked the study of II Corinthians 8: 9, "For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though He was rich, yet for your sake He became poor, that ye through His poverty might be (made) rich." She asked the question, "Are you poor?" and then said Lady Yet, for those unknown to him, forces have holes, and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of man hath not where to lay His head."

Christ left His home in heaven and came to earth to live among men. In heaven the angels glorified Him. But on earth His was rejected by men. He died on the cross for our sins, and rose again, that through His poverty and suffering we might be given the riches of our eternal life in heaven. Just then the organist, at our personal Lord and Saviour, Friday Christ has made us rich."

The following half hour was spent in rolling bandages to be sent to the leper colonies.

Mrs. Ernest and Mrs. Warren served Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Olsen lovely shower gifts on behalf of the ladies in the group.

Mrs. Mitchell closed the meeting with prayer.

Lunch was served and a time of fellowship was enjoyed by all.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, labor editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers.

Nora B. — It's not right to pass personal letters around.

Clarice S. — She can pass mine around, it's a short one.

Nora B: I was horrified to learn that my cousin, Clarice, carries my letters around in her pocketbook and either reads them out loud to anyone who'll listen or lets them read my mail for themselves. Clarice and I used to be very close when we lived in the same apartment house so now that I've moved to a Midwest city I count on her every letter including certain confidences.

It's bad enough to accept what I tell her when she visits me, or when we go to Clarice's home, if she gets it wrong I can deny it, or correct the wrong impression. But when I write her I put things in my own handwriting, things that are meant, whether she likes it or not, for her eyes, what comebeck do I have?

For example, I told her I was saying a fur coat on time payments. That's nobody's business but mine and the store's. It's just bad enough to accept what I tell her when she visits me, or when we go to Clarice's home, if she gets it wrong I can deny it, or correct the wrong impression. But when I write her I put things in my own handwriting, things that are meant, whether she likes it or not, for her eyes, what comeback do I have?

For example, I told her I was saying a fur coat on time payments. That's nobody's business but mine and the store's. It's just bad enough to accept what I tell her when she visits me, or when we go to Clarice's home, if she gets it wrong I can deny it, or correct the wrong impression. But when I write her I put things in my own handwriting, things that are meant, whether she likes it or not, for her eyes, what comeback do I have?

Clarice S: Look, Nora should have more confidence in me than to think I'd do anything to hurt her. Doing so far away as she lives everything she hears and then she makes it worse.

First of all, no one knows about the fur coat. I'm keeping my hold on to that letter. But I did pass the word that she's getting the longest coat in town. What's wrong? I saved Nora having to pay sales tax. I also passed on to a dozen other friends who are interested.

Then, some of her letters aren't really personal. They just tell about her family feeling, how she's spending her time, whom she sees, what she's planning to do, who she invests in her. It's the sort of news she could be writing to anyone.

I think she should trust me. I try to use good judgment. I'm careful what I show and to whom I show it.

I'll tell Nora this. She's free to show my letters around unless something is a crime or something! It's a sa...er than writing to mutual friends and relatives out there who are interested. I like to keep in touch with them and if one letter can count for 12 or so, fine!

Council: Once a letter leaves the hands of the writer, anything can happen. So the general rule is letter-writer beware!

As for personal letters, one must be guided by the sensitiveness of the individual and by people's feelings. Clarice, quoting correspondent like Grade XIII, proved herself far more the merrier. An unduly touchy individual takes the position that Clarice is free to write letters received as a means of self-aggrandizement or of gaining the floor for herself, regardless of the feelings of the writer.

There is a middle course. In some large families or circles of friends, it is agreed that certain letters bearing general interest will be passed on. Any member who gets them first. Deep dark secrets are, naturally, not. They would be embodied in special notes, with underlined exhortations to pass them on to no one. Evidently Clarice, to Nora's regret, does not know the difference.

But she must assure Nora that this sort of correspondence from first to last, unless Nora gives permission for limited or unlimited circulation. Else Nora will feel as inhibited as if she were addressing a radio or TV microphone on a national hookup! Which, actually, she must try to prepared for Clarice to take her literally.

Peter Rabbit Tops Kids' TV Fare

By Sydney J. Harris

I have been meandering pleasantly through the newly published autobiography, "How I Remember," by Thornton W. Burgess, the man who delighted my childhood with his series of "Peter Rabbit" stories in the newspapers.

Maybe pondering of my mental arteries is setting in, but I find nothing more delightful than of children's reading one-tenth as pleasing, charming and (in a sense) informative as the old Burgess tales.

This Fall, I must confess, we finally succumbed to the television lure of television, wholly because I wanted to see a new series of plays by Rod Serling on programs in which I have a personal interest.

I expected to be appalled by the sadistic Westerns and gunmen mysteries that children watch—but I did not expect that even the specially "good" children's programs would be so inane, so fatuous, so unimaginative, so cheaply contrived and so ponderously coy.

Except for an occasional glimmer of light, such as "Captain Kangaroo," or a mildly amusable offering called "Huckleboot," the children are subjected to dullness, unreasoning staleness and a moronic content that has engulfed even Howdie (aged 6½) to stalk out of the room in bored disgust.

This is not even to mention the commercials aimed at children, which, fortunately are so fatuous and exaggerated and gymblette that after a week Mi-

Educational Work Stressed By I.O.D.E.

Since last week was educational week in Ontario, the report of the educational convener of Mrs. K. Pinkham was heard with interest by the members of St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E. at the regular monthly meeting on Monday.

The report concerned first the local work stating that Chapter had presented a $25 award to Don Purdy now attending Waterloo College, at the Music Secondary School commencement, and at the Quinte Secondary School Commencement had presented a $100 bursary to Lynne Fuzzen, who is entered in an honors course at Queen's University.

On November 3rd, the regent, Mrs. Marshall Patterson and Mrs. Putman had visited the local adopted rural school delivering copies of a "Remembrance Day" message, an I.O.D.E. calendar and arranging with the teacher for the purchase of books to be added to the school library.

CHAPTER AWARDED

In the Provincial Chapter, two $1,400 scholarships had been awarded, one to a girl in Chapter proceeding to universities, and two bursaries each of general interest — free loans had been granted from the Lucy Morrison Memorial Fund to worthy students from all areas of the province. The National Chapter had stated that almost $200,000 had been spent in educational work last year all across Canada.

The regent thanked all those who had worked so hard to make the International Fair held by the chapter a success and called on the various convenors to report. Mrs. G. Hume concluded her report of the Fair by reading two letters, one from Belleville, I.O.D.E. National convener of education, and one from Toronto congratulating the St. Julien Chapter on the success of the Fair, and asking that an account of the event be written for publication in the Echoes Magazine, "Echoes". The second letter was from Mr. Ryan, Chief Officer of the Department of Immigration, Ottawa, also requesting an account to be published in the magazine, "The Citizen". Mrs. Hume announced that the International Fair court will be held in Belleville on November 8.

Mrs. J. Darvell made arrangements for members to help at the Blood Donor Clinic held on November 8.

FUND CONTRIBUTIONS

Mrs. Pattenden announced that the Eskimo Fund for the new hospital at Pangnirtung, Baffin Bay having been oversubscribed, it was decided to build a second one at Tuktoyaktuk at the mouth of the MacKenzie River. Further donations will be received for this purpose.

Poppy corsages were made for a "Poppy Day" wreath to be purchased and for representation to be placed at the Remembrance Day service and placed in the cenotaph on November 11.

ST. JOHNS, Que. (CP) — Flying Officer Viola Savage of Victoria, an administrative officer with the RCAF, says she has a hobby of tagging wild bees with a fleck of paint and following them to hives with field glasses. She says that in 15 years following this hobby she has never been stung.

Canada Bidding for Place In British Fashion Market

By JUDITH AYER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Canada is once again bidding for a place in the British fashion market.

People representing the distinct facets of the Canadian fashion industry are in London. The Montreal Dress and Sportswear Manufacturers' Guild, which promotes ladies' ready - to - wear clothes, and Mrs. Barbara Thornton, who handles custom models.

Mrs. Thornton, who has spent the last 12 years in Canada, is appealing to the more exclusive shops and boutiques with her three lines of afternoon and cocktail wear from Toronto.

"What I really want to do," she told a reporter, "is establish Canada's reputation in the field of original design and quality workmanship."

The garments she shows are soft and feminine, mostly printed in silk. She describes them as "figure-flattering."

"People don't seem to realize that we have a lot of creative designers with originality. They go to Paris and Rome, and use the ideas from there and then put their own to produce something quite new. I feel they have something to offer the fashion world. In fact, that is one of the reasons I'm here."

The 10 members of the Montreal guild are getting a big government market altogether. Wherefore "figure-flattering" is the word. A 16 per cent of the market-women who can afford higher-priced dresses—outfits by guild members will be accessible to almost everybody.

At a combined fashion show in Montreal, the best of the guild's clothes were presented to buyers and the press.

The reaction to these clothes was good.

Sound More Optimistic Note In Control of Elm Tree Disease

TORONTO — For some time the Department of Lands and Forests has been concerned about the spread of Dutch Elm Disease. The report of Dr. L. T. White which is part of this release, while defining and describing certain new information, in main confirms what has been known about this disease.

(Dr. White is director of the Regional Research Laboratory (Forest Biology) at Maple, outside of Toronto.)

Dr. White's optimistic report on the situation follows:

The introduced Dutch elm disease which had slowly advanced over a large area in the valley of the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Rivers and into the eastern countries of Ontario since its discovery in 1944 near Sorel Quebec, greatly extended its range following an additional introduction from the United States into the southwestern regions of the province in 1950. Today the disease is known to be present in 40 counties and districts in Ontario.

All species of American and European elms are susceptible to infection. Although there is a wide range of susceptibility, no American elm is resistant. Several European strains, notably the Christine Buisman and the Bea Schwartz elms, are relatively resistant but not immune to attack. Chinese and Siberian elms are considered to be resistant.

CAUSED BY FUNGUS

Dutch elm disease is caused by a fungus which, as a parasite, develops in the water-conducting vessels of the sapwood where it produces spores and a toxin that is carried in the sap stream to distant parts of the trees. The first symptoms of the disease are wilting, curling, and yellowing of the leaves on one or more branches; a condition called "flagging". These symptoms are followed, usually, by premature leaf-fall and death of the wilted branches.

In some affected trees, a few branches may wilt at a time and die slowly over a period of years. In other trees, all branches may wilt and die within a few weeks. A brown streaking develops in the sapwood of wilted branches which, in cross-section, may appear as a series of dots in a single wood ring. After the death of the tree, the fungus continues to grow as a saprophyte producing "sticky" spores on the inner surface of the bark, on the outer surface of the wood and in insect galleries in the bark or wood.

A native elm bark beetle carried the disease from diseased to healthy trees in the eastern counties but the European elm bark beetle, introduced with the disease in 1950, has become by far the more common and important carrier of the disease in the southwestern regions of the province. By 1959 the advancing front of the range of the European elm bark beetle lay through Bruce, Grey, Peel and Dufferin counties and over 250 miles eastward in a prolonged belt lined along the north shore of Lake Ontario as far as Cobourg. Besides transmission by bark beetles, the disease may pass from one tree to another through root grafts though only when healthy trees are growing in close proximity to diseased trees.

The only methods of control that are recognized as being useful, at this time, are spraying and sanitation. Spraying may be done at any time of year that the trees are dormant. A dormant spray, using DDT in the form of an emulsion, leaves a residue on bark surfaces that is lethal to adult beetles when they attempt to feed during the critical spring and early summer period. Sanitation, the destruction or treatment of all dying or recently dead elm material, reduces the beetle population by destroying breeding locations.

DESTROY INFECTED MATERIAL

Freshly cut logs and firewood, dying and recently dead trees, broken branches and stumps of trees recently felled, provide ideal material to support heavy bark beetle populations. It is much more important to destroy this material than it is to remove trees that are in the early stage of the disease; the latter do not become a hazard to healthy elms until enough wood is killed to permit beetles to breed and emerge carrying fungus spores.

When the disease is already present in an area, both methods should be used for effective control, since one complements the other. Where the disease is not yet present but its occurrence is anticipated, spraying is not recommended but sanitation should be undertaken. The degree to which one or other of the foregoing measures may be spoiled will depend upon local facilities and the availability of funds for such programs.

Present evidence does not indicate that elms will be eliminated from the landscape as was the American chestnut by the ravages of another more virulent introduced disease, chestnut blight. It is reasonable to expect, however, that in some areas many elms will be destroyed with consequent loss in money for treatment or removal and in aesthetic values. There is reason to believe that control practices can save elms or reduce losses to that level at which no more trees are killed than would be destroyed by other agents.

It must be understood that control programs are a continuing commitment and, over a period of years, involve a considerable outlay. It is necessary to weigh the costs of a control program against the value of the elms, real or aesthetic, considering at the same time the high cost of removing large dead trees that will occur where the disease is allowed to proceed unchecked.

Use Extra Caution Around Guns

The southern part of Pennsylvania is ideal for dove; large, well-tended farms with plenty of cornfields. Here and there are evergreen plantations where the birds like to roost. Each September the boys had some fine flyway shooting there with mourning dove.

You will notice that I use the past tense. Those farms are posted now and closed to gunning as are the roosts, gravel pits, etc. The reason? Careless gunning. One farmer had a window in his kitchen knocked out by a shotgun blast from a careless gunner. Others have had chicken, goat and livestock sprayed and hurt by shot pellets.

My informant was talking to a farmer about this very thing one afternoon when they were sprayed with shotgun pellets. He, being a warden, arrested the shooter — a 17-year-old boy who cared little where he shot so long as he was shooting at birds. That farm is now closed to gunning.

BE EXTRA CAREFUL

Always we try to be extra-careful. For mourning dove we use number-nine shot. These tiny pellets, smaller than the head of a pin, will not carry more than a hundred yards. At the end of their trajectory they rattle down harmlessly, doing no damage unless, possibly, they strike someone's eye. We use this small shot for two reasons. It has a denser pattern; at killing ranges, and beyond these ranges it does no damage.

Last September we were hunting a large cornfield not far from my home. We had shot this field many times, permission being granted by the owner's wife. I was sitting on one of the flyways while my two friends walked the corn rows. My position had been chosen with safety in mind a full 200 yards from the nearest house.

A dove came over and I let fly. I got the bird all right but I also sprayed the farmer with number nines. Unknown to me he was working in the upper part of his field, completely hidden by the standing corn. Of course it didn't hurt him, he was too far away for those little pellets to do any damage, but it made him mad, real mad. Naturally I apologized but he was too upset to listen. It can happen, no matter how careful you are.

More times than I can remember I have been sprayed with shot while hunting doves and rail. As I say, the shot is so small that spent pellets do no damage save, possibly, to the eyes. For that reason I wear shooting glasses, invariably. I dislike wearing glasses, but eye safety comes first. It is my firm opinion that any man, or woman, who goes hunting or who pulls the trigger of a gun — any gun — without first putting on shooting glasses or polaroid eye shields, is nothing short of foolhardy.

WEAR EYE PROTECTION

In hunting cover the automatic protective reaction of your eyelid usually is fast enough to save your eye from injury — usually, but not always. The best plan is to wear adequate eye protection. Some years ago I forgot to put on my shooting glasses. They were in the car but I was too lazy to go back and get them. Result — seven small scars across the cornea of my left eye resulting from cuts made by a brier. You can't be too careful.

When not actually engaged in hunting, guns should be open, capable of being discharged accidentally. In our particular group, all of us shoot double guns. When we meet in the field, the first thing we do is to throw open the breeches of our guns. Nobody ever has been shot accidentally by an open gun. Very few men who shoot magazine guns take the trouble to open the action when meeting another gunner in the field. Thus, shootings accidents do occur.

When guns are placed in cars, either at the end of the day or when we plan to move to another cover, not only do we open the breech; we unload them completely and carry them either in cases or with the action or breech open. That way you will have no occasion to explain to the coroner that you "didn't know it was loaded".

ALWAYS "ON SAFE"

In the field a gun should be carried always "on safe" until the instant of use. Both shotgun and rifle safeties can be thrown open quite easily as the gun is mounted to the shoulder, all in the same motion. Then, after use, the first thing to be done is to see to it that the gun is replaced on safe once more — as safe, that is, as a loaded gun can be. Always remember that the safety on a gun is not by any means a guarantee that the gun can not fire. A little dirt in the safety catch can, and sometimes does, render the trigger "live". Best play safe and not depend on safeties.

Always, invariably, assume that a gun is loaded. When you pick up a gun, make it a rule to throw open the breech or the action. Do this with the muzzle pointed up or down. That way, in case something does happen, nobody gets hurt.

Last but by no means least, remember that a gun is a lethal weapon. Its manufacturer made it so that it would kill things. That, primarily, is what a gun is for. Keep this firmly in mind when you carry one. Never, under any circumstances, point a gun at any living thing unless you wish to kill it. You can't be too careful.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON
POWDER-DOWN

Have you ever been near enough to a great blue heron to see a beautiful, soft, pale blue-grey on its plumage? This is powder-down, a fine dust given off by certain feathers. Not all birds are provided with this miracle powder and those that are have it in different degrees and even on different parts of their bodies. The great blue heron, being such a very large, majestic bird, show it off to particular advantage.

There are several types of feathers. Those known as contour feathers, which include the flight feathers, are the ones with which everybody is familiar because they form the general outline of the body. Beneath this visible coat lie soft, fluffy down feathers, which have very short stems and soft barbs. Young birds are generally born naked (though there are exceptions) and later are fully clothed in down until this is pushed out by the growth of the true feathers. In many adult birds, such as gulls and ducks, this down, long covered by and a regular suit of underwear comparable to the under fur of seals and some other mammals.

ARE WELL HIDDEN

Powder-down feathers (peculiar to certain kinds of birds) are actually just strangely changed down feathers which secrete this waxy powder of unknown use unless it is to beautify the plumage by supplying a bloom. Sometimes found in particular patches, sometimes scattered evenly throughout the plumage, they are well hidden, but the tips continually break off and sprinkle over the visible contour feathers.

It is this resulting bloom that we admire on the familiar great blue heron — and, in fact, on its close relatives which are similarly equipped. Most unfortunately, the fine, lovely bloom rubs off and instantly vanishes. So,as you may imagine, dead birds that have been handled and the stuffing process in museums entirely lack this bloom.

In members of the heron family these highly specialized feathers have reached the peak of development, coming in big patches on the breast and thighs. Parrots and some species of the Hawk family have also been given these mysterious feathers, but they are placed quite differently: they are evenly distributed over almost the entire bodies of the birds. The marsh hawk, the only harrier of the group, is well supplied with powder-down feathers, and the dust, sifting over the contour feathers of the big, 21-inch bird, gives it a filmy appearance.

Meshing Australian Beaches Virtually Ends Man-Eating Sharks Hurting Swimmers

By GORDON TAIT

SYDNEY (AP) — Sydney has virtually ended the menace of the man-eating shark on this Australian city's great surfing beaches.

Tens of thousands of people now are diving through the Pacific rollers as the Southern Hemisphere summer approaches. In the first quarter of December and January 100,000 or more will be on Sydney's ocean beaches every non-working day.

Yet the chances are that not one person will be attacked by a shark.

And this is a real shark water where sportsmen can count on catching a couple of monsters, 12 or even 15 feet long, in a day's fishing a mile or so off the beaches.

How has Sydey solved the problem?

Meshing is the answer, according to the experts.

There has not been a recorded shark attack on a Sydney surfing beach since 1935. And that is the time the New South Wales government first let a contract for the meshing of the beaches.

Although interrupted by the war, this meshing now continues all the year round.

Great nylon mesh nets, 500 feet long and 20 feet deep, are set off the surfing beaches.

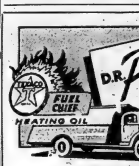
They do not enclose a shark-proof area. They are anchored outside the breakers in the probable path of sharks.

ON BOTTOM

The nets are fixed close to the bottom — that is where sharks usually move and feed. Every day or two they are lifted and moved to another position.

Sharks become entangled in the mesh and often are drowned. Those that are still alive are killed, and the carcasses towed out to sea and dumped.

The contractor's job is not to catch sharks, but to protect the beaches. For instance, he is not permitted to set baits to attract sharks into the nets, nor is he paid according to the number of sharks caught.



In the early post-war years of bathing, it was not uncommon to catch a dozen potential maneaters overnight in a single net. Today the nets often are empty.

Obviously the meshing has reduced the number of sharks off the Sydney beaches. Apart from those destroyed, others probably bump into the net, take fright and swim away.

Despite the safety record of Sydney ocean beaches, sharks must one or more Australian swimmers to death most years.

These fatalities occur on the unmeshed surfing beaches north of Sydney, but more often in the rivers, estuaries and harbors along the eastern coast.

These river-harbor waters are unmeshed and often are patrolled by big hungry sharks too old and too lazy to hunt their natural food in the ocean.

Need Tax Changes to Enable Canadians to Invest More

Liberal Leader Says Govt. Near Brink of Collapse

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson said Saturday increasing unemployment and deteriorating federal-provincial relations are driving the Diefenbaker government to the brink of collapse.

"The government refuses to deal with problems until they become crises," he said, "then they make haste to deal with them—inadequately."

Mr. Pearson told the Ontario Liberal Women's Association semi - annual meeting the Conservative government is heading special session of unemployment is three years too late.

Mr. Diefenbaker's ideas on fiscal relations with the provinces amounted to elimination of the rental, with each province raising its funds as it saw fit, Mr. Pearson said.

"The prime minister's attitude is a complete repudiation of his spring budget speech," he said.

He said tribute to the "substantively indispensable" help of Liberal women and hailed the recently elected woman member of Parliament—Miss Judy LaMarsh of Niagara Falls.

"Mrs. Fairclough will not have quite so easy a time with Miss LaMarsh in opposition," he said.

Miss Lamarsh moderated a panel committee reviewing unemployment insurance policy at the conference.

Col. Frank McCordick, a St. Catharines manufacturer on the panel, urged a thorough overhaul of the women's division of the commission. Married women who do anything to keep drawing insurance and not get a job, he said.

SEEZE ART OBJECTS

NEW YORK (AP)—The treasury department disclosed Sunday it has seized more than $400,000 worth of Chinese art objects that were smuggled into the U.S. from Communist China.

"To look at you, anyone would think there was a food shortage." "To look at YOU, anyone would think you'd caused it."

TORONTO (CP)—Tax changes are needed if individual Canadians are to become big investors in Canadian industry, J. Hatvey Perry, director of the Canadian Tax Foundation, said today.

Addressing the foundation's three-day tax conference, which opened today, Mr. Perry presented the following views:

High income - tax rates on higher earnings produce proportionately little revenue, but take away money which otherwise might go into investment.

Tax concessions to alleviate this situation encourage savings to go into the hands of large institutions—such as life insurance companies—and to foster a "nest egg" rather than a "venture" psychology.

Companies which used to raise money for expansion through selling shares to the public now get most of it from retained earnings or through borrowings in the form of bond or debenture issues.

This is partly because no tax concession is given for paying out of earnings in the form of dividends, whereas interest on borrowed money is an expense and so free from taxation.

While suggesting that changes are needed, Mr. Perry said it is easy to exaggerate the influence of taxation on economic development.

"Our treatment of savings and investment," he commented, "is not so good that it can't be improved . . . and that good improvements will produce a surplus."

He said he does not suggest changes in present concessions, but rather that "we must study what we have and try to improve it."

Mr. Perry's comments were contained in a text made available to the press in advance of delivery.

"High income-tax rates, Mr. Perry said, fall on the element of the community which otherwise would have the money to provide for savings and investment.

38 Fatalities During Weekend Across Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Only one Canadian province escaped unscathed from accidental death during the weekend. In the other nine, traffic mishaps accounted for the bulk of the fatalities.

Ontario led the toll with 14, Quebec and Manitoba followed with five each. Newfoundland accounted for four dead and Prince Edward Island had none. British Columbia, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Alberta and Saskatchewan totalled two dead each.

The national total was 38, traffic accounting for 24.

The Ontario dead:

Arthur Halsey, 16, Reginald Eddi, 16, and Wayne Ferguson, 13, all of Niagara Falls, when their cave collapsed on them Sunday in Niagara gorge.

In Newmarket, 45 - year - old Francis Dennison, by a train as he walked on a railroad trestle on Saturday.

Neal Clement, 18, in a truck-train collision on Saturday.

William McCarthy, 57, as he jumped from the side of a truck on Saturday.

Louis Mens, 65, of Bothwell, in a two-car collision Friday night.

Kenneth Rooke, 19, of Peterborough, in a traffic accident on Saturday.

Edward Roe, 32, Saturday at Perry Sound in a hunting accident.

Robert Ernest Hobb and Gerard Cuibbertson, both 19, in a car-train collision.

Ivan Caulfield, 46, of Richmond Hill, when the gun he was cleaning accidentally discharged.

Georgiana Mary Shadwick, 18-year-old, when the car in which she was riding crashed into a tree near Aurora, 25 miles north of Toronto.

Joseph Chisolm, 52, following a two-car collision at Goderich.

Three Missing Men Picked up By Polish Liner

HALIFAX (CP)—RCAF Search and Rescue headquarters here said Saturday the Polish liner Batory picked up three men missing in the mouth of the St. Lawrence River since Thursday.

The three, Andre Desjardins, Fernand Douglas and Herve Labelle, all of Roche Deiours, Que., were found floating on a liferaft off Anticosti Island.

They were transferred to a British freighter and were expected to be put ashore near the mouth of the Saguenay River.

The men were last seen Tuesday sailing from Mont Lewis Bay on the Gaspe Peninsula in their boat.

Hunter Killed, Was Mistaken For a Bear

PAPERY SOUND (CP) — Edward Roe, 33, of Lakeview, was shot to death Saturday after he was mistaken for a bear.

Lloyd Orchard of Holstein, told moving through the bush. He did not shoot the animal, he said, because he didn't get a good shot and feared it would be wounded and attack him.

He called a hunting companion, Victor Hall, 42, of Holstein, who shot twice, hitting Roe in the chest both times.

Police said Roe, who had been hunting with another party, was dressed in a brown jacket and blue jeans. An inquest will be held.

DAVIS AND BRIDE — Sammy Davis, Jr., Negro entertainer, and his bride, Swedish actress May Britt, prepare to drink a toast after their marriage in his home in the Hollywood hills. They were wed in a traditional Jewish ceremony performed by Rabbi William M. Kramer. (AP Wirephoto).

Blueblooods See Swede Wed Negro

Sammy Goes to Party Solo, May Goes to Bed With Flu, After Their Jewish Wedding

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Negro performer Sammy Davis Jr. married Swedish actress May Britt Sunday—with the help of everyone from the sister of President-elect Kennedy to the Duke of Bedford.

Miss Britt, a statuesque blonde from Stockholm, almost had to cancel the wedding when she suffered a severe attack of intestinal flu, complete with a 103-degree fever, a few hours before the ceremony.

But she made it to the Jewish rites held under a bower of white chrysanthemums in the living room of Davis' home high above Beverly Hills and Hollywood.

"I felt a little woozy," the bride confessed, "but I was able to get through it all because of the excitement of marrying the man I love."

Later, at an impromptu press conference, Davis, 34, said it was his 28-year-old bride who first mentioned marriage.

"She was the one who popped the question," he said.

Miss Britt was given away by her father, Hugo Wikars of Stockholm. He and the bride's mother flew here for the ceremony.

"Sammy is a wonderful personality," said the bride's father in hailing English. "I'm happy that my daughter has a husband like him."

The Jewish rites—both bride and groom are members—were performed by Rabbi William M. Kramer. Frank Sinatra was best man and Miss Georgie Rhodes, wife of Davis' musical arranger, was matron of honor.

After the rites, Davis went solo to the reception held at the Beverly Hilton Hotel. The bride went to bed to convalesce.

Celebrities at the reception included Janet Leigh, Barbara Rush, Milton Berle, Mrs. Dean Martin, Diana Dors and Jack Benny's friend Kelly.

Davis was spotted by Mrs. Pat Kennedy Lawford, sister of President-elect John F. Kennedy.

"How are you Lee, chicky baby?" asked Mrs. Lawford. Said Davis:

"Man, I feel electric."

He was next greeted by the Duke and Duchess of Bedford.

"I bring you greetings and congratulations from England," said the duke.

The marriage was the second for each. Davis was married to Loray White, Negro singer, in 1958. They were divorced 20 months after their marriage.

Miss Britt, once touted as successor to Marilyn Monroe Bretrich, was married to Edward Gregson, Standard Jaw student three years her junior. They separated Sept. 3, 1959.

Early this year Davis announced plans to marry Joan Sinclair, a Negro actress, on night club singer. Her family objected and the engagement finally was broken.

Gordon States U.S. Obtains Control With Little Capital

NEW YORK (CP) — Donald Gordon, president of Canadian National Railways, today called for a revamped approach to Canada-U.S. trade problems and said the U.S. must stop "exporting" funds for granted."

Speaking at the opening general session of the U.S. national foreign trade convention, Gordon said many Canadians feel they are cropped up between the two countries.

Foreign investment in Canada was one point.

Gordon said U.S. investment in Canada in 1959 totalled $18,000-000,000 but a survey by the U.S. department of commerce showed that only 31 per cent of the capital required by U.S. subsidiaries operating in Canada came from the U.S.

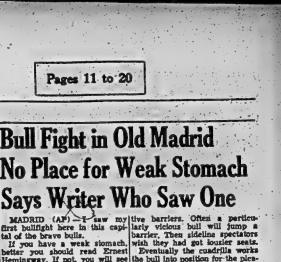
"For example, in the mining and smelting industry, almost half of which is controlled by U.S. interests, only two per cent of all the capital required by the

Bull Fight in Old Madrid No Place for Weak Stomach Says Writer Who Saw One

MADRID (AP) — I saw my first bullfight here in this capital of the Spanish bulls.

If you have a weak stomach, better not read further. Ernest Hemingway, if not, you will see a spectacle that packs more suspense than a Hitchcock movie.

It's colorful, dramatic, gory, barbaric and—for a matador—one devil of a way to make a living. The bulls never win and the matador can become millionaires.



Occasionally — about once a month—a matador loses and gets the kind of funeral Al Capone used to give his dear, departed rivals.

The day I was there a matador got horned into the air. If he had been goal post, the ball would have scored three touchdowns.

But the matador landed on his feet with the rest of his parts present. There was more nudity than the Ice show in Paris. He pelled the bull but somehow the derriere took away from the glamour of Dominique Boyer.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, which obviously has no chapter here, would have a field day at a bull fight.

The bull, strong enough to derail a freight train, comes charging out to be met by the cuadrilla — six matadors and their helpers, whose main duty is to size up the bull by cape work. At this point the bull is not overly tired but the matadors make a few moments that can't be equated anywhere.

The cuadrilla works the bull into position for the picadors. These are stout men with long spears and heavily-shielded horses.

As the bull charges the horse, the picadors push the blades into the bull's back. Then matadors place six gaily — ribboned darts called banderillos into the bull's shoulders. By this time, the bull is not as frisky as when he entered the ring.

Lovers of bullfighting defend this practice. They say that unless the bull gets all this preliminary knifing, he is overmatched for the matador.

"It's just a means of equalizing," the bull said a Spanish friend. "You know, like in horse racing when they assign different weights to horses."

I couldn't buy that comparison but then I wouldn't get in there alone with that bull if he were having a cerebral hemorrhage.

Next follows the glamor spectacle when the star matador goes out there alone for the kill and all the fancy capework that preceded it.

This is the part where the men get separated from the boys. A great bull can be a vicious killer when he's not fooled.

As Hemingway says, this is the moment of truth where the matador must kill or be killed. It's a moment that can't be equated anywhere.

Britain, Canada To Lay Cable Next Summer

LONDON (Reuters)

The Commonwealth Telecommunications Board announced today that a transatlantic cable would be laid by Britain and Canada next year as the first step in the construction of a proposed "round-the-world" system of large-capacity telecommunication cables to meet future needs of the Commonwealth.

The transatlantic cable would be followed by a large-capacity cable system across the Pacific Ocean—at some points four miles below the surface—to link Australia and New Zealand with Canada, and then, through new microwave system across Canada and the transatlantic cable, with Britain.

"It is hoped to complete the laying of the Australia - Canada cable by 1964," the board announced.

After that the cable will go from Australia via Singapore Ceylon to Britain, linking India and Pakistan. There might be spurs into Africa and The West Indies.

The transpacific cable would cover 8,000 nautical miles with more than 300 undersea repeaters. It would have capacity for at least 80 simultaneous telephone conversations. Any of these channels could be used to provide 40 to 50 telegraph channels.

COST IS HUGE

The Pacific section was estimated to cost £36,000,000 ($72,-540,000, of which Britain's share would be £8,300,000 ($23,240,000). The cost of the round-the-world system was estimated at the 1958 Commonwealth telecommunications conference at £80,000,-000 ($224,000,000). Of this, Britain had provisionally agreed to contribute 50 per cent. The remainder would be shared in unspecified proportions among other Commonwealth countries.

In view of the growing number of cable projects, the board announced, two extra cable ships were to be build—by Britain—one for repair, the other for laying.

Elizabeth Taylor Admitted To Hospital With Headache

LONDON (AP)—A spokesman for Elizabeth Taylor's publicity staff today "a terrible headache caused by sinus infection and fatigue" has sent the beautiful actress back to hospital.

Weeping and clutching her head, Miss Taylor was carried from her hotel Sunday night on a stretcher and taken to hospital in an ambulance.

The spokesman said her personal physician Dr. Carl Goldman, and one of the Queen's doctors, Lord Evans, were "worried and puzzled." Further would say nothing immediately.

For weeks the actress had been troubled suffering from a mysterious virus. Unable to diagnose the cause of her illness, the doctors ordered her into the London Clinic Oct. 30.

She was under several tests and she was allowed to leave the clinic Nov. 5 when she was discharged. But the fever still persisted.

Then last week an abscessed tooth was discovered. It was pulled and the fever went down.

Publicity, Miss Taylor's fourth husband, Eddie Fisher, told reporters that Britt the cause of her illness seemed to be solved.

Miss Taylor's studio, 20th Century-Fox, drew a picture of happy-go-lucky Miss Taylor and her husband Fisher's joy.

But Miss Taylor is far behind schedule on the epic Cleopatra in which the actress plays the vamp on the Nile.

So far, however, not on the face of the film contains the shapely image of Elizabeth Taylor. She arrived here Sept. 5.

When she was stricken again Sunday night Fisher — crying — walked beside the stretcher to the ambulance, trying to shield her face with an umbrella.

As the ambulance sped to the hospital, a doctor gave Miss Taylor a sedative. Then Fisher sat at her side holding her hand and stroking her forehead. Once there, he took a room next to his wife.

Reports about a report that the actress may be suffering from pneumonia, a spokesman said:

"This is a very roundabout rumor. We have been told that a couple of attendants on the ambulance that took her to the hospital said that from the way she was writhing and moaning inside girls could be behind her new troubles."

The spokesman added that there was nothing official to back up that speculation.

Cuba's Economy Given Jolt By Action of Castro Govt.

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. government figures released Sunday indicate Fidel Castro may have given Cuba's economy a disastrous jolt in seizing American properties in that country.

Statistics released by the commerce department also give the impression that U.S. investors and the Cuban economy may have suffered a much greater blow than was at first indicated.

Direct U.S. investments already taken over by the Castro government said, were valued at nearly $1,000,000,000. But another U.S.-owned assets," such as the Nicaro nickel plant of the U.S. government, or investments of U.S. citizens who became residents of Cuba.

The Castro government seizures took almost all remaining of all U.S. direct investments in all of Latin America.

U.S. CONTRIBUTED

As for the contribution of U.S. businesses to Cuba's productivity, the report said they:

Had total sales of more than $750,000,000 in 1957, the year of the last official U.S. survey;

Spent nearly $300,000,000 yearly on purchase of materials and services in Cuba;

Spent about $170,000,000 yearly on wages and salaries;

Paid Cuba about $70,000,000 in taxes each year;

Provided jobs for about 160,-000;

Gave Cuba, now critically short of dollars, a net foreign exchange gain of about $300,000,-000 a year.

Uncle Tom came back just in time to stop Sir Rufus from "I'll give you some pennies," he told him. "Less than a quarter altogether, and see what happens."

Tred grubbed more than his fair share of pennies, declared Uncle Tom.

"Sad!" Their uncle chuckled. He checked to see how Cousin Rufus would be shared the money. "Ted, give Peter half what you took, he ordered, and be watched the transfer.

"Now Peter," he went on. "You give Pam a third of what your share has become."

When that was done, Uncle Tom made Pam hand Ted just a quarter of her increased share. "Now you've all got the same," he said, making for the door.

How much was involved?

FREES GOVERNOR

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Bowing to United Nations pressure, Col. Joseph Mobutu Sunday freed the governor of Leopoldville province, Cleophas Kamitatu. Kamitatu, an outspoken admirer of deposed premier Patrice Lumumba, was arrested by Congolese troops Thursday and confined as "compulsory house guest" in Mobutu's home.

Indians Trim Reds Twice, Up Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The pace-setting Springfield Indians swept two American Hockey League games from the Providence Reds during the weekend, winning 4-3 Saturday and 8-4 Sunday as they increased their lead over Quebec to four points.

The Aces failed to keep pace when they dropped a pair, 5-1 to Cleveland Saturday and 5-3 to Buffalo in overtime Sunday.

Rochester Americans, who lost 6-2 to Hershey Saturday, and Cleveland engaged in a riotous affair before Rochester won 6-2 Sunday night. A total of 92 minutes in penalties was handed out.

Roger Cote, rookie Americans defenceman, tied a league record when he spent 33 minutes in the penalty box.

Bob Kabel scored three goals and Floyd Smith added two more as the Indians piled it on the Reds Sunday night for their second straight game. Smith's two gave him six for the weekend against the Reds.

The other Springfield scorers were Bruce Cline, Harry Pidhirny and Art Stratton.

FIRST OF SEASON

Bob Blackburn became the first Providence defenceman to score this season when he fired home a 55-footer 32 seconds after the start. Zeillo Toppazzini and Paul Larivee made the other Providence tallies.

Buffalo overcame a four-goal deficit to beat Quebec in overtime.

Larry Wilson's goal at the 31-second mark of the overtime period won it.

Jean Marie Cossette scored twice in the opening period and Mike Labadie and Norm Corcoran each scored once to give Quebec a 4-0 lead.

Buffalo goals were by Dick Gamble, Ron Maki ,Billy Dea and Bob Courcy.

Weekend Stars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto's Bob Pulford, who scored three goals, including the winner, to lead Maple Leafs to a 7-1 victory over Chicago Black Hawks, Saturday.

Montreal Canadiens' Henri Richard, who scored a goal and assisted on another as Canadiens beat Detroit Red Wings 4-2 Saturday.

Chicago's Murray Balfour, who scored two goals and set up another in Chicago's 7-1 victory over Detroit Sunday.

Montreal's Dickie Moore, who fired the winning goal in Canadiens' 3-1 victory over New York Rangers Sunday.

Toronto's Frank Mahovlich who set up the winning goal and scored the clincher as Leafs defeated Boston 4-2 in Boston Sunday.

SET BETTING MARK

TORONTO (CP) — An all-time Canadian racing mark was established Saturday at Greenwoodbine when the crowd of 13,225 wagered a record $719,953 and raised the total for the first 186 days of the Ontario season to $85,446,786. The Ontario record of $84,382,940, for a season of 196 days, was set last year. Officials expect final figures for the year will show wagering of close to $90,000,000.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (CP)—Bowl of Flowers, with Eddie Arcaro up, came from last position to win a smashing victory in the 13th running of the Frizette at Aqueduct race track Saturday.

The win clinched the two-year-old filly championship this season for Bowl of Flowers. It was worth $57,936 to Brookmeade Stables and boosted her earnings to $196,706 this season. She covered the mile in 1:35 3-5.

Counter Call finished second and Good Move third.

The winner paid $6.40, $2.80 and $2.20. Counter Call returned $3.20 and $3.70 and Good Move $3.60.

MANASSA MAULER WON

Manassa Mauler led virtually all the way in taking Garden State's $65,900 Trenton Handicap in New Jersey.

Manassa Mauler won the 1¼ mile race in 2:02 1-5 with 3½ lengths to spare from the late-closing Blenzi. Promised Land was a head back for the show money.

The winner returned $12, $9.60 and $7.40. Blenzi paid $12.60 and $8. Promised Land $10.80.

Quiz Star, with Howard Grant riding, made it by a nose to take the $2,500-added Turf Cup at Laurel, Md.

Quiz Star ($5.20) ran the mile and a furlong in 1:51 3-5 to come out Consignor. Close behind Consignor was Moon Cloud.

SECOND STAKES WIN

At Chicago, Americus Count won his third straight stakes at the Sportsman's Park meeting by taking the $17,150 Arch Ward Memorial Handicap.

Bernard Wall guided the horse over the 1¼-mile course in 1:57 4-5 to return $4, $2.80 and $2.40. Second-place Rose's Gem paid $2.40 and $2.40 and Rebird Wish, finishing third, paid $2.40.

At Albany, Calif., Gainsworth sloshed around a muddy one-mile track in 1:39 to take the $10,870 Oakland Handicap at Golden Gate Fields. Gainsworth beat out Whir Barn by a head. How Now was third.

The winner paid $13.40, $6.80 and $5.40. Whir Barn returned $11.40 and $4.60 and How Now $2.60.

Will Protest Whitby Jrs.

WHITBY (CP) The manager of the Ontario Hockey Association junior B Whitby Hillcrests will complain to the OHA following a Saturday night game in which the Hillcrests trounced Newmarket Redmen of the Metropolitan Toronto junior B league 6-1.

The Redmen showed up more than half an hour late with only seven players and dressed their coach, Roger Neilson, who is well over age and scored the only Newmarket goal.

What's This? Spurs Suffer First Loss

LONDON (Reuters)— Tottenham Hotspur suffered its first loss of the British soccer season Saturday, going down 3-1 to Sheffield Wednesday at Sheffield.

The Sheffield win brought the club within five points of the Spurs, who lead the league with 21 points.

Johnny Fantham scored the winning goal midway through the second half.

Everton surrendered a point with a 1-1 tie at Cardiff but, with 24 points, retain third place.

Burnley defeated runners-up Wolverhampton Wanderers 5-2. The win lifted the club to fourth place, with the Wolves dropping to fifth.

At Birmingham, the city beat Manchester United 3-1. United lost inside right John Giles with a possible broken leg. Aston Birmingham goalkeeper John Schofield was hurt diving at the feet of a United forward.

Injury also marred the big London battle at Highbury where Chelsea beat Arsenal 4-1. Arsenal's Irish International right-half Tommy Docherty received a deep cut on his right leg.

West Ham beat Manchester City 2-1.

There was no change at the head of the second division, with Sheffield United, 1-0 winners at Southampton, keeping six points ahead of Ipswich Town, 3-1 home winners over Lincoln.

The third division leaders, Bury, thrashed Notts County 7-0. With 29 points, Bury is still two points ahead of Grimsby, 1-0 winners at Brentford.

Montreal's high scoring trio of Bernie Geoffrion, Jean Beliveau and Dickie Moore retained their scoring lead in weekend National Hockey League action.

Geoffrion scored one goal and set up another on the weekend and now has 11 goals and 17 assists for 28 points, two better than Moore who also got a goal and an assist.

Moore scored his goal in New York Sunday to keep his goal-a-game pace. He has 18 goals and eight assists in 18 games.

Beliveau is third with nine goals and 16 assists, two of them coming on the weekend.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Geoffrion, Montreal	11	17	28
Moore, Montreal	18	8	26
Beliveau, Montreal	9	16	25
Ullman, Detroit	6	17	23

Minor Hockey

Canadiens turned on the scoring power in the EMHA's bantam division Saturday morning and handed the Red Wings a 13-3 whipping in one of the five scheduled games.

T. Irwin and R. Culloden paced the Canadien attack with three goals apiece while R. Thuhmeyer and R. Lancaster each scored twice and assisted on a third goal. L. Truman had two and one while L. King fired the other goal. B. Hunley earned two assists; J. Clark, B. Pearson and J. Vanderveorn one each. J. Parson and R. Bateman scored for the Wings and B. McKibbon had an assist.

Peter Foley turned in the morning's lone shutout as his Bruins blanked the Browns 3-0. G. Rutherford and S. Beare triggered the goals while C. Dougherty and R. Longhurst earned assists.

D. Muldoon's sparkling three-goal performance gave the Maple Leafs a 4-3 victory over Canucks. K. Lucas added the other Leaf marker with D. Lucas and K. Dafoe drawing single assists. P. Irwin had a goal and assist for Quinte, B. Purvey a goal and T. Cuzzon one helper.

R. Eves' second goal of the game gave the Macs a tight 3-2 win over the Barons. A. Mott had a goal and assist for the Macs with H. Townsend and B. Bowerman pitching in assists. J. Adams and B. Derry scored for the Barons with help from J. Foot and Y. Jones.

Rangers took a 4-1 decision over the Black Hawks with R. Ehler scoring half the Ranger goals. D. Chapman and T. Bennett had the other goals, all unassisted. G. Lovell handled the Hawk scoring with help from J. Cole.

Shamcats Win Eastern Title

HAMILTON (CP) — Verdun Shamcats Saturday night defeated Hamilton Tiger-Cats Beer 24-22 to win the Eastern Canada intermediate football sudden - death title before 800 fans.

Shamcats will meet the Western winners, St. Vital Bulldogs, for the Dominion title to be played in St. Vital next week-end.

Halfback Hank Lepoikis scored three touchdowns for Verdun. Bill Swan and Bobby Yee got the others. Wally Kunenae converted four of the five majors.

Brian Kosbui tallied two of the Hamilton majors. Bud McCoy, who came to Bees from the OHFU senior Hitchcock-Waterloo Dutchmen when the team folded this year, got the other. Quarterback Paul Giglia converted three of them and Len Wright added a single.

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Hitting the Double Blue with every gun in their artillery the Ottawa Rough Riders came through with a driving 32-31 victory and a 13-point lead in the two-game Big Four final Saturday.

But the victory is tempered with the fact the Riders must hold Argos within that points margin next Sunday in Toronto to qualify for the Grey Cup against either Edmonton or Winnipeg on November 26 in Vancouver.

The Riders played a fiercely-determined game, hitting harder than has been seen in the east all season and putting across the slingshot touchdowns with a highly colorful offense.

Galloping Dave Thelen was the hero of the Riders' win, driving for two touchdowns, one a fifty-yard drive, the other on a one-yard plunge. Joe Kelly deserves a hale, too. Twice Kelly threw touchdown passes to Sewell early in the game and to Jim Reynolds in the dying seconds. Joe got the Riders' other TD himself on a nine-yard romp.

The winners came through with a play strange to the Argonauts and which could have been Coach Frank Clair's secret weapon. The novelty play, as we saw it on the TV fifty-yard line, which caught the Argos napping was Kelly start wide and what looked like an end run. He would then toss high and weibly thrown the air to his receiver in the end zone.

Now the question is, will the twelve points be enough to give the Riders the Big Four crown? If they play like they did Saturday they should do the trick, but a smarting Argonaut team can be depended on to pull something out of the bag at the CNE Stadium next Sunday.

Along the gridiron trail there was gloom in Kingston Saturday while Montreal was in the victory chants of hundreds of McGill students who celebrated the Redmen's 21-9 victory over the 'Golden Gaels and their first Intercollegiate football crown in 23 years.

It was a great day for McGill with injured quarterback Tom Skypeck throwing three touchdown passes. Skypeck, playing with a broken thumb, played sensational football. The Redmen will play the University of Alberta Golden Bears in the east-west collegiate championship game next Saturday at Molson Stadium, Montreal.

The football story that rocked Canadian gridiron centres last week, the new famous Hamilton Tiger-Montreal Alouettes deal which sent Sam Etcheverry and Hal Patterson to Hamilton for Bernie Faloney and Don Paquette may have further repercussions.

Etcheverry, who was in Ottawa Saturday, said he has not committed himself nor will he commit himself. "I have all winter to think things over," he said. "I'm not in any hurry to make up my mind." He said he has no connections whatever with the National Football League.

Meanwhile Patterson has stated he has no ideas of retiring from professional football and "wouldn't mind playing with the Tiger-Cats." He said he thought Hamilton was a great football city and that Twinkle a good coach.

HOCKEY

Hockey fans of the city will get their first sight of Belleville's fast-skating, hard-hitting Junior "B" hockey club here Wednesday night. Manager Mel Richards announced yesterday his club would take on the free-wheeling Picton Juniors in an exhibition tilt, starting at 8.15. The general admission will be 25 cents.

The Lambert-Rollins squad which gave such a fine account of themselves last year is just as good this season, according to reports and indications point to them being one of the top squads in the six-team circuit.

Charges Incompetence

AAUC Official Quits

HALIFAX (CP) — The honorary secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada re - signed Saturday in protesting across the dissolution of the union's annual meeting.

In a fiery resignation speech K. Ken York of Winnipeg accused the honorary treasurer, J. M. Wilkie of Regina, of incompetence and said he saw "a dozen" things wrong with the AAUC.

He said Wilkie had been absent from most of the sessions of annual meeting. He did not elaborate on what he found "wrong" with the union.

Interviewed after the meeting, he told a reporter: "If I said incompetent, I didn't mean it. I have no animosity towards the executive. We just had lunch and we parted good friends."

He said his resignation would stand. He had been secretary since 1940.

Wilkie, not present at the meeting during York's resignation speech, said later the remark probably was made "in the heat of the moment."

Earlier, York stalked out of the session after a resolution condemned York's absenteeism remain at $1,350 for another year. President Clarence Bligh suggested it be raised to $1,500 or $2,000.

A resolution dealt with at the final session called for an approach to the federal government about ways and means to set up a sports aid program.

British Columbia branch president David Matthews suggested the committee study ways of improving Canadian standards and performances at future international games by encouraging more sports writers reporting the meets and set up a program for athletes on international teams to prepare them for competition.

He said the AAUC should demand immediate action on an aide program from the government, and if it cannot provide the money the AAUC "must devise means of finding the money."

He suggested a football pool similar to an Italian pool which raised $500,000 for Italian athletes attending this summer's Olympics.

Ottawa Crashes Argos For 33-21 Win

"Bull" Thelen Was Hero

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Among other things, Toronto Argonauts will have to figure out this week how to put the skein on dashing Dave Thelen.

The 22-year-old, 200-pound fullback from Miami of Ohio, in his second brisking year with the Ottawa Rough Riders, bulled and ripped through the Toronto line for 181 yards and two touchdowns Saturday as the Riders whipped Argos 33-21.

But the psychological aspects of Ottawa's 13-point lead which it will take into Toronto Sunday for the final of the two-game, total-points series for the Big Four football championship are almost as bad for Riders as they are for Argos.

Just a year ago, Riders held a 13-point advantage over Hamilton Tiger-Cats going into the last playoff game. Hamilton won 21-7 to take the Grey Cup berth.

NOT BRINGING MAGIC

Argo coach Lou Agasa said after Saturday's game he is "not thoroughly discouraged" about Riders' 13-point head start.

"We're not feeling sharply enough," said Agasa. "We were not good at running and not good at passing. Don't they're horrible mistakes and we'll correct them."

Ottawa Coach Frank Clair, a professional gloomcaster, said he "was made a couple of individual mistakes."

He didn't say what they were but he was apparently referring to Toronto quarterback Tobin Rote's 54-yard touchdown strike to Dave Mann and 31-yard touchdown bullet to Dick Shatto.

SET UP COOKIE

Rote also completed seven of 10 passes in a last-quarter, 85-yard drive which set up Cookie Gilchrist for a two-yard touchdown plunge. Gilchrist kicked two converts and Mann a 41-yard single.

In the meantime, Thelen cruelly punished the Argo line and linebackers on 28 carries, more than half of Ottawa's running plays.

Both of Thelen's touchdowns came in the third quarter after Argos had taken a 14-13 lead to wipe out Riders 12-0 first-quarter advantage.

Riders completed only six of 11 passes but they made two of them count for touchdowns. Halfback Joe Kelly threw to end Bill Sowaluk in the first quarter and to rookie end Jim Reynolds in the last minute of play.

SCORED A TD

Kelly himself scored a touchdown on a nine-yard twisting galop to polish off a 66-yard march in six plays, one of them a 22-yard aerial for quarterback Russ Jackson.

Jackson played half the game at quarter for Riders and Ron Lancaster the other half. Jackson engineered two touchdowns and Lancaster three.

Gerry Gray also converted two of Ottawa's five touchdowns and added a single on an attempted field goal.

Riders ground out 340 yards rushing—181 by Thelen and 119 by halfback Ken Stewart — to Argos' 86. Rote completed 16 of 25 passes for 251 yards. Riders had 163 yards passing.

LOST HIS JOB

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks' 4-0 Western Hockey League loss to Portland Buckaroos here Saturday night cost goaltender Ray Edmundson his job. Mikulan has been returned to New York Rangers of the National Hockey League. Rangers own Mikulan's contract. The loss was the fifth in six games for Vancouver.

Dogs Whip Strathroy 6-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Windsor Bulldogs played a fast, hard-hitting game Sunday, whipping Strathroy Rockets 6-3 and putting themselves back into a tie for second place in the Ontario Hockey Association senior series.

Strathroy was luckier Saturday. The Rockets licked Stratford Indians 5-3 on the Stratford ice, but still finished up on the bottom of he league.

Windsor, playing at home before 1,190 fans, was keyed by skipper Lou Bendo's three-goal contribution. Veteran Joe Klukay, Jerry Sevrins and Bill Mitchell notched the other Windsor goals while Joe Zorica earned four assists.

Strathroy scorers were Jack Lane, Paul Oliver and Jack McCabe.

Fifteen minor penalties were handed out, eight to Windsor.

CHILDS MADE DEBUT

Windsor goalkeeper Ross Childs, formerly of Barrie Flyers and University of Michigan, made 23 stops in his debut.

Windsor shares the 10 - point second - place tie with Stratford.

The Rockets dominated play for most of the game against the Indians Saturday. They outshot them 57-38, demoralizing their opponents with four quick goals in the second period.

Bruno (Bun) Jones fired two Strathroy goals, and Stan Long, Harry Bentley and Jack Lane added one each.

Stratford's three were Billy Fylck, Mickey Roth and Ken Doig.

On Wednesday Chatham Maroons are at home to Woodstock Athletics.

ELLIOTT CAME SECOND

CAMBRIDGE, England (AP)—Herb Elliott, the world's champion miler, finished second in a cross-country race here Saturday and helped Cambridge University defeat the RAF 30 points to 47. The Australian finished second to his team captain, Tim Briault, over a heavy 6½-mile course. Briault was clocked in 35 minutes 34 seconds and Elliott in 36:34.

Unbeaten In Five Starts

Habs Flip Back To Familiar Perch

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens are back to their old tricks—winning often and holding first place in the National Hockey League.

The Canadiens swept two weekend games from Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers to stretch an unbeaten streak to five games.

The victories — 4-2 over the Red Wings at Montreal Saturday and 2-1 over the Rangers at New York Sunday—gave Canadiens a three-point lead in the standings over runner - up Chicago Black Hawks.

Toronto Maple Leafs swamped the Hawks 7-1 at home Saturday and won 4-2 over the Bruins at Boston Sunday.

Chicago downed Detroit 7-1 Sunday on home ice.

CANADIENS HOLD LEAD

The weekend games left Canadiens with 25 points. Chicago has 20 points while Detroit and Toronto tied for third place with 18.

Montreal's Jacques Plante made 37 saves against Detroit and had a shutout going for over 50 minutes at New York before Camille Henry scored a goal for the Rangers' only goal.

Claude Provost, a rookie from the Red Wings Saturday on third-period goals by Bill Hicke and Claude Provost.

Henri Richard scored for Montreal in the first period and Dickie Moore got the other in the second. Detroit's goals were by Norm Ullman and Parker MacDonald.

Eddie Shack, acquired from Hull-Ottawa Canadiens of the Eastern Professional Hockey League Friday, got his first NHL goal for Canadiens Sunday in the first period. Dickie Moore scored at the start of the second period for Montreal's margin of victory.

LEAFS WON HANDILY

The Maple Leafs, celebrating their 43rd season as a first NHL game ever played at Maple Leaf Gardens, had too much savvy for the Hawks Saturday.

Bobby Pulford, 24-year-old centre, scored two goals for the Leafs. Red Kelly got two more and Frank Mahovlich and Ron Stewart had one each. Veteran Bert Olmstead drew assists on four of the goals.

Eric Nesterenko scored Chicago's lone goal in the first period with Leafs ahead 2-0 at the time.

Sunday the Leafs opened up a 3-0 lead in the first period and held off Mahovlich scored in an empty net with 16 seconds to go to beat the Bruins.

Mahovlich's goal came after Boston goalie Don Simmons had been removed in favor of a sixth attacker.

George Armstrong, Kelly and Eddie Shack scored Toronto's first-period goals while Vic Stasiuk and rookie defenceman Dallas Smith had goals for Boston in the second period.

The Black Hawks Sunday picked up their sixth triumph in eight starts on home ice. They have tied the other two, meeting the only team undefeated on home ice this season.

The Bobby Hull - Murray Balfour-Billy Hay trio accounted for four of the goals, Balfour getting two and Hull and Hay one each.

Ed Litzenberger, Ab McDonald and Nesterenko also scored for Chicago while rookie Howie Glover spoiled a shutout bid by Chicago's Glenn Hall with a 20-foot's lone goal at 7:10 of the last period.

GIANTS END TOUR

SHIZUOKA, Japan (AP)—San Francisco Giants would up their 16-game Japan tour Sunday with a defeat, bowing to an all-star team 3-2 before 18,000 fans. Gil-bert Guillen's single scored the one on the tour.

Win Junior Grid Title

MONTREAL (CP) — Rosemount Bombers, junior Quebec football champions, Sunday crushed Windsor AKO Fraimen 26-0 for the Eastern Canadian junior football championship.

The victory advanced Rosemount into the national final against the defending champion Saskatoon Hilltops in a sudden death game here next Saturday.

Rosemount's defensive team spoiled the win, intercepting five passes by Windsor quarterback Ed Lumley and recovering seven Windsor fumbles.

Quarterback Larry Fairbairn starred offensively for Rosemount, scoring two touchdowns and passing to halfback Gerry Langlois for another.

BLUES WON SERIES

ITHACA, N.Y. (CP)—University of Toronto Rugger Blues defeated Cornell University 3-0 Saturday on a penalty goal in the second half by Paul Wilson. The win gave Toronto a sweep of the home - and - home series against the Ivy Leagues. Toronto won the first game 6-0.

Bombers Win Injury-Packed Battle

Petes Upset Teepees 5-3 To Take Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough Petes Saturday broke their tie with Kitchener Teepees for the top of the Ontario Hockey Association junior A table.

Petes, who defeated Teepees 5-3, now lead the running with nine points. Teepees were relegated to third place, still holding only seven points.

Sunday, Toronto Marlboro snapped their five - game losing streak, beating Hamilton Red Wings 4-3.

Also on Sunday, Niagara Falls Flyers skated to a 4-1 win over a listless Toronto St. Michael's Majors team.

The Flyers now take second place in the standings with eight points.

At St. Catharines, Barclay Plaisgar, playing his fourth season on defence with the local team, came of his team's goals while the game went to Hugh and Rae Mumbulard.

Howard Kellough, Doug Robinson and Murray Hall scored for the St. Catharines goals.

Neil Porth opened the scoring for Hamilton in the first frame, then Jim Potter made it 2-0 one minutes later. Jimmy Osborne contributed three goals to Marlboros victory, put in his first goal when from behind the net —at 16:46 in a back-played first period.

After a scoreless middle session, Osborne, tied the count with a backhander after only three minutes of play.

SHOT TEAM AHEAD

At 14:34 Osborne had his team ahead with a drifting 20-footer. Gary Jarrett made it 3-2 only 12 seconds later when Porter collected his second goal for Hamilton at 19:48.

The win moved Marlboros out into the league cellar and set the stage for sixth place with Hamilton, two points behind.

The Niagara Falls St. Michaels game was the dull one of the day. The only excitement came in the third frame when Toronto defenceman Arnie Brown and Flyers' forward Jim Estabrook decided to settle a high stick with their fists.

Both received majors and Estabrook was banned for a high sticking.

Guelph moves into Niagara Falls Tuesday.

Commercial Hockey League Results

It was the underdogs' night at Memorial Arena last evening when Jones Motors and Smith-Way's pulled upset victories over Williams Brothers and the Terriers.

Williams and Terriers were both undefeated going into tonight's games but Jones Motors edged Williams 3-2 while Smith-Way stopped the Terrors in their tracks with a 5-0 whitewashing.

Pete Weston, Gary Parrish and Doug Dafoe were the marksmen for the young Jones club while assists went to Ted Rowland with two, Dafoe and Greyson Scott.

Leo St. Denis and Keith Gill fired the Williams goals while each drew an assist in the penalty-riddled affair.

Referees Harry Morgan and Hank Post handed out 13 penalties, most of them to the losers. Bob Brooks of Williams Motors picked up a minor for slashing plus a misconduct for a game misconduct while St. Denis and Dean had majors for fighting.

Gary Rowbotham and Ron Gash paced the TV's to their initial victory of the season. He also had one assist. John "Shaker" Hefner, Bobby Hughes and Pork Irwin had the other goals while Baker, Frank Chris, Chuck Rowbotham and Don Bishop drew assists.

H

This gamewas also rugged at times with Doug Murray and Meagher drawing fighting majors and Bob Holway picking up a misconduct.

Following is the up-to-date standing:

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Jones Motors	2	1	0	4
Williams Bros.	1	1	1	3

BLANKED CARLETON

HAMILTON (CP)—McMasters Marauders closed their Ontario Intercollegiate football season Saturday with an impressive 38-0 victory over Carleton University. Halfback Don Young picked up three Marauder touchdowns. Les Gargarello, Dick Dahl and Vincent Franco also hit for touchdowns with Gargarello kicking three converts. The win gave the Marauders a 4-2 record on the year.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Edmonton Eskimos, sporting lineups that read like casualty lists, collide here tonight in the second game of the best-of-three Western Interprovincial Football Union final.

Bombers, defending Grey Cup champions, won the first game of the series 22-16 Saturday at Edmonton in a dogfight so bad-tempered that players were being assessed the fine-field limit nearly every play in the late stages.

Kick - off time for tonight's game is 8:30 p.m. CST (9:30 p.m. EST) it is being carried on the CBC's national television network.

The Bombers, who returned home late Saturday night by plane, ran through a light workout Sunday afternoon to try to shake the stiffness picked up in the first game, described Coach Bud Grant as "the hardest-hitting game I've seen since I've been in this league."

FLOEN IS HURT

Grant reported there is a strong chance that rookie Verne Floen will be called upon to play all of the game at quarterback due to a wrist injury suffered by regular Ken Ploen. Ploen will dress for the game, but is likely to play defensive safety — which he played Saturday in the third quarter after injury.

Meanwhile defensive back Rae Ross definitely will miss tonight's game due to a torn rib cartilage picked up Saturday. Canadian quarterback and defensive end Mike Dacyer will play for Ross.

Other Bombers limping, all to minor injuries, are halfback Gerry James, centre Garland Watras and tackles Steve Patrick and Roger Savoie.

Eskimos also are hurting. Coach Eagle Keys said at a press conference that tackle Toby Deese, who received injuries to his' ankle and knee, will miss tonight. Halfback Cowboy Woodruff is a doubtful starter, also with a knee ailment.

CALL THE HOSPITAL!

End Bill Smith, who had his nose in his wrist fracture fixated Saturday, will be in uniform tonight, and halfback Joe Bob Smith, who missed Saturday's games because of a throat infection, also is likely to start.

Hardtacking middle guard Al Cowper, bulwark of the Eskimo defence, apparently has recovered from a minor concussion suffered in a mighty collision with Bomber fullback Charlie Shepard, and will play.

Jackie Parker, badly shaken in Saturday's game, is recovered and expected to go all the way at quarterback. Norm Kwong, still nursing rib bruises received in the Edmonton-Calgary semi-final, likely will start at fullback with Johnny Bright.

Saturday's playing conditions at Edmonton's Clarke Stadium were close to perfect, with the temperature in the low 30s and winds light.

Bombs won with touchdowns by Shepard, Floen and halfback Leo Lewis, who romped 49 yards off tackle for his. James converted all three and Shepard kicked a first-quarter single for the game's first point.

Bright rambled 26 yards over tackle for one Edmonton touchdown and Canadian quarterback Don Getty, who replaced Parker in the third quarter, drove 15 yards for the other. End Tommy-Joe Coffery converted both and Vic Chapman kicked two singles.

Win College Crown

Redmen Clobber Gaels

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — McGill Redmen Saturday clobbered Queen's University Golden Gaels 38-0 to win the Canadian football championship.

Redmen meet the University of Western Ontario Mustangs for the Yates Cup for the Canadian college crown.

It was McGill's first championship since 1938 and most of the credit went to American quarterback Tom Skypeck who threw for three touchdowns and in the first three quarters — hitting Jimmy Moore, Willis Lambert and Bob Wilson. Harry Langford converted all three.

The Redmen piled up 174 yards rushing and 138 by air. Queen's managed 99 yards of the ground and 45 by passing.

Skypeck connected on 14 of his 26 throws while Queen's quarterback Cal Connor made good on nine out of 25. Connor also had three interceptions, Skypeck one.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Centre Norm Johnson assisted on all four goals Saturday night as Calgary Stampeders swamped Seattle Totems 8-4 in a Western Hockey League game before a crowd of 2,600 at Calgary. The victory was Calgary's first on home record held jointly by two other players—

At Spokane, the Comets scored their third straight victory, fourth of the season by defeating Portland Buckaroos 6-4 in a game marred by a total of 533 fans.

Johnson fed Ron Leopold, for three goals, Lou Jankowski for two and Jimmy Brown for one. Jerry Toppazzini and Phil Maloney the others while Johnson was not on the ice.

Eddie Stanklewicz; Ruddy Filmon, Jerry Leopold and Don Chlupka scored for Totems.

OUTSHOT SEATTLE

Calgary, in second place in the eight-team circuit, outshot Seattle 34-24. The Totems are tied for fourth place with Vancouver and Victoria. .

Hull Downs Kingston 3-2; Beavers Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, a soccer club in the Eastern Professional Hockey League road, have again pitched themselves without peers on game ice.

Canadiens took to Hull Arena Sunday against Kingston Frontenacs and won 3-2.

Coach Glen Shov's charges have only managed three wins in six road games. But they haven't lost a game on home ice since mid-October.

Jackie Parker, badly shaken in Saturday's game, is recovered and expected to go all the way at quarterback. Norm Kwong, still nursing rib bruises received in the Edmonton-Calgary semi-final, likely will start at fullback with Johnny Bright.

Coach Glen Shov's charges have only managed three wins in six road games. But they haven't lost a game on home ice since mid-October.

Canadiens now are comfortably perched atop the league standings with 16 points, one more than the runner-up Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds, who were idle during the weekend.

TIED FOR THIRD

The Saturday win gave Kingston, Hull's closest challenger with Beavers, one more than Sudbury Wolves, who have more than the last - place Montreal club.

Willie O'Ree scored the first two Hull-Ottawa goals and Yves Locas got the winning marker. Stan Maxwell and Pete Panzarabo scored for Kingston.

Forward Wayne Connelly paced the Royals in Kitchener with two goals, with Reg Gribb, Walt Bradley, Glen Cressman and Roy Mlodzik adding one each. Danny Bellisle, scored the only Beaver goal.

The visitors' role was almost equally unrewarding for Beavers at Kingston Saturday night.

Rheal Cherrefils scored two goals for Frontenacs with Don Blackburn, Bob Attersley, Alex Tom Williams and Buddy Boone adding the others. Wally Chevrier and Danny Bellisle scored for Kitchener-Waterloo.

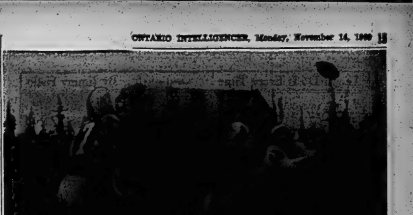
Committee Takes Over Riders Club

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan Roughriders annual meeting Sunday gave complete control of the Western Interprovincial Football Union club to a management committee.

R. A. Bob Kramer, club president in the early 1950s, was chosen to head the club. Reorganization followed a grab session in which fifteen finished last in the five-team WIFU.



Kramer, who succeeds Morris Wood as president, was given authority to choose the management committee and he named Don McPherson, Don Macdonald, Jack Rowans and Clair Warner.

Some 900 persons attended the meeting and approved the plan.

Kramer appealed for solid support and fans in the province so that football may continue here after a season in which the club lost 12 of 16 games and tied two others and lost roughly $78,000.

Head coach Ken Carpenter resigned last month after leading the team through the regular WIFU schedule.

Kramer. Riders' president in 1951-52-53, was president of the WIFU this past season.

DESPERATE LUNGE — Toronto Argonaut end Boyd Carter dives a desperate attempt to snag a pass from quarterback Tobin Rote in Saturday's first game of a two-game semi-final series against Ottawa Rough Riders at Lansdowne Park. The Ottawa defenders are Joe Poirier (17), and Gary Schreider (23).

Browns Win

Giants Shade Steelers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Only one National Football League game was decided Sunday by a margin of more than six points. Baltimore Colts and Philadelphia Eagles are retained their conference leads by victories in the final minutes.

Johnny Unitas kicked a 39-yard scoring pass to Lenny Moore to give the Colts, Western Conference leaders, a 24-20 victory over Chicago Bears. Eagles' Norm Van Brocklin fired a fourth-down pass to Bobby Walston for a touchdown and a 13-12 triumph over Washington Red Skins.

In other NFL games New York defeated Pittsburgh 27-24 on a field goal in the final 40 seconds, Green Bay Packers rolled over Dallas Cowboys 41-7, Detroit Lions edged Los Angeles Rams 12-10 and Cleveland Browns nosed out St. Louis Cardinals 28-27.

In the American League, Houston, eastern division leader, was upset 24-21 by Los Angeles, the western division pace-setter. Dallas romped over Denver 34-7 and Oakland downed Buffalo Bills 20-7.

CAME FROM BEHIND

New York Giants trailed Pittsburgh Steelers for more than 50 minutes, then tied the count with 34-34. With only 40 seconds remaining, Pat Summerall booted a 37-yard field goal—his second of the day—for the victory.

Jim Taylor crashed over for three touchdowns and Paul Hornung scored one touchdown, added two field goals and added five conversions in the Green Bay win.

Detroit recovered a Los Angeles fumble and marched 86 yards for the score that beat the Rams. Jim Martin's 13 - yard field goal late in the fourth period was the victory margin.

Cleveland gained a 14-0 lead, then had to fight off St. Louis the rest of the way. Jimmy Brown scored two touchdowns in 28 carries for the Browns, a one-game flashing high this season in the NFL.

Los Angeles quarterback Jack Kemp hit end Ralph Smith with two passes for first-period touchdowns and Chargers then held off a Houston counter - attack.

Halfback Tony Teresa's 83-yard touchdown run on the last play of the third quarter sparked Oakland as Raiders avenged a 24-0 drubbing by Buffalo.

Abner Haynes ran for 114 pass receptions and scored one touchdown for Dallas.

Estonian Community Leader In Toronto Denies Charges Of Mass Murder of Thousands

TORONTO (CP) — Axel Luitsalu, a prominent leader of Toronto's Estonian community, Sunday denied charges against him in the Soviet news agency Tass which said he butchered thousands in his homeland during the Nazi occupation.

"Pure lie from the very beginning," was Mr. Luitsalu's reaction to a report from Tass which quoted the newspaper Sovetskaya Estonia charging him with mass murder.

The newspaper said Mr. Luitsalu was a member of the Baltic Federation in Canada which vilified Prime Minister Diefenbaker on Aug. 5. Mr. Luitsalu said he went to Ottawa with the delegation.

"The Estonian emigre leadership was represented in this delegation by the former commissar of the S. D. (political police) in Tartu, Axel Luitsalu, whose hands are drenched in the blood of thousands of brutally murdered civilians," the newspaper said.

CLAIMS MASSACRE

It claimed that 14,000 were murdered in Tartu during the Nazi occupation, including a large number of children aged six to 12.

"I have never been employed by the S.D.," Mr. Luitsalu said. "The Russians are making charges of this kind to discredit leaders of foreign communities in all the cities of the free world."

"Their charges do not scare me," he added, recalling the recent suicide of a Winnipeg immigrant similarly charged and "hounded to death" by the Russians.

Mr. Luitsalu said he served on the Tartu police force from 1936 to 1944. When the Russians occupied Estonia in 1940, the police were dismissed and most of them executed. In 1941, the Nazis took over and discovered the horrible crimes of the Russians, he said.

FOUND BODIES

"When the Russians left their assertion I assisted, as a police officer, at the removal of 192 bodies of guards, lawyers and policemen murdered by them," Mr. Luitsalu recalled.

The charges are typical Russian smear tactics aimed at covering their own sins, Mr. Luitsalu said. He estimated that 60,000 civilians were executed during 12 months of Russian occupation.

Mr. Luitsalu was president of the Baltic Federation in Canada during 1951. Its present president, J. R. Simanavicius, led a delegation to Ottawa urging the government to sponsor a resolution in the United Nations declaring that Russia is occupying the Baltic states illegally.

Mr. Simanavicius, commenting on the attack on his colleague, said:

"I expect that some day there will be a charge against me."

Canada's National Magazines Exposed to Strong and Often Unfair Competition Says Brief

OTTAWA (CP)—The Periodical Press Association contended today that Canada's national magazines are being exposed to strong and often unfair forms of competition from the United States on a scale that seriously threatens their continued existence.

The association, in a brief to the opening public hearing of the publications royal commission, argued on behalf of Canadian consumer magazines and farm, business and trade journals that government action to reduce the margin of economic advantage held by non-Canadian periodicals would be in the public interest.

The two main Canada which did not have its own national magazines, its own business press and its own farm magazines would be a Canada with a much smaller chance of preserving and developing its national identity," the association said.

DEFER SUGGESTIONS

Recommendations on a specific course of action were deferred by the association until the commission holds final hearings in Ottawa following a coast-to-coast swing to hear submissions.

The three-man commission was set up to report on the present state and prospects of Canadian periodicals, with special but not exclusive consideration being given to the question of foreign competition. It was a Journal President M. Gratian O'Leary is chairman, assisted by Judge George Johnston of Toronto and Claude P. Beaubien of Montreal.

The periodicals association said the foreign competition takes the form chiefly of the high volume of American periodicals sent into the Canadian market in overflow circulation and "by-product publishing" in the form of special Canadian editions of U.S. publications, special Canadian sections in American magazines and split-run and regional advertising — the latter permitting an advertiser to advertise to drop his U.S. domestic advertising in copies entering Canada and replace it with advertising for his Canadian subsidiary.

"Either of these two conditions is highly dangerous to Canadian periodicals," the brief said, "in combination, they can be fatal."

Canada now had only five indigenous English language national magazines of any substantial circulation.

"Besides English language publications, Canada has a number of foreign publications which have been published in Canada for many years, some of them for more than 50 years. Their circulation is largely foreign.

"Dollars spent in Canada editions are lost to us. Canadian dollars spent in foreign publications, they would have been equally available to Canadian newspapers, radio stations, TV stations or magazines. As the drain increases, all Canadian media will suffer from the growing severity."

Gold Cup Cancelled, Bad Weather

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) —For the first time in its 56-year history the national championship hydroplane Gold Cup race Sunday was cancelled completely for the year. Reason: Rough water and insufficient help.

Owners and drivers of the 15 qualifying boats will split up $7,000 in prize money. Each boat will get $200 appearance money. Miss Supertest, from London, Ont., was the only Canadian qualifier.

Winds up to 35 miles an hour Saturday whipped Lake Mead into a mass of white caps and the bad weather continued Sunday.

At a meeting Sunday, officials also faced the loss of volunteer help needed to run escort boats and pit machinery. Many residents of the Las Vegas area had worked out vacation schedules to have the week off and had to return to their jobs Monday.

The Gold Cup, first run in 1904, is recognized as the annual national championship for unlimited hydroplanes.

Montgomery Clift Has Long Scorned Customs of Stardom

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The film capital claims to cherish its mavericks, but, like most communities, it has a certain suspicion of those who refuse to conform.

Montgomery Clift is one of those. He has never loved fame. He has long scorned the customs of stardom. Yet for 12 years he has remained a star, picking off prime pictures.

Clift remained here briefly after finishing The Misfits and consented to an interview.

"Some reporters get angry because I won't do interviews while I'm making a picture," he said. "They don't seem to realize that the actor's job takes some preparation and requires concentration to sustain a performance. There are some actors who might be able to turn it on and off. I'm sure Clark Gable can. I can't."

Why won't he live in Hollywood?

"It's simple. If I were a shoe salesman and had to work in Denver for three months, that doesn't mean I'd move my residence to Denver. I'm an actor and I go where the work is. But my home happens to be New York. I like it there."

WANTS REAL WINTER

"I can hardly wait to get back to a real winter, not the kind you have here, where you have a cloudburst and people drown in gutters."

Folks were expecting storms on The Misfits, a film also involving John Huston, Gable, Marilyn Monroe and Arthur Miller, but Clift himself and the filming was relatively calm.

"The only real trouble was when Marilyn was really sick and we had to suspend production," he said. "Before her interest, we adjusted to it. . . ."

"I must say that Huston never once gave any evidence of impatience."

Clift was returning to his Manhattan home with no film plans.

"I do shall interview, but he explained, "Sure, I've passed up pictures that have turned out to be box-office smashes, and I've done pictures that were duds. But at least they involved me, and that's all I care about."

AT THE BELLE — Gina Lollobrigida and Yves Montand co-starring in the explosive romantic drama "Where the Hot Wind Blows", playing tonight and Tuesday, matinee daily. The co-feature, MGM's "Bedevilled," stars Anne Baxter and Steve Forrest, in Color and CinemaScope.

AT THE PARK — Mickey Shaughnessy threatens Cornel Wilde as Victoria Shaw looks on in Columbia Pictures' "Edge of Eternity". The trio stars in the exciting drama in CinemaScope and Eastman Color, now playing at the Park Theatre. Comedy is added with Jack Lemmon and Shirley MacLaine in "The Apartment".

OAC TOPPED WARRIORS

WATERLOO (CP) — Ontario Agricultural College Redmen defeated Waterloo Warriors in the final quarter Saturday to score a 36-18 victory over Waterloo University Warriors in the Ontario Collegiate Football Conference season.

Gait Terriers are the only survivors of the eastern division senior league.

Tail Wags Dog Again, Galt Out

WOODSTOCK (CP)—Galt Terriers hockey club failed on Saturday in a bid to join the western section OHA senior ranks.

The matter has been turned over to executive of the Ontario Hockey Association.

Woodstock Athletics, Stratford Indians and Strathroy Rockets, senior B teams in the newly-formed senior league, threatened to drop back to the senior B and form their own league if Galt was admitted to the western division.

Galt Terriers are the only survivors of the eastern division senior league.

WON LAST RACE

MANCHESTER (AP) — Dalmeir, owned by British Guiana bookmaker J. Jacobs, outpaced 29 other thoroughbreds Saturday to win the Manchester November Handicap, last big race of the British flat horse racing season. Dalmeir's was a 50-to-1 shot. Windredge, at 50-to-1, was second and Pandolfi, the 10-to-1 favorite, finished third a length behind Windredge. Dalmeir covered the 1½ mile course in 2:38½ to win £6,241.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RICHTER

Tuesday, November 15

General tendencies: This is one of those days when many people think that they might as well be forgotten out of bed! But there is a great deal of energy now released and if this is channeled wisely and one keeps himself or herself under complete self-control, then much of great worth can be put in motion, if well planned.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Here is one of those days when persons are out-of-sorts and the most innocent comment can lead to a battle royal, so be sure you are very courteous with everyone and then the way can be very good and productive. P. M. relax early.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — If you are not particularly careful throughout the day and evening, much unexpected damage could occur by accidentally breaking things, soil clothing, etc. Also, treat co-workers with kid gloves. P. M. put abode in fine order.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Important you take exercise and health treatments to be at your best at this time, irrespective of how annoyances that may crop up. P. M. don't be extravagant in any way. Show merited devotion to loved one. Be kind, gentle, too.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — If you are sarcastic or discourteous at home, great tension may arise there that could lead to trouble. Spend your time constructively putting house in clean order and doing any repair work that is necessary. Be diplomatic, wise.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) — An accident that could be quite serious could occur today if you are not most careful in all that you do, especially while out driving. Also, do not be highly temperamental with one on whom you depend or you can easily lose him, or her.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Neither be niggardly nor overly extravagant today. Remember that the middle road is always the safest and the wisest. Get the respect of those who are watching you with interest. P. M. set up good budget to follow religiously.

Libra (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22) — Take care you do not react in kind when an executive who is out-of-sorts makes unguarded remarks. Try to understand and pour oil on troubled waters. This will gain you much in the future.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — If you quietly and objectively go about investigating what you do not understand, that disturbing affair can soon be cleared up. Then impress others with your ability and tonight be sure to help those in need. Avoid jealousy.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — If you are wise, you will not voice your plans and ambitions to others or they can be burdened. Carry through with your ideas and be the first to make the big money possible in the venture. P. M. be loyal to allies.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 & Jan. 20) — Any public or civic affairs require the most careful handling by you now or you lose the prestige you have so laboriously built up. Also, make sure you have good credit. Keep your actions beyond criticism.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Don't permit a superficial person to monopolize your time today and thereby lose out on some important work or benefit that should be yours. Follow through with all promises made. Look into new methods seriously. Expand.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Don't follow your intuition today, since it is quite fallacious. Also, the advice of a higher-up is not quite up to par, either. Carry through with plans already made in a slow and careful fashion, then all will be well.

If your child is born today ... he, or she, will have a most dynamic nature and if you early do not cheerfully channel all this force in the right direction through proper exercise and sports, your youngster may get into bad company and ruin what could be a wonderful life. An excellent chart for any police or government work, or for great success in private industry. Give as fine and practical an education as you can.

Times Says Canada Looking To U.S. for Wave of Spending

LONDON (CP) —The Financial Times says some Canadians hope for a "wave of public spending" by the new Democratic administration in the United States to help lift the Canadian economy from is depressed state.

But the newspaper says in an Ottawa dispatch, senior businessmen across Canada realize that this could, at best, be only a "temporary easement of a fundamentally unhealthy situation."

Unemployment is dominating Canadian public attention equally in political, business ad labor circles, the newspaper adds.

It predicts that more than one man in every 10 will be unemployed this winter, adding that more women will also be jobless —especially those under 21.

The paper quotes Canadian industrialist E. P. Taylor as saying that Canada faces a long period of slackness in industry and business, with consequent large-scale unemployment and a continuing fall-off in the flow of desirable immigrants unless "we face up to the situation and adopt new policies and practices."

Taylor's plan to deal with the present national emergency" is an economic affairs and welfare ministry headed by a top businessman who would be able to get cabinet authority for his remedies "however unpopular they may be in some quarters."

The newspaper says this is a surprising recommendation from a devoted private enterprizer like Taylor, But it represented the way many of the country's leading businessmen are thinking.

While public demand may concentrate on the need for shorter measures to alleviate unemployment, the story adds, more thoughtful businessmen are looking for long-term measures to assure a continued basis for a permanent increase in employment.

FRANKFORD — The Frankford Branch No. 387 the Canadian Legion held its "Remembrance Day Service" in the Frankford Memorial Parish Hall on Thursday, November 11th.

At 10.25 a.m. the parade was in command of comrade Ken Lawrence. "O Canada" was sung at 10.45 a.m.

The civic welcome was given by Mr. Harvey, Frankford's village clerk, followed by the Prayer of Remembrance by the Rev. G. Pierce. The Rev. D. White read the Scripture reading. The address was given by Legion Padre, the Rev. H. M. Beach. At 11 a.m. the Last Post and Reveille were played, followed by the laying of wreaths, in memory of those who paid the supreme sacrifice.

The benediction was given by the Rev. C. B. Judd followed by the National Anthem and the March Past with Mr. Beach taking the salute.

368,000 Jobless In Mid-October, Post-War Record

Canada's Total Labor Force Still Expanding

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's unemployment rose faster than the usual at autumn began, increased by 41,000 from mid-September to a total of 368,000 at mid-October—a post-war record for the month—the bureau of statistics reported today. This was 98 per cent more than the jobless total of 251,000 in October last year.

The official unemployment figure, for the week ended Oct. 15, was 19,000 higher than the previous post-war record for October of 239,000 in 1958.

The bureau said the number of persons with jobs decreased by 19,000 between September and October to 6,131,000 — a decline that was less than seasonal.

But it said Canada's total labor force "continued to expand more rapidly than it has for the last two years."

The report placed the labor force at 6,499,000, a gain of 60,000 up 3.3 per cent from the year-ago level and 1.8 per cent in the same 12 months, employment expanded by only 1.5 per cent to 6,131,000 from 6,038,000.

Today's report, based on a labor force survey of 35,000 households, was the second to use the new definitions of employment and unemployment. This figure is a total of persons "without work and looking for work" or persons on temporary layoffs of up to 30 days.

The picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	Oct.	Sept.	Oct.
	1960	1960	1959
Labor force	6,499	6,479	6,439
Employed	6,131	6,1	6,059
Unemployed	368	327	251

The rise in unemployment in the labor force compared with 5.3 per cent in September, four per cent a year ago and 3.3 per cent two years ago.

The report — a joint release from the bureau of statistics and the labor department — showed that the decline in employment between September and October was due entirely to a shift in numbers of farm jobs.

Farm employment declined by 62,000 to 695,000. This drop was mostly offset by a growth in non-farm employment of 46,000 to 5,436,000. But the report said that the non-farm employment gain was among women.

The increase in employment from last year was due to ex-

SECOND WORLD WAR FLYING ACE, OBSERVER KILLED

CF-100 Jet Crashes Near North Bay

NORTH BAY (CP) — The crash of a CF-100 all-weather jet interceptor returning here from a routine flight Monday night claimed the lives of a Second World War flying ace and his young adjutant.

The bodies of Wing Cmdr. C. E. L. Hare, 38, of Montreal, commander of the Pilot's advanced 414 Squadron at North Bay, and FO Jack Dawson, 26, of Prince Albert, Sask., were found by rescue teams in the burned-out wreckage of the fighter plane about 15 miles northeast of here.

An air force spokesman said a board is being set up to investigate cause of the crash.

The pilot of another plane in the same flight said he noticed the CF-100 veer sharply downward as it began to prepare for a landing. When he radioed the fact to Wing Cmdr. Hare the reply was, "Roger. No problem."

Moments later the pilot saw flames from the crash.

Wing Cmdr. Hare was a veteran of 800 operations in the air. He joined the R.C.A.F. in 1940, serving with the Royal and Royal Australian Air Forces and the United Kingdom and the Middle East.

Taken prisoner by the Italians in 1941, he escaped and returned to active duty the following year. His medals included the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Force Cross. He was married, but had no children.

After the war he served with the RCAF's 428 Transport Command at Lachine, Quebec, and flew North Star aircraft for the air force in Korea.

Following a course at the RCAF Staff College in Toronto he went to the air force all-weather interceptor training base at Cold Lake, Alta., and assumed command of 414 Squadron last year.

JOINED IN 1937

FO Dawson joined the RCAF in 1937. He took elementary training in Winnipeg before going to Cold Lake, where he trained with Wing Cmdr. Hare. He was transferred to North Bay with the wing squadron.

The flying officer, who acted as observer for the fatal flight, was married to the father of one daughter.

As the plane crashed it struck a power line, briefly knocking out electricity in the North Bay area.

Air force officials planned the time of the accident at 8.30 p.m. EST.

Discoverer's Capsule Caught In Air by Plane

HONOLULU (CP) — The U.S. Air Force was successful Monday for the second time in plucking the capsule from a Discoverer satellite out of the skies as it headed for the sea.

The capsule was snared 500 miles northeast of Honolulu in the 250-by-50 mile recovery area called the "bull park" by air force pilots. The spy capsule had been ejected from Discoverer XVII.

The 13th Discoverer capsule was the first to be recovered since the others had been scuttled up by the vast Pacific. But it also landed in the ocean and was retrieved by a frogman dangling from a helicopter.

Then, on Aug. 18, a Flying Boxcar made the first catch of an object from space. That was Discoverer XIV's capsule.

The Flying Boxcar that bagged Monday's capsule almost didn't make it.

PLANE DELAYED

The plane was late in leaving Hickam Air Force Base because of a fuel leak. Then, in the northern area of the "ball park," the crew of Capt. Gene W. Jones spotted the capsule's silver and orange parachute against the blue of the sky and made a run for it at 11,000 feet.

"We barely licked it," Jones told reporters later.

But the plane circled and went after the capsule again at 9,500 feet.

The huge plane's trapeze-like snare caught the chute and 21 minutes later the instrument-packed capsule was reeled aboard. The successful grab was made at 6:05 p.m. EST.

The Discoverer XVII capsule, ejected Saturday at the Atlantic-Pacific Vandenberg Air Force Base, ejected on its 31st time around. "It was a little bit rough around the edges," said Capt. Jones, referring to the fiery reentry into the atmosphere.

Say Nixon Has Reservation About GOP Men Taking Posts

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President-Elect Kennedy was reported today to have discovered that Vice-President Nixon has reservations about the idea of Republicans taking key positions in the new Democratic administration.

Kennedy, who defeated Nixon a week ago in the presidential election, is understood to have sounded out the vice-president on this matter at their conference Monday at Key Biscayne, Fla., where Nixon is vacationing. Kennedy was the instigator of the meeting.

The 43-year-old president-elect returned to his headquarters here after the conference. Nixon left to was to confer at lunch today with Governor Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, who may get a cabinet post or some other top position in the Kennedy regime. Ribicoff, Democrat, was a key adviser to Kennedy during the campaign.

Kennedy told a press conference after meeting with Nixon that he did not offer the vice-president a post in the new administration.

But sources in a position to know said Kennedy discussed with Nixon the possibility of naming some Republicans to important positions, particularly in the fields of foreign policy and national security.

It was understood that Nixon did not by any means speak flatly against the idea. But he made no question whether it would be wise from the standpoint of his party's future for Republican leaders to join the Kennedy administration.

Kennedy, president-elect and Nixon called the Kennedy-instigated conference cordial and frank. Kennedy said he and the vice-president will meet again, probably early next month.

Kennedy, when asked earlier whether he had discussed with Nixon the possibility of appointing Republicans, said the conference dealt with a whole range of subjects — including problems facing the nation and how to handle them.

Recommendations of 7 Royal Commissions to Be Presented

OTTAWA (CP)—Recommendations of seven royal commissions and subjects ranging from the price of bread and coal to the treatment and punishment of sex criminals will be before the new session of Parliament which opens Thursday.

Four other royal commissions on other publications, automobiles, railway transportation and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation—may produce some ideas for legislative action before the session ends in the early summer.

The new session is expected to hear lengthy comments on the whole subject of royal commissions' inquiries. The Hansard index for the last session of Parliament carried these two entries indicative of the argument:

"Royal commissions, little effort to implement recommendations," and "Royal commissions, time to assert itself."

Most controversial of the recommendations are the royal grain and parliamentary action are those made by Ivan C. Rand, Judge of Law at the University of Western Ontario and former Supreme Court justice, a one-man royal commission who investigated the plight of the Canadian coal industry.

He recommended a system of direct subsidies to the coal producers and help for the coal miners of Cape Breton to find some new industry for their area.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said last month the government was considering what "could be done" about the Rand report, which has stirred protests among the miners of Nova Scotia and

Pleads Guilty

OSHAWA (CP) — William Michael Turchin, 22, who last week pleaded guilty to robbing the CNR station of $200 last Sept. 10, was remanded Monday to Nov. 21 for sentence.

Turchin also pleaded guilty Monday to three charges of breaking and entering and theft.

Magistrate F. S. Ebbs remanded Turchin for psychiatric examination.

A CNR trainman, Percy Thompson, 39, of Belleville, had a leg amputated above the knee because of shotgun wounds received in the Sept. 10 holdup.

New Brunswick.

Also in the field of resources development is a recommendation by the royal commission headed by Dr. Wallace Wilson Borden, suggesting the oil industry find better American markets for Canadian crude or face the possibility of Canadian imports of crude imported by tanker, mostly from Venezuela. Western independent producers want to build a pipeline to Montreal, but large Canadian exporters in the Pacific Northwest territories fear loss of that market if Venezuelan oil is displaced in Montreal.

Recommendations of a Diefenbaker - appointed royal commission, which examined the spread in prices of food products between the farmer and the consumer, are difficult to pass lawsuits on, since they centred on parking away promotional frills.

Say U.S. Govt. Aids Brain-Washing

OTTAW A (CP)—Visions of a satellite Canada smiling or cowering on cue from a masterful southern neighbor have been introduced in a royal commission inquiry into the publications of Canada's periodical press.

Fears of Canada's international demotion were expressed Monday as witnesses from domestic associations connected with the periodicals charged American advertising agencies against press preservation of a distinctive Canadian viewpoint in news affairs.

The publications royal commission, in the first of its public hearings into the competitive pressures confronting Canadian periodicals, heard from two organizations giving made-in-Canada observations.

Both emitted concern that the Canadian identity is being eroded by a flood of American periodicals, a situation they said is heightened by advertising innovations that make the foreign inroads all the more effective.

MAIL RATE CRITICISED

Said the Graphic Arts Industries Association, a national organization of the printing trade:

"... Somehow we shall have to erect defences for the Canadian way, or we shall be just one more vassal country, just one more wealing among the nations. Let us stand up for Canada."

It urged a public policy through the Canada Council or some new agency—for "positive encouragement" of the Canadian-owned, Canadian-produced printing industry, with special attention to reading material and national circulation.

There was on the side of the strong United States competitors was aided by the U.S. government and its foreign service, it said.

"Americanize the reading habits of the Canadian people from childhood up."

RAISED A PROSPECT

The association raised this prospect:

"It is entirely conceivable that before our population reaches 20,000,000 within relatively few years, there will be no Canadian circulated publications in which the rate of increase of advertising buy may find Canadian affairs discussed in terms and terms by Canadian writers and editors."

Today's "enormous preponderance" of American periodicals in Canada, the association said, is traced to the intensive campaign begun in the 1920's by U.S. publishers, from the "relatively weak" position of Canadian publications at that time. The brief pads lacked "protective devices" which are enjoyed by the press elsewhere.

Electronic Machines Catching Up With Tax Evaders Parley Told

— By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP)— The would-be tax evader will meet his match in the electronic brain, or will have to think up new ways of evading it.

So outlined by representatives of the department of national revenue at the annual conference of the Canadian Tax Foundation, the electronic equipment will enable cross-checking of information in ways not hitherto practicable.

Already relatively simple electronic machines are speeding up operations. This year, for instance, some 2,000,000 T-1 short form returns from Ontario were processed, and 2,000,000 refund cheques issued, within a period of about two weeks.

The machine permits centralization of returns-handling in cities located to continue, but the problems are considerable.

Move Is Taken With 'Regret' Says Negotiator

90 Per Cent of Members Approve of Walkout

MONTREAL (CP) — The non-operating railway employees today called a strike for Saturday, Dec. 3, that could close down every railway in Canada except one.

The strike date was announced by Frank H. Hall, chief negotiator for the 13 non-op unions.

Mr. Hall and the 14 other union heads also announced that a strike ballot taken among the 111,000 union members had approved a strike by an average of about 90 per cent in the different unions.

Mr. Hall said the move was taken with "extreme regret" but there was no other course available.

The strike would affect every railway in Canada except the Pacific Great Eastern, a development line owned by the British Columbia government and operating mainly in the northern part of the province.

The strike would go into effect at 6 a.m. local standard time, Dec. 3.

STRIKE BE ORDERLY

Mr. Hall said the walkout would be peaceful and instructions have been sent to union members concerning preparation of railway property.

Observers feel the strike date was set for early December to give the federal government an opportunity to intervene, either through a special subsidy to pay the wage increases demanded by the non-ops and recommended by a conciliation board, or by ordering compulsory arbitration.

But Mr. Hall said the government has not indicated to him whether it will intervene.

He also said the running trades have not been approached to ask for their co-operation in the strike and that they will not be approached.

The last con-ops strike came in 1950 and lasted nine days.

The unions' original demand was for a total increase of 30 cents an hour during a two-year contract. But they accepted a recommendation of a report of a four over the two-year period, handed down by a three-man conciliation board after several months of hearings and study.

The board's report was turned down by all three parties involved in the dispute, although it did make it impossible for them to say no publicly. The board estimated the recommended raises would eventually cost them a total of $54,000,000 annually.

Medical Research Council Formed To Expand Role of Federal Govt.

OTTAWA (CP)—Establishment of a medical research council to expand the federal government's role in research was announced Monday by the National Research Council.

Dr. R. E. Macpharaon, professor emeritus of medicine at the University of Toronto, has been named as the council's first president. The secretary is Joseph Aur, professor of anatomy and associate dean of medicine at the University of Ottawa.

NRC said the 15-member medical council has been set up "as an interim measure pending further consideration by the government of appropriate legislation." The final establishment of a completely independent medical council was implied in a statement at the last session of Parliament by Veterans Minister Churchill, that trade minis-

The new council will function under the administration of NRC but will have virtually complete autonomy. It will take over the functions of the NRC division of medical research which distributes grants in aid and fellowships approved by the government.

It's expected that once the interim period has elapsed the role a research council should play in medical research—provided this has been approved by the government—legislation will be introduced in Parliament setting up the council as a separate entity.

This may not take place for some time, probably not at the coming session of Parliament.

11 Congolese Army Officers Continue Tour

MONTREAL (CP) — Eleven Congolese army officers continued a tour of army installations in Quebec province Monday with a visit to College Militaire, in nearby St. Johns, Que.

The group arrived in St. John's Monday from Camp Valcartier near Quebec City.

Capt. J. Pusti, a member of the group and supporter of Cosgrove Col. Joseph Mobutu, said in an interview in Quebec City Sunday some United Nations troops in the Congo are guilty of provocation and bad faith.

Mobutu has made the clarification after reports quoting him as saying the charges were made against UN troops. He denied he was directed against any troops from the other three countries.

Capt. Pusti said international news agencies and the UN conspired to blacken the reputation of Congolese soldiers. He said the UN apparently hoped the Congolese troops would fire at UN soldiers so that it could say that "we attacked the UN."

Moreover, Capt. Joseph Tshibshi who heads the group said in Montreal he was surprised to find that news reports out of Stanleyville were "slanted." He did not elaborate.

The group arrived in Montreal after completing a 10-day survey of United States military bases. It is to leave by train today to tour military bases in Western Europe.

Five Children Burned to Death Near Quebec

QUEBEC (CP)—Five children died today in a fire which destroyed their parents' frame home on Ile d'Orleans, 15 miles east of here.

The victims were five of the 12 children of Mr and Mrs. Lucien Verna of the little community of St. Jeanne de Lestage on the island.

The dead: Jacques, 19, Richard, 9; Gilbert 5; and twins Pierre and Pierette, 12.

Mrs. Verna was also both wife and their daughter Murielle, 11, were burns. Mrs. Verina was reported in critical condition.

Six other children escaped by jumping from windows.

Police said the fire apparently started in the kitchen.

ROAST WELL DONE AS FIREMEN ARRIVE

Local firefighters were invited to a pot-luck roast supper on Saturday afternoon at the residence of a Miss Eden at 163 George St. The roast, unfortunately, was very well done, having caught fire in the oven. No other damage was sustained.

A previous alarm at 2.42 p.m., about 40 minutes earlier, to 41 Gordon Street, the home of a Mrs. Ness, also involved a kitchen accident. Here boiling grease had caught fire. Fortunately no damage was sustained at this call either.

A false alarm to R.R. 4, Belleville, occurred at 5.18 p.m.

THREE YOUTHS PAY FINES FOR DISTURBANCE

Fines of $15, plus $3 costs were assessed against three local young men in city magistrate's court today on charges of causing a disturbance.

The court was told, the incident occurred early Sunday morning, after starting in a Front Street cafe.

Toy Repairmen At Club Nearly Out of a Job

Santa's local toy repairmen are almost out of a job!

The reason is that there is a shortage of repairable toys at the local Kiwanis Centre.

Each year the local Kiwanis Club members together with city firemen, combine their efforts in a mammoth toy repair program to gladden the hearts of city and district underprivileged children on Christmas morning.

But so far this year the annual toy project at the Kiwanis Centre is being stalled by the lack of used toys for Santa's helpers to work on.

So the appeal is going out asking for the donation of good used toys to help keep the Christmas toy project.

They may be left at either of the two firehalls, or at Shell gasoline stations in the city.

Suit Settled Out of Court For $19,200

An out-of-court settlement of $19,200 has been accepted by the city of Belleville in its breach of contract action against the Consumers Construction Company, and Ontario Natural Gas Limited.

The total claim of the city was for approximately $21,000 for street repair, maintenance and cleaning street repairs done by the city during the installation of gas lines in the city.

The action was scheduled for hearing at the current non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario before Mr. Justice G. T. Walsh.

Robert A. Pringle, QC, former city solicitor, who retired from his post last autumn, was acting for the city in the breach of contract claim against Donovan Construction and Lakeland Gas.

Much of Special Levy Being Paid in Full

The rush was on at city hall Monday morning as dozens of residents stood in line waiting to pay their special tax bills levied to wipe out hockey losses and floating indebtedness of the city.

Residents were given the choice of paying the special levy in one lump sum or spreading it over a five-year period, but so far since the bills began going out last week property owners have shown a heavy preference for paying the levy in full.

"It is still too early to tell the total but a very high percentage of property owners are so far opting in full," noted city treasurer C. J. Bender. "We just hope the trend continues."

Yesterday Mr. Bender said the full time of three tax office employees was required to accept the flood of special tax payments from property owners calling personally at city hall.

In addition to this there was a very heavy mail from taxpayers paying their special levy through the mails.

Hunt Diet Seekers on the Loose Sit Down to Bruin, Deer and Moose

When twenty-four hunters go on a bag diet, there's no telling what the lodge menu will be.

This particular party of two dozen nimrods, good and true, had no idea of what the haul would be when they began their northern junket.

They left for safari was over and they counted the trophies of the chase, here is what they had:

Twelve deer (assorted sexes); three moose (one bull and two gentlemen) and two bear. (sex who cares?)

Now here's a menu that should satisfy the most exacting hunter gourmet!

Six of the 24' successful shots came from the city. These are Harold Fahey, Jim Copeland, Bill ton Phillips, Doug Phillips, Bill Flunder, Gordon Cooper and Jack Carroll. Other members of the party represented various parts of Eastern Ontario.

The big kill was made in the Harcourt district in the vicinity of Benoris Lake northwest of Bancroft. The party stayed at the Mainsford Camp.

The Don McIlvein party of seven deer hunters who are the Milbridge area, have reported seven deer and one bear as the bag up to the present.

Proudest hunter in the camp is Myers—Jack Myers—McIlvein who bagged the first deer of his hunting career.

The weather is reported as being mild and not conducive to good deer hunting.

A plenitude of rabbits is in the area and these are believed to be attracting more attention to dogs of the party than the deer.

LODA Movie On Industry Shown Rotary

"Gold Mine On Main Street," a film showing how a community can promote itself and bring industries to its area, was shown to the local Rotarians at their weekly dinner meeting at the Hotel Quinte yesterday afternoon. Don Kingdon, former local Rotarian, now secretary - manager of the Lake Ontario Development Association, presented the film, and further old a brief talk on the organization of the LODA.

This organization was formed in 1956 to help develop and promote the communities in the 10 area and several counties around Hastings both from the industrial and the tourist aspects.

The film offered numerous suggestions on how a community could and should promote itself to potential new industries wishing to locate somewhere. Various methods aided to varying budgets were illustrated.

A great deal of interest was shown in the film by those present and past president Vanover thanked the speaker, who had been ably introduced by Rotarian Jack Ireland, current president of the LODA.

On display was a new set of flags acquired by the club. The flags were presented over by president Bill Hurst.

James Morey Elected Head Of Non-ops

James Morey of Belleville was elected president of Local 126 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers last night at a meeting held at the Engineers' Hall. Mr. Morey and other members of the new executive for the local which represents members of the CNR non-operators staff from Oshawa to Belleville by the Belleville Transit Commission, will take office on January 1st for a one-year term.

M. K. Garson, a former Belleville resident and former local chairman, was the guest speaker for the meeting, which saw some 26 members in attendance. Mr. Carson is now the brotherhood's general representative from Ia Toronto office.

Other officers just elected are: Jack' Lynch (Belleville), vice-president; C. C. Young (Belleville, financial secretary; R. D. Stewart (Cannifton), treasurer; C. A. Tupper (Foxboro) recording secretary and reporter; W. Pointer (Belleville), local chairman and E. Gem (Stella), education chairman.

Local 126 received its charter in 1919, 41 years ago, the founding of Canada's largest national union which has some 40,000 members.

110 KILLED

VIENNA (AP) — At least 110 people were killed and 106 injured in a train crash at the station of Stebluva in Czechoslovakia Monday night, radio Prague said today. The broadcast said the disaster occurred when two local trains crowded with passengers collided on a siding in the railway station.

U.S. Gets Lead In Horse Jumping At Winter Fair

TORONTO (CP) — The United States today won the Lou Marsh Challenge Trophy for the same time regained the lead in international horse jumping competition at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair.

The trophy, held last year by Canada, was decided by a three-round jumping duel between Hugh Wiley of Baltimore, Md., and Toronto's Tom Gayford.

The win gave the U.S. 14 points, four more than Ireland which has 10, and two more than eight competition leading with 12½ points. Capt. W. G. Ringrose, whose brilliant riding helped the eight put Ireland in first place, would not repeat his performance and the team dropped to second spot.

Mexico and Canada are tied for third place, with eight points each, and Canada's trails with two.

OTTAWA WINNER

In other horse show events first prize for five - gaited stallion, mare or gelding went to Nanglen Irishman, owned by Mr. and Mrs. F. Jerry Hogan, Ottawa.

Miss Jane Newman, St. Catharines, was third for a single harness pony.

The Taylor Canadian Hunter Stakes was won by Lieutenant W. D. Whitaker, Caledonia, Ont.

A pair of Welsh ponies, Fox and Varsity Todd won for L. C. Thibadeau, Marickdale, Ont. Second was Lady Jane and Miss Patricia Worthy, Dr. E. E. Fowler and Sons, Ont.

The fair enters its fourth day today with Governor - General Vanier scheduled to present horse arena at the Canadian National Exhibition. Tonight he presents the Governor - General's Trophies to the top horse in each gelding, three years old, foaled in Canada.

TOP STARS

Another highlight today will be the Armstrong sale of stars. Monday the 24 horses went on the auction block and the top price was $3,200 paid for the handsome old cow by Mrs. Douse Ryan of Vancouver, B.C. Purchaser was The cow, Brampton Cosmolite Star, was owned by R. J. Bull and Son of Brampton.

In Jerseys the grand and senior champion was shown by Miss St. Stenger and Son, Enniskillen, Ont.

Rowsdale Adjudicator, fresh from wins at the New York State Fair, the Canadian National and the Western Ontario Fall Fat Lambs Show at Syracuse, N.Y., was awarded the grand champion Hampshire lamb at Toronto.

The bull is owned jointly by Rowsdale Farm and Don and Ed Hall of Bond Head. Reserve champion was Rowsdale Farm's entry, a Suffolk, owned by Rowsdale Farm and has been showing cattle since the first Royal in 1922.

The reserve champion was won by Rommandale Farms and E. D. Smith, both of Unionville and Agincourt, Ont.

FEELS BEST EVER

Both entries from the section for bulls three years or over, Judge Duroc Iones of Woodstock said it was the grandest lot of Holstein bulls ever shown at the Royal.

The junior Holstein bull championship was won by Forest Lee Alberta Colantha Ormsby Pietje, Springfield, Ont., and junior reserve title went to Hillcrest and Son, Ayr, Ont.

In the Belgian showing, J.W. Howell of St. George, Ont., won the grand champion mare title. Prizes for barrow and steer carcasses were higher than previously with the fate auction sale.

Highest price for lamb carcasses was 60 cents a pound, about 15 cents more than usual. The champion exhibit by Gordon D. Hamilton of Colgan, Ont., was sold to Canada Packers Limited for $1 a pound for a total of $120. The champion exhibit exhibited by Diane Pettit of Colborne was sold to William Puddy Meat Limited, Toronto, for $1 a pound, a total of $40.

Canada Packers also paid $1 a pound for the champion barrow carcass exhibited by Ronald R. Hunt of Alvinston, which totalled at $118. The reserve exhibit by Carl H. Savile of Alvinston brought 75 centsa pound for a total of $82.50.

Bank Governor Warns We Must Live Within Own Means

TORONTO (CP) — A great surge of Canadian national effort is waiting only to be roused and to be given an opportunity to make itself felt, J. E. Coyne, governor of the Bank of Canada, said Monday in an address to the Canadian Club.

He warned that Canada must live within its own means and stop going into debt to other countries.

"We should make the necessary effort to preserve in the Canadian capital will be forthcoming for those kinds of development and employment which offer the best net advantages to the Canadian economy," he said.

"... we must carry on the future economic development of Canada on the basis of Canadian savings, from any capital, and foreign capital — along the lines that make for a strong, diversified and independent Canadian economy, not an appendage to a foreign economy."

DIVEST SAVINGS

It was important, he said "to divest ourselves of the notion that Canadian savings in more Canadian enterprises. This, in turn, means that we must have the incomes of opportunity for Canadians to invest."

Mr. Coyne's comments were contained in a text made available to the press in advance of delivery.

"... to rectify a persistent deficit in the balance of payments, to control inflationary investment without inflation, requires a strong and active policy in the economic sphere on the part of all levels of government," he said.

"The lead in such matters will not be given on the floor of the national government, although, particularly in regional diverse country like Canada, co - operation of provincial and municipal governments with business and prices and individuals is also important."

DOESN'T EXPECT AUSTERITY

Mr. Coyne said living within their means should not mean austerity for Canadians.

Unless the inflow of capital from other countries is reduced, Mr. Coyne stated, all attempts to control inflation and Canada's balance - of - payments must be self-defeating.

Similarly, unless the inflow of capital is reduced, all attempts to increase employment — at any rate employment in export industries and employment in industries competing with imports —must also be self-defeating.

"Monetary gimmicks," Mr. Coyne stated, are no substitute for enlightened economic policy and no antidote for excessive reliance on foreign borrowing.

The long dependence of Canada's international indebtedness, Mr. Coyne said it has increased from less than $4,000,000,000 at the end of 1949, to about $17,000,000,000.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market, with the exception of a slight gain by golds, failed in all sections during light morning trade today.

On index, golds, shaking off some of the lethargy of Monday, moved ahead .51 at 90.99. Industrials led index losers, down .60 at 489.99. Base metals fell .02 at 137.42 and western oils went down .33 at 82.62.

The 11 a.m. volume totalled 452,000 shares compared with the 382,000 at the same time Monday.

Interprovincial Pipe Line led industrials down with a loss of ¾. Howard Smith, Industrial Acceptance, Page-Hersey and Consolidated Paper all dropped ½.

Investors' Syndicate A added one point at 34, Argus Corp ½ gained ¼.

Dome led golds up, gaining ¾ at 24½. Hudson Bay Mining took the biggest base metal loss, down 1/8 at 46. Falconbridge and Ventures each dropped ¼.

On the western oil front Hudson's Bay declined 10 cents.

Industrials scored their 11th consecutive gain on a listless market Monday.

On index, Industrials rose .50 to 503.30 and base metals advanced .21 at 137.44 at the close. Golds took the biggest loss, down 1.17 at 90.98 and western oils followed .31 at 82.64.

The final volume for the day was 2,520,000 shares, heavier than Friday's 1,491,000.

Texaco Canada, Minnesota and Ontario Paper, Price Brothers and Dominion Glass paced industrial winners, all with gains of one point. Dominion Iron Foundries climbed ¾ at 42, Algoma Steel gained ¼ at 37½ and Consolidated Paper at 40½.

Ford of Canada topped losers with a 3½-point loss at 125½.

Dome showed a weak gold front the way down with a 1½-point loss at 23½. Giant Yellowknife fell ¼ at 12½, while Hollinger gained ½ at 24. Falconbridge moved up ¼ at 18½.

Tatham Co. Gets Contract At Marmora

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario water resources commission Monday announced contract awards valued at $1,419,658 for water and sewage works.

A $606,970 contract went to Fyfe Construction Company, for Hamilton, for construction of a sewage treatment plant at Port Colborne.

Schwenger Construction Limited, Hamilton, won a $448,988 contract for a water treatment plant in the township of Bertie, Welland County.

A sewer program for Grimsby will be initiated by Ayrtie Construction and Dileo and Company, of Toronto, $197,839.

Two awards were made in connection with the village of Newcastle's water supply system. Armstrong Brothers Company, Brampton, will build a pumphouse, do the pipe-laying and other items for $109,119, while Frid Construction Limited, Toronto, will supply and erect a steel standpipe for $16,150.

Tatham Company Limited of Belleville, will build a filtration plant and a foundation for a stampede for the village of Marmora. The contract price was $51,420.

Farmer Found Shot to Death In Pig Shed

TORONTO (CP) — A farmer in suburban Etobicoke was found shot to death in his guinea pig shed Monday.

Elgin Sullen, 62, who rented guinea pigs to children and small animals sold for medical research, was shot by a .22 calibre rifle found leaning against the shed.

Deputy police chief George Elliott said today: "It looks like murder." The first report, which is to be a heart attack, he said, before the bullet hole was discovered.

The bullet pierced Cullen's heart and spine after entering through his hand.

"There is no reason to suspect suicide," deputy chief Elliott said.

Cullen's wife told police she heard a shot and found him dead in the shed where he raised guinea pigs.

Cullen was believed in the habit of carrying large sums of money, but police said he was not robbed.

A pathologist examining Cullen's body found that a thumb and forefinger were missing. He ordered a full autopsy which led to discovery of bullet wounds.

Police believe Cullen put up his hands to fend off an armed attacker and was hit by the bullet.

Bernard Ottaway, who owns the next farm, said Cullen was a quiet man who kept to himself. "I can't imagine anyone having a grudge against him."

The rifle was found 30 feet from the body. A squad of 20 detectives began combing the area for the spent slug.

Two Break-ins at Frankford Net Little Cash

Two separate break-ins Monday night at Frankford, one at the village post office and the other at the Canadian National Railways station, are reported to have netted the intruders but very little.

There apparently was no attempt to force the safe either at the post office or at the railway station, but office drawers were ransacked.

At the post office one letter box was found opened but the contents had been left behind. Petty cash amounting to about $1 in silver was believed to have been taken, however.

Police Const Ed McGeachie told the Ontario Intelligencer that entrance to the post office was gained by raising a back window.

Acting Station Master Pat O'Grady said there appeared to be nothing taken at the station although the office had not been completely checked by police. Entrance to the station was gained by jimmying the door.

Provincial police fingerprint experts from Belleville have been called in to assist in the investigation, while postal inspectors were also on the job for the post office investigation.

Canadians Are Too Cautious, Unenterprising Says Director

By FORBES RHODE

Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP)—A large part of the explanation for the sale of Canadian companies to investors from other countries is that Canadians are too cautious, H. A. Hampson of Toronto said today in an address to Canadian Tax Foundation conference.

Mr. Hampson, research and underwriting director for the investment firm of Burns Brothers and Denton Ltd., added:

"Canadians are too uncenterprising too ready to take the easy route to a short-term profit rather than the longer but more rewarding road to greater future gain.

"After all, the foreign buyer is not holding a gun to our head, he is putting gold into our hands; and he is not doing this for amusement, but to earn a good rate of return. If the non-residents can do it, so can the Canadian."

NOT SKILLED

Mr. Hampson said that despite a great improvement in management know-how and enterprise, Canadian business men have not the skills and venturesomeness of their American counterparts — although there is a growing number of distinguished exceptions.

"I am not suggesting," Mr. Hampson added, "that Canadians turn down over-generous prices for their businesses for common shares, but at least they could be more venturesome in allowing the proceeds to go into other Canadian enterprises, instead they too often preferred shares, Canada Savings Bonds, or even American stocks which they lack confidence in our country's future."

Mr. Hampson said Canadian caution is reflected in the fact that Canada is the least readily insured country in the world.

"Life insurance companies, in their turn, are "extremely conservative" in investing Canadian funds. Only $90,000,000—about 1.2-per-cent of the book value of life insurance holdings—are common stocks, a figure well below the statutory maximum of 15 per cent.

TRUST HOUSES

Much of the balance of Canadian savings was in the hands of trust companies and other financial institutions, which because it has never conducted surveys of investors' needs, "are unaware of buyers of equities."

"We probably could be pressing for more stringent securities legislation, said he, but public pressure for it is still lightening up of legislation regarding financial disclosure, since what is required by Canadian corporations feel that the shareholders are entitled to any real information about his investments, a factor which leads many to invest through the American can market with its wealth of information."

BUILD NEST EGGS

J. Harvey Perry, director of the Canadian Tax Foundation, says Canadian tax concessions encourage Canadian savings to go into the hands of large institutions, such as life insurance companies, and this fosters a "nest-egg" rather than a "venture" psychology.

Tax laws also encouraged company mergers and acquisitions either through retained earnings or through borrowings in the form of bonds and debentures, rather than in the sales of shares.

Mr. Perry, formerly assistant of the Montreal Stock Exchange, is chairman of Canadian Javelin and should be the most important firm of internal policy and management in the country.

Specific tasks of the commission are to investigate the United Nationale's sale of Hydro-Quebec's gas distribution facilities to the Quebec Natural Gas Corporation, and operations of the provincial government's purchasing department.

Association, which presented a brief on behalf of members of consumer magazines and business, trade and farm journals.

"Canadians laugh scornfully, or become angry, when spokesmen of the Soviet bloc call us a satellite of the U.S. But are we not in grave danger of becoming cultural and intellectual satellites of the U.S. when our reading matter becomes so increasingly American?"

Mr. Laurin said that if Canadian periodicals vanished, the government would be forced to steer national necessity to establish a new periodical press subsidized along the lines of the CBC.

"Far from being comforting, the thought of that eventuality threatens the magnitude of the urgency for giving Canada's periodicals some relief from foreign competition ,particularly foreign competition that is often unfair and from which we are subsidized as well."

HAS NOT COME UP

Under questioning by the three-man commission, headed by M. Paul Lacoste, Quebec civil law professor, Mr. Laurin said that having to compete with the high level of excellence of individual U.S. magazines keeps Canadian publishers on their toes.

"But," he said, "when such publications as Time and Reader's Digest add 10 to 12 pages to their issues and when our mails are flooded with their subscription offers, the circulation of Canadian magazines is severely restricted and made much more difficult."

Special Canadian editions of U.S. publications, he said, are partial largely to the extent that advertising for Canadian consumption purposes only is substantial content is almost entirely purchased from the parent edition and reused in the established Canadian edition."

Mr. Laurin said the commissioners in questioning that a considerable amount of the advertising appearing in special editions would have been available to Canadian publications if the special-edition outlet hadn't been established or if it would have gone to other media.

MEDICAL

member committee composed mainly of senior medical scientists will advise the new council on policy.

Establishment of the council follows the recent continuance of the medical research program of the department of health and veterans affairs and the Defence Research Board.

The council will spend about $2,300,000 in the 1960-61 fiscal year on medical research in universities and hospitals.

The special committee which proposed the medical council recommended the high priority given to research on medical research be boosted to $5,000,000 in the next fiscal year.

It also said government should provide $25,000,000 for new laboratories at universities and $12,000,000 for facilities in teaching hospitals.

Council members include: Dr. Malcolm Brown, professor of medicine, Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.; Dr. Roger Rossiter, head of the department of medicine, University of Western Ontario, and Dr. A. L. Chute, head of the department of pediatrics, University of Toronto.

Crime Increase Is Blamed on Liquor Misuse

TRENTON — "Crime is on the increase, on the wane, continued and the opinion of police department heads the underlying cause is the misuse of liquor".

Inspector Ernest Peabody, inspector in charge of the hospitals division of the Toronto Metropolitan police force, speaking to the Trenton Rotary Club last night, said that this misuse of liquor led to the majority of the homicides and manslaughter cases.

He said that the indiscriminate use of liquor in the homes led to the children developing a lack of respect for their parents and a consequent open rebellion against all forms of authority in the school, in the church and towards other persons of property. The juvenile attitude towards law and authority also influences crime, Inspector McNeely said. If the father or mother consistently ignores a traffic signals (as long as a policeman isn't around) defies regulations, or takes the side of the child against the teacher and demonstrates a complete lack of respect for the laws of the country, children will pick up this attitude quickly.

"Good citizenship training must begin in the home", said the speaker.

FICTION MISLEADING

Inspector McNeely said that the movies, radio, television, books and paper-back books had a bad influence in that all police officers were stupid, fat individuals who could not solve crimes were ever shadowed by the brilliant actions of fiction lawyers, Perry Masons and private eyes, (Sam Spade and Mickey Spillane). In every case, he said, the members of police departments would have themselves revealing it without pay.

He said that in his experience, the "glamorous dolls", found only in fiction, mini-skirted women and that the deluxe apartments in the crime stories were usually on the first floor flats with cold running water.

The speaker urged those present to play the part of good citizens and to help police by coming forward and tell the police details of what they had any knowledge or crimes that have been committed. He said that they would be helping society in general and themselves in particular by that action, and that the police made every attempt to protect citizens who assisted them in this way.

The inspector gave a complete run-down on the Belleville and Toronto police force, with particular reference to the Belleville division, and the training of police officers. He said that the Belleville police department, and said that Chief of Police F. J. Smith and Inspector C. Bullerford had always shown his department all-out co-operation.

Inspector McNeely was introduced by Chief Taylor, who is a member of the Trenton Club. Inspector Rutherford was a special guest at last night's meeting.

School Board Members Must Resign Anyway

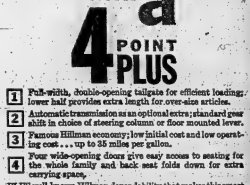
TRENTON — It has now been learned that the wholesale election of all members of the Trenton Board of Education to the new 1961 Board next year, made last spring to facilitate the lifting of the pink listing from Trenton High School was meaningless. Last night the board members were informed that it would be necessary for them to resign anyway in order to comply with government regulations. Under the amendment to the act, covering separate school boards in the province.

For many years, seven members have been elected to the Trenton board. The amendment to the act states that seven elected members are necessary for separate schools in the city of Trenton. The act also states that when this school's membership is effected, all members must resign. They can be re-elected, if they so desire next St.

The members of the present board have not signified whether they will seek re-election or not.

T. S. Ketcheson, chairman of the board, said that he would recommend to the incoming board that the services of W. J. Houston, principal at Trenton High School be retained for as long as Mr. Houston wishes to stay in the position.

The resignation last spring was suggested by the Minister of Education in order that an agreement could be reached between the board and the Trenton Secondary School Teachers' Federation and the Trenton Separate School. The school by the federation be lifted. The agreement was brought about by differing attitudes of the board and the Federation on the resignation of the principal, E. S. McElwain, and a number of teachers. Mr. McElwain resigned and the members of the board had passed a vote of non-confidence in his principalship.



Crime Intelligence

William Bugg, Carrying Place Road in Trenton, returned home from a week's hunting at Lake St. Peter last week-end. He brought with him a 1200-lb. bull moose. Mr. Bugg said that the moose was wounded by a hunting companion and that he himself had fired the animal's final shot. Mr. Bugg's companion visited the Bugg home over the weekend to view the mighty moose.

Probationary Plan Undesirable

Leaders of several ethnic groups in Toronto have voiced opposition to a proposal that immigrants to Canada should be considered to be on probation for two years. They regard such a system as undesirable.

We agree.

We feel sure that Charles E. Rea, the Progressive Conservative member of the Commons for Toronto Spadina, had the best of intentions in making his proposal.

We think, however, that Paul Staniszewski, president of the Toronto branch of the Polish Canadian Congress, was right when he said such a policy would create a group of immigrants "who would always be frightened that after two years they might be shipped back." Canadians may be convinced that the Government would not reject any immigrant without good cause, but those who argue in this fashion appear to us to be overlooking the different atmosphere in the states from which some of these immigrants come to this country. In any event, it would be contrary to our own Canadian conception of justice to give such sweeping powers to civil servants, or even to the Cabinet, without laying down a clear-cut system of rules for otherwise the probationary period would be a clear-cut negation of the principle of rule by law. Devising such a set of rules would be most difficult, if not impossible. In the final analysis the Government already has adequate powers to deal with undesirable immigrants—for they can be deported if they are guilty of criminal offences. Further than this we should not go.

Those Old Movies

Every so often, generally on TV, we see some old movies—some really old movies, we mean, not the products of a decade or so ago which are regular fare on the late show. Some movies made in those days immediately show us why films once went by the nickname of "flickers." There is a jumpy action which explains all about that name.

Still, those of us who can remember when the "silents" were a regular source of entertainment, rather than oddities from the past, are often puzzled by them. The figures dash around so. How could we ever have enjoyed seeing films like these? Yet enjoy them we did. We shake our heads sadly and marvel at our poor taste in bygone years. How easily we were satisfied.

Now, however, comes an explanation. The other day Mack Sennett died. He was one of the original producers of comedies—in the old day's all movie shows, like Gaul, were divided into three parts; a newsreel, a comedy and a feature picture. The only variation came on weekends, when a serial either replaced the newsreel or comedy or was an added attraction. Well, as we were saying, Mack Sennett died, and this, of course, resulted in some of his old comedies being shown on the TV news programs. The Vancouver Sun, commenting editorially, remarks: "The figures dash ludicrously around the screen, because they were shot originally at 16 frames per second and are now projected at 24 frames." So that's the explanation. It isn't a case of the old silents being so bad but of modern machinery making them appear so, something like playing a 75 rpm record at 33 rpm—only with reverse English.

We Are Cowed

No moos would be bad moos after an atomic attack.

Convinced of this, the Federal Department of Agriculture is preparing a booklet (to be published next April but not, we trust, on the first of the month), which will list ways of giving cows priority second only to human beings in nuclear attack survival plans.

A draft of the plan has been discussed at a conference on emergency planning held at Arnprior and attended by 100 Ontario mayors and reeves. We trust they were in the moo-ed.

What bothers us about the plan is that while the department unconvincingly refers to a shelter for the farmer and his family, no similar concession is made to Mrs. Cow's spouse and offspring.

Although no agricultural expert and although any knowledge we have of surviving a nuclear attack has, fortunately, been obtained second-hand, we cannot escape the conviction that the outlook for cows after an atomic attack will be pretty bleak unless present plans are expanded.

Miracles of the Universe
Miracles of the Universe - The Accordion Theory

By Hon. ROBERT W. MACAULAY
Minister of Energy Resources

ARTICLE 26

The universe is unrolling outwards like a rug, and when it has completely unrolled it will roll itself up again, and in the process it will destroy the galaxies, the stars and all life. After which the universe will unroll outwards only to roll back on itself yet again, in and out, in and out to infinity. No start and no finish! The universe has always existed and it always will.

This is a bird's eye view of the Accordion Theory of the Universe's birth.

This is the second of three articles which describe generally the three most popular concepts of how the universe began.

The first was the "Explosion Theory" or "Big Bang" in the preceding article I described in a general way, of what the theory consisted. I pointed out that the universe is composed of more than one billion galaxies which are visible to us. Our galaxy is an immense bowl of stars shaped sometimes like a football and sometimes like a pin-wheel. Our galaxy is called the Milky Way galaxy. It is composed of over 100 billion stars of which our Sun is but one star. (Note that the Sun is a star, and vice-versa.)

OPPOSITE ENDS OF SCALE

All galaxies are composed of stars and all stars are composed of, like all life, of atoms. While there are said to be over 100 billion billion stars in the universe, there are 100 billion billion atoms in a single drop of water. There are 100 billion atoms in a drop of water than there are stars in the universe — more, in fact, than a billion billion.

These are the opposite ends of the size scale of matter.

We are so accustomed to thinking of Earth's size, Earth's distances, Earth's time and Earth's speeds, that we are almost unaware of other sizes, distances, time and speeds.

Earth's size is 8,000 miles in diameter, the Sun's diameter is 860,000 miles and the star Aldebaran's diameter is 1,000,000 miles.

Earth's Distances — you can run over Earth 25,000 miles on Earth without ending up where you began. In space, it would take you by car at least 36,000 billion, billion miles (36 sextillion) to run over as far and as far away as man now sees with a telescope or the closest star to our Sun is 25,000 billion miles away (35 trillion.)

Earth's Time—Once on Earth an hour, a day, a year or a century has a meaning, but once we go beyond Earth years on Earth we are back to the start of man's recorded history. Time is the life span of 100 consecutive years (or about 1/3 of 1 per cent (3 score and 10.) The universe is at least 10,000,000,000 (10 billion) years old and may be twice that.

EARTH'S SPEEDS

We furnish our motorcars to go over 80 mph. Our fastest plane will fly 2,200 mph. A rocket will travel at about 20,000 miles an hour. These speeds would be insignificant in space. Electrons which are a part of an atom may move at speeds not far short of 670,000-000,000 miles an hour. It would take six billion years for man to travel from Earth to the most farthest galaxy in space presently known by man's telescopes.

(Einstein inferred that man cannot exceed the speed of light (186,000 miles per second). This, in turn, infers that man may never, in practice, get out to mention the galaxies. But in science it is not wise to ever say never.)

The distant galaxies in the universe appear to be moving away at vast speeds the universe is increasing in size every hour, by hundreds of millions of miles. The advocates of the "Accordion Theory" maintain that since the galaxies are fleeing from each other at increasing speeds, they must at one time have been close together and moving at much slower speeds—if moving at all. At one time all the matter in the universe was in a state of close, hot, compactness.

BEYOND COMPREHENSION

The "Accordion Theory" does not begin as does the Explosion Theory, with a big Bang. It starts with the concept that the universe has been rolling out and in again since infinity. In short, the "Accordion Theory" would begin by the sun being going on since infinity.

One may well say: "How can something be infinite?" or "How can ever "What happened before infinity?" That is to me not in the realm of science as such, but within the purview of religion. Man in science can go back only as far as facts seem to permit, beyond the bounds of reason in the field of philosophy and religion.

The advocates of the "Accordion Theory" say that the universe is about half-way rolled out (or in) (depending on which way you look at it) (which is why it seems down and gravity will take hold and pull it back in. The rug rolls up into a ball and the whole universe will roll in upon itself, destroying the galaxies, the stars and all life. The atoms thereby are broken down by the heat into life atoms again. Then, by the great heat of the concentration, the universe explodes outwards again or like the rug starts to unroll and so on, over and over, forming new stars, galaxies and life out of the basic material (hydrogen gas) of the universe.

NO BEGINNING, NO END

This roll out and roll in has gone on since infinity and will go on for ever and ever. There is no ending just as there was no beginning, in and out alternately — in-out, in-out, like a gigantic accordion. It is a self operating, perpetual motion kind of a thing. There is no limit to the number of times a galaxy, or the new universe may be like the old - fashioned, kaleidoscope — always the same pattern but each time a new arrangement.

What number universe we are on at present, nobody can say — we are all made of star dust. What we were in the last universe, none of us can even predict.

During expansion, the universe swells like an inflating balloon, during contraction it is the reverse until the whole forms a dense centre — after which the explosion begins again.

This is the second theory of how the universe began and how one contemplates its future.

This third concept is called the Steady State Theory. It sees the universe like a log of raisin bread rising in the oven.

To be continued.

Letters To The Editor

Asks for Improvement In School Instruction

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

The Ontario Intelligencer said last week the Education Week in Belleville. Well, I for one, see very little for cause to celebrate. With seven teachers in my immediate family, one for sub-normal and one extra-intelligent student, I think I know a little about their work.

After looking through some of the notebooks of my grandchildren, I'm really concerned as to why there are indifferent and careless in their work, for work that is average good, and better, I would have made them discard and re-do. I think more than one teacher is slack and on the comfortable side. Some samples of corrected work, "Panama" with Balboa crossed the Isthmus of Panama and was married.

"Cartier saw fish in the spring along the Grand Rooks."

"The Grand Canadian crop was corn. They used the fleece for rugs and clothes."

About plants and their use: Roots, tubers, bulbs, tendrils, parsnips grapes, sap, rubber, turpentine and maple sap.

Non-Indian-ian' leaves, to make dyes.

I could fill pages with this corrected work. Why celebrate?

Another thing, last Friday, they were given outline maps with cities, lakes and rivers marked. All they have to do is name them. I doubt if there is one, if that, pupil in any of these is so who with no books, just paper and pencil could draw map of Canada, Ontario, or one of the counties with the chief townships and place all the rivers, towns, lakes and rivers correctly. Yet, in the old days we were allowed to make a map.

I may as well stop, as I get absolutely riled up when thinking of the present school programme. Aren't there others?

Thanking for letter, or even old-time schooling.

Mrs. Irene Sine.

SOUND IN MIND AND BODY

At the end of the seventeenth century, the British philosopher John Locke wrote, "A sound mind in a sound body is a short but full description of a happy state in this world. He that has these two Dis little more to wish for; and he that wants either of these will be but little better for anything else."

It will come as a shock to some readers that Locke's could postulate a "happy state" on the basis of mental and physical soundness alone. Too many of us in the twentieth century, happiness seems to be synonymous with material possessions. We cannot picture ourselves as even content, let alone really happy, without a modern home, flashy expensive car, and a host of other accessories. The British philosopher series is living in the modern world.

Locke knew what many people living since then have discovered for themselves — that happiness does not come from within, not from out. His "sound mind in a sound body" is the necessary precondition without which the inner state of happiness cannot be achieved. And what he said in 1693 is just as true in 1960.

Within the limits of the minds and bodies which God has given us, we should all do our best to achieve this soundness, which is the only secure basis for contented happiness. "Soundness" has to do with more than mere body. We are spiritual beings also.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

November 15th., 1940

One hundred and twenty - five delegates representing progress in the fold of Christian endeavor were fittingly celebrated at Bridge Street United Church on Wednesday evening as the members and adherents of this, Belleville's oldest church, met in a happy social gathering to commemorate the anniversary of the opening of the Methodist Church in Belleville.

Mr. F. S. Deacon, Recording Steward, extended the official welcome of the church to the visiting ministers and to the members of the Belleville City Council. Mr. Deacon then gave a brief history of the founders of the Bridge Street United Church. "Progress" in the devision and came from godly heritage," he said. Mr. Deacon, in closing, he read messages of greeting from former members and adherents of the church: Mr. Mark Dulmage of Toronto; Mr. W. A. A. Coon of Toronto; Mr. W. A. A. McCoy of Hamilton; Mr. James Johnson of Boston, Mass.; Mr. Ethel Leighton of Lockport, N. Y.; Dr. David Clare of Guelph, and Dr. Peake of Transcona, Man.

The greetings of the Bay of Quinte Conference were brought by its president, Rev. H. W. Cliff, M. A., who congratulated the congregation upon their accomplishments. The greetings of Dr. B. B. McCoy of Hamilton; Mr. James Johnson of Boston, Mass.; Mr. Ethel Leighton of Lockport, N. Y.; Dr. David Clare of Guelph, and Dr. Peake of Transcona, Man.

Strictly Personal
Writers Are Not Different from Other People

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A book publisher mentioned to me at dinner the other night that a famous British writer had just arrived in North America, engaged in the mass production of books and movies. But this is nothing new in literary trends.

Actually, many of the world's greatest writers have unconsciously regarded their work as much of a business as a profession. Balzac set up a "word factory" more than a century ago, and Dickens and other notable books to stave off the sheriff and all his clamorous creditors.

Mollere called himself frankly a "businessman", yet nobody turned out better plays in his time. Shakespeare (if indeed, he wrote the plays) paid little attention to the affairs of his theatrical company, but left dramatic works. In fact, he didn't even consider it important enough to keep copies of his plays or manuscripts.

The elder Dumas actually ran a literary sweatshop, hiring assistants to help him write his adventure stories and signing his own name to the work of the talented "ghosts". Dickens penned his finest books under intense pressure of monthly magazines; and he was as skilful at finagling a profit-conscious public as any of us.

Along with this myth that writers, as a class, are lofty and unmercenary souls is the correspondingly false notion that authors are a special physical type, that they are thin and frail, etherial folk, with long, pale features, looking frail and etherael, this is another misconception. Wordsworth looked like a prosperous innkeeper; Tennyson was a rugby and cricket player; Dryden trooper; Whitman was a burly, bearded, open-shirted truck driver; Coleridge was a puffy faced man who looked like a unsuccessful ward heeler; Balzac was short, loud and greasy, and T. S. Eliot resembles a bank president.

Finally, as for the cherished belief (especially among themselves) that writers are "smarter" than other people, Mark Twain expressed the shameful truth when he said, "Reading is learned from books, but writing is learned from life." I have been a writer for 22 years, and am sax for 55".

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NECESSITY

Coleridge once remarked, very beautifully, that the child learns to speak by the necessity to talk.

All along the way of life, necessity follows a man like day and night and the sun, and will never able to escape it. And the stronger its pressure upon him, the greater the man, as a rule.

When everything comes your way you learn precious little. Adversity is not so keen, you are just a little unready but driven by necessity you learn the sweetness of your big attempts and determination and keep through to success.

It was necessity that started the human race on its forward way.

In the first place a man had to have food. Necessity produced it. With his craving for food satisfied, he felt strong, so he sought health, surgery, psychiatry, skin, eyes, bones and other fields. The specialists are bound to stick to their specialties, so they aren't available for general physical checkups. Oh — and subscribe to research people and some of the teachers from doctoring carrying on research practice. We just don't have enough checkups to get the ideal job.

So, regarding checkups we go the horns of a dilemma, but there is a solution.

I wish the doctor mentioned in today's letter had been more receptive. I concede that he may well have been overworked, and maybe Mrs. B. M. didn't say in advance that she wanted a checkup, and all that. Nevertheless, he still should have welcomed her request as she was taking a wise course. But doctors, too, have human failings. Let me discuss this a bit more tomorrow.

Dear Dr. Molner: I go swimming every day for an hour. I occasionally get a mouthful of ocean water. Could this be harmful? — R.M.C."

No, sir. You'd lived in a climate where I could swim outdoors every day, but the chance of avoiding occasional harmful contamination is excessive thirst afterward, I'd try to keep my mouth shut or spew out the water. Sometimes that's hard, but I don't know of anybody who ever was hurt by an occasional sip or swashout.

A regular checkup for every one of us would be a good thing. But we don't have enough doctors to do it. Nationwide, we have about one doctor to 900 people, more or less. Divide it, everyone to have a checkup each year, every doctor would have to give three or four checkups per day — plus taking care of all the small and large emergencies, all the chronic illnesses, and all the other work that has to be done. Add to the fact that many doctors are specialists in public handling and postage.

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

The news announcer on the radio said:

"It has been reported that an American spy has been arrested in Pinsk."

After a moment's reflection, he tried again.

"It is reported that an American spy has been arrested in Pinsk."

That came out better! But still, personally, I like that word spy. It's a wonder the people who made up the English language didn't invent spy instead of spy.

Spy is far more descriptive. If you say it over and over a few times, you perceive that it is a descriptive word. It conveys the notion of a sneaky word. It connotes far better than the bright word spy, the word employed by the men of us have in mind when we think of those baleful individuals who endanger us.

Spy is what I have seen were far from smies. On a wild winter night on the Arras front in 1916, I was one of our spies who had been captured by the Germans, and they were in the most part cheerful extroverts more like a bevy of commercial travellers than the smies of fiction.

Twice Convicted Saskatchewan Killer Hanged

FORT SASKATCHEWAN, Alta. (CP) — Robert Raymond Cook was hanged early today at the provincial jail for the murder more than a year ago of his father. He maintained up to the end that he was innocent.

No one claimed the body of the 23-year-old mechanic. His family was slain. The bodies of his father, his stepmother and their five children were found in a grave pit behind the farmhome in Stettler in June, 1959.

Cook, twice convicted by juries which did not believe his story of being away from Stettler at the time of the mass slaying, willed his eyes to the Edmonton eye bank and the body to the University of Alberta medical faculty.

Cook, who knew little of Christianity less than a year ago, was baptized into the Anglican faith a few hours before his death. He received communion at 11.30 p.m. from his pastor, Rev. W. A. Runcan, and was taken to the gallows two minutes after midnight. The trap was sprung at 12.05 a.m. and he was pronounced dead 14 minutes later.

DIED A CHRISTIAN

"This has ended as a real outstanding Christian," said Mr. Runcan who started instructing Cook about seven months ago.

"He maintained his innocence to the last and never implicated anyone," he said.

Jail warden Thomas Holt said Cook "was like a man." He refused sedation and walked calmly to the scaffold.

Cook spent most of his final day with Mr. and Mrs. Runcan in his regular prison meals and asked for nothing special. He prayed and read Scriptures with his pastor until the end.

The case was one of the most bizarre in Alberta history. On June 28, 1959, police found the bodies of Edmond Cook, 51, his wife, Daisy Mae, 37, and their five children ranging in age from three to nine years in a garage grave behind their Stettler home, 90 miles southeast of Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook had been shot. The children had been bludgeoned. Only one was recognizable.

DROVE BLOODY CAR

Police made the discovery after questioning young Cook about a bloody vehicle they said he was driving around Stettler June 27. He had bought the car in Edmonton by using his father's station wagon as a trade-in.

Cook was charged with murder and committed to Ponoka mental hospital for observation.

He escaped but was recaptured five days later after one of the largest manhunts on record.

It was the fifth hanging in Canada since the Progressive Conservative government took office in June, 1957. Since then 45 death sentences have been passed and the federal cabinet has commuted 35 to life imprisonment.

U.S. Expects Farm Surpluses Will Increase

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States agriculture department forecasts continuation this year of a healthy market for U.S. farm products in Canada, Australia, Japan and other countries.

But it also forecasts costly inaction at home of the kind of farm problem that may force John Kennedy, the president-elect, to move ahead with his proposed squeeze on farm production, despite the cold-shoulder he received in the midwestern farm belt in the Nov. 8 election fight.

The department estimates that surpluses are likely to increase next year in such products as wheat and corn, despite rising increased federal price-support outlays.

In a report placed before the 1961 agricultural outlook conference Monday, the department said the government had 98,826,000 invested in surpluses and price support loans as of Aug. 31, an increase of $66,000,000 over last year.

CARRYING COST RISING

If nothing was done about the situation, this investment would have to be increased by $400,000,000 by next June. The American wheat carryover would rise by an estimated 300,000,000 bushels to around 1,500,000,000 bushels next July. The corn carryover also would rise by some 200,000,000 bushels to a peak 2,000,000,000 bushels next October.

Art-Smuggling Ring Smashed, Objects Seized

NEW YORK (AP)—Treasury agents have smashed a country-wide art-smuggling ring and seized more than $400,000 worth of Chinese art objects brought illegally into the U.S. from Communist China.

The investigation took agents half way around the world.

The most valuable item recovered was an 800-year-old scroll painting of magpies and butterflies attributed to the artist-emperor Hui Tsung of the Sung dynasty. It was valued at $85,000.

Another smuggled scroll was a 12th century painting, Birds and Flowers, sold to the Boston Museum and valued at $35,000.

Agents said other smuggled objects were found in the Cleveland Museum and the Freer Gallery in Washington, D.C.

Dealings with Red China are forbidden in the U.S. under the Trading With the Enemy Act.

RING HAUL IN N.Y.

The biggest haul was at the C. T. Loo Galleries, in Manhattan, where paintings, screens and other objects, including the $85,000 Hui Tsung scroll, were recovered. The objects were valued at $282,000. The gallery is owned by Frank Caro, 56, a native of France but a naturalized U.S. citizen.

He was described as one of two major dealers who had cooperated in the investigation. No charges were filed against him.

Tourists or immigrants from Hong Kong brought in the objects as personal effects.

Another raid was made on a "second" major art dealer in New York, but his identity was not disclosed.

pansion in the service trade and finance industries. Employment was "considerably lower" than last year in construction and manufacturing, the report said.

Most of the unemployed persons in October—83 per cent—were men. And most of the 117,000 annual rise is the jobless total was among men, reflecting in part the slowness in the goods-producing industries.

The report said the largest year-to-year percentage rise in unemployment occurred in Ontario and British Columbia, due partly to the decreased demand for manufacturing workers.

October unemployment at 1 was most severe —in relation to the size of the labor force—in the Atlantic provinces and British Columbia.

In the four eastern provinces unemployment was 7.8 per cent of the labor force and in British Columbia 7.7 per cent. The unemployment rate in other areas: Quebec 6.9; Ontario 5.0; Prairies 2.8.

ONTARIO SCENE

The unemployment picture in Ontario:

Unemployment rose by 11,000 in the month to 120,000 at mid-October—two-thirds higher than the 72,000 unemployed a year earlier.

Total employment, however, also showed a small increase of 10,000 in the month to 2,372,000, a decline in farm work was more than offset by gains elsewhere, notably in automobile and parts plants. Food-canning plants worked at peak levels in the first half of the month. Already the enlarged some workers and employment in clothing factories continued high.

But compared with last year, employment was down in a number of industries, notably fruit, nature and household appliance plants, and producers of heavy electrical apparatus, road machinery and farm implement.

Tyendinaga Twp. Council

The Court of Revision of the Township of Tyendinaga, comprised of the sitting members of council, met on Saturday, November 5th, at 10 a.m. Five appeals were registered against the assessment made in 1960. The regular monthly meeting of the council followed the Court of Revision.

Council authorized the purchase, from Thompson-Murray Auto Parts, of a used Meteor truck with four-wheel drive attachment to be used for plowing snow. A by-law to name polling places, officials and the time and date of nomination was passed. Nomination is held on the last Monday of the year. The township has purchased the corner lot at Melrose from the Shaughnessy brothers as the site for a building to house and maintain township road machinery. Plans for the proposed building are awaiting the approval of the Department of Highways.

Cuba Fishing For Barter Deals In Foreign Trade

By JACK BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HAVANA (CP)—Cuba's revolutionary government is confident the country can make its way in the highly competitive game of foreign trade—without a United States trump.

Its strategy is to fish for barter deals, carefully husbanding its various dollars and dipping into cash reserves only when it cannot get what it needs more cheaply elsewhere.

This picture emerged from a lively exchange with Regino Boti, director of the economic affairs division of the foreign trade ministry.

Mr. Serrano said Cuba is prepared to buy from Canada—and to pay in dollars where absolutely necessary—any other range of machinery and equipment, raw materials, spare parts and some durable consumer goods.

WANTS FOOD, MEDICINE

I addition, Cuba is interested in purchases of food and medicine from Canada, even though these officials said from the evidence the U.S. recently slapped on exports to the country.

Mr. Serrano appeared to assume that perhaps the major Western power would be Canada.

Cuba is in a position to spend "some tens of millions of dollars" for goods it needs and it is not obtain through trade. It also might find some cash for things not on Ottawa's list—automobiles, refrigerators, radios and the like. Mr. Boti refused to put a figure expressing a "personal opinion."

Javier Torras, managing director of the Cuban Nickel Co., which wields control over state nickel, told a Canadian reporter from Toronto that for critical supplies Cuba will be ready to pay cash through the two Canadian banks operating here.

EXPROPRIATIONS

The Royal Bank of Canada and the Bank of Nova Scotia were authorized by the sweeping nationalization decree which gobbled up other banks in Cuba, including three America

Both Mr. Torras and Mr. Serrano emphasized the immediate necessity for spare parts for trucks, sugar agricultural machinery, sugar factories and oil refineries. These are items which Cuba could get from the Communist bloc—where she has big trade deficits—because her equipment is American-designed.

Mr. Serrano made it plain that no decrees sometimes heard here that Cuba's dollar reserves are sequestered by the government as a result of U.S. action in cutting off sugar imports from the Caribbean island.

He also insisted that Cuba still had $180,000,000 in the kitty at the end of September.

Workmen Try To Cut off Ignited Gas Main

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Firemen continued to pour water on the smouldering ruins of the downtown Belmont Restaurant early today as workmen tried to cut off an ignited gas main.

The gas main, in the basement of the gutted restaurant, was all that was burning after blazing $1,000,000 fire that destroyed the Belmont and Victoria Hotel buildings, a half block south of the city's main intersection of Richmond and Dundas and damaged several others.

Demolition men worked by floodlight to clear debris from the Belmont after a 30-foot hole was used to knock down the angling wall of the hotel building.

Monday night, R. J. Simmons, chief inspector for the Ontario fire marshal's office in London, arrived to launch an investigation into what is said to be the city's worst fire since the Kingsmill Department Store blaze 25 years ago.

Capt. David Moffitt, 48, died of a heart attack while fighting Monday's blaze, and five firemen were treated with oxygen when they were overcome by smoke.

It took 100 firemen more than three hours to get the fire under control.

Lapalme Will Make Statement

QUEBEC (CP)—Attorney-General Lapalme said Monday he will make a public statement on publication of charges in Quebec political party had planned to use $2,500,000 in counterfeit $10 bills to buy votes in the 1956 provincial election.

Mr. Lapalme's announcement followed a statement in Montreal by Supt. R. J. Deloy, RCMP criminal investigation branch officer there, that the case appeared to be a "fanciful" smearing rather than a criminal matter.

Supt. Beloc said his department has gathered all available information and forwarded it to federal Justice Minister Fulton.

There was a call for sworn statements made by the Quebec Conservative party from sworn statements touched off this report," he said.

Mr. Lapalme did not say when his public statement would be issued.

Bay of Quinte Basketball

Crawford Metals increased their lead at the top of the Bay of Quinte basketball league standing last night when they handed the Belleville Teachers a 76-30 reverse at Moira Secondary School.

A double-header has been scheduled for Major Wednesday night. Northern Electric and Belleville Lightfoots meet at seven o'clock while the loop's two undefeated clubs, Crawford Metals and Trenton Wilsons, clash at 8.30 p.m.

The Metals crew held a slim 18-16 margin after one quarter last night but ten-point performances by Bert Faulkner and Teddy Batchelor in the second period made it 46-30 at half time. They increased the lead to 62-33 in the third quarter.

Foul shooting played a major part in the loop-leaders' victory. Crawfords made 10 of 14 tries while the Teachers clicked on only two of 10 attempts.

Ted Batchelor upped his individual scoring leadership spread by collecting 26 points for the-winners. Bert Faulkner hit for 23 while Rogers hooped ten.

John Perry topped the Teachers' attack with 12 points followed by Max Wooley with 11 and Jack Simon with nine.

CRAWFORD METALS (76): Batchelor 26, Faulkner 23, Rogers 13, Walmsley 7, Bennett 4, Morden 2, Ablarde 2.

Mrs. Ethel McCullough, Mrs. Elsmere Goodsell and Mrs. Bessie Wager spent Saturday in Toronto, and attended the Royal Winter Fair.

Women's Institute

QUINTE W. I.

The November meeting of the Quinte W. I. was held at the W.I. Hall on November 8 with about 32 members and visitors present.

The president, Mrs. Robert Aitkin opened the meeting.

Mrs. R. Jeffery gave the report on the banquet supper, tea, sale and euchre. A fine amount was realized.

Mrs. Jeffery received a gift on the fines. The bills were presented and moved paid; a letter from Parkdale W. I. inviting Quinte to an evening meeting on December 6 was accepted. Letters of thanks for fruit, cards were read.

Mrs. R. French voiced her appreciation for cards and box of treats from the W.I. Also an invitation to attend a "Brush Party" at the Front of the Hand Hall on November 17th at 8 o'clock was read.

The Christmas program to be arranged by the executive, with exchange of gifts not to exceed 50 cents on December 13th in the afternoon.

Mrs. J. Parrott, Mrs. Butterfil, attended the Windsor Provincial meeting from "Quinte," at Stirling, recently, with meetings to be held later in September.

Meadows Bedell, Sharpe, Trounpour, Belamy, Woods, and Aikins, are booked to attend W.I. euchre to be held at the Neighbors' Aid Hall on November 28th.

Mrs. Tufts, Mrs. Bunnett, Mrs. J. Graham, Mrs. Aitken, secretary and president, Mrs. E. Jeffery and Mrs. Wilson Trask, to help plan the 60th anniversary of the East Hastings district which is to be celebrated in the future.

Mrs. R. Jeffery gave a detailed account of the Area convention held at the Trail Road, recently and Mrs. Tufts made interesting comments, relating to the business part of convention which added to its already full schedule for which the president thanked both.

Mrs. Bells, Mrs. Maguire, convenors of Health, but owing to illness of Mrs. Maguire, Mrs. Bells prepared and conducted the following program: the motto "Stick to the river very want of wealth, heaven's best treasure is peace and health," was given by Mrs. Putman, assisted by her daughter, Joy, who is a nurse at the Belleville hospital and closed with a prayer of thanksgiving for the many things one has today.

A paper on health prepared by Miss Joy Putman, Reg. N., on cancer, heart ailment, early treatment of the shows, is a great help when first discovered, was read by Mrs. Bells, who in closing read poem written by a soldier before going to action and later found on his body after being killed in action, which was a most beautiful and stirring poem.

Mrs. Bells thanked Mr. Hugh McMullen for lighting the oil burner and help given her in getting ready for the meeting, and those who helped with the program, Mrs. Putman and Joy.

Lunch was served by Mesdames H. McMullen, W. Bells, M. Reid, Melville Reid and E. Sandercock.

BEDSIDE SERVICE

MONTREAL (CP) — Francesco Piccioni, 21, was lying in a hospital bed when his marriage to Carla Donna Clinton was performed by Rev. P. W. Murray at the bedside. Hurt in a traffic accident, the groom's left leg was bandaged and suspended from pulleys.

Wives of Yemenite Harem See Little of the World

By WILTON WYNN

CAIRO (AP)—For any girl who aspires to be a modern Queen of Sheba, the qualifications are something like this:

"Young, beautiful, preferably Syrian nationality and Moslem religion. Must be willing to wear veil. Must be tall, fair and complain if husband takes additional wives."

A youthful prince of the isolated Red Sea kingdom of Yemen is reported to be seeking such a bride.

The prince is 25-year-old Mohid Rahman, deputy foreign minister of Yemen and brother of ailing Imam Ahmed, absolute sovereign of the kingdom. Relatively well educated and intelligent, Abdid Rahman is regarded as a possible successor to his brother.

If Abdul Rahman becomes king, he could make the kingdom which local tradition says was the Sheba whose queen visited King Solomon.

ABIDE BY TRADITION

The prince has made clear that his bride will be expected to wear a veil and live in a harem, the traditional institution of Yemen, girls almost always marry before the age of 15 or sometimes at 9 or 10.

The wives of a Yemenite harem take turns in supervising the cooking and housework for the entire family. Otherwise, they while away their time visiting one another in the stuffy harems, drinking tea, smoking long-tubed "hubble-bubble" pipes and chewing qat, a green leaf that has a mild narcotic effect.

Even if the royal family usually have an ample supply of concubines, girls of 13 or 14 are weighted down with jewelry and fine dresses. Then they can each show off their finery to each other. No male eyes, except those of their husbands and brothers, may see them.

DOCTORS FOR DOLL

Their seclusion, early marriage and ignorance means poor health and short lives for most Yemenite wives. Their health is further threatened by the reluctance of their husbands to permit doctors to see them. In rare cases when a doctor is called, he may have to examine a rubber doll instead of the patient, poking the doll in various places and telling the husband:

"Ask her if it hurts here."

Yemenite women live under such enforced modesty that none of them conceal the fact they are pregnant as long as possible. Often they will suffer labor pains and childbirth alone and in silence, rather than speak of their condition to anyone.

After a baby is born, a swarm of women friends and relatives rush to the harem. The baby's mother lies on a mat on the floor while her friends squat on their heels and cushions around her, smoking, chewing and chattering. The windows are kept shut, and the room is stifling. This continues for 40 days after the baby is born.

In such an atmosphere the infant's chances of survival are lucky to live to the ripe age of 50.

In a land of freedom and peace.

The past officers' jewels were presented to the I.P.M., Mrs. Ida Fluke, by her husband, Mr. Leslie Fluke, P.P., and to the I.P.P., Mrs. Edison Sine, by his wife, Mrs. Ila Sine.

After the close of the chapter refreshments were served under the convenership of Mrs. Lola Pound, Mrs. Helen Brenton, Mrs. Mona Williams and their committee.

Minerva 138 Installs 1960-1 Officers

On Friday evening, November 11th, the officers and members of Minerva Chapter, No. 138, O.E.S., held their annual installation ceremonies, in the auditorium of the Masonic Temple. The east was simply but beautifully decorated with bronzes, gold and red mums and ferns.

The retiring Worthy Matron, Mrs. Mae Finkle, and Worthy Patron, Mr. Edison Sine, welcomed the many officials who were present from the majority of the chapters in this district and also from several Toronto and Ottawa chapters. Special guests were Grand Chaplain, Mrs. Audrey Elliott, Worthy Grand Matron of the Grand Chapter of Ontario, and two of her presiding officers, District Deputy, Mrs. Cecilia Ratcliffe of District 12, and Mrs. Mary Watts of District 11. Also present were the visitations and six presiding patrons present.

After routine business was finished, Mrs. Nellie McGorrow read the auditors' committee, to close the treasurer's work.

The installation ceremonies were conducted by Mrs. Audrey Elliott, WGM, as installing Grand Matron; Mr. Charles Hyde as Grand Patron; Mrs. Frances Marner as Grand Marshal; Mrs. Bessie Marsh, Grand Chaplain; Miss Lottie Archer, Grand Organist; Mrs. Lillian Pettruff, Grand Adah; Mrs. Alfred Cooper, Grand Sentinel and Mrs. Florence Spencer, Grand Soloist.

They were assisted in the east by the following past officers from Belleville Chapter: Mrs. Gladys Dobbs, PDDGM and PM's Mrs. Florence Spencer, Mrs. Gladys Smith, Mrs. Wilma Reddick, Mrs. Mae Finkle, IPM, Mrs. Edith Williams, as Ruth; Mrs. Ida Gumsolus, Mrs. Laura Hyde, Mrs. Hazel Brook, Gray and Pam Patron, Gern Dobbs.

The Worthy Matron was presented with two sisters, Mrs. Ida Mills, PM, Rainbow Chapter, Toronto, and Mrs. Florence Spencer, PM, Colborne Chapter, Brighton, who were escorted to honored seats in the east before the start of the installation.

Mrs. Mary Davidson, grand soloist, sang "Lord, Let Me Live Each Day" after the officers were installed.

OFFICERS INSTALLED

The officers installed for 1960-61 are: Worthy Matron, Mrs. Pauline Clare; Worthy Patron, George Garner; Associate Matron, Mrs. Dorothy Tugnett; Associate Patron, Gerald Pound; secretary, Mrs. Winnifred Gumsolus, PM; treasurer, Mrs. Marjorie Collyer; conductress, Mrs. Ida Sine; associate conductress, Mrs. Kay Bushell; chaplain, Mrs. Phyllis Skelly; marshal, Mrs. Nellie McBurney; organist, Mrs. Jill Jordan, PM; Adah, Mrs. Cora Richards; Ruth, Miss Gertrude Cummins; Esther, Mrs. Frances Moon; Martha, Mrs. Joan Dillon; Electa, Mrs. Doris Coolidge; warder, Mrs. Eva Thrasher and sentinel, Mr. Donald Dillon.

The newly-installed W.M. and W.P. both thanked their chapter for the honor conferred upon them and asked for the support of all members to make this coming year a prosperous and harmonious one. The colors for the year will be red, green and gold and the motto, "Love, Faith and Wisdom."

One minute silent prayer was observed in grateful remembrance of those who had given their lives that we might live mitten.

The hat reaches new heights in this model designed by Amy, distinguished, New York milliner.

Bands of lavender, mauve and blue velvet are cleverly twisted to form a headhugging turban over a three-tiered backward draped brim and a lofty peaked crown.

It is a style that would complement almost any type of fall-into-winter outfit.

Sharpshooting Grandma At 73 Lives Alone in Cabin

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — One of the best ways to retain youth and vigor is to live a hardy outdoor life, says Mrs. Emma Alles McCulloch, 73 - year - old sharpshooting grandmother.

From early spring until late autumn she lives alone in a cabin on Lac-a-Beauce, 65 miles north of Trois - Rivieres, in the wilderness area of the Laurentian Mountains.

During the long summer days she hikes and collects driftwood from the lake. On crisp autumn days she hunts. Her trophies include a bear, shot when bruin was trampling her flowers, a moose and various types of small game.

Talking to a reporter, Mrs. McCulloch told how she shot the bear. She first poured molasses into a pail which she hung on a nearby tree. Then she spread newspapers about the trunk to give me a background for sighting the critter."

"He made a perfect silhouette," she said, recalling the first-after-sundown shooting. "I dropped him with a single shot from the old .30."

The hide of the black male bruin now adorns the floor of Mrs. McCulloch's cabin. The meat was given away to friends.

LIKES ICE-FISHING

A sturdy woman with a firm, tanned face and shoulder-length white hair, Mrs. McCulloch was born in La Tuque, Que., of Irish-Scottish parentage.

During the winter she travels to nearby Ste.-Anne-de-la-Parade for ice-fishing.

She and her late husband raised a daughter Stuart McCulloch, had five sons and two daughters. One son was killed in the Battle of Britain. Another, Ernie, has now taken over the family farm at Ste. Anne de la Parade.

Asked how she managed to retain her rather amazing vitality, she said:

"I guess it's being outdoors so much and keeping busy. I always have something to do. I go to rescue driftwood from the lake, hunt and fish, cook and sew."

She said she was not afraid of living by herself.

"I am not afraid of anything except perhaps a rat. I don't like rats. She once killed six in a single afternoon.

Rebekah D.D.P. Entertains Officers, Staff

Thursday night Sister Mary Plumpton, District Deputy President of District No. 4 I.O.O.F., Rebekahs, entertained her officers and installing staff at the home of Sister Eva Judge, Mount Pleasant Ave. Court whist was played and by the sounds of laughter was an enjoyable game.

Following this, a "Smorgasbord" luncheon was served, the table festively laden with the wonderful variety of food to suit all tastes. While all were relaxing with their cup of coffee or tea, Sister Mary gave each of her officers, escorts, photographer and guard of honor a lovely gift in appreciation of their help and glamor during the installing of all the officers in No. 4 District.

THANKS TENDERED

Sister Annie Rose expressed thanks, on behalf of all those present, for their gifts and the lovely lunch, also expressing the pleasure all had enjoyed during their bit to help make it such a successful period, of installations.

Following this, Sister Orese Adams and Sister Annie Rose presented Sister Mary with a lovely piece of luggage from all the installing staff. Sisters Pearl Wilson, Emily Beal, and Joanne Meyer presented Sister Mary with an album of colored pictures and write ups of all the installations in the District. The Noble Grand Sister Ilia Addy and vice-grand Sister Irene McMartin of Quintena gave her a nice set of jewellery. Sister Mary was so taken by surprise by these gifts, that although she was "speechless," managed to thank all the girls. On this happy note, friendly good nights were said and all agreed it was a good party and enjoyed by all.

Neighbors' Aid Sponsors Euchre

2ND THURLOW — The Neighbors' Aid held a euchre at the hall on Friday night with Mrs. Oorah Howard and Mrs. S. Ray as hostesses.

Twelve tables were in play with prizes won as follows: ladies' Mrs. C. Hagerman, Mrs. J. Chamberlain; consolation, Mrs. Craig; men—C. Yorke, Mary Jeffery (playing as a man); consolation, J. Craig; lone hands—Orval Rose. A euchre was announced for Nov. 25 and Dec. 9 at the hall.

Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Gamma Mu Holds Lively Auction Sale

An amusing auction sale highlighted a recent coffee and dessert party held on Tuesday, November 1st, by Gamma Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority. This party, taking place at the home of Mrs. D. Mc-Elberan, Bloecker Avenue, was in honor of four rushees who have been pledged to Gamma Mu.

President Mrs. Bruce Bishop, chaired a brief business meeting and stated that she hoped the rushees would accept the invitation to join the chapter. Vice-president Mrs. D. Meadows stated that instruction for the pledges would begin within a week or two. She also reminded members of the tour of Downs Cutler Company, planned for Tuesday, November 15th, in Trenton.

Mrs. Rose Sibbitt, chairman of the ways and means committee, invited members to view the items presented for the auction sale. Mrs. Sibbitt and Mrs. Ken Bird volunteered to be able auctioneers for the evening, calling for bids on items of jewellery, children's apparel, clothing and books. Much gaiety ensued as competitors voiced their bids and won the coveted articles.

Following the auction sale delicious refreshments were served by the hostess Mrs. D. McElberan, assisted by members of the social committee, Mrs. R. Murray, social sponsor of Gamma Mu Chapter, poured at the tastefully decorated tea table. Members of the chapter were happy to welcome a social guest at the coffee party, honorary member, Mrs. D. MacKinnon.

20-Year-Old Girl, Student Archaeologist, Likes Work

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)— Judith MacKenzie is a slender 20-year-old whose serious brown eyes light up when she talks about finding bones 4,000 years old. She's a student archaeologist.

Home for a few months for French language study before entering Acadia University, she talked of her favorite subject.

"You have to feel very strongly about archaeology and be willing to study hard or they just won't accept you. . . .

"There are not too many opportunities for archaeologists. You have to prove that you are persistent and have a definite flair for it before they let you go ahead."

Last summer her trowel turned up interesting traces of an old civilization in a vineyard near Corinth, Greece.

Judith says she became a student archaeologist because of interest aroused by history tales told by her father, Dr. W. H. MacKenzie, History was her favorite subject in—school. She graduated from Saint John High School two years ago and has been attending Tutorial College at Oxford, England. At Edinburgh University she will take a four-year course leading to a master's degree in archaeology.

WEEKEND DOG

During weekends and shirt vacations in England she went on little "digs" with fellow students. She was in Cornwall where they looked for relics of the middle stone age.

While digging in France her party found traces of Roman and illiteracy cultures—the first known communal life. The relics are under study. Most of the bones the party were from Oxford, along with some French and Belgian students. Judith was the only Canadian.

At Souberac in the Cognac area, where the sites of ancient settlements are located by centuries of cultivation, the dig turned up a fortified wall giving a new conception of life in neolithic times.

Findings included stone tools, flint knives used for handles, broken crockery, boxes of cattle bones, pig and a number of human bones.

"The bones," said Miss MacKenzie, "were lying about in a way that leads archaeologists to think people in the period who lived in Europe between 2000 and 2200 B.C. were, regrettably, cannibals."

Centenary W.F. Views Dutch Handicraft

The Centenary Women's Federation held its November meeting at the home of Mrs. Roy Thrasher. The president, Mrs. E. Hart, opened the meeting with a poem.

Roll call showed 18 members and one visitor present.

Cards of thanks were read from Carla Christie and Mrs. Fred Edmondson. Mrs. Albert Christopher voiced her appreciation to the ladies for catering to her daughter's wedding. Mrs. M. Bowles and Mrs. E. Hart also added words of thanks.

An invitation to attend Johnson Memorial Church's "Twilight Tea" on December 9 was accepted.

The president thanked the hostess. Plans were completed for the fall bazaar late in November.

Mrs. B. Harder had charge of the worship service and chose as her topic, "Armistice."

Mrs. F. Aikins read the Scripture lesson in John 4:7-16. A poem, "They Shall Not Grow Old," was read by Thelma.

The citizenship committee had asked Mrs. Ron Postma, native of Holland, to speak on her country, which was much enjoyed. She also showed some handiwork and shoes from Holland, for which Mrs. A. Christopher thanked Mrs. Postma.

Mrs. E. Hart closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Home-wide telephone convenience

Needed... because your family lives all over the home

Ever think of the different areas in your home where members of your family spend much of their time? The kitchen, den or basement workshop, the living room and game room, the bedrooms...all are sensible locations for extension phones—to save steps and minutes when there are calls to be made or taken. Extensions are available in a wide variety of colours. The wall phone is particularly convenient where space is limited—the table set, in handy locations, becomes a constant invitation to pleasant conversation. The Princess (which lights for easy dialing when you lift the receiver) comes in pink, blue, turquoise, beige and white. To enjoy telephone convenience in your home, call your Telephone Business Office—or "ask the man in our green truck".

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers.

Chester F. — Our children don't bring us closer, they separate us.

Lillian F. — He wants me to neglect them and go places just with him.

Chester F. — When a man becomes a father, must he stop being a person, a husband, an individual like before? I never thought that when children came in, companionship would go out.

We're married seven years. Although Lillian and I are wild about bike-riding and we met in a bicycle club, would you believe we haven't had a bike ride together the whole time! She became pregnant right away and never felt well enough to come along. Now Nancy is two and Mark five and all her time and energy are for them. I get the crumbs.

We never have friends over for a real party. But kiddy parties! Every other week, it seems. And when we do go anywhere, we're always the first to leave because Lily feels nervous about Mark's cold and Nancy's nightmares.

What happens to a marriage when a wife turns into 100 per cent mother?

Lillian F. — What does he expect — bring children into the world and then go night-clubbing, bike-riding, dancing and let the children grow up-any old way?

Most men would be glad to have their wives as devoted and conscientious toward their youngsters as I am with Nancy and Mark. Chester can be jealous, I'll ride a bike with him again. When the kids are older, we can all go riding together. And he forgets about parties. We did have one on New Year's Eve a few years ago and the noise and shouting frightened poor Nancy out of a deep sleep. I trace her nightmares to that. Drinking parties can wait until the children can understand what's happening.

A woman can do just so much and no more. I must say no to someone and the someone must be Chester right now. He's old enough to know why. The children aren't.

The Council: Does Lillian realize that the biggest break any child can have is to be the product of a happy marriage?

A mother who grows so overprotective — so unnecessarily wrapped up in her children, is unfairly running away from her marriage. Under the pretext of being too busy, preoccupied with child care, she leaves her husband out on a limb. He must figure what happened to the once-loving mother and wife as he alone can keep it warm through the child-cold-hearted.

At the University of Michigan, two social scientists have completed a study of over 900 marriages and in their new book "Husbands and Wives: The Dynamics of Married Living", say: Children can be psychological props in proper doses they create health, but an overdose is fatal to the marriage."

This may come as a surprise to you, but many cousins that all that's needed for a Blue Heaven is daily love and baby. Mother's or, in this case, Lily's sense or proportion must be added.

Lillian should spend herself to see why she is letting herself be too busy with the children to cultivate the marriage. If it's merely carelessness and thoughtlessness she can catch herself up short and retrace easily. If, however, it's fear or distaste she should talk things over. Drinking parties can wait, but not the kids will be Lily's life's companion. Saying no to him may be saying no to life.

Start saying yes to Chester, Lily.

MODERN MANNERS

by Carolyn Hagner Shaw

WHAT KIND OF GUEST ARE YOU?

A little soul searching on the part of those of us who will be guests at the many parties to be given in the next few weeks seems to be in order. Frankly, I have been appalled at the utter lack of consideration shown the hostess, and the other guests at parties I have attended recently.

Ask yourself if you are guilty of any of the following infractions of the rules of common courtesy:

Do you commit a definite breach of good taste by taking along an out-of-town guest, or just a friend or two, to a party to which you have been invited and they have not? Nothing could be more thoughtless and rude.

Do you shove those ahead of you, in your efforts to get through a receiving line in a hurry? Once through the line do you take a stance and chat with friends right at the end of the line, so that newcomers are forced to mingle around you? Even worse than this is to barge in, walk around the receiving line and start helping to enjoy yourself. Accepting your hostess' hospitality and not even taking the trouble to greet her is inexcusable.

Do you act as if you were in the last stages of starving to death when you approach the buffet table? Pushing against those already there, grabbing for your plate, and reaching across those ahead of you to get what you want, is certainly rude and makes it most unpleasant for others present.

After filling your plate, do you "stay put" — close to the buffet table — gossiping with the person next to you, thereby creating a bottleneck around which new arrivals are forced to swerve? If you do, you should!

Do you force your way in the front line of the liquid refreshment table and refuse to budge? Get your drink and move away. And, most important, do you make every effort to stay well within the limits of your capacity for alcoholic drinks? If you don't, you should! Imbibing too freely is an unforgivable affront to your hosts and/or the other guests.

Do you attend a party for which invitations have plainly stated "five to seven" or "eight to eight" o'clock, and find yourself still among those present at ten o'clock? If you are in this category, you should be ashamed.

Do you make every effort to express your appreciation for your hostess upon your departure? Or do you just assume that the host and hostess loved it your just gone? Even if your hostess is still in a receiving line, you can wait until there is a lull and go up to her and express your thanks. Only if there is a big rush of newcomers is it justifiable to leave without this courtesy. Even if you do say your "thank you's" — a note the next day won't do you a bit of harm, and will mean a lot to your hostess.

Thomsen's 'Italy' To Be Shown Here

The second travelogue, entitled "Italy, Sicily and Sardinia" in the current series of the Kiwanis presentation will be shown in the Collegiate auditorium on Thursday evening, November 17, at 8.15 with Carl H. Thomsen as producer and narrator.

In Italy many places of interest will be visited: Vatican City; the Roman Forum; Independence Day parade; the horse shows Signor Mazzi's Circus Show; the lovely city of Florence; the "Golden Gates of Paradise"; a fashion show at the Pitti Palace; the making of walking dolls, and the home of Christopher Columbus, to mention but a few.

In Sicily, the famous seaport Palermo; the Royal Norman Cathedral of Monreale; the sail industry at Trapani; the Valley of the Temples; folklore groups; tuna fishing; the Wagnerian Music Festival at Ravello, and the Isle of Capri, where 1,000 tourists enter the famed Blue Grotto each day.

Appropriate music will accompany the showing of many of the pictures.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

TRINITY UNITED W.A.

MADOC — The W.A. members of Trinity United Church enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. Percy Bronson who entertained the W.A. on Thursday afternoon for its November meeting. Mrs. Ken Gordon was in charge and welcomed the members and visitors.

Mrs. Milley was in charge of the worship service and chose the Bible story from Matthew 5:1-12 and gave comment on the story.

A business period followed and several items came up for discussion. Arrangements were made for the church bazaar on the 17th, and it was decided to cater to the Coop banquet on November 30 with arrangements for it being made.

A short program followed, owing to the lateness of the hour. Two readings were given on Remembrance Day, by Mrs. Bennett and Mrs. C. Holmes. A solo, "Bless This House," was sung by Mrs. P. Bronson.

A short social time followed the close of the meeting.

SHANNONVILLE W. A.

The monthly meeting of the W.A. of Shannonville United Church was held at the church hall on the afternoon of November 10th with an attendance of 14. The president, Mrs. Sam Elliott, welcomed all and offered a prayer of Thankfulness.

Mrs. Malcolm Little, group leader, took charge. Mrs. Norman Hinchey read the Scripture lesson from Matthew 5. Mrs. Little read "Light of the World" from the devotional leaflet theme for the month being, "Our Commission." Mrs. Robertson read a poem on "November" and one by Helen Anderson "I Shall Not Pass This Way Again." Mrs. Elliott read a poem, "Farewell to Golden Autumn." Mrs. Donna Hinchey read a selection in keeping with Remembrance Day, "Lest We Forget."

Mrs. Little thanked her group for their help and Mrs. Elliott thanked the group for the program and lunch also Mrs. Cook for building the fire to heat the hall and carrying water.

The president took charge of the business. Mrs. Robertson, secretary, called the roll call and gave the minutes of the last meeting which were adopted as read. Mrs. Saul McFarlane sent thanks for the plant sent her from the anniversary service. Mrs. Will Ross expressed thanks for the card sent her when she was ill. Mrs. Charles Kleri thanked the W.A. for card of sympathy she had received at the time of her brother's death and to all who sent cards at this time.

Mrs. Frank Doxtator moved that the officers and group leaders continue for 1961. Mrs. Kleri seconded this motion and it was carried.

"Happy birthday" was sung for two members who contributed to the birthday box. Offerings were dedicated with prayer by the president.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Little and her group and a social time was enjoyed.

Each member is asked to donate a Christmas gift at the next meeting valued at 50 cents to be sold at the December meeting on December 8th at the regular meeting day.

FRANKFORD C.W.L.

FRANKFORD — The Catholic Women's League held its regular meeting on the evening of November 8th, at the home of Mrs. A. N. Croteau with 13 ladies in attendance.

In the absence of Father F. O'Neill, the president, Mrs. Croteau, opened the meeting. The secretarial report was given by Mrs. B. Hanosit and the treasurer's report by Miss Kathleen Macauley. Unfinished business was completed.

Plans are underway for a parish supper, which will be held on November 30, in the Frankford Community Hall.

The meeting adjourned, followed by a social half hour and refreshments.

FOXBORO UNITED CHURCH W.M.S.

Quiet music played by Mrs. Dudley opened the November meeting of the Foxboro United Church W.M.S.

The program, prepared by Mrs. Weese and Mrs. Rombough, was in charge of Mrs. Rombough, who gave the call to worship.

Following silent prayer, for Canada's new head, Mrs. Rombough led in prayer.

The Scripture was read from St. Luke 21, 1-13, by Mrs. Priest.

Mrs. H. Beatty read "Remembrance Day," which was followed by a delightful solo, "Higher Ground," sung by Mrs. G. Meyers. A reading by Mrs. Rombough and an explanation of the new study theme was given by Mrs. Priest.

In her introduction of the study book "Is to All the World Together," Mrs. Priest said, "Twenty eight denominations are studying this theme. The objective is to think of all churches as one and to see them as such as we study and learn."

Follow'ng the closing of the devotional and program Mrs. Priest took charge of the business. Mrs. Dudley brought in the report of the nominating committee which was approved.

Thank you notes from Mrs. F. Priddle and Mr. Murray Eggleton were acknowledged.

The December meeting of the W.M.S. is to be held at the home of Mrs. Priest with Mrs. LaRue (Jean) Mrs. Carter in charge of the program, on December 1st.

Mr. David Strome of Kitchener, conducted a favorite Scripture 'shower'; Mr. and Mrs. Keith Helm rendered a vocal duet, "Standing Somewhere in the Shadows You'll Find Jesus" and Miss Beverley Wannamaker rendered a vocal solo, "Hand in Hand with Jesus."

The service closed with prayer.

Second Try Chocolate Pie

By Mary Moore

This week started out with some mixed big and little blessings.

The big good blessing is that Herbie is posted to Ottawa. Last week's letter began: "Guess what — here we come!" but followed that lovely announcement with "we sail aboard the Empress of England January 4th, arriving Saint John January 11th". You see Sue and Pete and I expected them for Christmas.

To finish off the sublime with some ridiculous — a chocolate meringue pie I made turned to water. I was disgusted for it was to be a special post-birthday pie for Doris and there was no time to make another. So we ate it and the flavor was wonderful. As Pete served it the comments went something like this: "How many spoonfuls would like Doris?" "Selections from Mud Lake" and when I asked for a small serving "about an inch" — "How can you measure soup by the inch?"

TUESDAY

Mixed Vegetable Juice; Baked Individual Meat Loaves with Gravy; *Casserole of *Susan-Mashed Potatoes; Squash; Baked Rice-Raisin Pudding with Milk or Cream; Tea.

I'm telling you folks, it was a dramatic experience — but is until I made another which was a success for a change. That one I am giving you today.

SUCCESSFUL CHOCOLATE MERINGUE PIE:

These amounts fill one deep 9" baked pastry shell.

1 1-2 cups sugar, 1-2 cup all-purpose flour, 2 squares (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate, 1 1-4 cups hot milk, 4 eggs, yolks and whites separated, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 tbsp. tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-3 cup sugar (for meringue).

In top of double boiler mix together dry 1 cup (of the 1 1-2 cup amount) of sugar and the flour. Add the chocolate, cut up, and stir in the hot milk until thick. (The chocolate melts during this process.) Cover and cook about 5 minutes, stirring once or twice. To the beaten yolks add the remaining 1-3 cup sugar (from the 1 1-3 cup amount) and beat a little. Add a little of the cooked chocolate mixture to the beaten yolks, stir well, then stir it into remaining chocolate mixture in top of boiler. Cover and cook 3 minutes longer. Remove from heat, add the salt, butter and vanilla and cool by standing top of double boiler in bottom of the same boiler filled with cold water. Pour into baked pie shell. Assemble make meringue by beating the 4 leftover egg whites until they begin to softly peak, then gradually add last amount (1-3 cup) of sugar until egg whites are stiff but not dry. Spread over chocolate filling, sealing meringue to edge of pastry shell (to prevent "weeping"). Bake at 400 deg. F.ah., until meringue is golden — about 20 minutes. Cool at room temperature. Do not chill in refrigerator.

NOTE:

For those of you who would like a milk-chocolate flavored chocolate filling, reduce chocolate to 1 square and substitute 1 cup 10 per cent table cream for 1 cup of the milk.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Western Ontario hockey "tails" who get gunsky when they are over fifty miles 'away from home are starting to wag the OHA dog again.

Word yesterday was that the Galt Terriers were refused admission to the western division of the OHA senior league, "and the matter had been turned over to the executive of the OHA."

In the same breath they stated that Woodstock, Stratford and Strathroy, senior "B" clubs in the league, threatened to drop back to senior "B" and form their own league if Galt was admitted to the western division.

One of the wackiest statements to come out of the "west" was spawned in Woodstock. The sports editor of that city's newspaper came up with this gem. "The main feelings in the western group are the Terriers wanted, and got, such a strong club that they forced the most of the other teams out of the league. Now with their power-packed sextet, they have to find a loop of their own to play in. One simple solution to this problem would be to have Galt fold up for the 1961 season and then split the Terrier players between Woodstock and Stratford. That would give this league an evenly-balanced group."

"Evenly-balanced?" Listen to this chirp from the Chick of the Stratford Beacon Herald sports page. "One can just picture Lloyd Roubell and Len Gaudette, Galt club bosses when they hear of this proposal. That'll be a day if and when they agree to break up their stacked team of this season. Here's a suggestion from this observer which will not likely be endorsed either. Why not place the supposedly power-packed clubs like Galt, Chatham and Windsor in a senior 'A' group, leaving Woodstock, Strathroy, Stratford and likely Oakville in a senior 'B' group."

As for, "the Terriers club wanted, and got, such a strong club they forced most of the other teams out of the league" —that is so much eyewash.

Appeal should inform his Woodstock contemporary of the true facts of the case. The eastern division was broken because, firstly, of professional skullduggery that found the Whitby Merchants to withdraw; secondly, because of a Welland team that couldn't make up its mind from one day's end to another, and thirdly, because Galt, Sarnia-Ville and Oakville refused to play in a three-team circuit.

As for the Chick chirp about separating the "power" clubs from the allegedly weaker senior "B" set-up what would happen in the playoffs, if such a thing should come to pass? Would the weaker sisters drop out?

Closer at home, there is no word yet of a meeting of the Interprovincial Senior Hockey League with which the McFarlands have filed entry.

However, Cornwall has decided not to operate in the league this year—and this club, via the sports pages, was one of the chief objectors to a Belleville entry.

It seems the Cornwall executive and players felt they should be guaranteed Sunday games, but these dates had been promised to the Cornwall Junior Hockey League by the arena board of management. When it was found the CJHL would not relinquish the Sunday afternoon dates the senior club decided to quit for the season.

TO HUNTERS AND HUNTERS' WIVES

Al Young, hunter training officer has come up with a recipe which should be the answer to those rough and stewing cuts of venison stowed away in the deep freeze.

Says Mr. Young:—"After many years of searching I have at last found the last word in preparing venison for patties throughout the winter.

"To each three pounds of venison add ¾ pound of lean pork and ¼ pound of lean veal. Put this through the grinder three times. Divide the mixture into one-pound lots and put away in the freezer to be used as desired.

"In preparing for cooking, make into patties, add a dash of Worcestershire sauce and salt and pepper well. Then add a dash of garlic powder. Cook preferably over charcoal. Serve on a bun with relish, mustard, onions, or catsup to taste. I can thoroughly recommend it."

Eskys Defuse Bombers In 10-5 Defeat

KEY INTERCEPTION — Howie Schumm leape to intercept Vernon Cole's pass in a play that led to Edmonton Eskimos' game-winning touchdown that tied up the Western football final with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, at Winnipeg last night. Leo Lewis (29) was frozen helplessly as Schumm took off from his own 15 to the Winnipeg 24. From there J. D. Parker passed 21 yards, then went over for the major. Eskimos won 10-5. —CP Wirephoto.

Play Rubber Saturday

By TOM WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos forced the Western Interprovincial Football Union final to the sudden - death stage Monday night by hammering the Winnipeg Blue Bombers 10-5 in the second game of the best-of-three series.

Winnipeg won the first game 22-16 at Edmonton last Saturday. The deciding game is here Saturday.

The Eskimos defence kept Bombers bottled in their own end of the field most of the way, intercepted two passes and pounced on a Winnipeg fumble to set up eight of the Edmonton scoring points.

The stand-out play was an interception by Canadian defensive half Howie Schumm, who grabbed a pass thrown by Winnipeg quarterback Vern Cole and danced down the sidelines from the Edmonton 15 to the Winnipeg 37—a total of 36 yards.

SCORED LONG MAJOR

Four players later, Edmonton's Jackie Parker swept 16 yards around the right end for the game's only touchdown to put Esks ahead, 9-4 and cut Bombers' reach.

Earlier, Eskimos defensive half Bill Smith, playing with a protective cast protecting a dislocated bone in his left wrist, intercepted a Cole pass and ran to the Winnipeg 36-yard line. Three plays later, end Tommy - Joe Coffey tried a field goal that was wide, but which set up a safety point.

On Bombers' first play after that all-Eskimo setback Charlie Shepard fumbled and Coffey recovered for Edmonton at the Bombers' 26. Coffey's field goal attempt was wide, but again Eskimos got the point, 4-0.

End Vic Chapman counted Eskimos' other two points on long kicks.

Bombers points went to fullback Gerry James, with a field goal and Shepard and Cole, each of whom booted singles.

BOMBERS LACKED DRIVE

Bombers were unable to put together a sustained drive under the direction of Cole. He was substituting for the injured Ken Ploen, who played a defensive safety with a cast on his right hand and wrist.

Ploen is believed to have a cracked bone in his throwing hand. Examinations are scheduled to determine whether he will be able to direct the Bombers attack in the final game.

Eskimos rolled up 25 first downs to Winnipeg's 13 and outrushed the defending champions 199 to 178. Eskimos passed for a total of 75 yards — with Parker completing eight of 21 attempts for 63 yards and Don Getty hitting on his only toss for 12, Winnipeg's Cole completed seven of 15 attempts for 79 yards.

Shepard gained 60 yards on 12 carries for Winnipeg and Shannon 28 on seven—including his 45-

Hockey Hints

—By Lloyd Percival—

"BREWER MOVES THEM AROUND"

When Carl Brewer of the Toronto Maple Leafs first broke into the N.H.L. he showed great promise but made many costly errors mainly because he was over-anxious, a natural tendency for a young, eager player. But Brewer learns quickly and he soon discovered that to roar out at a big leaguer puckering rier was to invite disaster. This is a lesson all young defencemen should take to heart.

Brewer learned that the overanxious defenceman is to inclined to go for the first "deke" a puckcarrier makes and be left standing in open ice as the opposing player shifts by. To move too soon is to invite the puckcarrier to fake to the outside and then cut through the centre ares for an ideal play goal. The Leaf player, who has become an outstanding defenceman, now concentrates on taking the puckcarrier out to the side, away from the danger zone, always staying inside him to protect the centre zone. And, you will notice if the puckcarrier passes the puck Brewer still stays with him.

The young player should remember not only to protect the inside ice but force the play to the boards but to also stay with the man if he passes. If you turn to follow the puck the initial puckcarrier will be free to take return pass. For more defensive hints get my bulletin, "Doug Harvey, Wizard of the Blue Line", by sending a stamped, self addressed envelope and 10c to Hockey Hints, 80 King St. West, Toronto.

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal's Bernie Geoffrion, Dickie Moore and Jean Beliveau still head the Hockey League's race for scoring points.

Geoffrion picked up two goals and three assists in three games last week to increase his lead over Moore to two points from one a week ago.

Geoffrion now has 28 points while Moore, with a league-leading 18 goals in 18 games, has 26. Beliveau follows with 25.

Moore had three goals and one assist last week while Beliveau turned in a 1-3 slate.

Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings had three assists to run his season total to 23 points and is 3rd fourth place. Ullman has 17 assists and is tied with Geoffrion for the league-lead in the playmaking department.

Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks scored twice and assisted on two others to raise his total to 20 points and stay ahead of surging Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers.

Bathgate turned in a 2-3 count for the last - place Rangers to take over sole possession of sixth place with 19 points.

Montreal's Henri Richard took over seventh place on a four-point performance and has 18 now.

Three players are tied for eighth place with 18 points—Frank Mahovlich and Bert Olmstead of Toronto Maple Leafs and Gordie Howe of Detroit.

Seven players are bracketed at 16 points: Alex Delvecchio of Detroit, Red Kelly of Toronto, Bill Hay of Chicago, Bronco Horvath of Boston Bruins, Andy Hebenton and Brian Cullen of New York and defenceman Doug Harvey of Montreal.

Johnny Bower of Toronto retained the best average among goaltenders by lowering his goals against mark to 2.44 from 2.57 a week ago. Glenn Hall of Chicago is second with a 2.78 average.

Pronovost, Bonin to Go?

Habs Retain 2 Rookies

MONTREAL (CP)—Two young rookies with Montreal Canadiens have been impressive with their work they likely will be retained, it was learned Monday.

They are forwards Bobby Rousseau and Gilles Tremblay, called up to the National Hockey League club from Hull-Ottawa Canadiens of the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

If they are kept, one and possibly two regulars will be cut loose. Guess is they are Andre Pronovost and Marcel Bonin. Neither has been used regularly lately.

Canadiens' management is believed interested in sending one or both to Hull-Ottawa, but waivers would have to be asked and both players are almost certain to be claimed by other NHL clubs—either for NHL duty or for farming out.

There are reports that both Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers are interested.

REPLACED GOYETTE

Rousseau, called up when Phil Goyette was injured, has played in nine games. He has scored only one goal and one assist but has seemed to fit in well with the NHL team.

With Goyette ready to return Rousseau could still play five further games as a call-up basis. If Canadiens kept him longer and then decided to return him to the minors, waivers would have to be asked on him.

Tremblay's status is different since he was put on Canadiens' protected list before this season. As a first-year protected player he can be called up and sent back any number of times without waivers being asked, but on any return to a minor - league club he would have to remain there two weeks.

Tremblay has played in two games with Canadiens and has scored one goal.

Canadiens currently are carrying 18 players, exclusive of goalies. Under NHL regulations, the present limit of players that a club may carry is 17 after Nov. 15, exclusive of goalie. The limit beginning Dec. 1 will be 17.

Wings Quit Sponsorship Of Juveniles

SCHUMACHER (CP)—A juvenile hockey team which has sent five players to the National Hockey League may fold Sunday.

Detroit Red Wings of the NHL who have sponsored Schumacher Lions for the last six seasons, are withdrawing financial aid.

The team has been given until Sunday to decide whether or not it can operate without help from the Wings. Team officials hope merchants in this 13-mining area community will help out, but the outlook isn't too bright.

Dean Prentice of New York Rangers, Frank Mahovlich of the Toronto Leafs, Ray and Gordie Hannigan, formerly in the Leaf organization, and Pat Hannigan, recently traded by Leafs to the Rangers, are the five NHL players who got their start with the Lions.

Wings have not offered an explanation for their decision to withdraw sponsorship. Wings haven't received a pro- from Schumacher.

McCARTAN FARMED OUT

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Rangers Monday farmed out goalie Jack McCartan, star of the 1960 winter Olympic Games and only United States - born player in the National Hockey League, to Kitchener-Waterloo of the Eastern Professional League.

Minor Hockey

Rangers, Bruins and Maple Leafs shellacked up wins in the midget section of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association last night.

Rangers downed the Black Hawks 7-2 with Ken Johnson scoring three goals, Dick Pingel and Jim Woodcock two apiece. Jerry St. Denis drew two assists.

Bruins shacked the Red Wings 8-2 with Bruce DeGenova, Jack Boyle and Gary McMillan scoring for the winners. Joe Harvey had an assist. Brian Archer tagged both Wing goals and Gary Grey had one assist.

Maple Leafs downed Canadiens 4-3 with Frank Farrell and John Ostercamp each getting a goals and one assist. Paul Rutan added an assist. Carl Hoonhower and Pete Emerson scored for Canadiens.

Six games were played in the Squirt loop.

R. Lambert scored all three of his club's goals as the Flyers took a 3-1 win over the Frontiers. Ian Young scored for the losers.

Mark Acquafredo's four goals paced the Canadiens to a 7-4 win over the Leafs. Bob Lambert added two.

R. Mulvihill and D. Dembroski had a goal apiece. Joe Weyant scored twice in defeat for Leafs. Ron Mitchell and C. Creeggan had the other Hawk goals.

Red Wings won over the Boys 6-1 with T. White scoring three. Wing markers. J. Potts, Scott and B. Locke scored the others. B. Roy was the lone Boys marksman.

Maple Leafs and Rangers tied 4-4. S. Pettetier and Y. Petletier fired two goals each for the Leafs. For the Rangers it was Hewitt with a pair, B. James and R. Allison.

Barons copped a 9-3 win over the Mars. S. Sharpe bagged four goals with two apiece for M. Allore and P. Smith. A. Burkitt and S. Parrott had one each. G. Lambert, J. Fancy and J. Drummond were the Mar scorers.

The Browns ran wild to whip the Bruins 13-4. John Meens and Rick Sander scored three goals each while Andrew Slapalauskas and Kelly Theobold had two apiece. Chuck Powell, Paul Freeman and Larry Scott added singletons. Gary Sero started for the Bruins with four goals while Jim Anderson had the other.

Redmen Ready For Game With Alberta

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Bruce Coulter said Monday he is going to have to get his Eastern Champion McGill Redmen "thinking about football again" in preparation for next Saturday's East-West football playoff for the Canadian Trophy.

The Redmen, who won the championship Saturday by whitewashing the Queen's Golden Gaels 25-0, held a light practice Monday night.

"They've had two days off to celebrate and we have to start taking next Saturday's game seriously," Coulter said at a press conference.

McGill meets University of Alberta Golden Bears for the trophy. The game is being played for the benefit of the Canadian Paraplegic Association.

TWO TEAMS NAMED

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—Baltimore Orioles and Los Angeles Dodgers were named Monday to play in the 1961 Hall of Fame baseball game on Monday, July 24. It will be the 30th renewal of the exhibition game. Each league has scored nine victories in the series. Last year's game ended in a 5-5 tie between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Kansas City Athletics.

Faloney, Paquette Voteless

'Rifle', Patterson On All-Star Team

By WILF GRUBON
Canwest Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Three selections of ex-Rifle Sam Etcheverry and Hal Patterson for the Big Four football league all-star offensive teams today provided fuel for the controversy over their trade by Montreal Alouettes to Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

The deal was made a week ago after the votes were cast for The Canadian Press Big Four all-star offensive and defensive teams. The lineups were announced Monday night.

Patterson was picked as an offensive end and Etcheverry for the quarterback job, which went to Bernie Faloney in 1958 and 1959 after the nifty-armed Etcheverry had held it for five straight years. The two former Montreal players, central figures in the greatest trade in Canadian football, now have the satisfaction that the selectors still think they are all-star recognition although unwanted by Montreal coach Perry Moss and owner Ted Workman.

It is even more ironic since Faloney and defensive end Don Paquette, the Hamilton players going to Montreal in exchange, didn't receive a vote.

BEAT OUT ROTE

For Etcheverry his return to all-star status was a source of satisfaction for another reason. He beat out Jackie Parker, Edmonton Rote, who had a dazzling season in leading Toronto Argonauts to a first-place finish while Alouettes ended up third and barely made the playoffs.

However, the selectors — football writers, sportscasters and broadcasters of the league cities — gave the nod to Etcheverry in recognition of his great job in getting the defensively-weak Alouettes into a run they did, particularly since his material wasn't anywhere near the equal of Rote's. The experts also took into account that Rote seldom completely covered the rounded potential of his back-field while Etcheverry operated the more diversified attack in the league with 24 touchdowns by passing and 32 by running.

The selectors, whose votes were weighted to give equal balloting strength to each league city, split the honors almost evenly between Argos and the second — place Ottawa Rough Riders, each kicking the lineups of the mythical dream teams. Nine positions went to Toronto players, eight to Ottawa, four to Montreal and three to Hamilton.

The Montreal players all made chosen for the offensive team, with the rest of the squad made up of three men each from Toronto and Ottawa and two from Hamilton. Toronto placed six on the defensive squad, Ottawa five and Hamilton one.

NO UNANIMOUS CHOICES

There were no unanimous choices this year but Cookie Gilchrist of Argos and John Barrow of Tiger-Cats were picked to go both ways—Gilchrist as halfback on offence and inside linebacker on defence and Barrow as offensive and defensive tackle in both lineups. Gilchrist, the league's scoring champion this year and last, is the East's nominee this season for the award as the outstanding player in the country.

Ron Stewart, a tricky-cunning Ottawa halfback, and centre Norm Stoneburgh of Argos were the only Canadians named to the offensive team. It was another all-star laurel for Stewart, who has been nominated for the country's outstanding football player award three times.

Three Ottawa players were also among the four Canadians who made the defensive unit. Halfback Joe Poirier, corner linebacker Gary Schreiber and end Lou Bruce were the Rough Rider players chosen along with middle guard Marty Martinello of Argos. Schreiber is his team's defensive leader and plays up tight as a linebacker or halfback.

Looks Like Soccer Strike Over 'Ome'

LONDON (AP) — English League soccer players Monday gave the go-ahead for strike action in their demands for more pay.

In a mass meeting, players from the south of England promised the Professional Footballers' Association — the union for 2,700 professionals in England — that they were ready to go to "any lengths" to achieve their aims.

The players then set a deadline by which to meet with club owners and government labor officials.

Players from the Scottish and English will meet in Birmingham today and Manchester on Thursday to discuss pay and contract commitments.

The meetings were called after club owners refused a revision of pay.

Joe Richards, chairman of the English league, said that a third of the 92 clubs are "in the red" and cannot afford pay raises.

The maximum weekly pay for an English League player is 20 pounds ($56).

U.S. Makes It Three-Way Curling Event

TORONTO (CP) — The United States has accepted an invitation to compete with Canada and Scotland in the annual Scotch Cup curling event, it was announced Monday.

The 1961 matches again will be played in Scotland. First two matches are scheduled for March 21 in Ayr. Third and fourth matches will be played March 22 at Kirkcaldy, and the final two Dunblane March 24 in Perth.

Previously, the Scotch Cup was a best-of-five series between Canada and Scotland. A Regina rink skipped by Ernie Richardson won the cup the last two years.

Winners of the Canadian curling championship at Calgary March 15 to 18 will be invited to represent Canada in the Scotch Cup. Representing the U.S. will be the winning rink in the United States curling championships to be held in Fargo, N.D., March 15-18. Championship rinks from 12 states will compete.

Sweeney Tops American Loop

NEW YORK (AP)—Bill Sweeney of Springfield Indians and Larry Wilson of Buffalo Bisons still are just a point apart in their scrap for the American Hockey League scoring lead. Each picked up five points last week.

Official statistics today showed Sweeney with 28 points on nine goals and 19 assists. Wilson, tied with Sweeney for the lead in last week, has scored eight goals.

Willie Marshall of Hershey Bears is third following an eight-point pickup that gave him a total of 24. Bruce Cline of Springfield, tied for fourth in scoring, and Dick Gamble of Buffalo are the top goaltenders, each with 12.

Marcel Paille of first - place Springfield retained his big lead among the goalies with five shutouts and a 2.06 goals-against average.

CLAIMS NOT AIRWORTHY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Agency said Monday a C-46 airliner which crashed Oct. 29, killing 16 California Polytechnic College football players and six other persons, was overloaded and was not in an airworthy condition.

Wayne Boddy Tops Junior Points Race

TORONTO (CP) — Wayne Boddy of the league-leading Peterborough Petes has opened up a three-point margin in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series scoring parade with a total of 17 points in six games.

Official statistics including two has been used on defence as well as at his regular left wing post, is also the league's top goal-getter with 10 markers. He has assisted on seven others.

Rod Gilbert of Guelph Royals with nine goals and five assists is one of three players tied for second place with 14 points. Murrey Hall of St. Catharines Teepees has seven goals and seven assists, while his teammate Bob Kellough has scored five times and assisted on nine goals.

Howie Menard of Toronto Marlboros with 13 points is followed closely by Jemott Gilbert of Niagara Falls Flyers, Doug Senior and Claude Larose, both of the Pirates and Gary Garrett of Marlboros, all of whom have 12.

Flyers' Wayne Rutledge continues to hold his lead in the goaltenders race with a 1.67 goal average to six games. Jerry Randall of Marlborough is next with a 2.50 average in four games.

Services Dart League Results

The Skylinners scored a rare shutout in Belleville Services Dart League action last night, blanking the OPP 11-0.

Other games saw Parsons take a 7-4 win over Aitchesons, Lucky Lews down El Hacho's 8-3, Stewarts defeat ANAF 7-4, Northern Electric down RCAF 83 and LaPalms defeat Legion 7-4.

'Start All Over' Riders Ready for Fray

OTTAWA (CP) — The pelts have been warm all today and Ottawa Rough Riders started looking forward to the prospect of trampling Toronto Argonauts on their own field Sunday.

Oddly enough, the Big Riders are most eager to forget right now is the fact they hold a 12-point edge going into the second half of the total-point series for a berth in the Grey Cup game in Vancouver Nov. 26.

"We start all over," warned assistant coach Bill Smythe before leaving Ottawa Monday to see Edmonton Eskimos force a third game on Winnipeg Blue Bombers to decide which Western team will have a place in the Nov. 26 lineup.

Ottawa's 33-31 margin after Saturday's game brings back the total-point series to Hamilton Tiger-Cats after an identical 12-point lead Riders had taken into the second game as favorites.

ANALOGY ENDS THERE?

Coach Frank Clair is content to let the analogy ends there. Last year quarterback Russ Jackson was barely able to walk on the field for the second encounter because of an injured heel. This year he's going in with a couple of injured ribs but nothing worse than the sore nose of the players came out with Saturday.

Keys of Jackson's chest Monday show the injury is superficial and has no connection with the rib cartilege trouble that benched him earlier in the season.

Then there's Ron Lancaster, the rookie pivot who stepped into Babe Parilli's job this season and injected the passing spirit that benched enough tickets in the Argo armor to make him a key factor in four Rider wins against three setbacks.

Having come out of the first game with no appreciable loss of offensive strength, Clair is wary of upsetting his quarterback-punting grew out to nurse a lead that would be wiped out with two of Tobin Rote's lethal tosses.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Rocose Rogue, an Armbro-bred two - year-old colt owned by the Argo Stable of Northam, Ontario of Toronto, won a narrow heat victory in the featured Trotting Pace before 6,324 Wednesday Monday.

Thoroughbred racing entered its final 10-day session of the 196-day season with Monday's program. The season ends Thursday Nov. 24.

In six starts now, Rocose Rogue has won three races, Rocose Rogue and Choppy Wind, owned by E. P. Taylor's Windfields Farms, battled to a photo finish Monday. Lady Gangster was third.

The double of Airborn Charm in the first and Kandi Kid in the second returned a "favorite" double price of $31.16.

Riders haven't gone to the Grey Cup since 1950 when they defeated Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Grid Star Wins Suit

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The U. S. circuit court of appeals ruled in favor of former Louisiana State football star Johnny Robinson in his suit with the National Football League's Detroit Lions.

Robinson is now playing with the Dallas Texans of the American Football League.

The appellate court upheld a lower court order which refused to enjoin him from making a contract with the Texans.

Attorneys for the NFL club sought to show that Robinson signed a binding contract with the Lions and took $3,500 in advance which he later sought to return. The club turned down the money and filed suit. The district court ruled that the Detroit agreement consisted of an advance of his expected income.

DOUBLE QUARTERBACK — The double-quarterback system has found its way back into Canadian college and high school football. Coach Bob Hayes used it last season with his St. Mary's University team in Halifax and this year a Toronto high school team experimented with it. It didn't. But St. Mary's former-tion the ball is snapped to one of the quarterbacks, both of whom have their backs to the line. The system works best in providing deception on running plays. (CP Photo).

Sport Snapshots

By ED SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A few weeks ago a Toronto high school football coach tried what was described as an "un-trick play" double - quarterback system. There was nothing new or dangerous about it.

Bob Hayes, a native of London, Ont., who has been coach and athletic director at St. Mary's University, Halifax, the last three seasons, experimented with the formation last year. And it was all stuff in Toronto high school circles 12 years ago.

In most instances, the manoeuvre didn't fool many people, though it worked up to a point for St. Mary's. The other teams in the league soon caught on.

The college woo four of five games last season to finish second behind the Maritime Intercollegiate champion University of New Brunswick Red Bombers. The loss was to the Bombers. But the back-to-the-enemy quarterback formation wasn't the main cause.

"They clobbered us, not because of the quarterback system," says Hayes, "this was personal. We met a superior club and I don't think 30 quarterbacks would have helped that day."

The former navy petty officer still thinks the double-quarterback has merit even though he preaches the wing-T to his St. Mary's charges in the Atlantic Conference this year.

NEEDS THREE QBs

"I thought of it before this season started. But we didn't have the quarterbacks. You have to have three quarterbacks, you know, if this thing is to work."

Any coach who wants to mess with the system must do so on his own paperwork.

"There are no books to work from; no other coaches you can turn to for background," says Hayes. "It's yours from scratch."

The formation, as employed by Hayes, has t h e quarterbacks with their backs to the line and their heads close together as they look down at the ball ready to be snapped. Both have their hands outstretched and the ball comes up between them. Either one can take it.

The "side-saddle" deployment offered good opportunity for an inside running game. It didn't call for passing, however, although Hayes says he found opposition backs didn't react as alertly on a passing play.

Hayes, who joined the navy in 1951 and came to Halifax the same year, has nothing in his football background that suggests he's even the tiniest bit a gambler. A star with Beal Vocational in London where he played centre and end, backfielder, the 190-pound Hayes came to the navy's Shearwater Flyers in 1952 and got a notice from them in 1956 as a charging halfback. He led the Flyers to the Canadian intermediate championship.

Hal Patterson To Talk With Gaudaur

HAMILTON (CP)—Hal Patterson says he has no objections to playing football for Hamilton Tiger Cats and he's going to talk money with general manager J. G. (Jake) Gaudaur this weekend, it was reported Monday night.

Patterson was traded, along with quarterback Sam Etcheverry, to Hamilton by Montreal Alouettes.

Etcheverry hasn't said definitely yet whether he'll line up with Ticats and says he'll let everyone know his decision in June.

Gaudaur said Monday he talked briefly with Patterson by telephone and Patterson refused to meet him in Los Angeles during the weekend to discuss a contract.

While in Los Angeles Gaudaur will also try to line up another end, Marvin McKeever, who starred for University of Southern California in the Pacific Coast Conference this season.

Urbina Loses To Matthes

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Len Matthews, top-ranked light weight contender, Monday night earned a split decision over Mexican champion Alfredo Urbina in a featured 10 - round bout. Both weighed 136.

The Philadelphian scored his 29th victory against three losses and two draws by outpunching Urbina at a slightly fast left hook and several combinations.

Referee Zack Clayton called it a draw, giving each fighter 48 points. Judge Leo Trew favored Matthews 47-46 and Judge Nate Lonjinson scored it 48-45 in favor of Matthews. The AP had Matthews ahead 47-46.

75 Per Cent of Artists Make Less Than $3,000 Year in TV

By CYNTHIA LOWAY

NEW YORK (AP)—Television, like the movies and radio before it, is fond of big round figures, and its publicists are not reluctant to plump up the figures even more.

We see published reports that Debbie Reynolds received some $200,000 for her recent one-hour special; that Perry Como paid Casey Stengel more than $7,000 for one guest appearance on his show, and that Rivak, the Barbarian cost NBC about $200,000.

But all are statistics that should be absorbed with a grain of salt.

It is true, of course, that many performers and behind-the-camera executives do make a lot of money in television. Some announcers and performers under contract to represent a sponsor or even several non-competitive sponsors are making upward of $75,000 a year. There are performers—like Perry Como and Dinah Shore—whose annual salaries exceed those of most corporation presidents.

But these are the exceptions. Recently the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists made a survey of its membership and found that 75 per cent of the membership grossed less than $3,000 a year in television.

NOT DRAMATIC

The minimum rates of pay under the performer's code of air practice for network TV broadcasting—rates which the union is seeking to increase — are not quite as dramatic as those astronomical star salaries.

For a principal performer — one who speaks more than five Poncie (5-minute) program is $37. That means sound pretty good, but remember it isn't steady work. Performers who speak less than five lines received $62.50 for a 15 - minute program; minimum for a speciality act with two performers is $71. And when the program is unsponsored, prices get cut by 20 per cent.

AT THE PARK — Fred MacMurray as the star of a best in "The Apartment", playing tonight at the Park Theatre, through United Artists release. He tells Shirley MacLaine that thinking he's ready to move white his regards their relationship. "Why must I die?" is the current movie sensation at the program in "Edge of Eternity" at the Belle Theatre, Cornwall.

AT THE BELLE — The explosive talents of Gina Lollobrigida and Yves Montand, two of the screen's most exciting personalities, merge in one of the year's most provocative dramas, "Where the Hot Wind Blows", co-starring lovely Melina Mercouri, showing tonight for the last times at the Belle Theatre. Anne Baxter and Steve Forrest are starred in the co-feature, MGM's "Bedevilled", a fast-action story in Color and CinemaScope.

Double Murderer Self-Taught Genius on Diseases of Birds

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, (AP)—The finale on the movie set had a mission —to free a prisoner he has never seen.

This is no ordinary prisoner. His name is Robert Stroud, and he has been in the toughest prisons in the U.S. for over 50 years—43 of them in solitary confinement. He is a double murderer. He is also a self-taught genius specializing in the diseases of birds.

The man who aims to free Stroud is Thomas E. Gaddis, who dropped his job as Los Angeles probation officer to research and write the book Birdman of Alcatraz.

He told how Stroud, an 18-year-old bohemwho landed in Alaska in 1909, had killed the man who had beaten up his girl friend. Stroud was shipped to Leavenworth Pen., knifing a stool pigeon. He killed a guard in a dispute and began a long solitary existence in tiny cells of Leavenworth and Alcatraz.

His escape from madness was in keeping and studying canaries. He produced the authoritative work, Stroud's Digest of the Diseases of Birds.

TRIED TO STOP

Gaddis's biography of Stroud came out this year, and a film version is finally being made after several delays. Gaddis sold federal prison director James V. Bennett had tried to stop the filming of Birdman of Alcatraz.

But producer Harold Hecht decided to ignore the federal pressure. He bought Birdman of Alcatraz and made a deal with Burt Lancaster to star as Stroud.

Gaddis, who is on the set every day as technical adviser, says the film won't gloss over the facts of Stroud's criminal history. But the author beads a pro-Stroud committee composed of citizens and bird lovers.

His 50th Anniversary

Casey Has' Em Howling

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP)— The inimitable Mr. Stengel—Casey, that is — took several hundred friends on a scenic-tour tour of his 50 years in baseball, from Kankakee to Yankee Stadium, with innumerable detours through the English language Monday night.

The setting was the exclusive Verdugo Club. Casey's banquet when wife Edna Lee Nolan cut of the birthday cake for a spell.

The dinner was a salute to Casey's golden anniversary in baseball. It also turned into a humorous lament for the 70-year-old baseball manager of the Yankees.

County supervisor Warren Dorn put it this way: "Next to the firing of Governor Earl Arthur by President Truman, the firing of Casey by the Yankees was the most shocking."

Master of ceremonies Leo Durocher, in a moment of high praise to Stengel, said he would like to be a coach for the oldtimer. To which Walter O'Malley, president of the Dodgers, observed:

"The last I heard, Leo wanted to be a manager, wanted a piece of a ball club, an unlimited salary and a key to the vault."

Says Argos Will Be Fit

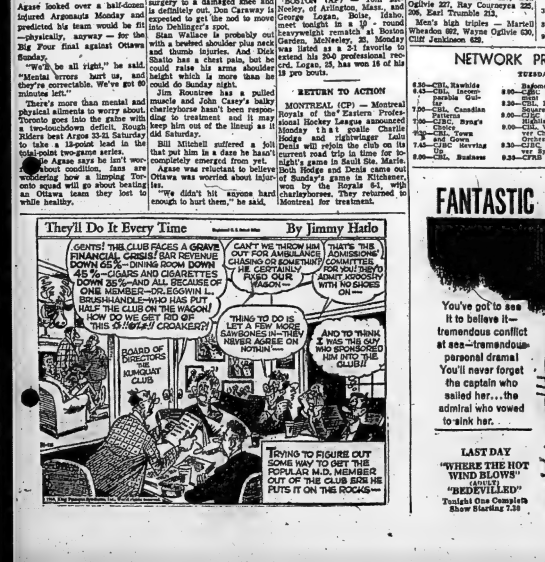
TORONTO (CP) —Coach Lou Agase looked over a half-dozen injured Argonauts Monday and predicted his team would be fit physically, anyway — for the Big Four final against Ottawa Sunday.

"We'll be all right," he said. "Mental hrrors hurt us, and they're correctable. We've got 60 minutes left."

There's more than mental and physical ailments to worry about. Toronto runs into the game with a two-touchdown deficit. Rough Riders beat Argos 33-31 Saturday to take a 6-point lead in the total-point two-game series.

But Agase says he isn't worried about condition, fans are wondering how a limping Toronto squad will go about beating an Ottawa team they lost to while healthy.

Bobby Dehlinger may require surgery to a damaged knee and is definitely out. Don Carsway is expected to get the nod to move into Dehlinger's spot.



Stan Wilcox is probably out with a bruised shoulder plus neck and thumb injuries. And Dick Shatto has a chest pain, but he could raise his arms shoulder height which is more than he could do Sunday night.

Ron Rounds has a pulled muscle and John Casey's balky charleyhorse hasn't been responding to treatment and it may keep him out of the lineup as it did Saturday.

Bill Mitchell suffered a jolt that put him in a daze he hasn't completely emerged from yet. Sir.

Agase was reluctant to believe Ottawa was worried about injuries.

"We didn't hit anyone hard enough to hurt them," he said.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Wednesday, November 16, 1960

General Tendencies: Now you are released from the harsh and pleasure influences of the past two days and are able to contact most everyone who can be helpful to you, with the knowledge that a real meeting of minds co- occur. Nice for business or personal interests connected with the desire of the public for pleasure ,entertainment or adornment.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Make this morning productive by contacting the right people and get them to co-operate with you on your ideas by being very helpful yourself. You will be amazed at their favorable response. P.M. have dinner out. Enjoy yourself.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Fine day for making the improvements and artistic additions to your surroundings that will increase beauty and comfort. Also be very kind and thoughtful with co-workers. Plan your work and then labor constructively.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Take time to improve your appearance in early morning. Then plan hobbies or recreation you prefer after you have completed the day's work. Evening is also fine for any social affairs that are important and enjoyable.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) Though you may have to be in the busy business world, your thoughts should be on family gifts in P.M. Then have guests in that are worthwhile and can brighten atmosphere.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) Any appointments you keep today are bound to meet with real success. Also, do shopping that is necessary and in P.M. be sure you get your records and papers in order. Buy, sell, make any personal sales that please.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) Get that feeling of accomplishment today by doing necessary repair work — don't be afraid to add the right dashes of color to environment, too. P.M. plan for days ahead, wisely — get appointments set up properly.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Think seriously this morning about your true desires or goals in life. Then begin planning wisely, dress in good taste and start the ball rolling by going to the right places. P.M. have fun among society.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) An ideal day to do some necessary investigating so that you can set up whatever puzzles you right now. Also, be alert to any opportunities that come your way. Evening is good for romantic leanings or other pleasures.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Day hours are best for contacting those individuals who can help you to climb the ladder of success more easily. P.M. important you be the soul of sociability and increase circle of friends while having a very good time.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Important you do the work or make the outside contacts vital to you right now. Increasing prestige is necessary and you must make the finest impression on everyone. P.M. have dinner out with higher-ups. Dress in perfect taste.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Fine chances for advancement are all about you now, so make it a point to garner every bit of information you need to take advantage of them. Don't limit your goals — you are equal to high aspirations. Grow.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Follow that hunch that will bring you greater success in the future — it has every possibility of doing just that. Evening is then fine for sitting down with close associates and planning the weeks ahead very wisely.

If your child is born today . . he, or she will have such a fascinating personality that many in the higher brackets will soon want to heap all kinds of favors upon your progeny. This is fine, but early teaching also that nothing is ever enjoyed so much as that which is earned by the sweat of the brow. Hence, the habit of work is soon formed and then the chant becomes very successful and happy.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And what's more, these reports were given by wide variety of hemorrhoid cases, from those who have suffered for years to those who suffered only a few days.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a world famous research institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold on a 21 day money back guarantee. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Old Tin Goose Is Vital To Islanders in Lake Erie

By PETER EMMORETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PUT-IN-BAY, Ohio (CP) — The 1926 Ford Tri - Motor bumped along the runway here and climbed out over Lake Erie in a spectacular clambelite.

It was no air show.

One of the world's oldest working airliners, the Tin Goose was off on another routine flight on North America's shortest international airline route.

The two tri-motor planes of Sky Tours Incorporated — big, bulky and built of corrugated iron-fly a 25-mile route over a small group of islands in Lake Erie-usky, Ohio, just eight miles from Pelee Island, Canada's southernmost populated point.

They are the year-round residents of the American Islands—Kattlesnake, Kelley's, Middle, North and South Bass—and the Goose is a vital link with the mainland, an hour away by boat in the best weather but only minutes by air.

Since the huge silver planes first linked the islands on a bus-like schedule in 1936, they have flown searches for lost fishermen, sped medical help, played schoolbus, airlifted groceries, newspapers, mail, carpets, big furniture, plows, even a kitchen sink.

CLIMB LIKE BIRDS

Flying from short rough air strips, they do the seemingly impossible, lifting two tons of cargo over trees and wires off an average of about 900 feet of runway.

Sky Tours enjoys one of the best flying records on the continent. No passenger has ever been injured since 1956 when a three flying days have been lost. Dale Burris, 17, commuting to school by air, had perfect attendance record than many classmates who ride buses.

Island-hopping in the old Fords builds a rugged breed of passenger. The longest air strip on the five islands is 1,200 feet, but the pilots can take off in a cult because of this air, 1,200 feet can look short even to a modern light plane.

On regular mail and passenger runs the tri - motors skims low over the Lake Erie whitecaps,

Interim Budget Seen Possible As House Meets

Unemployment Solutions To Require Tax Changes

OTTAWA (CP)—Twin problems of unemployment and national development—both under intensive cabinet study for months—will be front and centre on the parliamentary stage during the new session which opens Thursday.

At least some of the government's proposed remedies for the country's economic ailments are expected to be unveiled in the speech from the throne at the opening ceremonies.

However it is apparent that some moves, reported to have been under active consideration, would require tax-change legislation and it is felt that could only be introduced in a budget speech.

There has been press speculation, as yet unconfirmed, that Finance Minister Fleming may bring down a "baby budget" early in session to permit speedy action in this field.

Whatever action the government may take has been a well-guarded secret, and Prime Minister Diefenbaker in a recent speech indicated her thin ice may be aloof. He told an audience of party supporters that "we have been forced to act."

FACES TWO TYPES

In the economic field the government will be chiefly facing two types of problems.

One is the immediate issue of unemployment this winter and of the 500,000 persons who are hit post-war peaks for the time of year.

The second problem is a more fundamental, long-range one of finding ways to beef up the basic structure of the economy itself through which new employment will provide new and permanent sources of jobs and thus help strengthen existing industries.

On this score the government is reported to have considered several moves, including creation of a national development council to help finance establishment of new business and industry and various incentives to encourage Canadian—rather than foreign—investment in the country.

COULD EXTEND SYSTEM

Another move, on the domestic scene, would be establishment of the 20-district provincial economic development boards now operating under federal government sponsorship to give them more permanent status and immediate action along the lines of a system of higher government spending or bodies.

TORONTO (CP) — Funeral services will be held here Thursday for Frank Sharp, Goodyear sales manager of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Canada Limited, who died in St. Peters-burgh, Fla., Saturday.

U.S. Rider Says Spectators Were Chicken-Hearted

TORONTO (CP) — United States rider High Wiley says he was hired him for driving his horse at an ultra-high jump at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair here Saturday night because spectators were "chicken-hearted."

Wiley, from Baltimore, Md., led a U.S. jumping team to victory Monday night in international competition for the LL.-Col. Stuart C. Reid Memorial Challenge Trophy with Ireland second.

With other riders eliminated in the last event, Wiley and Toronto's Tom Gaylord battled it out until one of the fences was put up to seven feet, four inches. Each horse cleared the jump for fear of injuring his tired horse.

As Wiley attempted to jump, spectators booed and shouted: "You will kill that horse!"

Wiley's horse Kiar d'Esprit failed to jump but kicked up enough points to give the U.S. team the win.

"I wasn't trying to kill a $33,000 horse just to win a event," Wiley said Tuesday night. "But what's the purpose of sport if you don't put the seemingly impossible? My hecklers were only a few chicken-hearted spectators."

Hard-Working Session Seen For Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — A busy, hard-working session is in prospect for the Senate of Canada, Senator Walter Aseltine, government leader in the upper house, said Tuesday in an interview.

He said two important senate committees are nearing completion of their work.

A report of the manpower committee, set up last spring to work with experts to work during the recess of surveys of unemployment and employment prospects, may be made to the house early in the new session, Senator Aseltine said.

A committee on land use originally formed at the suggestion of former prime minister Louis St. Laurent, is nearing the end of its long task and is conveying the need in Canada for land conservation measures.

There are 102 Senate seats distributed by geographical areas. After the 1958 federal government, the Conservative leader said, there were a handful. The number of Conservative senators has increased in the last session to 54, but there still are 83 Liberals.

The Senate leader said he would again nominate a Liberal, Senator Norman Paterson of Toronto, to be chairman of the Senate's most important regular committee, banking and commerce. It is the main senate committee dealing with government and private legislation.

SOME GET SHOTS

TORONTO (CP)—A health department spokesman said Monday 12 of 32 persons stricken with paralytic polio in Ontario so far this year had each received three shots of anti-polio vaccine. Another eight had either one or two shots of the vaccine. One person had died, but the spokesman did not say whether any shots had been given.

Shy Jacqueline Kennedy Is Facing White House Life With Misgivings

WASHINGTON (CP) — Sensitive and shy, Jacqueline Kennedy views her oncoming ten-ure in the White House with some apprehension. The pretty wife of the president-elect prefers solitude to a crowd. She'd rather talk of a good book than politics.

"I know I no longer can expect to be a normal person, a private person," says the 31-year-old wife of John Fitzgerald Kennedy. "My husband will have to work harder than ever before. My children will be in the public eye. My children.

"My main duty will be to take care of the president so he can best carry out his function, but I want to live my children with nurses and secret service men."

That's Jacqueline's major concern—that her three - year - old daughter Caroline and the child she expects next month should have a normal life away from the glare of publicity.

That's why when her husband takes the presidential flight, her first press conference at Hyannis
